P. C. Meharry called, stated that he saw the defendant at five minutes to twelve on the Sunday night, go into his bar, prepare some drinks from bottles and hand them out through the south door. He again saw him fill beer glasses, set them on the bar and then turned and taking a bottle from the shelf, filled a smaller glass. The proprietor several times entered the bar and prepared drinks, once putting some on a tray, which he handed to the bell boy. The cash register was used eight or nine times.

This concluded the evidence for the prosecution and the accused went into the box on his own defence. On being sworn, he emphatically denied having mixed any drinks in the bar on Sunday night. In fact, he could not work the beer taps as the water pressure is always shut off at seven o'clock on Saturday night, and at 11 o'clock on other nights. He admitted going into the bar and taking a drink himself.

Two bar tenders corroborated what the previous witness had said in regard to the water pressure being shut off, but on being cross-examined by Chief Rossel, one of them stated that there were times that it was left on.

The court then adjourned until 2.30.

FIRE IN POST OFFICE

Lakefield Building Threatened By Early Morning Blaze.

Special to The Examiner.

Lakefield, Dec. 7.—Only for the fact that Fred Amys, night operator at the Bell Telephone office found it necessary to visit the Lakefield Post Office early yesterday morning that structure would have been destroyed by a blaze which originated from the electric wiring. Mr. Amys had occasion to visit the Post Office to post some letters and found the ceiling on fire.

The fire bell was sounded and the citizens responded to the call.

By tearing out the wires the blaze was easily extinguished before much damage had been done. The loss will not exceed $25 or $50.

The building would have undoubtedly been destroyed if it had not been for Mr. Amys' visit.

PEOPLE HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO VOTE ON WARD SYSTEM

By-law Will be Submitted at the January Elections, Although it Came Near Being Rescinded Last Night.

VOTE WAS TAKEN

It looked for a while at last night's Council meeting as if the people would not get an opportunity at the January elections to say what they thought of the proposal to return to the ward system of electing aldermen. At a previous meeting the by-law had had its first and second readings, but last night Ald. Hicks brought up the matter again, and moved that the readings be rescinded, and that the by-law be not submitted. The motion was defeated by a majority of one after the ayes and nays had been taken.

Ald. Hicks, in commencing the discussion on the matter, said that when it had been proposed in the Council that a two-year term for aldermen should be arranged, he had opposed the matter. Now, however, as it had passed and they had been working at it for one year, it should be tried out before going back to the ward system. If it was found not to be a good thing it could be easily dropped while, on the other hand, if it was decided to go back to the ward system and then afterwards dissatisfaction was found with that it would be impossible to make any further change. He moved that the by-law be not submitted.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Phelan, and endorsed by Mayor Rush. Ald Morrow stated that although he was in favour of the ward system he thought that as the city had had a great deal of trouble in securing the privilege of electing its aldermen for a two-year term, they should try out the plan. When they had gone before the Legislature to ask for the power they had been told that they would be the only city in Canada that would have the power. He would vote for the matter going over for another year.

Ald. McIntyre expressed himself as being in favour of the ward system, and of submitting the matter to the people as asked for in their petition.

A vote was taken on Ald. Hicks' motion, with the following result:

For the motion—Ald. Hicks, Phelan, Morrow, Duffus, Gillespie.

Against the motion—Ald. Bradburn, Duncan, McIntyre, Metheral, Morgan.

Ald. Buller did not vote, and as Ald. Turner was absent, it left the vote equal. Mayor Rush cast his deciding vote in favour of the motion, and it looked as if the by-law would not be submitted when Ald. Metheral called for the ayes and nays, with the following result:

Ayes—Ald. Hicks, Duffus, Phelan, Morrow and Gillespie.

Nays—Ald. Morgan, McIntyre, Duncan, Metheral, Bradburn, and Buller, thus defeating Ald. Hicks' motion, and the by-law will be submitted with the others on January 3.

LAST LAUNCH TAKEN OUT OF OTONABEE

The last of the Otonabee boat house fleet of launches was taken out of the water on Monday after a season that began early in the year. Mr. Osborne, of the Carpet Company, slid his launch into the river on March 21st and took it out a week ago Saturday. The ice had not entirely disappeared, but a trip to the second bridge was possible. The last boat to be taken out was Mr. Tommy Meredith's, after almost an equally long season. Both these crafts have seen considerable service this year, and have made the trip between Rye's and the Lake more often than any other of the local crafts. The season as a whole was a very enjoyable one and witnessed greater activity in launch circles. Next summer should be even more enjoyable, and it is known that quite a number of new vessels will be launched in the spring.

The Brock Street Roller Rink will be open all this week, with the Band in attendance. Special Band Concert To-night. 133

MEETINGS HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFUL

The meetings in Peterborough district under the direction of the Dairy Department at Ottawa were concluded yesterday with a meeting at Cavanville.

In all eighteen metings have been held in this section and they have proved highly successful. The attendance everywhere has ben large and great enthusiasm and interest has been shown.

The speakers, Mr. Barr and Mr. Joseph Burgess have been accompanied by Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie. Mr. Barr's address on the importance of cooling milk without aeration has been appreciated everywhere and no doubt will have a very beneficial effect while Mr. Burgess' talks on the ow Testing Associations has been followed by a formation of a number of new associations in the district.

Messrs. Cameron and Warde, the dairy instructors, apointed by the Ontario Government for this district, accompanied the other speakers at these meetings.

$1000 BILL HAS YET TO BE PAID

Dr. MacPherson's bill for $1,000 for services rendered during the smallpox epidemic is still being dilly-dallied with by the Council. The Board of Health, after going into the matter, had decided that Dr. MacPhersons' services were worth the amount set and they accordingly recommended to the Council that he should be paid $1,000. The Council sent the bill to the Finance committee and that body after considering the matter came to the conclusion that they had not enough information to act upon and they sent the account back to the Council.

It came up before a committee of the whole last night and once more the Council was not prepared to do anything with it. They had no knowledge of the value of the services rendered and seemed to think that the amount was too large. Mayor Rush gave it as his opinion that the account should be paid. He knew what services Dr. MacPherson had rendered and had confidence in the Board of Health's report.

However, the Council decided to send the matter back to the Finance committee once again this time with power to act.

WILL ASK FOR $19,000

By-law Will be Submitted to the People Asking Them to Vote That Amount for an Isolation Hospital.

GOT ITS TWO READINGS

The ratepayers will have an opportunity on January 3rd to express their opinion on the advisability of voting $19,000 for the erection and equipment of an Isolation hospital.

The by-law providing for this was given its first and second readings at last night's meeting and will go before the people, although some of the aldermen thought the amount asked for was too much.

Ald. Morrow thought that $16,000 was amply sufficient for the purpose. The amount asked for was, he thought, too much.

Ald. Bradburn explained how the figure had been arrived at. It had appeared that $19,000 would be needed to carry the project with the plans approve of by the committee.

Ald. Morrow moved that the amount be amended to $16,000.

Ald. Hicks suggested that if the amount was to be decreased new plans would be needed.

"Then let us get them," remarked Ald. Morrow.

Ald. Bradburn suggested leaving the matter over for the new Council to deal with.

Ald. Duncan thought that $15,000 was enough but if the people were to be asked for any sum it might as well be $19,000, as if that by-law was defeated the Council would still have power to spend $15,000 on a building without consulting the people.

Ald. Bradburn's by-law was given its second reading as it stood.

BRAKEMAN FELL FROM BOX CAR AND WAS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Melville Parcell Had Both Arms and Nose Broken in Accident at Hastings Last Night---Fell From Car Standing on the Siding---Is Now in Nicholls Hospital.

To have both arms and his nose broken and one wrist badly sprained, were the injuries received by Melville Parcell, a brakeman on the Grand Trunk, who fell from a box car at Hastings last night. The accident happened about ten o'clock. A freight train was standing on a siding at Hastings, previous to proceeding West. Parcell was walking from car to car, and on one of them he slipped and fell headlong to the ground. He fell on his face with his arms outstretched, and when picked up was unconscious. His injuries were only temporarily attended to, and he was placed on the freight train and brought to Peterborough. The Dan Spence ambulance met the train at the locks bridge, and the unfortunate brakeman was removed to Nicholls Hospital, where Dr. McClelland set the fractured limbs and otherwise attended to his injuries.

Parcell is a young man whose home is in Hamilton.

A BOOST NUMBER

Stratford Herald Has Issued a Very Creditable Special Edition.

The Stratford Herald has issued a splendid "boost" number containing thirty-eight pages that are crowded full of intresting facts about the lassic City. The Herald's special edition contains many cuts and is a very creditable number, that will do much to carry out the desired object of boosting Stratford. Some of the projects taken up are the projected street railway and the Victoria Lake improvements, two items that are attracting much attention in Stratford jus now.

KING EDWARD WINS $100,000

London, Dec. 6.—The racing season "on the flat" ended last week with the running of the Manchester November Handicap, the last important event of the year. This race, distance one mile, and a half, for three year olds and upward, worth 1,500 sovereigns, was won by Admiral Togo III., Rathlea was second and Rockbourne third.

King Edward achieved the greatest turf triumphs of his career as a patron of the "sport of kings" during the season just ended. He finished second on the list of winning owners, with $100,720 to his credit. His prominence was due to the success of two of his horses—Minoru, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas Stakes at Newmarket and the Derby at Epsom and to Princes de Galles, second in both the One Thousand Guineas and The Oaks. His Majesty's horses won many races during the early spring and summer, but seemed to lose form as the season progressed and were repeatedly beaten in the fall by horses that had finished behind them during the running of the early events.

Mr. Fairie is the leading winning owner, with $188,595. His colt Bagardo, a bitter disappointment to the betting public, who had heavily backed him to win the Two Thousand Guineas and the Derby, in both of which events he raced miserably made amends later by winning eleven races valued at $123,985.

Harry Payne Whitney's horses won $45,295. James R. Keene was not so successful, as his horses earned only $19,025.

Frank Wootton, an Australian boy, sixteen years old, heads the list of jockeys, with a total of over 150 mounts.

A SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL

The Knox Church Young People's Guild had an enjoyable meeting last night; a splendid programme was provided, and pork and beans were the unique refreshments that were later enjoyed. Mrs. W. A. Parker occupied the chair, and the following programme was given:

Song—Rev. H. J. Keith.

Violin solo—Master Andrew Robertson.

Song—Mr. Robert Dickson.

Recitation—Miss Simpson.

Quartette—Mrs. H. J. Keith, Miss E. Williamson, Mr. R. Dickson, Mr Reid. (Encore applauded.)

Song—Mr. F. Stacey.

Pianoforte solo—Miss L. Chilcs.

Song—Mr. A. Donaldson.

Song—Mr. F. Stacey.

After the programme pork and beans were then served.

The evening was a great success, and thoroughly enjoyed.

Next Monday, Dec. 13, is devotional night, when Mr. A. C. Davenport will be in charge.

COLLEGIATE IN JUNIOR O. H. A.

Now that a Lindsay junior hockey team in the O. H. A. is a surety, the Collegiate Institute Athletic Association will go ahead with their plans and will enter a team in the junior O. H. A. ranks, at the same time withdrawing their team from the City League, which they entered at the annual meeting. The Chieftains will, however, remain in the City League and will have the advantage of using a number of their members who are students at the Collegiate Institute. The arrangements will benefit both teams.

NO CONFLICT OF EVIDENCE

Special to The Examiner.

Berlin, Ont., Dec. 7.—It was stated in court this morning by the Attorneys for both parties that there would be no conflict of testimony in the case of Absalom Marner vs. Senator Valentine Rats. It would appear that the question is one of law. That an agreement was made in which Valentine Ratz pledged himself to give certain sums to Absalam Merner in the event of his inducing his father to resign from the Senate, does not appear to be seriously denied. But as the question as to the strength of such an agreement in the court of law, the defence takes the stand that it deals with the selling of public office, which has been pronounced impossible.

Kingston, Ont. 7.—Gus Belleville, night porter at the Windsor hotel, and formerly a well-known jockey, was thrown from his waggon last night and killed. His horse became frightened at a passing car.

S. A. ENTERTAINMENT

Held Last Evening in the New Temple a Great Success.

The supper at the Salvation Army Temple last night to celebrate the dedication of the re-opening of the edifice was a grand success. The large tables were filled three times, the crowd being so great, and yet there was an abundance of eatables. His Honour Judge Huycke occupied the chair at the entertainment which was given after the supper and he made a very efficient presiding officer. He and Rev. Mr. Riddiford and Col. Gaskin delivered very fine addresses.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1909

THE REASON WHY.

The Morrisburg Herald inquires "what is the matter with the Tuppers, Sir Charles and Sir Hibbert, that they are edging away from the Conservative party?" This is hardly the situation. The real state of matters is more probably that the Conservative party is edging away from the Tuppers. The Tuppers, with all their faults, from a political point of view, are stalwart Canadians, and as such can have little sympathy with the element of Little Canadianism that is taking lodgment, if not indeed root, in the great Conservative party with its multiplied and adaptable policy, and its syndicated leadership. The party is steering south by north on the naval question, and in the House contradictory and descendant attitudes and relations obtain amongst the very elect and dyed-in-the-wool in the Opposition benches. The Tuppers stand firm, it is the Conservative party that is straying, drifting.

WHY ADVERTISE.

The object of advertising is to have announcements of what the advertiser desires to have known, placed where the people he wishes to have see them will see them. That place is the columns of the most readable and most widely-read newspaper. The man, who, withdraws his advertisement from, or declines to advertise in, the paper whose political opinions, whose economic or theological ideas are not quite in line with his own, or who is displeased with some specific piece of news, is not ruining the offending newspaper, but making a spectacle of himself and standing, life size, in his own light. By the way—to point the moral—use the Examiner columns as the place of your advertisement. Let the Examiner tell the public what you have to say, what you have to sell, what you have to sell, and it will be told more times, told to more people, meet more eyes ,appeal to more purchasers than if inserted in a paper with a considerably smaller circulation, though it may be of unimpeachable orthodoxy of theology, morality, or politics. The moral to be noted is especially at this Christmastide, when you have as many and possibly more, things to sell than there are people to buy, and wish to reach the eye and appeal to the tastes and pockets of as many as possible—the greatest possible being understood if you use the Examiner.

THE BRITISH CRISIS.

The momentously stormy political events in the mother land, the fight between entrenched privilege and popular right is not of insular importance only, but interest in it reaches out to the farthest bounds of empire. The struggle is a Titanic one among those whose residuum has formed the foundation of what is generally called British liberty. The synonym of the widest possible—the ideal—political, civil, and persona freedom. It is a fight for the re-assertion of the principle of taxation in relation to representation, which was at stake in 1775, on this continent, and whose denial or contravention lost a large part of the American colonies to the Empire—Canada, as one of the American colonies uninfluenced by these conditions—takes a deep interest in the struggle. So general and intense is this interest that in defence of it two of our greatest newspapers are preparing or have prepared to present their readers with the best and fullest information from day to day, in regard to the British electoral fight that money can buy, and brains and journalistic skill can supply. The Globe despatches to Great Britain Mr. Stewart Lyon, of its staff, a most capable and deep-seeing writer, and the Montreal Star announces that it will spare no expense to furnish its readers with the best that a corps of special correspondents can send. It is an hour of trial for the Motherland, which has come so triumphantly, even if with garments dyed in blood, through greater stress, that there is little reason to fear that the peaceful but sternly strenuous, struggle now going forward will not result in further triumph of the principles that have made Great Britain the world-wide moral and material force she holds and wields. We spilt blood in Canada in resentment against the principle of taxation without representation, and the interference of the House of Lords with fiscal concerns managed by the people's representatives, is tantamount to a similar action. What would Canadians say if the Canadian Senate should undertake to nullify the Supply Bill passed by the House of Commons? They wouldn't say so much as they would do. There would be wigs on the green. Yet, the Canadian Senate is indirectly representative of the people. They represent the Government that appointed them, which represents the representatives the people have elected. The Lords represent nothing but privilege, without responsibility, or shadow of responsibility.

THE VOICE OF FLEET STREET.

(Ottwa Free Press.)

Canadians have had opportunities of knowing how much, or how little weight to attach to the opinions of Lord Northcliffe, and his warning that the return of the Asquith Government will mean the disruption of the Empire will be accepted at its true value.

As the head of a press combination which has attempted during the past decade to run the Empire as if it were a huge press bureau, Lord Northcliffe has developed the habit of talking as he writes, that is in the language suited to the readers of the London Daily Mail.

What the proprietor of the Times and Daily Mail may think of imperial matters may be very interesting, and may even fairly represent a large body of opinion in the great metropolis, but no greater mistake could be made than to assume that the London press, powerful and ably conducted as it is, reflects the political thought of the United Kingdom as a whole.

It is necessary to emphasize that at the present time because of the fact that it is from London almost exclusively that the Empire, and, indeed, the world at large, obtains its supply of news relating to British affairs, and that Canada, like the other over-sea states, is being kept informed of the course of the present political struggle.

Fleet Street is the centre from which radiates the power that lies behind the pens of an army of newspapermen —a power represented not only by the great metropolitan organs themselves, but by the aggregation of correspondents of foreign and colonial journals, whose headquarters are within sound of Bow Bells.

But the political history of Great Britain shows this while Fleet Street is a wonderful news distributing agency it is a very unreliable guide, for the simple reason that Fleet Street only reflects the passing mood of London, and London is no more an index of public opinion throughout the United Kingdom as a whole, than is Montreal or Toronto of public opinion throughout Canada.

The determining factor in a British general election is not the voice of London, but the voice of the provinces with which Fleet Street is not only out of hearing, but very often out of sympathy. In 1878 when Beaconsfield and Salisbury returned from the Berlin conference proclaiming "peace with honour," London went crazy with enthusiasm. The two statesmen were crowned with laurels by the press and populace of the metropolis, the windows of Gladstone's house were stoned by an angry mob, and Fleet Street predicted that Beaconsfield would again sweep the country.

Within eighteen months there was a general election, and it is true that the country was swept; but it was by Gladstone, whom London would have driven from its midst.

Again, at the last general election, four years ago, four-fifths of the London press, and nearly every foreign and colonial correspondent in Fleet Street predicted a Tariff Reform victory, while not a single metropolitan journal anticipated a shade of the success achieved by the Labor party.

It was a staff correspondent of the Toronto Globe who, after investigating the political situation in England, thoroughly declared for the first time in any Canadian newspaper that Chamberlainism was dead. But the writer of that article and the journal which printed it were severely criticised and poked fun at; but he laughs loudest who laughs last. This correspondent had gone outside the opinions of Fleet Street and had succeeded in obtaining the real feeling of the country.

In the present conflict the same influences are at work, and the same confident opinions are being expressed. The Times, the Morning Post, the Standard, the Daily Telegraph, the Spectator, and the Saturday Review claim to speak for the people, when as a matter of fact they are simply voicing the sentiments of the money bags of Lombard Street and the lisping lordlings of the Piccadilly Clubs.

There never was a greater delusion than the belief that London governs politically the United Kingdom. The people of the English provinces, and of Scotland, Wales, and Ireland do their own political thinking, a fact which Fleet Street has never been able to appreciate, and until they have spoken it would be unwise to attach much importance to the vapourings of editorial oracles who view the world from Westminster Bridge. London is the heart, not the voice, of the Empire.

THREE MILLION COPIES OF THIS ALMANAC

Keep a Diary in One of Them for $200 in Gold.

Three million copies of Dr. A. W. Chase's Calendar Almanac for 1910 are now being sent out through Canada and the United States. The editor's aim has always been to make of this book a useful, instructive home companion. This year with enormous expense, they have realized their ideal and compiled the most remarkable book of its kind ever published.

A. W. Chase, the respected old physician, is perhaps better known as the famous receipt book author, in which he condensed for the benefit of humanity, a life study of the human system. His most successful prescriptions are performing wonderful cures and are in such constant and great demand that The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Company have their hands full to meet it. These remedies have stood the test of over fifty years and are still triumphantly marching over the heads of all imitations and substitutes, proving themselves absolutely alone on the higher pinnacle of success.

The diary contest for $200.00 in gold is again a feature in this issue of the almanac. In past years thousands of the doctor's followers have availed themselves of this golden opportunity. By so doing they have kept an accurate record of their daily life, which is invaluable to them. In fact they request the return of same.

If you do not receive a copy of this almanac the publishers, Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto, will mail you one post-paid on receipt of your name and address.

REV. MR. POTTER ANSWERS "CONSISTENCY"

Dear Sir,—Your correspondent "Consistency" in last evening's issue raises a perfectly legitimate question. The matter of entertainment in a city of this size when men are coming and going all the time is a great question. The chief argument used against temperance leaders is just this very thing. What are we going to do for accommodation? St. Andrew's manse always did its share with other parsonages and rectories to entertain religious leaders and speakers, and the great question stared us in the face that if hotels without bars must exist and pay, then the Christian people must stand by them and show them that that part of the business is most highly respectable. "Consistency's" concern about the temperance houses is not well founded. Having knowledge of the excellance of both temperance houses on Hunter St., it might be said that they do not feel as though they were driven out of business. They have arranged for a permanent class of trade. They are under constant expense, and have to secure permanent boarders. At the last meeting of the W.C.T.U. two weeks ago, the good ladies made arrangements to entertain all speakers who would come so as to avoid sending them to licensed liquor hotels and whether good politics or not the committee felt that the offer should be gladly received. However, speakers who are worth their salt, are not waiting merely for Peterborough to invite them, but have engagements elsewhere, and arrive late Saturday night (midnight train) and leave very often at 5.15 Monday morning. So far as the Rev. Dr. Small's visit is concerned we had everything arranged for his entertainment in the "prophet's chamber" in St. Andrew's Manse and had expected to meet him at the midnight train and arrange for conveyance to take him off early this morning, but on Saturday received the following telegram::

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 4.

To Rev. J. G. Potter, Peterborough, Ont.:—

Will arrive on midnight train. Will stop at Oriental Hotel.

SAM W. SMALL.

I have minutely explained this matter in order to show that the citizens' committee is trying with the greatest care to bring about a condition of things in Peterborough that will mean its highest commercial, moral and social excellence, and to have the City of Peterborough be the first city in Canada to do it, and the matter of where a man shall sleep and eat, at the least possible inconvenience to citizens, and at the greatest comfort to himself is hardly worth "Consistency's" while to worry aobut.

—Yours sincerely,

J. G. POTTER.

LOCAL OPTION DEPARTMENT

INFORMATION WANTED

The executive of the City Temperance League is endeavouring to secure as full information as possible about the parties whose names have been added to the voters' list by the interests represented by the open bar. About 190 names appear on the list. A careful scrutiny of the list reveals the fact that there are a number of names on the list of persons about whom it is going to be a difficult matter to gather information in time to lay it before the judge when the list is scrutinized next week. With the object of gathering all possible information, the executive of the City Temperance League is planning to publish this list in the daily papers within a few days. Citizens who can give any information about the parties whose names appear on the list as to their standing, and their right to vote, will greatly oblige the executive by so doing. This information can be telephoned to phone 260 or left at the committee rooms, 173 Simcoe St.

The list will not be published in full. The names of a number of people who it is known are going to vote for local option appear on the list. These names will be omitted when the list is published. As it is possible that there are others who intend to vote for local option and whose names were put on the list by the liquor interests, these names will not be published, if the so-called parties will make their wishes known to the temperance league and show that they are qualified to vote, so their names can be omitted from the list.

Apparently a number of people who are not properly qualified have had their names placed on the list. These men are liable to be fined heavily if their names are allowed to remain on the list. Others apparently have had their names put on, who do not know that they will be supposed to pay taxes next year. Full particulars about those who are qualified to vote, will be given when the lists are published. Watch for the list.

PRINCE RUPERT INVESTMENTS

A Calgary real estate firm is advertising lots in Copper City at the junction of the Copper River with the Skeena River, British Columbia, 100 miles east of Prince Rupert. This is legitimate up to the statement that Copper City is "in the centre of the only fruit raising belt on the line from Prince Rupert to the east."

This latter statement is neither fair to the Grand Trunk Pacific, nor to prospective purchasers. It may be that fruit will grow on the Copper River, but certainly no better than it has grown about Fort George and will grow in the Bulkley and Nechago Valleys, British Columbia. Land sharks are slippery fish.

One of the physicians in Watrous, Bask., is responsible for the statement that as soon as the new sanitarium which is being built there is ready, he has forty patients from different parts of the country waiting to enter same.

Prince Rupert, B.C., is ambitious. Her leading citizens are agitating for a Board of Control and are asking for a Charter similar to the Charter under which Edmonton has prospered so splendidly.

As the Grand Trunk Railway System is in touch with several good openings for those who desire to purchase summer resorts, opportunities for business locations, manufacturing plants, etc., anyone interested who will apply to Mr. W. P. Fitzsimmons, Commissioner of Industries, Grand Trunk Railway System, Montreal, can secure full particulars.

Blacksmithing and Woodworking Business For Sale

The undersigned offers for sale his blacksmithing and woodworking business, situated on the side line between Peterborough and Norwood at Jermyn P. O. The blacksmith shop building is two stories, 28 x 42, with cement floor and cement forge. The upper story is the full size of the blacksmith shop (28x42). Attached to the blacksmith shop is the post office building, which may be entered from the blacksmith shop. Adjoining is a first class brick dwelling, with frontage 18 and 22 feet, with kitchen, It is an L-shaped house with cement cellar. Also verandah and beautiful lawn. There is a good stable with cement floor, three stalls, with straw room attached. The land comprises one half acre. This is one of the best blacksmith stands in the County of Peterborough. The farmers all patronize this shop. My reason for giving up business on account of having one of my legs frozen I am unable to continue the shoeing. For further particulars, write to

PASSION PLAY NEXT YEAR TO ATTRACT MANY AMERICANS

Expectation is That Little Village of Oberammergau Will be Overcrowded---50,000 Persons From the United States—Great Problem of Accommodation.

A RELIGIOUS PRODUCTION

Berlin, Dec. 7.—Fifty thousand Americans are expected to visit the Passion Play at Oberammergau next summer. The management counts on a grand total of 200,000 guests from all quarters, and believes that fully 25 per cent. of them will come from the United States.

Dr. C. L. Babcock, the director of the Berlin branch of the American Bureau of University Travel, has just returned from Oberammergau, where he went to arrange for the accommodation of several hundred Americans who have had the foresight to engage places in which to sleep and eat ten months ahead.

"Long hair and tourists agents are the outward signs of coming events at Oberammergau," said Dr. Babcock. "By order of the Burgomaster all the residents, numbering altogether 1,500 or 2,000, must let their hair grow with out cutting until after the Passion Play is over a year hence. Shaggy headed men and boys greet one on all hands. So does the booking agent from all parts of the world. The fight for bed and board at Oberammergau next summer will be a desperate one for anybody who has not secured them long beforehand.

"There are about 4,000 available beds in the town. The Burgomaster and Town Council, who have the passion Play arrangements in hand, have mapped out a businesslike system of numbering every bed with a corresponding seat and number in the theatre, which can accommodate with a little crowding about 4,400 spectators. At each performance the visitors will be required to pay for two full days' board and lodging. The prices, inclusive of a good seat at the performance, range from $4.50 to $6 a day.

First Comers Served.

"One-third of the entire boarding and lodging accommodations of every household has been placed at the disposal of the Burgomaster, who will dispose of them to the first comers. The other 3,000 beds have been in most cases farmed out altogether to the great international tourist agencies.

"The accommodations for July and August are already nearly exhausted; for May, June and September good places are still to be had. There will be only thirty-one performances altogether, beginning on May 11th and ending on September 25th.

"Although the potters, woodworkers and other simple folk of Oberammergau are going to conduct next year's Passion Play on strictly business lines, I failed to detect any signs that the great drama will be sacrilegiously commercialized, as certain reports are alleging. I had long talks with Anton Lang, who for the second time will act the part of Christus, and who is the leading spirit in the entire enterprise. This remarkable man certainly contemplates next summer's events exclusively from a solemn and traditional standpoint. His view, I think, permeates every man and woman, young and old, who will participate in the Passion Play."

is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather and may be recognized by a tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color coming from the bronchial tubes when coughing, especially the first thing in the morning. Cure the first symptoms of bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Bronchitis Cured.

Miss Martha Bourget, Little Pabos, Que., writes: "Last spring I was very poorly, had a bad cough, sick headache, could not sleep, and was tired all the time. I consulted two doctors, and both told me I had bronchitis, and advised me to give up teaching. I tried almost everything but none of the medicines gave me any relief. One of my friends advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I had scarcely taken the first bottle when I began to get better and when I had taken the fourth bottle I felt as well as ever, my cough had left me and I could sleep well."

"Dr. Wood's" is the original Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark and the price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SCANDALS SCARCE IN MODERN GREECE

There are so Many More Men the Girls Can Take Time to Pick Good Husbands.

Athens, Greece, Dec. 6.—Athens is by far the most respectable of European capitals. No greater lover of family life could be found than the Greek. He seldom visits a place of amusement, and as a consequence the foreigner finds the ancient capital not a particularly bright spot as far as theatres are concerned, for it would not pay to run more than a couple or so.

In no other country is the head of a family more respected than in Greece. Even when the children are grown up they would not so much as contemplate an action which might be contrary to the wishes of their father. In short, a Greek child is the most obedient and well brought up in the world. It is an infallible custom when the father passes away for the eldest son to marry before a daughter is permitted to do so, no matter how old the latter or how young the former. So much care and consideration is taken in the choice of a husband—there being considerably more men in Greece than women the daughters can take their time—it is seldom that scandals arise.

Religion is observed more assiduously than in any other country, though, truth to tell, in many cases, more particularly among the lower classes, it is a superstitious fear.

Priests of the orthodox church are permitted to marry and in a way mix more in public life than any other member of the community. The higher ecclesiastics, however, may not marry. If a priest takes a wife in early life he places a barrier between himself and advancement.

The visitor to Athens is struck immediately by the small number of women seen along the street.

This is due to a time-honoured custom, which, if broken in days gone by was punishable by social ostracism. Even now it is deemed unduly frivolous for a married woman, much less an unmarried one, to walk out unaccompanied. Nevertheless, the so-called emancipation of the fair sex in Europe has not escaped even Athens, where the first woman doctor has just made her appearance.

LOOK OUT FOR PNEUMONIA

Your system is in a run-down condition. You catch cold. You think it will soon pass off. It doesn't. You neglect taking any special care of yourself. Bronchitis develops and then comes pneumonia and a fight for life. A fight which is too often unsuccessful. Why not take every cold seriously and cure it promptly by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

LONDON IN GRIEF OVER DEPARTURE OF HANSOM CAB

It Was the Distinctive Vehicle of the Metropolis and Was Held in High Regard.

London, Dec. 7.—It is painful for a Londoner to contemplate the passing of the hansom, the one distinctive vehicle, and, on the whole, a very comfortable one, that this metropolis possessed.

But it is still more painful to contemplate the passing of the hansom's driver. Cabby, as Lord Rosebery says, is a good fellow. Take him for all in all he is a miracle of honesty and politeness and a wonderfully sure whip. He has need to be. Nobody could live an hour in these bustling overthronged streets if he had not the knack of handling the ribbons with the sureness of a master.

The London cabby is pretty severely tested before he gets a license. He has to satisfy the police that he knows how to drive, and, what is far harder, how to find his way about London. He must also furnish a full account of his life for the previous six years, a list of all the places at which he has lived, and a testimonial and recommendation from two householders. All his statements are verified, and a man who finally succeeds in obtaining his license may pride himself on a certificate that is really worth having.

The best proof of its value is that there is never any difficulty in recovering an article that has been lost in a hansom. Directly the cabby finds it he takes it to the "lost property" office at police headquarters, where it may be reclaimed by the owner for a consideration, in which, of course, the cabby has his share.

If only it had been a cabby who picked up the Duchess of Buccleuch's jewels at King Edward's coronation she would have been wearing them again within a week.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—You published on Saturday, Dec. 4th, a letter signed "Literary Critic," who endeavours to mislead the public and insinuates that I am the author of Mr. B. Lastar's letters to the press. With all due respect for the compliment, and in justice to Mr. Lastar, I want your readers to know that I (nor any of my staff) are not responsible, nor in any way connected with these letters. It is not true that they were prepared in my office; and Mr. Lastar does not say so.

Should I find it necessary to write letters to the newspapers, no assistance will be required from Mr. Lastar nor Mr. Critic; and they will be over my own signature.

I cannot allow "Critic." to crawl out without giving him a fair show. He made the proposition to donate $25 to the Children's Aid Society if Mr. Lastar could prove that he wrote his own letters. Now Mr. Lastar offers to do so and Critic tries to make it appear that they are framed by me. The Children's Aid Society must get this $25 or know the reason. I enclose you $25, to be given to the same society, if I cannot prove that I never saw a letter written by Mr. Lastar, until it was copied by my stenographer, that I am not, (nor is any license holder)) connected in any way with Mr. Lastar's letters or his work in the local option campaign.

Hoping that "Literary Critic" will be man enough to stay with his proposal. And thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space.—Yours, ALEX. ELLIOTT.

P. S.—The privilege given to Mr. Lastar would be given to any neighbour or citizen who wished a letter typewritten in my office.

...RIME FIRE DUE ...U INEXPERIENCED BOY

Was Working in Alleged Violation of Child Labour Law.

Examiner Special.

Cherry, Ill., Dec. 7.—Testimony at the coroner's inquest on the Cherry mine horror this morning tended to show that the fire was started by "Matt" Francisco, an inexperienced boy, who was working in the mine in alleged violation of the Child Labour law. Francisco worked under Rosenjack, a cager, who disappeared the day following the accident.

Francisco testified that he pushed the car of hay that caught fire to the elevator shaft and left it standing close to the blazing torch. He said this was the first bale of hay he handled and that his superiors gave him no instructions.

Mine Inspector Thomas Hudson testified he had not inspected the mine since last July, and did not know they were using open torches instead of electric lights.

UNHAPPINESS DISPELLED.

Men and Women Unanimous About It.

Many women weep and wail and refuse to be comforted because their once magnificent tresses have become thin and faded. Many men incline to profanity because the flies bite through the thin thatch on their craniums. It will be good news to the miserable of both sexes, to learn that Newbro's Herpicide has been placed upon the market. This is the new scalp germicide and antiseptic that acts by destroying the germ or microbe that is the underlying cause of all hair destruction. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Any one who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by Jury & McDermid, Druggists; also Payne's Drug Store. One Dollar bottles guaranteed.

KINGSTON'S Y.M.C.A.

Particular Attention is Being Paid to Teaching the Art of Swimming.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—Can you swim? This is a question that is often asked. Well, all you can say is, that if you were a member of the Y.M.C.A. in this city you would have to get into the game and learn. Everyone has to learn the stroke even to the 'kiddies'. Just last week the management made a new rule, that all members of the junior department must learn to swim, and special classes have been arranged for, so that they may learn the art.

The senior boys turn out to the Y.M.C.A. tank every morning at 6.20 and the information which comes from Y.M.C.A. headquarters at New York is that the Kingston association is the only one on the continent which has a swimming class that turns out at such an early hour. During the summer months the boys took their little dip in the lake. They are a jolly bunch, healthy and ready for anything. This early class is meeting with great success and the membership is on the increase.

PLAYED OLD TRICK

Canadian Watchmaker Victimized in Paris.

Paris, Dec. 6.—A Montreal watchmaker, Emile Wald, who is on a visit to Paris, was robbed yesterday of $840 by means of the familiar confidence trick.

On the Boulevard des Capucines the Canadian met three men who had been fellow passengers from New York. One undertook to show him the sights of the city, but before beginning their tour, all four adjourned to the Cafe de la Paix for refreshments. There one of the men complained that he had been robbed of $1,000 since his arrival in Paris, and sugegsted as a matter of precaution that the Canadian should become joint banker for the party.

The unsuspecting watchmaker, flattered by this mark of confidence, leisurely enough accepted the proposal. On the suggestion of his shipmates he placed all his ready cash in an envelope. The other members of the party apparently did likewise, and then the envelopes were sealed and handed over to the keeping of the Canadian. A few minutes afterward the three confederates, under one pretext of other, had disappeared.

After waiting an hour for their return Mr. Wald decided to investigate the contents of the envelope. It contained a torn piece of newspaper with the Steinheil verdict, and nothing more.

Kidneys Cured by This Simple Treatment

Get your druggist to mix the following ingredients: One-half ounce fluid extract Buchu, one ounce of Compound fluid Balmwort and two ounces of syrup Sarsaparilla compound. Shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring. Drink plenty of water, but little of any liquid at meal times.

The great urinary specialist, Gaut, whose single fees range from $500 to $1000, acknowledges in his latest reports that this simple mixture is most reliable and will cure all but the most complicated and aggravated kidney and bladder affections and rheumatism; therefore, it is well worth trying.

Puffing under the eyes, backache, headache, and dizziness, burning of the eyes, blurred vision, extreme nervousness, and insomnia all indicate urinary trouble. Many more symptoms could be named, but the reader will surely recognize them.

HIGHER PAY FOR THE OFFICIALS AT ELECTIONS

Owing to the Increase in the Hours the Council Decides to Make the Remuneration More.

THE MEN SELECTED

On account of the change in the hours during which the vote will be recorded the municipal elections in January next will cost the city a little more than usual. The hour has been extended from 5 o'clock in the evening until 7 o'clock, and it was found that many of the men who have been employed as deputy returning officers and poll clerks, would not work the longer hours for the same salaries. Accordingly, when the by-law to appoint these officials was being passed at last night's Council meeting it was decided advisable by the Council to increase the remuneration.

Ald. Metheral moved that the deputy returning officers be paid $6, the poll clerks $4, and the policemen $2, and Ald. Duncan seconded the motion.

Ald. Morrow moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, deputy returning officers be paid $5, the poll clerks $3, and the policemen $2.

Ald. Morgan moved in amendment to the amendment that the poll clerks receive $5, the deputy returning officers $3, and the policemen $2. In doing so, he explained that the poll clerks did more work than the returning officers.

However, there was no seconder to his amendment and Ald. Morrow's amendment was carried.

The salaries last year were $4 for deputy returning officers, $2 for poll clerks, and $1.50 for policemen. The following polling sub-divisions and officials were chosen:

Sub-division No. 1—M. H. Halpin's, 39 George St. Josiah Robertson, returning officer. Poll clerks, W. Mason and Albert Throop.

Sub-division No. 2—R. C. Braund's, 55 Park St. Wm. Van Every returning officers. Poll clerks, J. P. Bryson and W. J. Lundy.

Sub-division No. 3—L. Spry's, 210 Stewart St. F. J. A. Hall, returning officer. W. S. Turner and J. Comstock, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 4—City Council chamber—T. B. McGrath, returning officer. A. S. McGuire and Jas. Middleton, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 5—J. Jay's, 396 Aylmer St. D. H. Burritt, returning officer. V. Craig and E. Dillon, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 6—Metheral's shop, 464 Aylmer St. W. G. Metheral, returning officer. Wm. Metheral and S. Sharpe, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 7—Geo. Matthews' shop, corner Park and Sherbrooke St. John Sawers, returning officer. C. H. Huffman and A. H. Webb, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 8—A. J. Warne's, 356 Charlotte St., Jas. Edgar, returning officer. W. A. Bell and Henry Green, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 9—M. Routley's, 392 Brock St. A. Sawers, returning officer. N. Routley and Jos. Crowe, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 10—T. H. Hooper's, 601 George St. Geo. H. Brown returning officer. F. Dumble and J. H. Metheral poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 11—John James,, 322 McDonnel St. F. Bartlett returning officed. Alf. Lehane and Hugh Porter, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 12—Mrs. Wm. Lee's shop, Smith St. T. W. Robinson, returning officer. E. Manning and A. D. Kennedy, poll clerks.

Sub-division No 13—Former village hall—John Malane returning officer. John Kerr and Jas. Swanston, poll clerks.

Sub-division No. 14—Mrs. Swanston's, 44 Hunter St. east. Jas. McDonald, returning officer. Robt. Hamilton and W. H. Thompson, poll clerks.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE HO. MEETING AT ENNISMORE

W. C. Shearer, H. C. Duff, H. B. Cowan and Miss S. Campbell Give Addresses Before Large Gathering of Interested Farmers--Beneficial Lectures.

The first of the regular winter meetings of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute was held in the town hall at Ennismore Monday, and while the afternoon session was only fairly well attended, the hall was packed to the doors in the evening, and much interest was shown in the proceedings. The addresses were all listened to with the best of attention, and the many facts related and the numerous points of benfit to those in attendance, brought out by the speakers during the meeting, should and will, no doubt, bring good results. The speakers for the day were the President, Mr. J. H. Garbutt, Mr. W. C .Shearer of Bright, Ont., Mr. H. C. Duff, B.S.A., Norwood; Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of Farm and Dairy, and Miss S. Campbell, of Brampton.

Morning Session.

The morning meeting was opened by a few remarks by the president, after which he introduced the first speaker, Mr. Shearer, who spoke on the "Production and care of Milk and Pasteurising of Whey."

Mr. Shearer is a practical farmer and owns and operates a large and modernly equipped farm in Oxford County. In his opening remarks on the subject of production and care of milk, he spoke about the difference amongst cows as milk producers and the variance in the profit to the farmer. To meet with success, however, it was necessary to start right, and to do this it was important to secure a good bull, which would result in good calves being obtained. Dairying was a hard job, with poor cows, but on the other hand, if they were good ones it was comparatively easy. He emphasized the fact that they should be easy milkers, and then the milk should be tested through the Milk Testing Association. Then pick out the ones which are fit to raise heifers from. The next thing was to find out how to feed them as cheaply as possible, and in doing this the farmer should figure out how to transact his sales of grain with the miller. In feeding the heifers for the first time the correct manner was very important. They should be given the milk by the hand and not allowed to follow the cow. Take them away from her at the start, don't neglect the cow. Feed her and see that she is kept warm and pay particular attention to the udder. Rub it lightly at first and try not to hurt her. Two weeks after she had calved, the full allowance of food may be given to her. In teaching the calf to drink, in most cases only two feeds were necessary to accomplish this. Let it feed twice a day, starting it at a quart and in about three weeks it would be able to take a gallon. Change from the new milk in ten days or two weeks, and do not feed any grain until it is four weeks old, but after that time give it the very best you can secure, and at the end of three or four months you will have big, fine healthy calves. A good food which he advised was a mixture composed of 100 lbs. of ground white oil cake, 25 pounds of pure ground flax, and 100 pounds of low-grade flour. A most important thing was that in the start, too much skim milk should not be given to them, nor should there be too quick a change in feed. Some farmers make the mistake of feeding the calves well at the start and then quit. This results in having poor ones in the fall. Speaking of the dehorning process, he stated that his plan was to saw off the horns and it had been found that this way had not set them back at all.

In some cases when a heifer calves, it is affected with a caked udder. This should be given treatment in as quiet and careful manner as possible. Start to get the milk out and be particular to do it without hurting he heifer, and be sure to get it all out. He had found out that it paid better to give the heifer a few extra months when coming in. Some farmers gave it ten, but his rule was to give it twelve and sometimes more..

The matter of providing in case of a drought was one which should be impressed on the farmer. He advised a plan which had given good results on his farm. This was the building of a silo. It was frequently twelve feet in diameter, and 22 feet high with a roof on it. It was filled with corn, which was kept wholesome by the working together of its own properties, and it made fine food for the cows. In the care of the milk for the cheese factory one thing which the farmers should be careful of was to see that no feed was given to the cows, that would make the milk taste of a strong flavour. The milk should be examined every morning. If there was anything wrong the reason of it should be found out at once. Don't wait for the cheesemaker to find it out. It would be of benefit and would also astonish some farmers if they were to visit the factory and smell some of the milk which is brought there. The morning and night milk should not be mixed. It was better to buy more cans, if necessary.

Mr. Shearer explained how he kept his milk. He got a long box, and in it placed five cans, each of which held from 30 to 40 lbs. of milk. The milk after it had been strained, was put into the cans, which were then placed in the box, partly filled with water. A quantity of ice was then placed in and around the cans, and the milk stirred up for 15 or 20 minutes. Then the lid was put on and the milk left undisturbed until morning when it was stirred again.

Pasteurizing of Whey.

In dealing with this subject, Mr. Shearer, first commented on the custom of the farmers of Eastern Ontario who skimmed their whey and made whey butter, securing 11¼ lbs. from 1,000 lbs. of whey. There was considerable expense about this and it was more profitable to keep the whey and feed it to the hogs and calves.

He had been pleased with the results obtained since he had used it for feed, and he explained his way of curing it by means of steam. The question of carrying the whey for the farmers was one to be easily answered. In Oxford a man had been engaged for this purpose and had been given $500 for the year. The next year competitions brought the amount down to $200 and the last year it was carried for nothing. By making use of the whey as feed, the farmer would be able to clear from $8 to $10 on each cow.

Underdrainage.

Mr. Duff was next introduced by the president. The subject of his address was "Underdrainage and Weeds,' 'and he took up the former first. It was a question he said that was interesting the farmers all over the country. In the fight against weeds it was a necessity. The results would more than pay for the cost of having it put in. In low lands which become filled with water very little room is left for air, and air is important. He spoke about the different kinds of soil and how the roots are affected when there is not drainage, and how they are benefitted by under drainage. It was most important that when the drains were put in the work should be done well. Many that are put in are not working or else doing about half what they should. Up to the present the government had been taking levels for the drains free of cost to the farmer, but in the future he would have to pay the necessary expenses to bring a man to do the work. Should a number of farmers wish to have these levels taken at any time ,all they would have to do would be to notify the department and someone would be sent. By a number combining the cost, it would be very little to each one. Mr. Duff explained how the drain was dug and the tile placed in position. The government had a draining machine which would do all the work at a cost of 35c. per yard where there was good soil.

Weeds.

It was impossible to ascertain the cost of weeds to the farmer. They are always an expense, and there was no better way to get rid of them than by systematic alternation of crops. Have a change for three or four years and then go back to the first crop. But the question of whether the farmer could afford it or not was likely to arise, but he thought it was rather a question of just the opposite. Another thing was that the farmer did not use the fanning mill quite enough.

The cleaning of the grain was often left to stand until within a few days before sowing and then it was only cleaned probably once. The work should be done in the winter time, when the farmer is not so busy and all wild oats blown out. The fight against weed seeds could not be fought successfully in small fields. Then again there are not enough sheep raised in the county of Peterborough. They are excellent weed exterminators and there is scarcely a weed that they will not nip off. Mr. Duff advised the use of the weeder and explained fully how it worked, and the results to be obtained. At the conclusion of Mr. Duff's address the afternoon meeting was brought to a close.

(The balance of the report will be given in to-morrow's Examiner.)

DR. BELL RECEIVED PAST MASTER'S JEWEL FROM OTONABEE LODGE

Presentation Made to Past Grand Master at Important Meeting of Oddfellows Last Evening — Senator Derbyshire, G. M., of Brockville, Gave Address.

AN ENJOYABLE BANQUET

Last night's regular meeting of the Otonabee lodge of Oddfellows was an important one, and will long be remembered by the members of that organization. After the usual business of the order, during which Dr. R. W. Bell, P.G.M., of Toronto, was presented with a Grand Master's jewel by Senator Derbyshire, G.M., of Brockville, and two new members were initiated, a banquet was enjoyed.

Over two hundred members of Otonabee Lodge sat down to a most sumptuous repast, served by Mine Host Hooper. All the choicest and daintiest viands were provided, and many were the words spoken in praise of the excellent menu. The occasion was honoured by the presence of Senator Derbyshire, G.M., of Brockville, Dr. R. W. Bell, P.G.M., of Toronto, and W. S. Johnston, P.G.R., of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, who gave addresses along the lines of what was being done by Oddfellowship, wherever lodges existed.

The chairman of the evening was District Deputy Grand Master M. T. Breckenridge, who, after everyone had partaken of the good things, asked the gathering to rise and drink the health of the King. This toast was honoured by the hearty singing of the National Anthem.

The Sovereign Grand Lodge.

Mr. R. E. Harding, in proposing the toast to the Sovereign Grand Lodge, said that the Grand Lodge was made of men of the right calibre. A man that put in his life in the lodge had to be untainted. A man in a Grand Lodge chair must have character, and so the men in the Grand Lodge must be honourable and of the highest standards of manhood. He coupled with this toast the name of Mr. W. S. Johnston, P.G.R., of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

In responding, Mr. Johnston remarked that he did not know when his name had been coupled with a toast, that he appreciated so much. He felt honoured, because it was the votes of the men present that had elected him to the Sovereign Grand Lodge. He referred to what the Order of Oddfellows comprised. The first lodge was instituted in 1819, and he spoke of the magnitude of this fraternal organization at the present time. It had 1,492,000 subordinate members, 3,365 encampments, with a membership of 216,226; 8,333 Rebekah lodges, 53 departments of the Patriots militant, 602 Cantons, and 45 homes for the care of the aged, the widows and orphans.

The wonderful growth of the Society was not due to any organizer, but the members learn such lessons as induce them to go out after new ones. Mr. Johnston enumerated the various countries where Oddfellowship existed, and everywhere the same good work was being done. It was the grandest and best fraternal organization in existence. Over five and a half million dollars was paid out during the past year in the relief of distress.

The Grand Lodge.

The toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed by Bro. W. G. Robinson, coupled with this toast, were the names of Col. Miller and Dr. Morrow.

Col. Miller, in responding briefly referred to the good work of the Oddfellows' Order, and spoke in the highest terms of the indefatigable efforts of the officers of the Grand Lodge in the interests of Oddfellowship.

Dr. Morrow stated that he was pleased to respond to the toast to the "Grand Lodge." He was pleased to be present. He spoke of what constituted true Oddfellowship, and left much good advice to his hearers.

Senator Derbyshire.

Grandmaster Senator Derbyshire, of Brockville, was given an ovation upon rising to speak. He complimented the brethren on the good work done in the lodge and the splendid banquet provided. The adress must have inspired the members. The attendance was good, and he paid a high tribute to the excellent manner in which all the arrangements had been carried out. The young men must have been inspired with high ideals, and he urged the older brethren to enthuse and make strong the younger ones, making a powerful lodge for the advancement of mankind. Oddfellowship appealed to the wants of all classes of people, and the men who accomplished anything in any walk of life were Oddfellows. He urged the subordinate members to be in their places at lodge meetings and assist the officers in the work. The speaker referred at length to the progress being made by the order. Everywhere, where lodges existed, great good was being done, and the Grand Lodge had every reason to feel encouraged. He spoke of the aims of the Lodge, and the noble standards it held up, and he was delighted with the grand results being obtained by the Society.

Sister Lodges.

The toast of the "Sister Lodges" was proposed by Mr. G. Kirn, and the names associated with it, were Dr. R. G. Bell, P.G.M., of Toronto. John Mathieson and M. Mowry. Speeches of an interesting and appropriate character were made in reply.

During the evening vocal numbers were given by Messrs. J. E. Firth, F. Skitch and John King, which received merited applause and encores were demanded.

A vote of thanks moved by Senator Derbyshire and seconded by Mr. Johnston was passed to the chairman and others who arranged the banquet, after which the singing of the national anthem brought a very delightful affair to a close.

WILL ATTEMPT TO WALK TO MONTREAL AND RETURN

Jim Harrison, the well-known local heel and toe champion, is contemplating a long jaunt over the Canadian highways, nothing less than a trip to Montreal and return in two weeks. If his present plans materialize he may start his long trip on Monday next, with the intention of finishing here on Christmas Day. The distance to Montreal and return over the roads is roughly estimated at 800 miles, so that Harrison, to accomplish his task, would have to cover about 43 miles a day.

HARD GAME WAS PLAYED IN Y. M. C. A. BASKETBALL LEAGUE

You should have seen the game last night. It was the best yet, and exciting, well I should smile, and I did. The Reds and Whites lined up to play and when the whistle sounded each team jumped in as if they were both going to win. The Reds scored the first point, Bruce Lees making a free toss, and soon after made another, and then Laing of the Whites threw a basket and the score was tied, and they played hard. When half time was called the score stood 6 to 4 in favour of the Reds.

The second half started and the Reds went right at it from the start, and the Whites couldn't hold them. It was rather one-sided from then on, and the game ended 12 to 7 in favour of the Whites.

Bruce Lees was the boy with the good eyes for the Reds, shooting from field goals and three free throws, scoring 11 points of the game. Bartlett scored the other one. Laing was the same old reliable, scoring all 7 points for his team.

Officials—Referee H. O. McLaughlin. Timer—Hol. Hill. Scorer—A. Harper.

Line-up:—

Reds		Whites
Bruce Lees	R.F.	R. Laing
Perks	L.F.	Smith
Bartlett	C.	Mulhern
D. Carlisle	L.G.	G. Matthews
A. Howson	R.G.	Thornton

Had Given Up All Hope of Living.

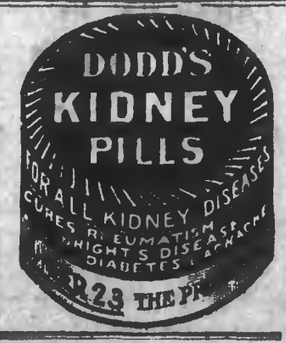
Heart Trouble Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grattan's, N.B., writes:—"In the year 1905, I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors, but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

"One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say, 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

"I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.



The following communications were dealt with:

From Margaret Blodgett, asking that the $20 retained by the city from her late husband's watering contract for improper work be now paid to her as she is in need of the money.

Moved by Ald. Duffus and Morrow that Mrs. Blodgett be paid the $20 asked for.—Carried.

From Wm. McKnight, applying for the position of janitor of the new public library.

From the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, enclosing plans, showing their new siding for the Peterborough Hardware Company. The track crosses Dalhousie street, practically making no change in the existing situation.

From the Collector, Wm J. Green, giving statement of tax roll, as follows:

Total amount on roll.	$182,029.12
Total amount deposited	167,324.89
Balance	$ 14,704.23
Less 20 per cent. discount first payment	$ 2,652.59
Balance	$ 12,051.64
Total amount taken and deposited during November, 1909	$ 33,963.42

From the Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News, pointing out the advantages of the city advertising in their publication.

From M. G. Maher, secretary of St. Peter's T. A. S., asking that the taxes on the Society's rooms be remitted, as in the past.

From W. Snowden and M. C. Tooley as follows: Messrs. Tooley and Snowden would like if the Council would grant them a pawn shop license, the said license to be paid yearly.—M. C. Tooley, Wm. Snowden.

From Wm. Snowden, as follows: "I hereby make application for a pawn broker's license for the City of Peterborough. If you will kindly let me know the amount I will send cheque. —Wm. Snowden.

A petition was received for an arc light at the corner of Dunlop and Auburn streets.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Mr. J. Ross Robertson, Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association, applying to the city for a grant for the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.—Finance Committee.

From the Union of Canadian Municipalities, asking for the support of the city in opposing the cement merger. From John Gibbs, applying for the position of janitor of the new public library.

From Rev. Father McColl, stating that there are nine persons from the city who have spent the whole of the past year in the House of Providence, and asking the city to contribute to the cost of their maintenance, suggesting $6 per month each as a reasonable amount.

Ald. Buller moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks that the city pay $6 per month for each of the city's inmates in the House of Providence.—Carried.

From H. L. Beal, applying for the position of Librarian of the new public library.—Received.

From the Peterborough Times, asking the city to advertise in the Times Industrial edition.

From Henry Best, serving notice on the Council, claiming $1,000 for the property expropriated from him for the extension of Aylmer street, south.

From James Swanston, applying for the position of janitor of the new public library.

From Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr, on behalf of Mrs. Annie M. Campbell, asking the Council to take up the question of a roadway at the rear of her property. Mrs. Campbell and her predecessors in title have been in possession of this property for over sixty years.—Legal Committee.

From secretary Board of Trade enclosing copy of resolution passed by the Board of Trade.

From the Board of Health recommending the construction of a sewer on Donegal street from Brock street north to the creek.

From E. J. Greenstreet, Toronto, in reference to abattoirs, cold storage plants, etc.

From Dumble & Johnston, requesting that the business assessment of Florence & Sons, be adjusted.

From O'Connell & Gordon, notifying the Council that Patrick Cranly of Douro, fell off a sidewalk on Roger street, and sustained severe injury on November 1st last. He asks for $1,000 damages and gave the city until the 13th before taking proceedings.

A second letter from Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, notified the council that Patrick Cranly, of Douro, had died as the result of his injuries sustained on November 1st, by falling on Roger street. They increased their claim upon the city to $2,000.

From G. W. Hatton claiming $200 damages as result of a runaway on Concession street, owing to the street being in a bad state of repair, asking for reasons why the Council

From the City Trust Commission gave a lease of a portion of the water front lots.

Ald. Metheral remarked that he had expected that the report of the Finance committee would recommend a grant to the Peterborough Poultry Association.

Ald. Morrow, chairman of the committee, stated that no appropriation had been made for the Poultry Association, but that the committee was unanimous in the opinion that a grant should be made early next year.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the matter of advertising the city by-laws be left in the hands of the Mayor.

The following by-laws were passed:

To construct a sewer on Waterford St., from McDonnel St. to a point 125 feet north.

To construct sewers on certain other streets for sanitary reasons.

To fix the assessment of the William Hamilton Company.

To borrow $19,000 for the construction of an isolation hospital.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Mrs. Masson, of Campbellford, is spending the winter months with Miss Smith and Miss Rowed at 567 George street.

Mrs. J. S. Knapman, 604 George St., will receive on Thursday afternoon from four to seven, and afterwards on the first Thursday of the month.

REGULAR MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL A LONG SESSION

The last regular meeting of the City Council for the present year, was held last night, when considerable business was transacted, the session not coming to a close until nearly midnight, after the time had been extended twice.

There were present Mayor Rush, Ald. Hicks, Duffus, Duncan, Morgan, Buller, Bradburn, Gillespie, Metheral, McIntyre, Morrow, Phelan.

CATARRH CURED

No Cure, No Pay, is a Most Generous Offer.

To get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, has been a problem which was never solved until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced Hy-o-me).

Hyomei is prepared from eucalyptus, the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

The inflamed condition will go, too, and the snuffing, hawking and offensive breath, and the discharge of mucus and crusts in the nose will cease.

Then why should any catarrh sufferer hesitate when Wm. Madill has such faith in Hyomei that he offers to return your money if after a fair trial Hyomei does not cure catarrh.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Hyomei also cures asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip.

MI-O-NA Cures Dyspepsia.

Your money back if it don't. Gives immediate relief from heartburn, sour stomach, stomach distress and sick headache. 50 cents a large box at

—Wm. Madill's

COMMITTEE MEETING.

Before the regular meeting of the Council last night there was a short session of the Committee of the Whole Council, when several matters were taken up.

Mr. R. E. Wood waited upon the Council, on behalf of Mrs. Rogers, in regard to a deed for Mrs. Rogers' property along the water front, formerly the old Peterborough Boat Club's property, which had been granted in view of the city getting a patent from the Government.

City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall stated that the Council could do nothing but pass a by-law requesting the City Trust Commissioners to make out a deed in favour of Mrs. Rogers.

The matter was referred to the Property Committee with power to act.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

DUTIES.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

N.B.—Unauthorized publications of this advertisement will not be paid for.

A TARIFF ON BREAD

Proposals of Tories in England is to Encourage the Home Manufacturer by Putting a Duty on Flour and Foreign Wheat—Colonies Would Be Favored—Cotton and Wool Would Enter Free of Duty.

London, Dec. 8.—The Birmingham Daily Post publishes an article from inspired sources, outlining the tariff reform which is likely to be proposed by the Unionist Government, if the Unionists are successful at the elections, prefacing it with the remark that the country's financial necessities are much greater than they were in 1905, when Joseph Chamberlain started the movement. The article proceeds:

"It is proposed to establish a general tariff, placing duties on practically all goods that are not deemed raw material, with the object, first, of raising revenue; second, of assisting the home producer against foreign competition; third, of giving preference to colonies; fourth, of securing better terms from foreign countries, and, finally, of mitigating unemployment by encouraging the home producer.

"The tariff will be of the simplest possible form, not protective in the sense that it is understood in Germany and the United States. There is no intention of having multifarious rates, which would throw open the door to Parliamentary intrigue. The plan favored is to allow few materials duty free and to impose a five per cent. duty on completed and 15 per cent. on completely manufactured goods. There may possibly be a slightly lower duty in favor of the colonies and a slightly higher tariff against countries seeking unduly to penalize British goods.

"Foreign wheat will be liable to a duty of two shillings per quarter, with preference to the colonies, but not the removal of the whole duty. Flour will pay a higher rate in order to encourage home grinding, while bacon and maize will be excluded from the free list. Important raw materials, such as cotton and wool, will enter free.

"A tariff framed thus, it is estimated would produce a revenue of from sixteen to twenty million pounds. If the Unionists are returned, every possible effort will be made to embody the new duties in the budget of 1910, or at the latest 1911, but the maximum duties will be withheld for two years, in order to give time to negotiate commercial agreements with foreign countries."

Right Hon. George Wyndham, member of the House of Commons for Dover, speaking in London last night, also intimated the intention of the Unionists to propose a 10 per cent. duty on manufactured articles and two shillings on wheat.

Grand Duke to Rule Finland.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 8.—Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, second cousin of the Emperor, was yesterday designated to take full and direct charge of the affairs of Finland.

As commander of the military district of St. Petersburg and later as president of the council of the national defence, the grand duke exhibited an inclination and an ability to deal firmly with disturbing elements.

A half dozen attempts upon his life have been made by the revolutionists, and one such conspiracy resulted in the execution of seven alleged conspirators.

Street Car Victim Identified.

Toronto, Dec. 8.—James Harris was the name of the man who was killed in front of the City Hall on Monday evening. He was 87 years of age and lived at 18 Elizabeth street. He was caretaker for Charles Tilley of Bay street.

Coroner J. E. Elliott opened an inquest in the hospital yesterday. After viewing the remains they adjourned until Tuesday next.

OPENING OF GUELPH FAIR

Hon. Duncan Marshall is the Guest of Honor at the Winter Stock Show—Dissatisfaction is Shown at the Action of the Directors in Shutting Out Exhibits of the Progressive Western Provinces.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—Anticipation of splendid accommodation for the best of Ontario's live stock has almost congested the shipping facilities of the Royal City, in the rush of fat stock and breeding animals to the 26th annual Ontario Winter Fair. From the stampede of Tamworth swine on Sunday night, to the belated arrivals of sheep and horses yesterday, there has been a constant inflow of domestic animals, till the new $50,000 additional buildings are overflowed and 100 horses, a carload of sheep and lots of poultry could not find a friendly shelter within the grey limstone walls.

Usually the visitors do not crowd the first day, but this year, already sees fully 3,000 people here. The new galleries were soon filled and the aisles overburdened with spectators, so that the directors are up against the old problem of room, and are forced to conjecture on future additions. The swine are still in their old miserable quarters, and it will be a wonder if the hog breeders do not protest loudly.

The big arena came in for criticism. It is not well lighted. The accoustics are all bad. Were it not for big John Bright's stentorian tones many would only guess the speech from the facial manoeuvres.

The fame of this show has spread to the western provinces, whose progressiveness is largely due to the sterling character of old Ontario settlers. A move from Edmonton and Calgary to draw still more of these to the big west was prevented by the refusal of the directors to allow exhibits of these cities a place within the halls. Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, arrived last night and will be a guest of honor.

The Experimental Union continued its regular sitting in Massey Hall. The chief discussions centred around the fertilizer experiments and control of commercial feeding stuffs to prevent Fort William screenings and tailings "from poisoning Ontario's fair areas," as one speaker forcibly expressed it.

The usual faces are present in the horse ring, along with several new breeders of western Ontario. The entries are away ahead of anything hitherto. Comparisons here with Toronto meetings are being made constantly. Criticisms of Toronto's slowness in not erecting a big arena, thereby to have located the horse show and founded a big fat stock show at the Junction, were freely indulged in, generally to Toronto's disadvantage. Many think yet that there is not enough room here to expand, while the success of yesterday's show jubilates the devotees of Guelph's location. The judges in heavy horses were Job White, Ontario County; Jas. Torrance, York County, and Andrew Russell of Carrville. In ponies A. E. Major of Ontario County began his work Monday night. Hackney ribbons were placed by Dr. Campbell of Berlin and B. Rothwell of Ottawa. Dr. Rutledge of Lambeth judged the standard breeds, and S. B. Fuller of Woodstock, the thoroughbreds.

White Light Lure Goes.

Pittsburg, Dec. 8.—The "lure of the white light" by the side of railroads will no longer be held responsible for railroad wrecks. The white light as the signal for a clear track is to go. On Wednesday of next week the yellow light will be substituted for the white light on the Pittsburg & Lake Erie road. The entire New York Central System is said to be preparing to adopt the plan at an early date.

Engineers of fast trains have often been confused by white lights in dwellings and other places along the right of way and have passed colored lights which were set.

Life Lost In Hotel Fire.

Huntingdon, Que., Dec. 8.—Fire which was attended with serious results broke out in the Central Hotel here yesterday morning about four o'clock. Although there were quite a number of guests in the house, all managed to escape except a Mrs. Taylor, aged 88 years, who was burned to death in her bedroom.

Twenty-One Fishing Craft Lost.

Finkenwerder, Hanover, Dec. 8.—Twenty-one cutters of the fishing fleet from this island, which were at sea when the recent storm arose, have been given up as lost. The luckless craft carried one or more members from each of eighty families.

New Service to Cuba.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The Department of Trade and Commerce has signed a contract with William Thomson & Sons of St. John, for a steamship service between St. John and Cuba. The subsidy will be $25,000 per annum for a monthly service.

Insurance Cancelled.

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Dec. 8.—Following the recent cancellation of 30 insurance policies on property in this town, notice has been received that 36 more policies have been annulled. Most of these are risks on business property. The premiums paid on the policies for the balance of the time they would have run before expiry are being refunded. Several incendiary fires have occurred lately.

EXTENSION OF THE I.C.R.

Minister Only Desires to Secure Power to Add to Present System as Occasion or Necessity Arises—Is a Matter of Economy and Good Management, Says Mr. Fielding—Mr. Maclean Favors It.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The principal of public ownership was endorsed by the Government yesterday as a result of the discussion upon Hon. Geo. P. Graham's bill to acquire or lease branch lines in connection with the Intercolonial Railway. The principle was admitted by Mr. Graham, in that by his proposal will be extended the ramifications of the Government railways.

This gave an opportunity to W. F. Maclean (South York), to put in a plea for still further extension of the people's system.

"There is a declaration to-day in favor of the extension of the principle of Government ownership of railways to the wide extent of taking in all or most of the local lines in the provinces where the I.C.R. now runs," said Mr. Maclean. "But if they are to be taken in, they must be taken in on business terms, and on reasonable values, and when taken in the roads so acquired, and the I.C.R. itself, must be administered from the point of view of business and efficiency, and must be absolutely separated from politics.

"I believe that if public ownership is attempted in this country on these lines, it will succeed, and I hope that not only the I.C.R. be widened and broadened in the Maritime Provinces, but I think the day is near at hand when this state-owned road, which to-day is Canada's greatest asset, will be extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

Hon. Mr. Graham explained his bill, which is destined to give the Government power to acquire or lease branch lines in connection with the Intercolonial Railway. There was the stipulation in the bill that these lines must be in good order and possessed of safe provisions for accommodation, also not without approval of Parliament.

Hon. John Haggart asked why it was necessary to get authority to lease branch lines when that authority already existed. He asked the Minister to state what definite proposal he was likely to put forward.

Mr. Graham replied that he had no particular line or lines in view.

Dr. Sproule said the Minister ought to be able to say whether the Government had any definite idea of extending Government ownership. It seemed to him also that the Government possessed the power, without legislating further, to acquire branch lines.

Mr. Graham stated that he was not prepared to announce any policy as to the enlargement of Government ownership. The Government was liable to own the Intercolonial for some time yet.

Mr. Crockett asked what the reason was for the bill. Had the Government power now, or had it not? Mr. Graham replied that the reason for the bill was simply that the I.C.R. management would start under the approval of the principle of acquiring branch railways.

R. L. Borden objected to the term Government ownership. It was "public ownership." The railway was the property of the people. The sooner the Minister of Railways got rid of the idea that the road was Government-owned the better it would be for the railway and the people.

J. B. Black (Liberal member for Hants) said he would like to know if it was intended to acquire branch lines in New Brunswick, which had never paid and never would pay, or similar lines in Quebec. Referring to the Dominion Atlantic Railway, he remarked, "anything managed from London hardly ever prospers in Canada."

Col. Talbot (Liberal) said he was opposed now to any further Government-ownership of railways, and would oppose is for many years to come.

Mr. Henderson (Conservative) declared that this bill would simply create an open door for good speculation. The bonds of some railways in New Brunswick would jump up. There was something rather dark about this bill, for it merely gave to the Minister power he already had.

Hon. W. S. Fielding affirmed that the bill was simply an expression of the principle that where there were branch lines and it was in the interests of economy and good management to acquire them, this should be done, if it could be done fairly and reasonably. One clause in the bill saved the Minister of Railways, for it stipulated that the railway to be acquired must be in a safe and good condition.

Hon. George E. Foster suggested that Hon. H. R. Emmerson, the former Minister of Railways, and "a bothersome man," was at the bottom of this bill. He criticised the Minister for not indicating how far he meant to go. The principle of it could be applied to all the railways in Canada.

E. M. Macdonald (Lib.) supported the principle of the bill. Samuel Barker (Con.) pointed out that in the bill there was no mention of approval of terms. Mr. Graham said his sincere desire was to make the best possible use out of the Government railways. He had intended to include approval of terms in the bill, and would do so.

E. B. Osler (Con.) thought the taking over of branch lines would be a good thing for the I.C.R. and the country, but he reminded the House that branch lines were often t[illegible] as feeders and remained as su[illegible]

The bill was then given a second reading and passed through the committee stage.

OLDEST LOVE LETTER.

According to This Document Cupid's Customs Are the Same Today.

A love letter 4,000 years old has lately been discovered in Chaldea, says Current Literature. The lady to whom it was addressed lived in Sippara, the Biblical Sepharvani. Her beloved was a resident of Babylon.

In contrast to the position which women hold at the present day in the orient they possessed in antiquity a greater degree of freedom. In many respects the oriental woman of antiquity was graced with as much privilege as is the modern European woman. Particularly in Chaldea she could participate in trade, manipulate her own property, be a witness before court and be the guardian of her own children. Of the position of women in Egypt we know less, but doubtless it was much higher than that of the present Mohammedan women.

In one respect, however, it seems that custom has been changed very slightly, for marriage was essentially an affair of trade between the parents of the bridegroom and those of the bride. This is ascertained from the legal code of Hammurabi, king of Babylon, B. C. 2200. The future husband paid the price of the bride, and her father provided her dower and trousseau. Under these circumstances there was no such courtship as precedes marriage in accordance with occidental ideas. Still, one may believe that many a love letter on papyrus or clay passed secretly between the hands of the bridal pair during the interval of their engagement.

The newly discovered letter is written in clay and probably dates from 2200 B. C. Though somewhat formal, the reader can feel the tenderness that lies bidden between its lines. It reads:

"To the lady, Kasbuy (little ewe) says Gimil Marduk (the favorite of Morodach) this: May the Sun God of Marduk afford you eternal life. I write wishing that I may know how your health is. Oh, send me a message about it! I live in Babylon and have not seen you, and for this reason I am very anxious. Send me a message that will tell me when you will come to me, so that I may be happy. Come in Marcheavan. May you live long for my sake."

Solemn Bedtimes.

A couple of mothers were talking the other day—no need to add what about. The topic was the inevitable one—their children.

"One can never arbitrarily settle the question of the relative values of persuasion and the rod as the means of inducing good conduct," said one of the mothers. "Methods, of course, must differ with different children. But one thing at least I believe to be true, and that is that when moral suasion is resorted to it should not be held in reserve and finally dispensed at bedtime."

Many mothers seem to think that the most effective method of correcting evildoers is to reserve all discussion of the naughtiness of the day until bedtime, when a general reckoning and settling up is held.

It is a solemn occasion, and the mother with utmost gravity and no little self righteousness impresses the child with his misdemeanors.

A cheerful business this!

Poor, sleepy, tired youngsters! How it frightens them and overawes them to be dealt with gravely at any time!

In midday it is bad enough when there is a chance to go out into the yard and play afterward and forget uncomfortable episodes—very uncomfortable episodes.

But at night when it is dark and the mother has been solemn and awesome and terrible and you have been bad, dreadfully bad and are nothing but a poor guilty culprit—then, well then, it is quite a different matter.

Every one knows the stages that a child goes through when he is being brought to the right attitude of mind concerning a little indiscretion.

First there is resistance, more or less; then tears and finally remorse. Now, this is a cheering bedtime exercise, isn't it?

"No, indeed," this mother said. "I want my children to go to bed happily and to be able to look back upon this part of the day with the pleasantest memories.

"Before he goes to bed the child's mind should be wiped clear of everything but happiness.

"A little gentle romping, enough to relax nerves and muscles, but not enough to excite, an unexciting story, bedtime songs or talk about happy things, these are the things that should accompany bedtime and make sleep wholesome and untroubled."

By all means the mother was right. Do reserve the solemnities of life for the light of day when the bright sunlight can help to dry tears.

Drummed at Waterloo.

The death has taken place at Queenstown, South Africa, of Desirez Cornelius Mesdom, who was born at Briel, in the Province of Yperen, Belgium, on Aug. 2, 1805. As a boy of ten he was drummer in Napoleon's army at the battle of Waterloo, and his father, Josephus Mesdom, was a soldier in the ranks.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Nellie Horton of Fort Worth has been elected treasurer and secretary of the Farmers' union of Texas. She has just passed her twenty-fifth birthday.

Mrs. George W. Childs has sold her home in Pasadena and will return to Philadelphia after a long absence to pass her remaining days with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Danforth Willard Blanchard, one of the oldest woman suffragists in the world, is ninety-nine years of age and lives with her niece, Mrs. J. B. Booth, in Detroit.

Mrs. Jennette Ryder, an American woman who has been doing humane work in Cuba for the last ten years, is said to have done more to suppress bull and cock fighting on the island than any other one person.

Miss Ivy E. Woodward, M. D., has been admitted to full membership in the Royal College of Physicians of London. It is the first time in its history that this body has conferred the coveted M. R. C. P. upon a woman, although some women have been licensed to practice the medical profession.

Miss Ellen Day is said to be the oldest organist in London. She is eighty-one and has been before the public ever since she was eight, when she created so great a sensation by her skill on the piano that she was called to play for Queen Victoria. Miss Day knew Mendelssohn, Liszt and Chopin and gave music lessons to the children of Balfe.

Pen, Chisel and Brush.

A monument to the French painter Cezanne is to be erected at Aix-en-Provence. The work will be given to M. Maillol, the sculptor.

Marcel Prevost, the new French academician, has recently been christened the "dressmaker novelist." The name fits him. He has a most exceptional weakness for describing dress.

William J. Locke, the author, was born in British Guiana and finished his education at St. John's college, Cambridge. He taught for thirteen years and then accepted a position as secretary of the Royal Institute of British Architects, holding that place for eleven years and publishing six novels.

Maurice Hewlett, the most fanciful of the romanticists, comes, oddly enough, from a family of lawyers. He has himself studied law, and he was called to the bar several years ago. It was on account of his health that he gave up his law practice, and, following a trip to Italy, he began doing literary work.

Dress Hints.

To cleanse the collars of garments dissolve one part salt in four of alcohol and apply with a sponge and rub well.

Felt hats may be cleaned by dipping a hard brush which has short hairs into spirits of ammonia. Rub well until the grease disappears.

Never roll gloves into each other, for they will never look so well after. They should be stretched out to dry; otherwise the moisture from the hands will make them dry hard.

If you will slip a thin piece of whalebone into the hem where hooks and eyes are to be sewed you will avoid running the thread through on the wrong side. Slip the whalebone out after the work is completed.

Worn brooms or whisks may be dipped into hot water and uneven edges trimmed with shears. This makes the straws harder, and the trimming makes the broom almost as good as new.

Asbestus Houses.

Asbestus houses are much used in Australia. These houses are not only fireproof, but impervious to water, unaffected by heat or cold and have high insulating properties. They are not attacked by white ants or other insects that abound in southern countries.

STRANGE BEQUESTS.

British Footballers Receive Some Queer Letters.

Football champions receive all manner of applications from their admirers, according to a famous player. The first-class footballer is the pampered pet of the British crowd during the winter months, and is constantly receiving presents, showing the regard and admiration in which he is held by the sport-loving members of the community. They receive many queer applications as well.

Only a few days ago I received a pair of handknitted stockings from a lady living in Surrey, says one of them, who, in return, requested me to send her my autograph and a fragment of a discarded jersey. She was collecting pieces of cloth which had formed a portion of the attire of crack footballers, glueing each piece into a book which she called her "footer album." I didn't like to send the stockings back and refuse the request. Having an old jersey, which I wore when doing odd jobs in my garden, I snipped a bit from the back and sent it along with my autograph. The lady was so pleased with them that she sent me yesterday a handknited tie to match the stockings.

A brother "knight of the leather" told me recently that he had been the recipient of a dozen letters from a young woman, each pleading plaintively, not for his heart, but for one of his old football boots. She and a friend, it appears, were forming a small museum of football curiosities, and it was their intention to make cast-off boots of famous "soccer" players the leading exhibit. My friend was asked to send along his footwear with a label bearing particulars of his football career and his autograph tacked to the sole. I fear that lady will wait a very long time for that old boot, as the player in question passes on his old football boots to his son, who wears them to school during the winter months.

The strangest request I ever received came from the owner of a waxworks show in the Midlands. He wanted me to have a plaster cast taken of my head and face and sent to him together with the bill, when he would send me a check in settlement, together with three guineas for myself. I didn't like the idea of being put on show to a crowd of gaping provincials, and politely refused to accede to his wishes. I was very pleased I did, for I learnt later that he had imagined me to be a man, having a similar name to my own, who had won fame in the north of England as a burglar!

On the eve of his departure for Australia a certain successful footballer was asked by a strange lady to send her football cards from the colonies as well as picture postcards, while the representative of a country newspaper wanted him to send home weekly a column of football "talk" for the munificent payment of 5s. a thousand words!

When footballers have to go into training for an important match it is not unusual for their club secretary to be bombarded with invitations from hotel-keepers in the country and at the seaside, offering to give the players free board and lodging on condition that they will do all in their power to draw guests to their establishments.

A Picturesque Function.

One of the most important functions in the daily life of the English bluejacket is what is called on board the British men-o'-war "grog time." Grog is composed of rum and water and is served daily to the bluejackets on all British warships. Dutchmen and Germans have their beer, Frenchmen and Italians their wine, but the British "handyman" gets grog, the same as his forefather in the days of Nelson. The grog barrel is generally a very elaborate affair, embellished with mottoes, "God Save the King" being most in favor. To be deprived of grog is one of the punishments meted out for serious breaches of discipline and one that is keenly felt by the culprit.

Bluejackets who do not indulge in spirituous beverages are allowed a small amount of money in lieu of grog, but abstaining from grog for several days in order to draw a large quantity with intemperate motives is made impossible by the regulation that grog must be drawn daily and that no more than a daily ration may be served at any time.

A Wonderful Library.

Dr. Robertson Nicoll, who founded and edits The British Weekly, which is so strongly supporting the Nonconformist Emergency League, pays a splendid tribute to his father in a book of reminiscences published last year. He was an Aberdeenshire minister, who, although his income never exceeded $1,000 a year, gathered together a library of 17,000 volumes. To do this he denied himself much. One of his peculiarities as a bibliophile was his passion for duplicates. "You are never safe with only one copy of a good book," he said to his son one day.

Harry Lauder's Ruse.

When quite lads, Harry Lauder and his younger brother were enjoying a "smoke"—a forbidden treat. Harry first produced his pipe, and Mat, not to be outdone, asked for a puff. He got one, with disastrous results. "Noo," said Harry, "if ye tell on me, I'll tell on you." Mat's only reply was to wail, "Take ma name! I'll no' tell a word!" "Ye'd better no'," retorted the other lad. "an I'll tell mither we've been swimmin', and you swallowed a lot o' saut watter." And his ruse was successful.

Hobbies of the Prince of Wales.

The fact that eighteen stags recently fell to the rifle of the Prince of Wales in Scotland is a reminder that His Royal Highness is an absolutely dead shot with that weapon, as well as with the fowling-piece. In more peaceful pursuits the prince is equally successful. His collection of rare stamps is one of the finest in the world, and is estimated to be worth $500,000. Less generally known is the skill of the prince with the chisel, saw, and hammer.

Winsted, Conn.—Her mind still bright and eyesight unimpaired, Mrs. Emeline Kellogg recently celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday. Aside from being a little deaf, Mrs. Kellogg is as well as she was half a century ago. Most of her time is spent in reading and sewing.

Old age should be a happy, healthy age. We all could grow old gracefully and probably live to be a hundred, did we jealously guard our most valuable possession—our health—in youth and middle age.

At the first sign of Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Kidney, Stomach or Skin Trouble, "Fruit-a-tives" should be taken. "Fruit-a-tives", or fruit juice tablets, not only cure the specific trouble, but also so strengthen and invigorate the entire system that there is a marked improvement in the general health.

A little care and "Fruit-a-tives", taken regularly, are all that is needed to bring most of us to a ripe old age.

A Matter of Business

Marietta Finally Understood the Lawton Case

By JOANNA SINGLE.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Frank Worthing frowned as he looked up from the code at his partner, William Butler, who, with his straw hat pushed back on his rumpled fair hair, was still insisting that he leave the office for the rest of the day.

"Confound you, Billy, heat or no heat, August or December, a fellow that's going to get on in the law simply must do some studying. Can't you get it through your thick head when I say I am not going that I mean it? Take the girls by yourself if they are silly enough to like your company. Can't see what anything bigger than a child sees in a vaudeville park anyhow. Now, Billy, get out of here, do! Your everlasting grin gives me a temperature, and the heat is bad enough this afternoon as it is."

Butler surveyed his friend with elaborate pity. "Poor boy!" he commented ruminatingly. "He hasn't been himself since he won the big case last month. Turns down his friends, flocks by himself. Must have overworked or else he's in love. Must be love. Perhaps the fair Alice will capitulate after all. She ought to after you saved her fortune from a greedy stepmother. Go after it, son. Well, by-by. Me to Grace and Marietta and the despised park."

Alice Lawton, indeed, thought Worthing. Well, that idea was better in Butler's shallow pate than the real truth—namely, that Marietta's sudden fondness for his partner was eating his heart out. It was always Marietta and Billy Butler everywhere, and he used to think it was Grace for whom Billy longed. Worthing had known no inner peace since Marietta had come last winter to live with her cousin, Grace Hunter. From the first meeting the girl's dark, little, serious face, sweet eyes, gay laughter, had not left his consciousness. And she had certainly seemed to like him, even to prefer him, to let him monopolize her somewhat and even to be demurely glad when they were left alone together.

Gloomily reflecting, he began to wonder what had changed her. June had been a joy time. If he had spoken then all might have been well, but that Lawton inheritance case came to him. He recognized the professional opportunity, worked on it like a slave day and night all through July and won, feeling that he had now a little better basis for offering his heart to the girl he loved. He was also delighted because he had done a service to Alice, his lifelong friend. But what had changed Marietta?

Finding himself unable to study, Worthing phoned for his car and closed the office. He would go for Alice and take her for a spin and have dinner at the golf club and then ride again till the moon came up. Perhaps they might go through the park themselves, and—no, he would let Marietta alone! He recognized that he longed to see her.

But Alice was not at home, and, bitterly lonely, he motored out into the country. As the sun set and the cool of evening came on his troubled heart grew more calm. He would reason with himself, try to see what he had done or left undone, why Marietta when he went back to her, flushed and joyous with his victory, had received him with the frozen sweetness of a dish of ice cream and thereafter managed never to be with him alone for a single moment. The first time he had noticed it was once when, with Alice, whom he was taking to his office, he met her on the street just in front of the building. Her greeting had been very cool.

Worthing drew up beneath a great tree and, taking a little photo of the girl from his pocket, looked at it with loving inquiry. He recalled that another time that she had been cool to him was when he was telling her how much it meant to Alice to get her legal rights and how glad he was to have been able to help her. That was at the golf club dance, and after that she had been unable to find a dance for him. He sat thinking.

Suddenly it came to him—the ridiculous little key to the solution. He started the machine, headed again for the city, driving like one in a sort of happy insanity. He would go straight to the park, find her and see her long enough to ask her if he was right if he had to toss Billy into the lake to be rid of him. Of course a fellow couldn't ask a girl directly what he intended to know, but he was lawyer enough to extract from her indirectly all he desired. He could not wait to see her—it was all so foolishly simple.

It was nearly dusk when, with hope and fear mingling in his heart, he reached the park and, impatiently obedient to the rules and the watchful police, crawled slowly along the drives looking for a group in which he might distinguish Marietta's slim little figure and crown of dark hair. Where in the world could they be? He stopped on a wrong view several times and at last went slowly to a remote corner where there was a great old fashioned swing. It would be like that idiot Butler to take her off to chatter to her unhindered and perhaps to swing her, for she loved to risk her little life, and Worthing had always had a deadly fear that the chains or something might break. He had seen one such accident. Now he began to be sure Butler was not at to look after her.

His surmise had been right. He saw Grace, tall and big and blond, standing watching that consummate idiot, Billy, as he pushed Marietta—his Marietta—high and yet higher into the air. He jumped from his car, motioning Butler, who did not see him, to stop, not daring to call lest he frighten her. He was sure the swing was not safe. He came running up, facing the girl, who, as she receded to be pushed forward again by Butler, saw him and gave a little cry. Out she came toward him, far out. His heart stopped as a sudden warning creak from the chains made him look up. The chain had broken.

Without an instant's hesitation he held up his arms for her and shouted, "Jump, Marietta, jump!" Such command, such conviction, rang in his voice that the girl obeyed as if her own mind had prompted her. While a horribly frightened silence fell on the others and some people close by came running up she fell safely into his arms, where he stood holding her, telling her and the rest, telling himself, that she was not hurt. And, indeed, she had miraculously escaped without harm, for Butler had caught the chain so the swing could not strike her as she fell.

It seemed ages to Frank Worthing before he made everybody go away before it dawned on Butler, who was strangely willing, that he was to take Grace home and leave him (Worthing) to bring Marietta when and how he chose. She was very silent and queer, and he had felt her cling to him as he held her in his arms as if she would never leave that shelter.

They did not go straight home, be it said, but out to the country. And they saw the moon rise, and many things were said, especially by Worthing, whose usual slowness of speech melted away under his great need. So presently they were very much engaged, and he stopped the car, the better to hold her hand, a proceeding of much greater importance than reaching home, where he would have to let her out of his sight till the next day. Then she demanded what had brought him to the park. It gave him the desired opening.

"You," he answered, with succinct promptitude. "I was going to toss Billy into the lake while I asked you what I had done or left undone that I should be driven out of paradise. It dawned on me that I might have—neglected you during that Lawton case, because, you see, Alice"— He felt his beloved stiffen.

"I'm sure nobody ever thought of hindering your devotion to Miss Lawton. I"— But he shamelessly interrupted.

"But, Marietta, dearest, you surely knew it was a legal necessity for me to see her—to"—

"To take her—alone—to your office—I saw you, Frank—to be with her constantly, to have time for—nobody else."

"Her aunt was waiting for her in my office that time. I had to be with her. It was a matter of business. You surely see that, Marietta? And surely you know it is you that I love?" His heart sang to think that he had been right, that she had been jealous, that she cared enough for him to be jealous. That was the wonder. Most of all his heart sang to know that in the moonlight she lifted her face to give him a kiss of forgiveness for the offense he had never committed. He reflected that he was not the first man probably to joyfully accept pardon for what he had not done; that she was not the first woman to whom a man had vainly explained a matter of business.

"Of course," she said suddenly, drawing back to look at him, "you know I was not jealous. She is not the sort of girl I could be jealous of—so very—unobtrusive." Worthing's laughter was silent, a thing of the inner man. Alice Lawton, his old friend, an accepted beauty, unattractive! But he was wise, and his disloyalty was very lovable.

"Marietta, did you suppose I could think you were jealous? And as for Alice, well, you know I can't see other women. I am blind."

Very Narrow Escape.

A queer sensitive creature crept into the eyes of the barber with the long, low, rakish forehead as he suddenly rested his razor while shaving the Adam's apple of the lean, nervous looking man in the chair.

"I was King Louis XIV. of France last night," said the barber suddenly, the razor still poised about half an inch above the lean customer's Adam's apple.

The customer blinked and breathed hard, the shaved side of his face being nearly as white as the still lathered other side.

"Wait a minute," he said, placing a shaking hand on the barber's shaving arm.

He sat up straight in the chair with a wild look and then made a bolt for the door.

"Whew!" he yelled as he went. "What an escape! King Louis XIV.! Bughouse! He wouldn't have done a thing to me! And, with a towel streaming in the breeze and one side of his face still lathered, he loped down the street.

"Well, I'll be dadblinged!" muttered the barber. "Now, what kind of cogs has that fellow got in his conk? I was only trying to tell him that I was King Louis XIV. at the barbers' masquerade ball last night, and look at him going after the mile record!"—Detroit Free Press.

"GIVE THE BAD BOY A CHANCE"

THE PLEA THAT HAS WON A STATE

A Little Girl of Eight, Playing with Matches, Started a Fire That, Fanned by Mrs. Frederic C. Schoff, of Philadelphia, Grew Into a Sweeping Blaze of Juvenile Reform.

MRS. FREDERIC C. SCHOFF

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

IN Colorado a judge has won a name and reputation for his work in the Children's Court. In Philadelphia lives a charming woman whose work in behalf of unfortunate children in that city and State, carried on for ten years against the greatest difficulties, is second to none, not even that of the Colorado Judge.

Judge Benjamin B. Lindsey is official Judge of the Children's Court of Denver. Mrs. Frederic C. Schoff is just Mrs Schoff, without official title, and yet none the less she is the actual judge of the Children's Court in Philadelphia, and the magistrates and judges of that city with one voice accord to her that title.

Nor is the title merely honorary. Philadelphia has a rather peculiar judicial system. Its judges rotate. They sit a while in one court, then move to another, then to another, until they have made the rounds. Consequently the Children's Court is presided over by some fifteen judges, coming one after another, each one quite unacquainted with the records of the little chaps lined up before him. One might have appeared before this same Judge a twelvemonth ago and have been a prodigy of virtue since, yet the Judge, fixing him with an eagle eye, remembers only that first appearance, while another who has appeared quite frequently within the last ten months is, to the Judge, a new offender.

Consequently Philadelphia judges are dependent mainly for their decisions upon the information given by the probation officer. And the probation officer every week goes over her cases in every detail at a joint meeting of probation officers, at whose head is Mrs. Schoff. The probation officer may be new and the records of the boys may be only matters of scheduled reports to her, but Mrs. Schoff knows. For ten years she has heard cases, gone over detail after detail, and she remembers this boy and that and his home surroundings. She it is who decides that a boy is to be found, work and kept at it, and that employed he stands a chance of graduating from court altogether. She it is who demands that a father be called before the court and made responsible for his son, and her decisions are handed down via the probation officer to the presiding Judge, who accepts them with a sigh of relief as he hears:—

"Mrs. Schoff recommends that"——and why? Why should the word of one woman carry such weight? One must go back ten years to answer.

One day in May, 1899, a Philadelphia newspaper printed as one of its first page stories an account of the arrest and imprisonment of a little girl of eight years. She had set fire to the house in which she lived. When asked why she had started the fire she said frankly:—

"To see the fire burn and the engine run."

The account was accompanied by a picture of the child and stated that the presiding Judge had sent her to a reformatory. The child's history revealed the fact that she had been left motherless at two, placed in an orphanage, and recently been made a household drudge in a city boarding house, with no associates save ignorant servants. The whole account was surmounted by the startling headline:—"A Prodigy of Crime."

The city read and was properly shocked by such depravity in one so young. Doubtless several mothers remembered the day their Marys set fire to the lace curtains "just for fun," and set the paper aside with a sigh of sympathy for the unfortunate little waif.

"To See the Fire Burn and the Engine Run." She Said Frankly

One Mother Roused

One mother alone seemed to feel a need for action. Sitting in the comfortable library of her home, at No. 3418 Baring street, Mrs. Schoff read the story.

"Prodigy of crime!" she said indignantly. Then she looked at her own daughters at play. Suppose one of them had set fire to the house in a spirit of fun, would she have been sent to a reformatory? What was to become of this innocent girl, to be associated with companions whose ways had been proved evil? Mrs. Schoff put on her bonnet. She kissed her own daughters and hurried from the house. An hour later found her in the office of the Judge who sent the child to the reformatory.

"But, Mrs. Schoff," pleaded the Judge, "what am I to do with her? I have no other place to send her, and, truth to tell, they do not want her there, because of the character of her offence."

Mrs. Schoff was bewildered. She returned home determined to know more of the law that branded eight-year-old children as criminals and sent them to reformatories. With, as she says, "an inward vow to work unceasingly until something better could be done for unfortunate children," she set to work to investigate local conditions.

"I found," she says, "that there were five hundred children, ranging from six to sixteen, in Philadelphia county prisons. There were from two hundred to three hundred children every month passing through the station houses of the city standing in critical need of intelligent direction and guidance, yet receiving nothing. There were children in every county prison in Pennsylvania, committed for trifling offences and submitted to influences that could not fail to confirm evil habits. There were eight hundred children in each of the two reformatories and no distinction was made as to the children committed there. Waifs, homeless little ones, children steeped in crime, were all sent to the same institution. Any magistrate could commit a child to a reformatory on the parent's statement of incorrigibility, and no effort was made to prove the parent's statement. The result was that stepfathers and stepmothers desiring to be freed from the care of children took this method of throwing them upon the State, and more than half the children in the House of Refuge were there because of complaints of parents, usually stepfathers or stepmothers.

"No sensible mother," said Mrs. Schoff, "as a means of uplifting her boy, would condemn him to the exclusive association of naughty boys because he had committed a fault. And yet this was what the State did. All trials were in the criminal courts, and in the cages for criminals the boys and girls waited their turn, listening to things too vile to mention and receiving lessons in evil never to be forgotten!"

With this material in her hand Mrs. Schoff appealed to the New Century Club, an organization of six hundred women, to help her. When a committee had been formed Mrs. Schoff demonstrated one of the remarkable qualities that assure her leadership. The women with her, horrified by the tales they had heard, were for proceeding at once to relieve single cases, but Mrs. Schoff insisted that nothing be done until a thorough study of every State in the Union be made, not only as to methods but as to results, both as to expense and as to effectiveness in saving the children.

These women worked all winter compiling a report, "The Statutes of Every State in the United States Concerning Defective, Delinquent and Dependent Children." Massachusetts, Michigan and Illinois had the best records, so Mrs. Schoff packed her trunk, kissed her own children and visited Massachusetts, Michigan and Illinois. Illinois, which had just introduced a juvenile court and probation system, produced a profound impression.

Urging the Reform.

Armed with this data the women got to work. Mrs. Schoff went to the Governor of Pennsylvania, to various political leaders, urging that reform measures be taken. When questions were asked she was ready to answer. When statements were questioned she produced her data. At every turn she met them.

Then she employed a lawyer to draft two bills for the Legislature. These bills provided:—

First—Separate time and place for trial of children's cases and no detention of children in police stations or prisons.

Second—Probation officers whose salaries were not to be paid from the public treasury, yet who were appointed by the Judge.

Third—A house of detention in all cities of first and second class for children awaiting trial.

Fourth—Boards of visitors composed of men and women for all children's institutions.

Immediately the managers of the Eastern House of Refuge arose in opposition. Deprive them of children and lose their places! Nevertheless the bill went through and in May, 1901, the laws were made.

Then there arose a storm of opposition. Pennsylvania is a conservative State. Hundreds of persons really felt that the old laws were good enough, hundreds of place holders saw reformatories, orphanages and "homes" emptied, and hastened to the politicians. Mrs. Schoff and her committee were privately termed "a nuisance," and although, as they were not officials, their position was impregnable, certain organs of the press sought by satirical comment and much publicity to discourage them.

But Mrs. Schoff is not easily discouraged. She found a probation officer and the New Century Club guaranteed her salary. Then she got the Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers to supply a second probation officer. With these Mrs. Schoff and her committee, and the Judge who happened to be sitting, and who was only too glad to be helped along in this new order of procedure, opened the first juvenile court of Pennsylvania, on June 14, 1900.

Trying to Learn How To Be Efficient Fathers and Mothers

Meanwhile the disgruntled place holders, their friends and allies started a suit against the constitutionality of the laws. Mrs. Schoff at once engaged the best legal talent, and when, in February, 1903, the laws of 1901 were declared unconstitutional Mrs. Schoff had also ready and presented to the Legislature one month before five new bills covering the defects of the previous laws. These were fought every step of the way. Mrs. Schoff and her committee went to Harrisburg. The Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers and the New Century Club held meetings and sent to the Legislature hundreds of requests for their passage. Even after their presentation to the Governor an appeal was made for a veto, but the bills went through and still stand.

But Mrs. Schoff did not feel that the work had ended. She induced the Jewish people of the city to provide the salary of a probation officer who could speak Yiddish, she spoke at prayer meetings in various churches, and obtained the salaries of several others. Then she met these officers every week without fail at her own home and went over with them, detail by detail, every case. She attended the Juvenile Court almost daily. She became acquainted with the young offenders. She also became acquainted with their parents. This gave her a new idea. Since the offences of the children were, in a majority of cases, directly due to the deficiencies of their parents, why not train the parents?

Fathers, Too, Interested.

There had been sporadic attempts at mothers' clubs in connection with the public schools before this. But Mrs. Schoff wanted a fathers' as well as a mothers' club, and so she suggested the new name. These associations were joined for the primary purpose of assisting parents in the training of their children. After one year of work there were thirty thousand parents in these associations meeting at the public schools, trying to learn how to be efficient fathers and mothers.

Having set the ball rolling, Mrs. Schoff never stopped. In addition to the New Century Club Mrs. Schoff was formerly president of the Pennsylvania Congress of Mothers, which office she resigned to become, in 1903, president of the National Congress of Mothers. Into each one of these three organizations she introduced her juvenile court work and parent-teacher associations. Arousing their interest she has been able to give an impetus to movements that have accomplished wonders. Always at a crucial moment she has left her home affairs in the hands of her grown daughters and hastened to the centre of the fray.

One year after the opening of the juvenile court in Philadelphia, at her instance, a similar court opened at Pittsburg. Now they extend all through the State. Other States in which Mrs. Schoff has been a direct influence in starting the juvenile court and probation system are Connecticut, Louisiana and Idaho. The National Congress of Mothers, stimulated by her influence, is establishing parent-teacher associations in every State in the Union.

Mrs. Schoff has been the recipient of unique honors. She is the only woman who has spoken at their request before the members of the Canadian Parliament. This was in 1907. Both houses adjourned and held a joint session to hear her address. At their request she trained two probation officers, and, as a result, juvenile court and probation work is well started in Canada.

Despite her sudden accession to prominence in national affairs, Mrs. Schoff is just the same approachable, unassuming woman that she was before 1900. She is the mother of seven children.

"My family," she says, "is the best part of my life, and the most delightful is being a grandmother. Without the direct responsibilities of motherhood, I can thoroughly enjoy my grandchildren."

Only one year ago a certain Philadelphia magistrate resigned because, as he stated to the reporters, "Mrs. Schoff meddled too much and she gave too much advice. One had no authority."

Concrete results of her work are best shown in figures.

There were six hundred children under sixteen years of age in Moyamensing prison in 1900.

To-day there are none.

There were three hundred children a month passing through station houses in Philadelphia.

To-day there are 50 per cent of that number arrested, and these are held in the House of Detention.

There were 1,408 cases in the Philadelphia Juvenile Court in 1908.

BIG MEN CONSULT HER.

A Clever Vassar Girl Who is Doing a Man's Work.

Crystal Eastman, graduate of Vassar, is doing a man's work—and the work of a great man.

When she went to Vassar college from her home in Elmira, N. Y., she became interested in the course in sociology. She was one of the most attractive girls in her class, but she disregarded all social temptations, and as soon as she graduated she went out into the world to find out how she could help to make it better. She took up the work with the Russell Sage foundation.

She went to Pittsburg and studied the workmen there. She found that employers were not caring for injured employees. By living in the homes of toilers she gained vast information regarding this evil that shed new light on the terrible conditions which existed in the great city of furnaces and rolling mills. A pamphlet which she published on this theme attracted general attention.

Her latest honor is to be appointed by Governor Hughes of New York on a special state commission to investigate the causes of unemployment. On this commission with her are John Mitchell, labor leader; Henry R. Seager, professor of political economy at Columbia university and president of the American Association For Labor Legislation, and other industrial students. They look to Miss Eastman for much of their information.

Regarding the liability of employers to injured employees, Miss Eastman writes that we must adopt the "principle that an employer insures his workmen in a limited amount against loss from all accidents in the course of work, except those due solely to the conscious, willful fault of the injured. An employer therefore would be 'liable' for compensation to all his workmen injured, just as he is 'liable' for wages to all his workmen."

For Glistening Teeth.

A woman was asked how she kept her teeth in such perfect condition. They were always white and glistening, nor was there ever to be detected the least marring line of tartar even at the back of the mouth, where it is apt to gather.

"The reason is simple enough, and the means will not break you up," was the reply. "The good condition of my teeth is due to nothing more than daily use of 'saleratus,' as we called it in the backwoods, ordinary baking soda, or bicarbonate of soda, as you know it.

"When I was a girl visiting a married friend she waged biweekly battles with her three children because she scrubbed their teeth with soda. She told me it was an old cure for tartar in their family and advised me to try it. I did, and you admire the results.

"Injurious? I have used it each morning for twenty years. That should be answer enough.

"It is used like any other tooth powder, on a wet toothbrush. Be careful to scrub well inside the mouth, especially at the back. You will hate the taste at first, but soon get used to it."

Baking powder, or saleratus, as it is sometimes called, is an excellent counteractant of acidity. For this reason instead of using it in the morning night is the better time. The woman in question used it in connection with tooth powder several other times a day.

Cupid Not in Royal Wedding Plan.

It seems that the wife hunting expedition of the minister of King Manuel of Portugal has come to an end and that the boy king without being asked whether he likes it will be able to marry Princess Alexandra of Fife. It is a neat political arrangement. But what about the feelings of the young couple? Manuel is eighteen years old; Alexandra is the same age. They have never met, but it is reported King Edward will announce the betrothal in November. Alexandra is a simple girl, who has been raised on the country estates of her parents. She was presented at court only a few months ago. She is quick and even brilliant mentally, while Manuel is sluggish in brain and body. If ever romance enters the lives of this royal pair it will be after marriage. Poor Cupid! He may operate in the common, workaday world at will, but courts and thrones are forbidden him.

THE NEW COIFFURE.

A Modern Adaptation of Famous Countess Potocka Effect.

In hairdressing there are almost as many styles this season as in gowns and hats, and one is perfectly free to select whichever one deems best suited to one's individual type of fact and figure.

One of the latest and most attractive styles of hairdressing is pictured in the accompanying illustration. This arrangement is easily accomplished, does not demand an overabundance of hair and is becoming to the majority of countenances.

It is an adaptation of the famous Countess Potocka coiffure, the modernization effected by the omission of the corkscrew curls which characterise that style. It is suitable for daily wear and for evening, although this illustration indicates that it is intended for evening wear.

The front hair is puffed out loosely in pompadour style, well on the crown of the head, but in soft, loose waves. It lies close over the temples, creating the original, charmingly graceful Potocka effect. For daily wear a narrow strap of black velvet ribbon will carry out this effect of a narrow bandeau of plain dark tortoise shell. The side and back hair are united and in an uninterrupted movement complete the pompadour. They are then divided into as many strands as the thickness of the hair will permit.

The ornament here shown is one of the latest Paris conceits and is admirably adapted to this style of coiffure. It will also harmonize with almost any style of evening gown from the classic draped Grecian to the moyen age and the Louis XVI., the three leading styles of this season. It is a diadem of four tiers and is made of medium large, even sized pearl beads strung on fine gold wire. At either side the four strands are caught together, and at this point the trimming is disposed, a large, macaroon shaped cabochon, also made of beads.

What's a Gentleman?

An exact definition of a gentleman has been tried many times, never perhaps with entirely satisfactory results, says the Woman's Home Companion. Little Sadie had never heard of any of the definitions, but she managed to throw a gleam of light on the subject, albeit one touched with unconscious cynicism. The word was in the spelling lesson, and I said:

"Sadie, what is a gentleman?"

"Please, ma'am," she answered, "a gentleman's a man you don't know very well."

PROPHESIED A DISASTER

HOW NEW GLASGOW WOMAN WARNED PICTOU MINERS.

Mrs. Coo, Who Told Fortunes For the Young Folk, Foresaw a Falling In of Coal In the Foord Pit of the Albion Mines at Stellarton—She Also Announced the Date of an Explosion Which Killed a Hundred.

The effect of recent sermons on the coal strike in Cape Breton, which called forth the action of the Papal representative in Canada, has been likened to that of Mrs. Coo's attempts to frighten the miners of Pictou County. This recalls a strange story of bygone years, which perhaps many Canadians never heard.

The Mrs. Coo predictions referred to were a series of strange prognostigations of disaster in the coal mines of Pictou County, N.S., made by a local "seer" at New Glasgow, nearly thirty years ago. Mrs. Coo was a widow, living in what was then the outskirts of New Glasgow. She was a large and almost masculine-looking person, who told the fortunes of lads and lasses through the medium of the mysterious tea cup. With a wad of tea grounds upon which a little water had been poured, she could see pictures and foretell the fate of those who crossed her palm with silver. Often she seemed as though looking through a glass darkly, and her prophecies were regarded as a joke.

Then she became ambitious and soared into the wilder realms of the unknown. When the stalwart Mahatma handed out the prediction that there would be a falling in of coal in one of the mines, and gave the date upon which it would happen, nobody stopped work. When the accident actually did happen on the date fixed, and a wall of coal fell in and crushed several men to death, there were those who recalled the prophecy.

The circumstances was forgotten, until the witch of Pictou County happened to be looking in the cup to while away an hour when business was dull and she saw more trouble. This time she predicted a "falling in of water" in the Foord pit of the Albion mines, at Stellarton, to be attended with fatal results. There was nothing indefinite about her jeremiads; she gave the date, and indicated about the number of lives which would be lost. The Foord pit was the deepest coal mine in the world, the chief entrance to which was straight down into the bowels of the earth in a huge, two-storied steel cage or elevator. The workings were a very catacomb of passages and galleries, one series under the other. They extended away out under the East river, which is there an inlet of the sea, but there was a solid roof of rock and coal hundreds of feet thick between the waters and the workings. Therefore her prediction seemed so impossible that few people heeded it.

On the day fixed, half-a-dozen or so of the miners were working away at what was supposed to be a solid wall of coal when there was a sudden rush and roar and a mighty volume of water broke in upon them, crushing and drowning all who were working there at the time. It turned out that the men had unconsciously been cutting their way into an old abandoned working, when they thought that they were driving into the solid coal of centuries. This old working had taken fire, and years before, as the fire could not be extinguished, the mine was flooded.

There are only three great sources of disaster which imperil coal mines, and she had used up two of them. The third was fire, which in a gaseous mine like that at Stellarton always meant explosion of "fire damp" (carburetted hydroden), followed by deadly "choke damp" (carbonic acid gas). The prophet of evil now predicted this, and again gave the date, and "saw" a large loss of life and destruction of property.

The miners there at that time were chiefly hard-headed Pictou Scots and Cornishmen, not given to superstition. Few of them left work, but one, who was a Swede, decided that he would leave and visit his home. He had his luggage at the railway station, and his "good clothes" on, ready to go in the morning of the day fixed for trouble. He went down into the pit to bid farewell to his old comrades. He never came back, and away off in Sweden a sweetheart waited in vain for a lover who had been engaged to her for many years.

That same morning the wife of one of the miners who was to have gone down in the day shift, stole her husband's clothes while he slept, and fled from the house to prevent him going to work that day. It saved his life.

That morning there was a rumbling boom beneath the earth, and it soon became evident that the explosion had come. What caused it no one knows to this day.

Some of the miners escaped by making a long detour and going up the slope of the Cage Pit, which connected with the Foord Pit. They could not tell what the fate of their comrades was. A large number of lives were lost.

The next day a party of managers went down to investigate, and almost right up to the very cage they found corpses of men and horses. It was found that the mine was a cauldron of flames. Further explosions might occur at any moment. A hurried exit was made, everyone driven away from the pit-heads. For hours they waited in silence for the sound which would mean the doom of one of the most valuable properties in America. At last it came; the cage shot up from the pit like a rocket, the ventilating shaft house was wrecked. There was nothing left now but to flood the mine. The New Glasgow fire department, with their steam engine, pumped into the mouth of the pit for days, while a large force of men dug a deep trench from the East river to an old pit and the waters of Northumberland Strait rushed into what the work of years had made a mighty underground city, of miles and miles of passages. Foord Pit was abandoned, and the mine was the tomb for a hundred odd men.

And Mrs. Coo said: "I told you so."

CARE OF RUBBER FOOTWEAR.

Oil, Sunlight and Heat All Harmful. Rubber Shoes Should Fit Well.

Some valuable suggestions are contained in a circular issued by a rubber footwear producing firm:

First.—Importance of fitting rubbers properly. However good the quality or perfect the style, rubber shoes will not give satisfactory service if they are not properly fitted to the leather shoes over which they are intended to be worn. Neither can rubber boots nor lumbermen's shoes be expected to wear well if they are not properly fitted. Always fit boots as small as they can be worn with comfort. It is impossible to make a boot that will not break in the foot if it is worn too large. Fit boots small and thus avoid wrinkles and insure good service.

Second.—Grease and oil are very injurious. Do not allow grease, oil or animal fat to come in contact with rubber goods, as it will speedily decompose the best rubber that can be produced. Even milk contains enough grease to injure rubber boots and shoes.

Third.—Strong sunlight is injurious. Rubber boots and shoes when not being worn should always be kept away from the air as much as possible and in a cool, dark place, as strong sunlight and hot, dry air will soon cause even the best rubber to oxidize and crack. Especially where it is wrinkled or the outside surface of the rubber is under a constant strain.

Fourth.—Heat is fatal. Remember that heat unbearable to the hand is more than enough to destroy the value and wearing qualities of good rubber boots and shoes. When you warm your feet before the fire or radiator with your rubbers on, by the time you feel the warmth the rubbers are usually cooked to death.

Fifth.—Rubber tears easily. This is true of cloth, paper and various other things, but few goods besides rubber have such great tensile strength and yet will tear so easily after a rent is once made.

When an undue amount of nervous energy is used in the brain there is certain to be failure in the other functions of the body.

Digestion is imperfect—the head aches—you cannot sleep—you become nervous and irritable—you are easily excited and quickly tired—your memory fails and you cannot concentrate the mind.

Bread Bakers

We meet women who bake at home under the impression that they are saving money or getting better bread. It's folly to try and compete with Gilgour and Mackay's 3lb.-BREAD-3lb.

It is the bread of Quality. We are cranks on Quality—four dealers and others know that. We have every facility for baking a scientific, perfect loaf, and our bakery is as clean as a pin. Ask your grocer for Gilgour & McKay's 3 lb. Loaf for 10c.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Gus Belleville, a Kingston hotel porter, is dead from injuries received when thrown in a runaway accident.

The police of Geneva, Switzerland, confirm the report of a wholesale exodus of members of the Black Hand who mean to find a new field of operations in America.

The shell and ammunition works at Spandau, Prussia, are being worked to their capacity on new artillery projectiles, which combine the functions of shrapnel and shell.

An application of the Georgian Bay and Seaboard Railway to cross the tracks of the Grand Trunk in Victoria County has been referred by the Railway Commission to the board's engineer.

At Marine City, Mich., the steamer Badger State, owned by the Alpena Cedar & Lumber Co. of Alpena, Mich., was burned to the water's edge. The Badger State was 213 feet long, and had a tonnage of 802. She was valued at $14,000.

At Nairn Centre, Algoma, the wife of George Thurlow, a district constable, has given birth to three children within the past eleven months, two of them being twins. Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow have been married seven years, and have nine children, among them being three pairs of twins.

The expected sale at Paris of the jewels of the former Sultan of Morocco, Abd-el-Aziz, was prevented by the intervention of a representative from the present Sultan, demanding delay in order to effect their redemption. He had a cheek for $600,000, and alleged that the pawn tickets had been mislaid, and that the tyrant of Fez wanted time to hunt them up.

CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION.

Caucus at Ottawa Makes Several Recommendations.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The report of the special committee appointed by R. L. Borden at the request of the caucus for the purpose of taking into consideration matters connected with the approaching convention of the Liberal Conservative party, recommends:

(1) That a committee of fifty, of whom not more than twenty shall be members of Parliament, to be known as the committee on preliminary arrangements for the Dominion convention of the Liberal Conservative party, be appointed by our leader.

(2) That the said committee be called together at Ottawa, for their first meeting, on some day in the month of January, 1910, to decide on the best way of getting the whole party throughout the Dominion to join heartily in the said convention, and to arrange the system of obtaining delegates for the convention, and all other matters connected with the same.

(3) That, while it is the opinion of this committee that the Dominion convention should be held in the city of Winnipeg two or three days previous to the Winnipeg exhibition, which will be early in July.

(4) Your committee further recommends that each member of Parliament and the defeated Conservative candidates be requested to consult the executive of the association for his electoral division, with the object of obtaining their views, and that the whips of the respective provinces be requested to transmit immediately to each defeated Conservative candidate a copy of this recommendation.

The above report was unanimously concurred in and adopted by the Conservative caucus yesterday.

Conmee Must Give Guarantee.

Port Arthur, Dec. 8.—James Conmee will submit his power proposition to council to-day, and it and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission's agreement, in the form of bylaws, will be submitted at the municipal election. Conmee will be asked to provide a guarantee that he can carry out his offer.

Sees Blood; Killed by Fall.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 8.—Fainting at the sight of blood, Harry T. Simmons, junior in Western Reserve Medical College fell to the floor in a hospital clinic late yesterday sustaining a fracture of the skull and died on the operating table at which a few moments before he had been an assistant.

Chicago In Grip of Storm.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Blinding clouds of snow, accompanied by lower temperature and a 35-mile wind swept over Chicago and surrounding territory yesterday. A laborer was found dead from cold and exposure, and two railroad switchmen, blinded by snow, were run over by engines.

Gave His Life For His Children.

St. Ignace, Mich., Dec. 8.—William McDermott and two of his small children were burned to death Monday night in their home at Carp River. The mother rescued a third child and the father died trying to save the two.

Child Dies Under Chloroform.

Port Hope, Dec. 8.—Eva, the seven-year-old daughter of William Embleton, is dead from the effects of chlorotorin, which had been administered by two local surgeons. She was to have undergone an operation for an affection of the throat and nose.

Piano Fell on Him.

Windsor, Dec. 8.—Joseph McLaughlin, colored, was fatally crushed yesterday while moving a piano into a furniture van. He slipped on the steps, which were covered with snow, and the piano toppled over on him.

Brakeman's Bad Fall.

Lindsay, Dec. 8.—James Purcill, a G.T.R. brakeman, by falling off a box car, broke his two arms, his nose and his wrist. Fortunately he was noticed before the train started to move out.

Windsor Loses a Good Citizen.

Windsor, Dec. 8.—Charles L. Barker, city editor of The Windsor Record for six years, has resigned to accept a similar position with The Ottawa Free Press. Mr. Barker's removal will be keenly regretted by the citizens generally.

Argument Postponed.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The Railway Commission has postponed for two months the consideration of the question as to whether electric railway companies coming under the jurisdiction of the board should be compelled to fit cars with airbrakes.

Do You Suffer From Headaches ?

There are few people who have never experienced a headache from one cause or another. It affects all ages and both sexes alike, but the female sex is probably the more effected through the higher nervous development and more delicate organization of the system. Those also of a nervous temperament and studious or sedentary occupation are subject to it.

The presence of headache nearly always tells us that there is another disease which, although we may not be aware of it, is still exerting its baneful influence and perhaps awaiting an opportunity to assert itself plainly.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and if you will only give it a trial we are sure it will do for you what it has done for thousands of others.

Headache and Constipation Cured.

Mrs. John Connors, Burlington, N.S., writes: "I have been troubled with headache and constipation for a long time. After trying different doctors' medicine a friend asked me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I find I am completely cured after having taken three bottles. I can safely recommend it to all."

Unique Text Book.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 8.—A text book exploiting the principles of Christian government for pupils in the American public schools was proposed yesterday at the opening session of the annual convention of the National Reform Association.

The book will be unique, containing abstracts of the laws against blasphemy, Sabbath desecration, profanity and immorality, with court decisions sustaining these laws.

Another feature was a discussion of an amendment to the federal constitution declaring Christ to be the Divine ruler of nations.

Western Farmers Speculate.

Montreal, Dec. 8.—James Carruthers, a prominent local grain exporter, returned to the city yesterday from a three weeks' tour through the Canadian West. He estimates the western wheat crop at 120,000,000 bushels, 30,000,000 of which he says are still unmarketed. All though the west farmers are holding on to their wheat and many are speculating with the wheat they have sold.

More Polling Booths at Galt.

Galt, Dec. 8.—The Town Council, to conform with the statute which has been overlooked for eighteen years, have decided to increase the municipal polling subdivisions from six to twelve.

Thomas McDowell, arrested at Toronto and brought back to Galt, was convicted of the betrayal of a girl of 13, and given a year in the Central Prison.

Object to New Time System.

Schenectady, N.Y., Dec. 8.—About 650 boilermakers, tankmen and helpers employed at the American Locomotive Works quit work yesterday morning because the company attempted to introduce the standard time system.

Drove In Front of Train.

Cornwall, Dec. 8.—As the O & N.Y. express was approaching Northfield station, Joseph David, a Syrian pedlar, attempted to drive across the tracks. The locomotive struck the wagon and smashed it. David was thrown about 30 feet and landed in a ditch, badly shaken up, but with no broken bones.

Silas Winters of Lunenburg lost his barns and outbuildings by fire, with four horses, eight head of cattle, 40 or 50 tons of hay, grain and implements, the loss is over $4,250, with only $500 insurance.

Bath Academy Burned.

Bath, Ont., Dec. 8.—Fire at noon yesterday destroyed the academy. Pupils at lunch discovered the flames, but too late to head them off. A defective furnace is blamed. The building and school contents, including a library worth $300 were insured for $3,000.

The lodge rooms of the A.O.U.W., I.O.F., C.O.F., and C.O.C.F. were on the upper floors, and all the furnishings are destroyed.

Canal Tug Destroyed by Fire.

St. Catharines, Dec. 8.—The tug Augusta was totally destroyed by fire at Port Dalhousie last night. She had been laid up for the winter above Lock One, old canal, near Muir's drydock. The fire was discovered by some of the crew on the steamer Lakeside, laying up close by.

The Augusta was built in St. Catharines about 20 years ago and was the largest tug in the canal business. She was owned jointly by Capt. D. McGrath of Port Dalhousie and Capt. T. Lannon of Port Colborne. Some men had been working on the tug during the day, taking the machinery apart.

To Assist In Farm Drainage.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 8.—The Department of Agriculture of Nova Scotia has under consideration a drainage scheme to assist the farmers of the province. Under its provisions a farmer will be able to get his land scientifically drained by paying the Government 7 per cent. on the cost for about 25 years. At the end of this period the principal would be paid by the sinking funds. The Government could borrow the capital at at about 4 per cent.

Shot Girl and Self.

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 8.—John Schaubert, 142 Orlando street, yesterday shot Emma Jantzen, aged 18, 380 Carlton street, twice, and sent a bullet into his own head. He had a wife and two children, but was infatuated with the girl, who declined his attention.

Kills Wife, Attempts Suicide.

Detroit, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Frank M. Dickerson, aged 49 years, was found stabbed to death in a doorway of a combined store and flat building at 494 Baker street, and her husband, charged with her death, is probably dying from self-inflicted knife wounds.

Insurance Superintendents Meet.

New York, Dec. 8.—Insurance superintendents of fourteen states met here yesterday to consider recommendations to be made to the state Legislatures looking to more uniform laws regulating life, fire and fraternal insurance companies.

Endorsed the Delegates.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—At yesterday's Liberal caucus, a resolution was unanimously adopted approving of the action of Canada's two delegates to the Imperial Defence Conference.

$8,000 Fire at Peterboro.

Peterboro, Dec. 8.—Fire in the premises of McGregor and Reid, plumbers and electric supplies, yesterday afternoon did $8,000 damage.

Fun For the Boy.

"Do you tried to convince your son that he was not too old to be subjected to corporal discipline?"

"That's what I did," answered Farmer Cornstossel. "I gave him a good old fashioned dressin' down in the woodshed jes' the same as if he had been ten years younger."

"What did he do?"

"He jes' laughed an' said it reminded him of the good times he had when he was bein' initiated in his college fraternity."

LAKE OF THE WOODS MILLING CO. LTD., MONTREAL

Just a Ramble Through the Screen-Room, Madam

Supposing you were at Keewatin, Mistress Housewife.

The home of FIVE ROSES flour, which you know so well.

Let's step into the "screen house" awhile, purely for feminine curiosity's sake.

That row over there of smooth-running, humming machinery is what they call—"Separators."

Though both our eyes are mighty good, the farmer always manages somehow to smuggle in a little dirt at wheat prices.

In fact, a little of everything found on a farm.

If that got into your flour, Mistress Housewife, wouldn't you just make a fuss over FIVE ROSES?

* * * *

When the golden berries hurry in from the western elevators, they promptly get a formal introduction to the "Separators" whose acquaintance you have just made.

Here, as the Good Book says, is winnowed the wheat from the chaff.

Farm friendships are sundered between the good kernels and the cockle seeds, the mud balls, stones and sand.

You couldn't bear to think of such in your flour.

Nor do we—for FIVE ROSES is your flour, Madam.

* * * *

Besides this, there's another separation.

As to size of grains.

Between "brother" grains, Madam.

The big berries go one way, the little fellows another.

It's easier to handle the wheat this way—clean the kernels separately.

So that even the least impurity can not insinuate its unwholesome personality into FIVE ROSES—excellence.

And it doesn't.

* * * *

When the berries leave the "screen room," you couldn't discover a pinhead of foreign substance.

Not even with a microscope, equal to the peering piercing eye of the most particularly particular.

There issues nothing but the choicest sun-ripened wheat grain, from out of the Manitoba harvest.

* * * *

Buy any flour you like, regardless of price you like.

That's your privilege, Madam.

But you know NOW that there's one flour milled that is pure, and wholesome, and highly—under the FIVE ROSES label.

Which you don't know of—regardless.

May we venture a guess as to which YOU will buy?

ITALIAN INJURED

Met With an Accident in the Woods Near Buckhorn and Had to be Brought to Peterborough To-day for Treatment.

IN ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

An accident to Nicolas Marucci, an Italian who was working in the lumber camp near Buckhorn, a few days ago, necessitated his being brought to St. Joseph's Hospital. According to the report received he was injured internally by being struck by a rolling log. It is learned that they are not very serious and he will soon be around again.

CASE AGAIN ENLARGED

Charles Deligne Appeared Before Magistrate Charged With Theft.

Charles Deligne, who was brought back from Madoc a week ago by P. C. Adams, and who appeared before Magistrate Dumble on a charge of stealing an overcoat from a young man by the name of Fowler, came up in court again this morning, after a week's remand in the county jail. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood was present for the prosecutor, and Mr. A. P. Poussette appeared on behalf of the accused. Mr. Poussette asked for a further enlargement as one of the chief witnesses for the defence, Stanley Ellis, was not present. He lived near Bannockburn, and could be secured in a few days. Upon the request of Counsel, the case was enlarged until Monday next.

OUR FRIENDS IN THE NORTH WEST

Rev. Mr. Daniels Will Speak on That Subject at the Murray Street Baptist Church To-night.

Rev. Dr. Daniels, who has covered the entire Northwest form Winnipeg to Vancouver and from the southern boundary to Edmonton, in the interests of Northwest missionary work, will speak on the subject of "Our Friends in the Northwest Territory" in the Murray Street Baptist Church this evening. All who have friends in any part of our Western Country will be glad to hear one who has visited their town or city. Mr. Daniels is an orator of no mean ability and understands the question with which he deals, perfectly.

$9000 AFTERNOON BLAZE IN CENTRE OF BUSINESS SECTION

Store of T. D. MacGregor Gutted by a Disastrous Fire Yesterday---Flames Spread Rapidly and the Fire Was a Picturesque One---Firemen Have a Narrow Escape From Injury.

Peterborough's business section was visited by a $9,000 blaze yesterday afternoon when the store of T. D. McGregor, plumbing and electric fixtures, was gutted by a fire which spread through the premises wtih a rapidity that gave the fire brigade an hour's hard work before it was finally checked.

It is estimated that the stock, which was valued at $10,000 was damaged to the extent of $7,000, while Mr. MacGregor will be an additional loser owing to the fact that his residence above the store was also heavily damaged by fire and the loss there will reach $1500. The damage to the building, which is the property of Mrs. Birdsall, is estimated at $500.

Spontaneous combustion is assigned as the cause of the fire which broke out shortly before 4.30 o'clock. Mr. MacGregor had been unpacking a box of goods which were packed in excelsior and other fibrous material. He went out to the rear of the store to give some instructions to his men who were cutting pipes there, and on returning smelled smoke. He rushed to the telephone to give the alarm but found that someone had called him up about some business and when he tried to persuade this person to let him have the line, saying his store was on fire, the latter thought he was joking. Realizing that he was only losing time in trying to reach the fire brigade that way, Mr. McGregor tried to get in the back door of one of the neighbouring stores but found it locked. He then rushed out through the lane to Brock St. to give the alarm. In the meantime, however, the blaze which started in the packing box had been discovered from George St. A lady who was passing noticed a peculiar glare at the rear of the store, but thought that it was a new lamp that was being demonstrated. A young boy, Arthur Metheral, son of Ald. Jos. Metheral, however, realized that something was wrong and ran into the store, finding the rear part of the place on fire. He could see noone around the premises and rushing out ran down to Box 23, at the corner of Hunter and George Sts., and turned in an alarm, cutting his finger badly while doing so.

By this time the smoke was pouring out of the door and the flames had caught firm hold on the interior so that when the brigade arrived they found the plate glass window cracking with the heat, while dense clouds of smoke swept out over the street. The fire had made its way into the second floor of the building and gave every promise of spreading further when the bridage started operations. Two lines of hose were laid in front and a number through the alleyway at the rear, and soon an immense quantity of water was being poured into the biulding. The second floor was reached by ladders and water was thrown into that portion as well, with the result that the blaze was soon under control, being entirely extinguished at 5.45 o'clock, a little more than an hour from when it started. It was confined to the premises in which it originated, and the business places on either side escaped almost unscathed.

Coming as it did at an hour when there is the largest crowd of the day in the business section, the fire attracted a throng of citizens who watched the blaze for an hour despite the inconvenience of a heavy rain storm and wet pavements.

The crew of the hook and ladder truck had a narrow escape from being seriously injured while on their way to the fire. As the long truck swun garound on to George St. from Hunter St., a wheel caught on the sewer trap and upset the conveyance, throwing the men to the road. There was some excitement for a moment and spectators of the accident rushed to the spot thinking that some one would be seriously hurt, but their fears were groundless as the men escaped without a scratch. The rear wheels of the truck was nearly put out of commission, however, and some other damage of less importance done to the vehicle.

The loss of the building is covered by insurance in the Royal Insurance Co., and Mr. McGregor had his stock partly covered in the Anglo-American Metropolitan and Hartford Companies.

WOMAN GARBED IN MAN'S ATTIRE SAID TO BE BARRIE SUSPECT

Clue to Disappearance of Mrs. Guthrie, Committed on Charge of Perjury at Fire Inquest—Aroused Conductor's Suspicion by Her Strange Attire.

DETECTIVES AT WORK

Barrie, Ont., Nov. 8. — A rumour which probably clears up the mystery of Mrs. Guthrie's recent disappearance is current to-day. Mrs. Guthrie was arrested charged with perjury on three counts as a result of her evidence in the enquiry into the fire which destroyed the Music Hall block and her own residence. She was committed for trial on two counts, and after application to the county judge was liberated on bail. Last week she disappeared, and her daughter, Clara, who was also arrested on the same charge and liberated on bail at the same time as her mother, was re-arrested as a consequence of the latter's disappearance arousing suspicions of the bondsmen.

Conductor McLennan, in charge of the midnight train on Wednesday of last week, says that a woman attired in man's clothes, with a lumberman's cap pulled down on her head to conceal her hair, boarded his train at Orillia. She locked herself in the lavatory for some time before taking a seat in the car. After enquiring as to the best place to connect with the C. P. R. she bought a ticket for North Bay, displaying a bulky roll of bills. Later he discovered her disguise, and thinking she was an escaped lunatic from Orillia Asylum engaged her in conversation. She resented those enquiries and jumped off the train as it pulled out of Burk's Falls.

That was the last seen of her. Detectives are working on the clue.

MR. LASTAR TO RUN?

Rumour That He Intends to Stand for the Council Next Year.

It has been persistently rumoured around the streets for the past few days that among the new candidates for positions on the City Board of Aldermen will be found Mr. B. Lastar, who has been creating quite a stir in the city recently by his letters on the subject of local option. The Examiner saw Mr. Lastar to-day in reference to the matter, and he refused to either deny or confirm the rumour, intimating that he might have more to say later on.

Children Playing With Them Started Blaze in Home at Corner of London and Downie Streets This Morning.

ANOTHER FIRE

Children playing with matches in the home of Mr. Grey, at the corner of London and Downie streets, caused quite an excitement this morning, and had it not been for the timely action of some of the neighbours a serious fire would undoubtedly have been reported. The children were alone in the house, both Mr. and Mrs. Grey being away at the time. When the youngsters saw that the matches had started some of the furniture burning they hurried to their next door neighbour, who, without the assistance of the brigade, extinguished the blaze with a pail of water.

Another Fire.

The fire brigade was called to the home of Mr. Thomas Burrette, near the Exhibition Grounds, just outside the city's limits, this morning, about eleven o'clock. Some kindling wood at the rear of the kitchen stove took fire and made quite a blaze. Before it was put out the wall was somewhat badly burned. However, it was extinguished without the assistance of the firemen.

AN EXCELLENT REPORT

The Tournenie Mining Company Shows Progress Made in Five Months.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Tournenie (Old Indian) Mining Company, Limited, was held in the Temple Building yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large and the meeting took the form of a love-feast." Seldom have so many bouuets been presented to a board of directors as were tendered yesterday afternoon, and mutual congratulations were offered by the speakers, after the year's report had been presented.

This company's assets consist of some forty-five mining claims, stamp mill, machinery, waterpower rights, etc., etc.

The report shows that during the past five months the company, in addition to the money spent on development work, has wiped out a liability of $22,000 and have a balance on hand of $20,000.

The company has some 800,000 shares of uniissued stock in the treasury.

The report further shows that every dollar received during this period went into the treasury of the company (not exclusive of commissions) and the directors may well feel proud to present such a good statement. The speakers, without exception, many of whom had visited the properties, expressed the greatest confidence in them, as well as in the management. The outlook for the future is bright and every one connected with the company is optimistic and enthusiastic.

The Tournenie Mining ompany Limited, is one of the most substantial organizations doing real mining in New Ontario.

THE PREACHER WENT ASTRAY WEDDING PARTY WAITED

Amusing Incident in Which Fenelon Falls Minister is Involved---Got the Names Mixed Up and Went to Wrong Place While Bride and Groom Waited.

A minister at Fenelon Falls had a "marriage experience" the other day which caused a lot of mirth in the village and give him an anxious afternoon.

A man and a maid residing not a hundred miles from Fenelon Falls, came to him to arrange for the tieing of the nuptial knot. They left the license with the reverend gentleman and told him the appointed time was three o'clock on a certain afternoon a few days later. They then returned to their homes.

By a coincidence a family living in the village of Fenelon Falls bore the same name as the bride-to-be and not unnaturally, the Minister made a mistake and thought he was to marry a Fenelon Falls young couple. He accordingly walked down to the house where he thought the marriage was to take place and astonished the family when his purpose was made known. Explanation followed, however, and a much-perturbed and surprised minister hurried back to his home. No it couldn't have been a dream, he thought, for he had the marriage certificate. The thought of this document gave him an inspiration and he walked down to an issuer of marriage licenses. There he gleaned the information that the parties lived somewhere in the country surrounding. This was rather vague and the now excited clergyman wandered around the village until by good luck he ran across a couple going to the particular wedding. "Better late than never" 'looked a good motto to him and he got his horse and followed.

Meanwhile there was a furore at the home where the wedding was to be. Where has the minister gone? was on every tongue. One proposition that the bride and groom should drive to oboconk and there get the knot tied was knocked on the head because the Fenelon Falls minister had the license in his possession. Finally it was decided to wait and their patience was rewarded when the belated minister arrived at about six o'clock, nearly three hours late.

The party was sitting down for supper when the minister walked in, but the ceremony was happily performed a little later after explanations had been made. The poke is on the sky pilot.—Lindsay Warder.

BLOWN FROM LOCK GATE AND DROWNED IN CANAL

The Daughter of Lockmaster at Iroquois Lost Her Life in Last Night's Storm.

ON HER WAY TO CHURCH

Iroquois, Ont., Dec. 8.—Miss Euphemia Sharra, daughter of Mr. W. J. Sharra, lockmaster and a prominent man of Iroquois, was drowned last night while on her way to attend a meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church. She took a short cut across the lock gates instead of going over the bridge. She crossed the gates in safety, but must have been blown into the canal while walking down the coping. The wind was blowing a gale at that time and the night was dark and stormy.

THE CHRISTMAS STAMP

The Christmas stamp issued for the purpose of securing funds for the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives netted nearly $6,000 last year and is being used again this year, the people of the Dominion being asked to assist in the work by a widespread use of these stamps. The King's Daughters of Peterborough have taken up the project and are doing everything in their power to secure the use of them generally in Peterborough during the Christmas season. The stamps are now on sale at the tea rooms by the King's Daughters on Simcoe St., and those who are desiring to assist in their work may secure stamps there or at the Bank of Toronto or the Review office.

Reference To G. E. Broderick Newly Appointed Inspector

Mr. G. E. Broderick, principal of the Lindsay Public schools for Victoria and Peterborough, has been an employee of the School Board for twenty-two years in Lindsay. Twenty-two years ago from the coming spring he left the town of Morrisburg, where he was principal of the schools, and came to Lindsay to serve in the same position.

During the intervening period Mr. Broderick has seen many changes in school matters in Lindsay. When he first came here there were fourteen teachers, while now there are twenty. The students numbered about 900 and now the total enrolment of the Public schools is approximately 1,100. It can thus be seen that a considerable change has taken place.

The school buildings are very much the same now, as at that time, although of course, they are now in a proper state of repair. The union school then contained both the high school pupils and the higher classes of the public schools. The east ward school was a divisional school, too. Twenty-two years have passed and the buildings now are almost obsolete, but the Board of Education is endeavouring to secure up-to-date buildings for the school children of Lindsay.

Mr. Broderick is a modest man. He has done his duty and is satisfied when this is accomplished, without having it published abroad. A good deal might be said about the careful training the children who passed under his care received, and the general oversight constantly maintained over the town's Public School system, but suffice it to state that the town will have lost a faithful servant when Mr. Broderick takes up the work of inspecting the schools of portions of Victoria and Peterborough counties.—Lindsay Warder.

ATTENDANCE IS RECORD BREAKER

According to Figures Given Out by Secretary of Guelph Fair.

Special to The Examiner.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—The attendance figures given out by Secretary A. P. Westervelt at noon to-day showed a record for the fair on opening day with a total of nearly 5000. The result of the dairy tests made known to-day the champion cow being "Lady Aggie Dekoe", a holstein owned by M. L. Holey, Springfield. Her milk production for three days was 216.20 pound., butter fat percentage 4.3, and her mark record 288.84. The public lecture at the fair this morning was on lessening the cost of milk production, by Prof. H. H. Dean, head of the Department Dairy Husbandry. He emphasised the need for attending to the health of cows, cleanliness. Not overdoing turnips in winter, airing stables and giving cows exercise.

Mr. Geo. Putnam, Superintendent of Women's Institutes, presented his report to a packed hall, several hundred women standing during its reading. He reported 28 new branches established during the year, making 520 doin gan active work, and the membership exceeding fourten thousand.

THE STORY OF "THE FOX"

Daniel Ryan Has a Magnificent Vehicle in His New French-Canadian Play.

"The Fox," which is booked at the Grand Opera House for Saturday, December 11th, is a story of French-Canadian life that grips an audience as no like play has done in a decade.

When the curtain rises on the old habitant who has lived alone and in seclusion for twenty long years, brooding over his wrongs, one sees a life picture all too seldom drawn on the modern stage.

It seems, in the story, that one Alex. Devannn, came to his cabin twenty years before, having lost his way in the bush, and asked for shelter and guidance on his path.

The Habitant's daughter received him enthusiastically and he was fed and made comfortable, regaling his hosts with tales of the big world and city life.

His story is protracted over several days, and the little innocent daughter of the Habitant becomes enamoured of him. While the Habitant is busy in the village, he induces the daughter to run off with him, and on the old man's return he finds his daughter and his guest gone, and no one in the cabin, but the old grand pere sitting alone by the fire.

Madly he rushes to the village only to find the pair have driven to Ottawa. He follows fast as horses can drive, only to find on arrival that they have taken train or Montreal.

In despair, he continues the chase to Montreal, and after weeks of vain search his money becomes exhausted, his health sapped, and, learning that perhaps Devanne has gone with his daughter to New York ,he thinks of the old grand pere and walks back 150 miles to San Michel.

No arrival he finds the woman he left incharge of the old grand pere has deserted him, and the old man, himself, he finds dead, from starvation and neglect.

In such condition he lives alone all that winter and traps and hunts till the spring comes, and the fall and the winter comes round again.

One cold night, going to look out on the weather, he finds lying in the snow, his daughter, abused, betrayed, deserted, who has crawled home to die.

This is the situation when the curtain rises on this great heart story, and from the time the knock of the supposed betrayer of his daughter awakens him to a realisation of his dreams of vengeance till the fall of the curtain, nothig has ever been seen like it for dramatic intensity.

This great play wil be given at The Grand next Saturday, Dec. 11th; matinee and evening.

ITALIAN INJURED

Met With an Accident in the Woods Near Buckhorn and Had to be Brought to Peterborough To-day for Treatment.

IN ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

An accident to Nicolas Marucci, an Italian who was working in the lumber camp near Buckhorn, a few days ago, necessitated his being brought to St. Joseph's Hospital. According to the report received he was injured internally by being struck by a rolling log. It is learned that they are not very serious and he will soon be around again.

CASE AGAIN ENLARGED

Charles Deligne Appeared Before Magistrate Charged With Theft.

Charles Deligne, who was brought back from Madoc a week ago by P. C. Adams, and who appeared before Magistrate Dumble on a charge of stealing an overcoat from a young man by the name of Fowler, came up in court again this morning, after a week's remand in the county jail. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood was present for the prosecutor, and Mr. A. P. Poussette appeared on behalf of the accused. Mr. Poussette asked for a further enlargement as one of the chief witnesses for the defence, Stanley Ellis, was not present. He lived near Bannockburn, and could be secured in a few days. Upon the request of Counsel, the case was enlarged until Monday next.

MR. LASTAR TO RUN?

Rumour That He Intends to Stand for the Council Next Year.

It has been persistently rumoured around the streets for the past few days that among the new candidates for positions on the City Board of Aldermen will be found Mr. B. Lastar, who has been creating quite a stir in the city recently by his letters on the subject of local option. The Examiner saw Mr. Lastar to-day in reference to the matter, and he refused to either deny or confirm the rumour, intimating that he might have more to say later on.

MATCHES THE CAUSE

Children Playing With Them Started Blaze in Home at Corner of London and Downie Streets This Morning.

ANOTHER FIRE

Children playing with matches in the home of Mr. Grey, at the corner of London and Downie streets, caused quite an excitement this morning, and had it not been for the timely action of some of the neighbours a serious fire would undoubtedly have been reported. The children were alone in the house, both Mr. and Mrs. Grey being away at the time. When the youngsters saw that the matches had started some of the furniture burning they hurried to their next door neighbour, who, without the assistance of the brigade, extinguished the blaze with a pail of water.

Another Fire.

The fire brigade was called to the home of Mr. Thomas Burrette, near the Exhibition Grounds, just outside the city's limits, this morning, about eleven o'clock. Some kindling wood at the rear of the kitchen stove took fire and made quite a blaze. Before it was put out the wall was somewhat badly burned. However, it was extinguished without the assistance of the firemen.

AN EXCELLENT REPORT

The Tournenie Mining Company Shows Progress Made in Five Months.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Tournenie (Old Indian) Mining Company, Limited, was held in the Temple Building yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large and the meeting took the form of a love feast." Seldom have so many bouuets been presented to a board of directors as were tendered yesterday afternoon, and mutual congratulations were offered by the speakers, after the year's report had been presented.

This company's assets consist of some forty-five mining claims, stamp mill, machinery, waterpower rights, etc., etc.

The report shows that during the past five months the company, in addition to the money spent on development work, has wiped out a liability of $22,000 and have a balance on hand of $20,000.

The company has some 900,000 shares of unissued stock in the treasury.

The report further shows that every dollar received during this period went into the treasury of the company (not exclusive of commissions) and the directors may well feel proud to present such a good statement. The speakers, without exception, many of whom had visited the properties, expressed the greatest confidence in them, as well as in the management. The outlook for the future is bright and every one connected with the company is optimistic and enthusiastic.

The Tournenie Mining company Limited, is one of the most substantial organizations doing real mining in New Ontario.

THE PREACHER WENT ASTRAY WEDDING PARTY WAITED

Amusing Incident in Which Fenelon Falls Minister is Involved---Got the Names Mixed Up and Went to Wrong Place While Bride and Groom Waited.

A minister at Fenelon Falls had a "marriage experience" the other day which caused a lot of mirth in the village and give him an anxious afternoon.

A man and a maid residing not a hundred miles from Fenelon Falls, came to him to arrange for the tieing of the nuptial knot. They left the license with the reverend gentleman and told him the appointed time was three o'clock on a certain afternoon a few days later. They then returned to their homes.

By a coincidence a family living in the village of Fenelon Falls bore the same name as the bride-to-be and not unnaturally, the Minister made a mistake and thought he was to marry a Fenelon Falls young couple. He accordingly walked down to the house where he thought the marriage was to take place and astonished the family when his purpose was made known. Explanation followed, however, and a much-perturbed and surprised minister hurried back to his home. No it couldn't have been a dream, he thought, for he had the marriage certificate. The thought of this document gave him an inspiration and he walked down to an issuer of marriage licenses. There he gleaned the information that the parties lived somewhere in the country surrounding. This was rather vague and the now excited clergyman wandered around the village until by good luck he ran across a couple going to the particular wedding. "Better late than never" looked a good motto to him and he got his horse and followed.

Meanwhile there was a furore at the home where the wedding was to be. Where has the minister gone? was on every tongue. One proposition that the bride and groom should drive to oboconk and there get the knot tied was knocked on the head because the Fenelon Falls minister had the license in his possession. Finally it was decided to wait and their patience was rewarded when the belated minister arrived at about six o'clock, nearly three hours late.

The party was sitting down for supper when the minister walked in, but the ceremony was happily performed a little later after explanations had been made. The poke is on the sky pilot.—Lindsay Warder.

BLOWN FROM LOCK GATE AND DROWNED IN CANAL

The Daughter of Lockmaster at Iroquois Lost Her Life in Last Night's Storm.

ON HER WAY TO CHURCH

Iroquois, Ont., Dec. 8.—Miss Euphemia Sharra, daughter of Mr. W. J. Sharra, lockmaster and a prominent man of Iroquois, was drowned last night while on her way to attend a meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church. She took a short cut across the lock gates instead of going over the bridge. She crossed the gates in safety, but must have been blown into the canal while walking down the coping. The wind was blowing a gale at that time and the night was dark and stormy.

THE CHRISTMAS STAMP

The Christmas stamp issued for the purpose of securing funds for the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives netted nearly $6,000 last year and is being used again this year, the people of the Dominion being asked to assist in the work by a widespread use of these stamps. The King's Daughters of Peterborough have taken up the project and are doing everything in their power to secure the use of them generally in Peterborough during the Christmas season. The stamps are now on sale at the tea rooms by the King's Daughters on Simcoe St., and those who are desiring to assist in their work may secure stamps there or at the Bank of Toronto or the Review office.

Reference To G. E. Broderick Newly Appointed Inspector

Mr. G. E. Broderick, principal of the Lindsay Public schools for Victoria and Peterborough, has been an employee of the School Board for twenty-two years in Lindsay. Twenty-two years ago from the coming spring he left the town of Morrisburg, where he was principal of the schools, and came to Lindsay to serve in the same position.

During the intervening period Mr. Broderick has seen many changes in school matters in Lindsay. When he first came here there were fourteen teachers, while now there are twenty. The students numbered about 900 and now the total enrolment of the Public schools is approximately 1,100. It can thus be seen that a considerable change has taken place.

The school buildings are very much the same now, as at that time, although of course, they are now in a proper state of repair. The union school then contained both the high school pupils and the higher classes of the public schools. The east ward school was a divisional school, too. Twenty-two years have passed and the buildings now are almost obsolete, but the Board of Education is endeavouring to secure up-to-date buildings for the school children of Lindsay.

Mr. Broderick is a modest man. He has done his duty and is satisfied when this is accomplished, without having it published abroad. A good deal might be said about the careful training the children who passed under his care received, and the general oversight constantly maintained over the town's Public School system, but suffice it to state that the town will have lost a faithful servant when Mr. Broderick takes up the work of inspecting the schools of portions of Victoria and Peterborough counties.—Lindsay Warder.

ATTENDANCE IS RECORD BREAKER

According to Figures Given Out by Secretary of Guelph Fair.

Special to The Examiner.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—The attendance figures given out by Secretary A. P. Westervelt at noon to-day showed a record for the fair on opening day with a total of nearly 5000. The result of the dairy tests made known to-day the champion cow being "Lady Aggie Dekoe", a holstein owned by M. L. Holey, Springfield. Her milk production for three days was 216.20 pound., butter fat percentage 4.3, and her mark record 209.84. The public lecture at the fair this morning was on lessening the cost of milk production, by Prof. H. H. Dean, head of the Department Dairy Husbandry. He emphasized the need for attending to the health of cows, cleanliness. Not overdoing turnips in winter, airing stables and giving cows exercise.

Mr. Geo. Putnam, Superintendent of Women's Institutes, presented his report to a packed hall, several hundred women standing during its reading. He reported 88 new branches, established during the year, making 520 doin gan active work, and the membership exceeding fourten thousand.

BASKETBALL TO-NIGHT

To-night the City Basket Ball League starts, and the Normal School vs. Business College are going to start the ball a-rolling.

There is a splendid Cup for the winning team of the League, and a medal for each individual of the winning team.

The game will start promptly at 8.15 p.m., and the doors are open to the public.

The players of the team in the league are asked to look over their schedule, and, instead of the Normal School playing the Collegiate Institute on February 9th, to put the Collegiate Institute to play the George St. Methodist Church on Feb. 9th.

Be on hand to-night for the usual fun.

THE DATA ARRIVE

Dr. Frederick Cook's "Proofs" in Regard to the Discovery of the North Pole Have Reached Copenhagen.

DEPOSITED IN BANK

Special to The Examiner.

Copenhagen, Dec. 8.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook's data relating to his Arctic expedition and alleged discovery of North Pole, arrived here to-day. Walter Lounsdale, who brought the data from New York, deposited the documents in the Danish Agricultural Bank, where they will remain till the university is prepared to receive them. It was announced to-day that the names of those who will act with President Stromgren as the examining committee would be held till acceptance of the invitations had been received.

THE STORY OF "THE FOX"

Daniel Ryan Has a Magnificent Vehicle in His New French-Canadian Play.

"The Fox," which is booked at the Grand Opera House for Saturday, December 11th, is a story of French-Canadian life that grips an audience as no like play has done in a decade.

When the curtain rises on the old habitant who has lived alone and in seclusion for twenty long years, brooding over his wrongs, one sees a life picture all too seldom drawn on the modern stage.

It seems, in the story, that one Alex. Devannn, came to his cabin twenty years before, having lost his way in the bush, and asked for shelter and guidance on his path.

The Habitant's daughter received him enthusiastically and he was fed and made comfortable, regaling his hosts with tales of the big world and city life.

His story is protracted over several days, and the little innocent daughter of the Habitant becomes enamoured of him. While the Habitant is busy, in the village, he induces the daughter to run off with him, and on the old man's return he finds his daughter and his guest gone, and no one in the cabin, but the old grand pere sitting alone by the fire.

Madly he rushes to the village only to find the pair have driven to Ottawa. He follows fast as horses can drive, only to find on arrival that they have taken train or Montreal.

In despair, he continues the chase to Montreal, and after weeks of vain search his money becomes exhausted, his health sapped, and, learning that perhaps Devanne has gone with his daughter to New York ,he thinks of the old grand pere and walks back 150 miles to San Michel.

No arrival he finds the woman he left incharge of the old grand pere has deserted him, and the old man, himself, he finds dead, from starvation and neglect.

In such condition he lives alone all that winter and traps and hunts till the spring comes, and the fall and the winter comes round again.

One cold night, going to look out on the weather, he finds lying in the snow, his daughter, abused, betrayed, deserted, who has crawled home to die.

This is the situation when the curtain rises on this great heart story, and from the time the knock of the supposed betrayer of his daughter awakens him to a realization of his dreams of vengeance till the fall of the curtain, nothig has ever been seen like it for dramatic intensity.

This great play will be given at The Grand next Saturday, Dec. 11th; matinee and evening.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

An interesting debate arose in the House of Commons on Monday night over the motion of Mr. Hugh Guthrie, of South Wellington for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the matter of the necessity of a system of technical education in Canada. The debate took a wide range and every phase of the subject seemed to have been touched in the course of the four hours' debate. There was a general unanimity as to the desirability of greater attention being paid to technical education if this country is to reach a prominent position as an industrial factor in the world's competition. It is all very well for the Dominion Government to co-operate with the provinces in eliciting abstract information, but the Act of Confederation, which gives the provinces exclusive jurisdiction over education, seems to conflict with the central government taking an active part in a decision, which the provinces, if they are all as "touchy" as Ontario, will resent even a technical invasion of provincial rights. The subject is important enough to engage the attention of all who desire the industrial advancement of the country. It is technical education, conducted for nearly the past one hundred years, that gives Germany its industrial prominence if not pre-eminence, among the nations of the world.

THE CHIEF SINNERS.

Mr. Foster, alternative leader of the Conservative Opposition, has been one of the severest critics of government delay in parliament and the Conservative press has followed suit, asserting that prolonged sessions of Parliament and consequent unnecessary expense are to be charged against the government's neglect to have its business ready. Speaking in Winnipeg recently Mr. Foster predicted a short session of parliament if the government did not delay. On Monday he was the chief offender. Hon. Mr. Fielding suggested that the Budget would be brought down on the following Thursday but Mr. Foster at once cried off; he couldn't be in the House that day and couldn't the Budget be postponed? As no Budget can be properly muddled without Mr. Foster's contribution the Finance Minister obligingly postponed the delivery of his Budget speech till Tuesday, Dec. 14th. As a matter of fact the Conservative side of the House is responsible for Parliament dragging its slow length along. Every day the order paper, as the day's programme is called, is filled with questions to ministers standing in the name of Conservative members. These questions are for the most part of such a nature that the interrogators could with a little industry dig up the information they pretend to seek in the blue books so liberally placed at their disposal. The answers to these questions are often voluminous, and as they all have to be printed, they add to the cost of printing and tend to the accumulation of the mass of parliamentary literature which is crowding the library and rousing the soul of Senator Landry to indignation. If parliament "cut out" the most of the question business and shut off nine-tenths of the irrelevant and unnecessary talk indulged in by some members on the Opposition side of the house, the time and cost of the sessions might be greatly reduced and the volume and national value of Hansard be correspondingly enriched. Hansard reproduces small talk as well as great talk with the fidelity of a photograph machine. Mr. Foster and his opposition friends who complain of parliamentary delay are the chief sinners.

REPRESENTATION AND RESPONSIBILITY.

Representatives are sent to Parliament to legislate, and, through the Government, administer public affairs. The House of Lords was intended as a balance wheel to regulate parliamentary machinery and sometimes apply the brakes. But it never was intended to supplant Parliament and make its work negatory, except under the most palpable indication, say such as vicious or even mischievous legislation passed by a bare majority and unquestionably—on other grounds than partizan regard—hostile to the public interest. In the past two or three years the House of Lords has played havoc with the legislation of the Imperial parliament, under a Liberal Government. It is difficult to regard the action of the Lords as influenced by anything but partisanship, since they never have made slaughter of legislation passed by Parliament having a Conservative majority.

At this period of crisis in the political history of the Mother Country, information relating to the House of Lords, in this case the defendant, will be read with interest. Herewith is set out the fate of Liberal legislation in the House of Lords since 1906. It shows why leading Liberal statesmen have been making the recently cabled statements to the effect that never again will a Liberal Government submit to the domination of the Lords.

Here is what happened to various bills:

Session of 1906—Education; third readings; majority in Commons, 371 to 179; fate in Lords, wrecked.

—Plural Votings (a) third readings, majority in Commons, 335 to 106; fate in Lords, rejected.

1907—Scottish small Landholders; third readings, majority in Commons 192 to 65; fate in Lords, wrecked.

Scottish Land values (b) third readings; majority in Commons 174 to 35; fate in Lords, rejected.

Irish evicted tenants; third readings; majority in Commons, 230 to 51; fate in Lords, mutilated 1908 — Scottish Small Landholders, third readings; majority in Commons 347 to 90; fate in Lords, rejected.

Scottish Land Values (b); third readings; majority in Commons, 347 to 90; fate in Lords, wrtcked.

Licensing; third readings; majority in Commons, 350 to 113; fate in Lords, rejected.

1909—Irish Land Bill—mutilated.

The Budget; third readings; majority in Commons, 379 to 149; fate in Lords, rejected.

(a) This bill, if passed, would have established the "one man one vote system, and would have put an end to the practice of one elector voting in several constituencies.

(b) This bill provided for the ascertainment of land values in Scotland. Unlike England, Scotland has an annual valuation of all land, and the proposal of the bill would have fitted into the scheme, by the addition of a column to the valuation roll. In this way the House would have been advised, from year to year, of the capital unimproved value of land, and would have been able to note the additions or deductions from capital value of the land. In the Lords an amendment was passed doing away with the compulsory character of the bill, and substituting "yearly value" for "capital land value" in the definition clause. This meant wrecking the bill, as the Commons did not proceed with it any further.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The proposed Conservative expedition to discover where the party is at has been fixed for July. In view of the coolness that has been developing between certain wings of the party the selection of a hot weather date does not seem to portend any inconvenience from weather conditions.

The House of Lords have developed a sudden regard for the will of the people—it rejected the budget that the people might be appealed to. After, from time immemorial having overridden or sought to override, the will of the people as voiced by the acts of their elected representatives, they now come, crown in hand, to the people and ask their ruling—when the pocket money of the peers is threatened. The fact is not denied that the House of Lords cast forth the Budget bill because it introduced the heresy of making the members of the upper house and the class they belong to, pay for the first time in history, a small share of the burdens of taxation.

The Peers of the House of Lords were as lions in rejecting the budget, but they proved to be bears. So intimate with the liquor "Trade is the connection of the House of Lords that the announcement of their slaughter of the Lloyd-George budget, which bore hardly on "the Trade" was attended simultaneously almost with the announcement by the brewers of the lowering of the price of beer. This is both a delicate tribute to the good officers of the Peers and a bribe to the electors, to whom beer bulks much bigger than any budget. The man whose vote can be influenced by the reduction of a halfpenny on the price of a quart of ale is a beautiful peer of a Peer of the realm.

Publicity is on the tapis at Ottawa. The City Council of the Capital has decided to submit to the ratepayers a by-law to authorize the expenditure of $10,000 a year for three years on a publicity campaign, to boom the advantages of Ottawa as a business, industrial and residence centre. The capital is a little ahead of Peterborough, since a Publicity Committee is at work in Ottawa conducting an educational campaign, which has behind it the solid support of the business element. A similar by-law was defeated last year from lack, it is said, of popular understanding. Where is the project of Peterborough's publicity Commissioner at? Is anything being done, is any quilt work going on in the direction of selecting a proper person to endow with the responsibility of this im-

The troubles with multitudes of girls is want of proper nourishment and enough of it. Now-a-days they call this condition by the learned name of Anemia. But words change no facts. There are thousands of girls of this kind anywhere between childhood and young ladyhood. Disease finds most of its victims among them. They are too weak and frail to resist. Some of them are passing through the mysterious changes which lead up to maturity and need especial watchfulness and care. Alas, how many break down at this critical period; the story of such losses is the saddest in the history of home. LOCAL OPTION DEPARTMENT

The executive of the City Temperance League is endeavouring to secure as full information as possible about the parties whose names have been added to the voters' list by the interests represented by the open bar. About 190 names appear on the list. A careful scrutiny of the list reveals the fact that there are a number of names on the list of persons about whom it is going to be a difficult matter to gather information in time to lay it before the judge when the list is scrutinized next week. With the object of gathering all possible information, the executive of the City Temperance League is planning to publish this list in the daily papers within a few days. Citizens who can give any information about the parties whose names appear on the list as to their standing, and their right to vote, will greatly oblige the executive by so doing. This information can be telephoned to phone 260 or left at the committee rooms, 173 Simcoe St.

The list will not be published in full. The names of a number of people who it is known are going to vote for local option appear on the list. These names will be omitted when the list is published. As it is possible that there are others who intend to vote for local option and whose names were put on the list by the liquor interests, these names will not be published, if the so-called parties will make their wishes known to the temperance league and show that they are qualified to vote, so their names can be omitted from the list.

Apparently a number of people who are not properly qualified have had their names placed on the list. These men are liable to be fined heavily if their names are allowed to remain on the list. Others apparently have had their names put on, who do not know that they will be supposed to pay taxes next year. Full particulars about those who are qualified to vote, will be given when the lists are published. Watch for the list.

CREAM

From Farm and Dairy.

What is cream? The question is propounded by the chief analyst of the Dominion, Mr. McGill, in a bulletin in which he gives the results of an examination of 64 samples of cream collected in various parts of the Dominion. The analysis showed that the people of Canada are buying as cream a milk product varying from 42 to 11 per cent. of butter fat, and Mr. McGill submits that it is high time the question should be definitely answered and a standard for cream fixed by law.

It would appear from an excerpt from the food report of the local government board that while they have no standard in Britain an official inspection of creameries shows that the Briton gets a cream that is at least 20 per cent. butter fat. The United States standard is 18 per cent. This is the standard which Mr. McGill recommends. Thirteen of the 64 samples analysed at the department are below that moderate degree of richness.

The chief analyst's researches into the Canadian cream supply have disclosed the unwelcome fact that leanness is not the only undesirable characteristic of this commodity. Adulterants are used and frauds practised.

Mr. McGill suggests that no injustice will be done to the dealer and that a much needed protection will be afforded to the consumer, if the following definition of cream be made legal.

1. Cream is that portion of milk, rich in milk fat, which rises to the surface of milk on standing, or is separated from it by centrifugal force; is fresh and clean, and contains not less than 18 per cent of milk fat.

2. When guaranteed to contain a higher percentage of milk fat than 18 per cent., it must conform to such guarantee.

3. Cream must be entirely free from gelatine, sucrate of lime, gums, or other substances added with a view to give density, consistency or apparent thickness to the article.

4. Cream must contain no preservatives of any kind; nor any coloring matter, other than is natural to milk.

5. Evaporated cream, clotted cream, condensed cream, or any other preparation purporting to be a cream (except ice cream) must conform to the definition of cream as given above, and must contain at least 25 per cent. of milk fat.

Suffered Terrible Pains From His Kidneys.

Perhaps no other organs work harder than the kidneys to preserve the general health of the body, and most people are troubled with some kind of kidney complaint, but do not suspect it.

There is no way of getting the kidney poisons out of the system except through the kidneys, and no medicine so effective in taking them out as Doan's Kidney Pills.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely vegetable, and may be safely taken by old and young.

Mr. Dougald A. McIsaac, Broad Cove Banks, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with my kidneys for nine months, and suffered with such terrible pains across the small of my back all the time that I could hardly get around. After taking two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I began to feel better, and by the time I had taken three I was completely cured."

Price 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Blacksmithing and Woodworking Business For Sale

The undersigned offers for sale his blacksmithing and woodworking business, situated on the side line between Peterborough and Norwood at Jermyn P. O. The blacksmith shop building is two stories, 25 x 43, with cement floor and cement forge. The upper story is the full size of the blacksmith shop (25x43). Attached to the blacksmith shop is the post office building, which may be entered from the blacksmith shop. Adjoining is a first class brick dwelling, with frontage 18 and 28 feet, with kitchen, it is an L-shaped house with cement cellar. Also verandah and beautiful lawns. There is a good stable with cement floor, three stalls, with straw barn attached. The land comprises one half acre. This is one of the best blacksmith stands in the County of Peterborough. The farmers all patronize this shop. My reason for giving up business on account of having one of my legs fractured I am unable to continue the shoeing. For further particulars, write to

A MILLION DOLLAR SCRAP

"Oh, father," said young curlyhead, "what labour should I do
The world to own when I have grown to be a man like you?"
And dad replied, with a wink aside, "You most ambitious chap,
Just lend your brain and brawn to gain a Million Dollar Scrap.

"To take a punch for price of lunch would show you cheap of taste.
So for the purse that clubs disburse your time you'd only waste.
Don't hang your hat in slow Manhat., but search the nation's map
And stick a pin where you can win a Million Dollar Scrap."

My! But the game has changed its aim since, for a dollar charge,
Men saw big Flood drop in his blood upon a river barge.
His purse, I think, would buy one drink for Broadway lips to lap,
He's faint, indeed, the phrase to read, "A Million Dollar Scrap."

Myers and Heenan, Sayers, Mace, you ghosts of fighters dead,
And you, old Jawn of Boston brawn, whose fleeting fame has fled,
Sad are your kings of early rings to know by birth's mishap
It was your fate to antedate the Million Dollar Scrap.

A million! It would go a bit toward managing this gov.
Ten thousand pair of sweethearts fair 'twould start in wedded love.
Why, with those cents Hague's Conference could dish out Peace a pap;
But who feels pride in Peace beside a Million Dollar Scrap?

One thousand in a jolt to chin; five thousand in a jab;
Ten thousand for one stroke of war that stops a victim's gab.
Arithmetic has got it slick, the figures are on tap.
And for such dough no man will "throw" a Million Dollar Scrap.

"So son," replies that father wise, "don't copy John D. Rock,
Don't be a mere cheap financier of J. P. Morgan stock.
Rothschild? Pooh-pooh! Too small for you. At Fortune's door you'll rap
For far more tin by winning in a Million Dollar Scrap."

Chairman Reports On The Condition Of Bridge

The Special Report of the Chairman of Roads and Bridges Committee of the County Council was presented on Saturday morning as follows:

In response to a request from the representative of Galway and Cavendish I visited the Bridges in the above Townships.

Having to travel considerable distance to reach the only County Bridge namely: Black Creek Bridge and another Bridge the County is interested equally with Victoria County namely, Union Creek Bridge, I had an opportunity to observe the responsibility of the Township in keeping their streams bridged to provide for public travel. Their streams are in the main very wide and marshy and necessitate either long bridges or shorter bridges with long approaches, and in order to confine the streams to narrower passage, it will be necessary to build abutments of solid character with strong suitable superstructure, and when once built of the proper material and in proper form, then no cost will be added to amount to anything for many years to come.

The only County Bridge that is wholly maintained by this County at present is as stated above, Black Lake Creek Bridge, and although it is a credit to the builder, it is longer than if built of a more permanent material, and more liable to require repairs.

The Union Creek Bridge, a point Bridge, is not at the present time needing any repairs, but like all other structures of a similar character, will, in the near future.

My attention was drawn by Mr. Coben to a Township Bridge, known as Molynock Bridge, that is now a wooden structure, built over Union Creek at a place where the stream at low water is 75 feet wide, and of course at high water mark very much wider. If as stated before when this Bridge needs repairs, which may not be for some time yet, the repairing should not take place, or in other words, no money should be unwisely spent in temporary work, but I firmly believe the County should step in and assume the same, and shorten the length of the Bridge, by building concrete abutments with steel supplied as a superstructure thereby not spending money, but investing money in a necessity that will be of a permanent and safe character.

J. Fife, Chairman

Will Get $20,000 If Dog Lives Four Months More

Chicago, Dec. 7.—For Proto, an ailing Sky terrier, to live four months longer will mean $20,000 to Miss Caroline McLellan of Glendive, Mont.

Miss McLellan and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Hughes, arrived from the West to-day with the dog. They were met by Dr. Johnson Henning, a dog specialist, prepared to minister to Proto pending his transfer to the Pennsylvania Limited for New York, where he is to be operated on by a famous veterinary specialist.

In four months the dog will be fifteen years old, and if he dies before that time, Miss McLellan, who is Mrs. Hughes's daughter by her first husband, will lose a $20,000 bequest, of which she has been drawing the interest since her stepfather's death in 1900. The will of Mr. Hughes contained the singular clause that if Proto lived to be fifteen his daughter was to have full possession of the $20,000, but that if he died before reaching that age the sum designated should revert to the estate and interest payments should cease. Hughes was a miner and unfriendly to his stepdaughter.

"My stepfather thought he was playing a joke on me, perhaps," said Miss McLellan, as she sat in the Pullman with Proto in her lap; "but it was the most serious joke he ever played on anybody, and he played many. Proto has been an obsession with me ever since Mr. Hughes died. I fed him on chicken livers and he grew too fat. I fed him on fibrine dog biscuits and he became emaciated. He has been at the point of death four times, and I have nearly died fifty times. I feel eighty years old."

Benediction.

The attendance was large in both the afternoon and evening session, but especially in the evening. The addresses given on the many different topics, proved indeed interesting.

The musical part was also highly appreciated, and much praise is due those who so kindly assisted. Following were the officers:

President—Mr. P. O. Nelson.

1st Vice—Mr. E. C. Pace.

2nd Vice—Mr. P. S. Baines.

Sec'y-Treas.—Mr. G. Thompson.

Executive—Revs. Holdsworth, Balfour and Sterling, and Messrs. Brewster, Thompson and Barrett.

Mr. Jas. Thomson has sold his big dry goods and clothing business and leased the building for five years to Messrs. G. R. Browning, of Peterborough and A. O. Sawyer, of Lindsay, two gentlemen of large mercantile experience and sound business ability. They will take possesion on February 1st, 1910.

The citizens were awakened on Wednesday morning, 3 a.m., by fire alarm, and many hastened from their cosy beds, but soon found out that it was an old empty house a short distance north of Havelock on the Round Lake road, that was burning Some people journeyed back, but most returned back home. The cause of the fire is yet unknown.

Some of the merchants have already started decorating for Christmas. Mr. Denike's drug store on George St. looks indeed inviting, the windows are so artistically displayed with the most beautiful Christmas gifts, and also reasonable in prices that no one need go to other towns to purchase. A number of the other stores are also laden with many things for the Christmas trade.

Mr. Joseph Frost has commenced preparations for a skating rink, which will be located on the corner of George and Quebec street.

Reeve Knox, of town and Reeve Russell, of Belmont, are in Peterborough this week attending the regular fall session of the County Council.

The annual meeting of the Round Lake cheese factory, which was to have taken place on Monday last has been postponed until sometime in December or January, when the Ontario Dairymen's Association will send a speaker to address the patrons on improved methods.

Messrs. Robt. Frost and Pete Johnston of town, and Mr. George Newton and Miss Minnie Newton, of Rush Point, have returned, after spending the past three months in the west.

ABOUT MARRIAGE

Some years ago a silly discussion was carried on in one of the London daily newspapers as to whether or not marriage was a failure. Even now the correspondents of a well known New Yor k newspaper are amusing themselves and possibly boring the more rational section of the public by ringing the changes on the advisability of marrying or remaining unmarried. Of course, some eccentric views are aired, such as that of a bachelor who objects to marriage because it would interfere with his devotion to literature or to sport. Many married men and women are literaty, and not a few are deeply interested in matters athletic and equine. Marriages often fail because those who marry do not sufficiently consider beforehand the responsibility of the step. It really is not marriage that proves a failure. It a the individuals contracting it that fail to prove worthy of its joys and its burdens. Poor Charles Lamb once wrote a quaint essay complaining of the behaviour of certain married people, as dhe found no difficulty in showing that those whom he disliked were hateful, but that was not because they were married but because they would be disagreeable persons under any circumstances. It is easy enough to get married. The hard thing is to find suitability between wedded pairs. A true marriage really involves study of character, and if every man who imagines himself in love would only ask himself in a practical fashion, "Does this dear creature suit my requirements as a human being?" there would be less matrimonial unhappiness. She may be very beautiful but do not the words of the old poe here apply—

If she be not fair to me
What care I how far she be?

The Vicar of Wakefield chose his wife because he knew that she would wear well. Would that all of us, whether vicars or laymen, were so sensible! All the same, marriage will never cease to be a popular institution. The crops may fail; business may be bad; the newspapers and magazines may teem with new-fangled notions about the equality of the sexes, the mental anperority of women to men, or the right of everybody to a university education, but wedding bells will never cease to ring. Rich and poor will wed, regardless of consequences. It might be wiser if they did cast a sober glance into the future. Nevertheless, t is desirable to marry, and it is in accordance with the eternal fitness of things that marriage should be the most popular thing in the world.—Le Causeur, in Rochester Post.

RUPTURE

ITS DANGER—ITS TREATMENT.

How many are suffering from a rupture and yet fail to properly treat themselves!

They, in fact, believe that a rupture is a disease without gravity.

Unfortunately they are mistaken! And, too often, terrible accidents occur, sometimes causing death!

Rupture is in fact, one of the most dangerous infirmities known.

Not to mention the annoyances and the inconveniences it creates and the pains it frequently causes, two grave dangers are to be guarded against.

If the rupture is not maintained, or wrongly maintained, which is just as bad, it will most certainly increase slowly or suddenly, until it reaches fearful proportions.

Then, it will mean for the patient an impossibility to work and even to move; it will make all his body weak and if he is young he will become as an old person or an invalid.

The other danger is more terrible yet; in an unexpected manner and without any warning, the rupture is pinched and it strangles; the digestion is suddenly blocked and it means fearful death within 24 hours.

It is thus extremely imprudent to neglect a rupture because it means all any moment the danger of sudden death.

Unfortunately it is not with the usual trade trusses that one may be protected; it often occurs, on the contrary, that these apparatus do more harm than good.

It is only by a perfected scientific system that one may be made free from all fear and insure life and health.

So, I cannot too strongly recommend to my readers the method and the apparatus of Mr. A. Claverie, the world renowned specialist, who upon the numerous requests received from patients and dotcors of this country, has decided to send us his son to benefit the Canadians suffering from Rupture, with the marvellous advantage of his system. Hundreds of thousands of patients who were leading a miserable life of pain and fear have recovered strength, youth, quietude by using the Claverie system.

It is thus a rare chance which all the ruptured people of this district will eagerly grasp, by going and seeing Mr. A. Claverie when he passes through Peterborough, it will mean for them the end of their sufferings and the beginning of a new life.

DR. NAMY.

Mr. Andrew Claverie will be in Peterborough, at the Oriental Hotel, on Wednesday, the 15th of December, and Thursday, the 16th. He will receive from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. All advice given free. Absolute secrecy. Special attention for ladies.

THE CHRISTMAS (DECEMER) ROD AND GUN.

In wealth of matter and variety of subjects, every one interesting to sportsmen, the Christmas (December) number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont., is notable. An appropriate Christmas tinge is given to the first two stories, and adds something to the interest both will evoke. Hunting ,fishing and exploring papers, widely different in character and displaying in a remarkable way the wonderful resources of the Dominion in these several respects, fill a number no sportsman can afford to miss. The study of the wild waterfowl of the Pacific Coast by Bonnycastle Dale will appeal to all lovers of bird life, while the stories of days with the deer, mountain sheep, bear, wolves, and a fox, will recall many pleasant experiences. Bird shooters will revel in the papers dealing with duck and woodcock, while one on Grouse Shooting in the Motherland is included by reason of its exceptionally strong descriptive force, giving Canadian sports men a pleasant change and enabling them to enjoy a different view point to that generally taken by them. Mountain climbing in East and West, a mysterious Indian story, fishing, from tuna and salmon to trout, and many other items fill a number which should be included by all interested in the great outdoors, in their Christmas reading. They cannot fail to find interest and pleasure in its perusal.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM MR. LASTAR

This letter and any others that may follow, under the signature of Mr. Lastar, are independent of any other party or parties, and are paid for by him for their insertion.
Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I was reading the answer from the Rev. Mr. Potter to "Consistency." He stated that they always make arrangements for those speakers to stay here before they come here, at places where no liquor is sold. Well, Mr. Potter, how is it about that water waggon speaker, when you, yourself, have made arrangements before the speaker came to town, with the proprietor from the Snowden House for him to stay there and how is that when Mr. Ireland from Owen Sound came to Peterborough he went to the Y.M.C.A. and was sent to the same hotel and paid by the Moral Reform Association? Is there an explanation for that?

Yours truly,
B. LASTAR.

WAS CHAIRMAN

Mr. Jas. A. Bennett, Formerly of the Cordage Works, Presides at Big Banquet.

Mr. Jas. A. Bennett, formerly of the Canadian Cordage Company, in this city, and who has a host of friends in Peterborough, is now occupying a very important position with the Columbian Rope Company in Auburn, N.Y., and those who made his acquaintance while he was here will be glad to learn of his success. Recently Mr. Bennett had the honour of being chosen as toast master for a banquet given by the heads of the department of the company, and the Auburn Citizen gives an extended report of the proceedings, saying in part:

"The first annual banquet of the foreman and heads of departments of the Columbian Rope Company was held in the palm room at the Osborne Grill on Saturday evening, and was a most successful function in every way. Over forty of the men who have charge of the various departments, which go to make up the mammoth plant and who are responsible for the firm turning out the finest rope product of both hard and soft fibre in this country, were present, and their talks on the work of the plant made up a pleasant and instructive meeting for all present. It was the first time that all had been together in one body, and all were interested from Col. Metcalf, the president of the concern, down the line to the most humble foreman. Mayor-elect Thomas H. O'Neill, was the honoured guest of the bunch of rope makers.

James A. Bennett, of the jute department, was toast master, and he made a most efficient one, interspersing his introductions of the speakers with many pleasing Scotch stories."

Chills, Colds, Pleurisy

Dressing lightly, exposed to drafts, cold is easily taken. Give twenty drops of Nerviline in hot water at once. Circulation and warmth will be restored, and pleurisy, inflammation, or congestion prevented. Equally good for colds, breaks up their beginnings at once. If you only knew what a great remedy Nerviline is, that it is five times stronger than other liniments, more penetrating, more pain subduing, you would not be without it.

THE EVENING SESSION AT ENNISMORE WAS ENJOYABLE

Farmers' Institute Meeting Was Well Attended---Miss Campbell's Address on "The Ideal Home" Was Appreciated by the Audience.

During the evening session of the Farmers' Institute meeting at Ennismore on Monday evening a number of vocal and instrumental selections were given and heartily applauded by the large audience. In opening the meeting, the president remarked on the large representative gathering present and said he was much pleased. The first speaker introduced was Mr. Shearer. His subject for the night was "successful Agriculture." He stated that the remarks he would make were mainly for the young farmers, to whom he wished to give a few helpful thoughts and some pointers to study out for themselves. To meet with success in Agriculture to-day all the education which could be obtained was necessary, but the fathers and mothers should not make the mistake of being partial to one boy, in giving him an education and neglect the other. The boy who is going to stay on the farm should get just as good an education as his brothers who intended to follow other pursuits in life. The young farmers of to-day should be methodical and economical. By having a method, results would be doubled. Farmers do not economize enough. Coming to Ennismore he had seen a large number of small fields. This should not be. The fences should be taken down and the soil utilized.

In laying off a field, make it twice as long as it is is wide and cultivate the long way. Again, farmers are working with dairy cows which are not paying for their board, and the same could be said of bacon hogs. The secret was to know how to mix the right kind of food for the cattle, with the least expense. The young farmers should study up the weed question, attend the Farmers' Institute and the meetings, get the reports and read them over. All over Canada the farmers are bettering their condition, in the way of homes and taking care of the stock. It has been found more profitable to do so. The secret of farming was to study it up and find out how.

The Ideal Home.

Miss Campbell in dealing with this subject emphasized the necessity of truthfulness, honesty and purity in the home life, where the character of the young is moulded. The boy should be taught the elements of manhood so that when it became time to face the world he would say, "I will play fair and be a manly man, and the woman who could accomplish this did more for the future of the Dominion than the one who was taking the platform and mixing in politics. In the splendid country that God had given us, there should be ideal homes. Fine farms, the best of cattle or big crops did not make them. It was rather the spirit shown in the home. It has been said that men derive their wisdom from the cultivated minds of women. How careful then should the women be. To-day we have the homes which our forefathers moulded out of the forest for us. They had done the work through the influence of the women. Let us have pure atmosphere in the home and the spirit of co-operation between the husband and wife. Another thing necessary was cheerfulness. It was always unpleasant to meet grumblers, while it was just the reverse to come in contact and associate with those of cheerful disposition. Around the festive board, have something pleasant to say and act with the same spirit when there are visitors. It makes an impression for good every time. By all means cultivate the cheerful disposition. In the ideal home we must have truthfulness, honesty and uprightness. It takes a long while to build character and too much care cannot be taken in the case of the young, who are ever alert and can readily see through any untruthfulness. Don't use harsh words but be sympathetic. Profanity should never enter the ideal home. Just consider that it does not give any expression to what we have to say but rather takes it away. It is the result of habit and it does not fit us for this world and unfits us for the next. Young ladies should not use slang, if they aspire to become ladies in the proper sense of the word. What is needed in the home is cultivation and education. Teach the boys and girls to have a purpose in life. Again, do not do so much work that it is a drudgery. God gave us our bodies to use for other purposes besides work. The sphere of the woman is in the home, and there is no other place where she has such an influence towards the future of the nation. Try to have an ideal home, with its pure atmosphere and remember that the boys and girls of to-day are the country's greatest assets.

Agricultural Education.

Mr. Duff gave an address on this subject. He referred to the necessity of education for the farmer of to-day. One drawback in the public schools was that the boys were not given an agricultural education. He would advocate the forming of Farmers' Clubs. The institutes were alright but they are useless unless the boy becomes interested. This could be done by means of a club. Questions of interest could be discussed and it would have a great deal to do towards offsetting the disadvantages in which the young farmers are placed.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, the Editor of Farm and Dairy, gave a very interesting and instructive address on matters of importance to farmers. He advised them to become better organized as the future of the young farmer would be wrapped up in keen competition and the speaker explained clearly how this would be brought about and dwelt interestingly on the competition between Canada and the other countries as it is to-day. The questions of rural mail and taxation as they affected the farmer were also ably handled by Mr. Cowan, and he suggested that Farmers' Clubs be organized so that these matters could be discussed and all the information secured as far as possible. In concluding he expressed his pleasure at the success of the meeting and the good hearing that had been given the speakers.

The last speaker was Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, who was called upon by the chairman to say a few words, The reverend gentleman referred to the different addresses by the speakers of the evening as being very interesting and instructive and the points brought out of benefit to every farmer, and should be acted upon.

The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

H. B. Cowan Supported Single Tax In Address To Farmers

Enthusiastic Meeting of Farmers' Institute at Lakefield Yesterday —Practical Addresses by Mr. Shearer on Agricultural Methods to Secure Success.

LADIES WERE HOSPITABLE

Two profitable meetings of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute were held yesterday in the Lakefield Town Hall. In the raising of his crops the farmer has to combat wind and weather, weeds and other natural enemies which threaten his roots and grains. Against frost he has little or no protection but by draining he can counteract too copious rainfall. Scientific methods at the present day teach him how to provide for prolonged drought but for the most part he is at the mercy of the elements. However, farming of the 20th century has made great advances and the agricultural schools are proving a great help in getting the most out of the land without leaving it impoverished for future crops. At the Institute meetings graduates of these schools and men of wide experience in agriculture give addresses on questions that are of interest to every farmer and thereby enables him to cope with conditions that may prove baffling. It is also a fact that the farmers themselves have worked out systems that are practical and successful and other valuable ideas are interchanged at the Institute meetings.

Mr. J. H. Garbutt, president of the West Peterborough Institute presided at the two meetings yesterday. The speakers were Messrs. W. C. Shearer of Bright, Ont., Mr. H. C. Duff of Norwood, Mr. H. B. Cowan editor of Farm and Dairy, Peterborough and Miss S. Campbell of Brampton.

During the afternoon session, Mr. Wm. Collins, Secretary-treasurer of the Institute announced that owing to Lakefield being moved to East Peterborough for electoral purposes, likewise it should be connected with the East Peterborough Institute. The question was practically left to the members themselves and on expressing their opinion yesterday it was unanimously decided to remain in West Peterborough.

MR. SHEARER'S ADDRESS

"Rotation of Crops and Selection of Seeds," was the subject of Mr. W. C. Shearer's afternoon address. He dealt with the three and five year rotations describing methods which he has found by experience to be most satisfactory. He closed by a discussion of the selection of seed a question that is always of interest to the farmer. The subject of crop, rotation is one of the most important to the farmers of Ontario. Wild oat and mustard are seeds that will remain in the ground for years, waiting a chance to sprout. The plan was to avoid turning them up before they had rotted. Mr. Shearer said that shallow cultivation was practically the best method of killing weeds, particularly when carried out with short rotation of crops. If you have a dirty farm you can let it lie in grass three or four years. The seed should be first of all the best that can be secured.

Mr. Shearer preferred the three year rotation. His plan was to grow hay the first year, corn the second and grain during the third, seeding again to hay and following the same rotation. He gave an example of one farmer after the third year ploughed too deeply turning up the weed seeds with the result that his farm was as bad as when he began with his first crop of hay. In dealing with mustard seed Mr. Shearer told of going through a field when the yellow flowers were in bloom and spending a couple of hours pulling them up. He followed a straight line up and down the field until he had entirely covered it. A few days after more would blossom and he kept constantly at it until he had eradicated the weed. In the second year of this rotation after the corn crop had been taken in he did fall plough the field but worked it up shallow in the spring, seeding in top with grain and clover. Referring to the weed known as the buckhorn he said if allowed to grow it would soon choke everything. He followed it to grow in the summer and about the end of October, after the first frost the crown dropped leaving the buckhorn. Then go up and down field with a knife and cut off the weed below the crown. "It is your lookout and mine too to keep your farm free from weeds. If you do not know the new varieties find out what they are and combat them."

The five year rotation is begun with a field of hay. In the second year it is given over to pasture and about middle of October put on the plough with a little skimmer on it. We do not harrow that down. Leave the frost at it in its rough state. Grow oats and barley and flax mixed or with peas on that field. In the third year, sow about 5 pounds flax seed to the acre with one and a half bus. oats and one bus. barley mixed. Take out manure during the winter time. Let your crop in early if the field is underdrained and well dried and you have sufficient horse power and good machinery. I have seen a difference of 10 bus. of oats to the acre by getting an early start in the seeding. Take in the mixture dry. Let it stand in the field a day or two longer at harvest time if the weather is favorable.

In the fourth year corn is planted. Mr. Shearer in dealing with the method of harrowing the corn field dealt with it first before it began to sprout and stated that in harrowing the horses should be sent along at a good pace as the weeds are then sent out lying whereas when moving slowly the earth slips through the harrow. The cultivator is used several times over the field until the corn is about three feet high and the scuffler is last used.

After the corn is cut it should be placed in a silo. If you are working with dairy cows be sure and erect a summer silo. Mr. Shearer took time to dwell upon the importance of the silo to the farmer. After the corn crop we do not plough it. Never work up the land four or five inches deep in the spring with a cultivator. He gave an example of a man who worked up his land with a four horse machine and planted in barley. The result was a failure as far as the growth of the barley was concerned owing to the over deep sowing.

TWO OR THREE INCHES IS A SUFFICIENT DEPTH

Mr. Shearer stated that two inch sowing was his favourite method. He believed that sow thistle seed came with alsike and he had stopped planting it. In the fifth year after the ground has been worked up shallow grain and seed was planted. This completed the rotation, going back to hay again.

CLEANING SEED

Speaking of cleaning grain, Mr. Shearer stated that he cleaned it three times through. Get it cleaned in March or April. Put finest screen in the bottom to get the weeds out.

Put the seed through slowly and bury the weed seed in the yard. Go over it twice more and what comes through is the best of seed. Treat the grain with formaline to prevent smut getting into the farm.

Let it lie on the floor, turning it over several times to let the moisture evaporate. In selecting grass seed, buy the seedsman's best quality. Put on fewer pounds per acre but have the best. In scuffling corn turn the earth towards it, not away. Mr. Shearer said in answer to a question, raising the ridge gradually on the several scufflings was the best method.

He advised the farmers to test the seed corn. Plant a handful in pots in the house during winter and keep a record of the number that sprout. This may be taken as an example of how the corn will grown in the field and farmers should act according to these simple tests.

MR. H. B. COWAN

Mr. Cowan, who followed Mr. Shearer stated that he desired to talk on the Single tax. "If I told you that you were being robbed every day to the extent of three or four dollars you would be anxious to know how it was done." He told of the case of a farmer who had improved his farm and had expended considerable money and then the assessor came along and raised his assessment. This is the question that is agitating the farmers throughout the world and everywhere steps are being taken to remedy the injustice of the system. In Australia there is a law that exempts farm improvements which has proved very satisfactory. In Alberta and Manitoba farm improvements are exempted and a fixed rate is placed on the land. All the communications Mr. Cowan had received seemed when taken together to go back to Henry George's famous book on the principles of single tax. According to his principle the great problem is not how to make more wealth but how to distribute more evenly that which is made.

The country is making more money every year. The natural resources are being developed and yet the great mass of the people and the farmers included were not making much progress as a body. Mr. Cowan gave a few figures showing how great fortunes are being amassed by individuals. Had Rockefeller been born on the same day as Christ and lived up to the present making $100 a day he would have less money than he now possesses. Is it possible that he could have earned that amount of money? Twenty-four men in the United States control one-twelfth of the entire money of that country. Mr. Cowan said when he had considered the situation he almost felt socialistic but by personal enquiry he had found that the leading men or to-day are in favour of the single tax. The amassing of fortunes by individuals is resulting from two things, the creation of Monopolies and the system of land taxation. The monopoly of various articles was demonstrated by Mr. Cowan, monopolies that are affecting farmers to a very great extent, according to single tax, men who have made land valuable are entitled to a share of profits.

Farmers ask why the boys are anxious to leave the farm. The answer is that the farmers are not receiving a fair deal. They are not getting the proper returns for their money. One-third of the population of London is below the poverty rate, in other words they are not self-sustaining. Mr. Cowan dwelt upon the effect of what he termed the idle rich. This class had been a curse to Rome, and have been a curse to England, are showing themselves in large numbers in the United States and are gaining ground in Canada. According to the single tax system all land is taxed in proportion to its value. Peterborough is trying to secure factories and wants to see factories erected and yet as soon as they are built they are taxed—for creating labour. If you want to get rid of dogs you put a high tax on them similarly with saloons. On the same system if you do not want houses or factories put a tax on them.

The country is now dealing with the temperance problem. The next great problem is expected to be that of taxation and Mr. Cowan urged the farmers to consider it. He pointed out the good that could be gained by forming farmers' clubs and referred to the fact that the farmers have no representation and no combination for their own protection.

SERVED LUNCHEON

After the afternoon session a very delectable and bounteous supper was served by the Ladies' Institute in the Foresters' Hall. It was heartily enjoyed by the men and greatly pleased the visitors. The ladies in point of hospitality and cuisine are inimitable and received many compliments upon the success of their Institute and also of their generosity and thoughtfulness. During the afternoon they held a special meeting at which the officers for the following year were elected as follows:—

President—Mrs. Peter Baptie.
Vice-President.—Mrs. Avery.
Secretary—Mrs. Gerald Fitzgerald.
Assistant Secretary—Mrs Alf. Higgins.

An address was given by Miss Campbell who imported many new ideas to the ladies.

Their Institute continues to flourish and it is hoped that interest in the work will not decrease.

THE EVENING MEETING

Mr. Garbutt according to the usual custom asked Reeve Kidd of Lakefield to preside in the evening.

Reeve Kidd stated in his address as chairman that it was a pleasure to preside at a meeting which was held in the interests of the farmer. He esteemed no class higher than those who tilled the soil. His father had been a farmer and he had worked on the farm when methods were most primitive. He recalled the days of his youth when oxen were mostly the beasts of burden. He did not think that the young people of to-day enjoyed themselves to the same extent as the youth of his day. Canada has made great progress in every way and it continues to go ahead in won-

Committee on Appointments.

To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen, — Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

As instructed, your Committee advertised for a specialist for the Collegiate Institute to teach English and History with the Classical Option, and, after careful consideration, recommend that Mr. G. A. Ferguson of Perth, be appointed, at the minimum salary of $1,400.00. Duties to commence January 3rd, next.

Your committee also advertized for a teacher to fill the vacancy on the Public School Staff, caused by the resignation of Miss Dawson, and recommend that Miss Mertie M. Cadwell, of Arnprior, be appointed to the position at the minimum salary of $400.00; duties to commence January 3rd, next. Miss Cadwell is the holder of a Second Class Professional Certificate, and is highly recommended.

Regarding the matter of the disposition of the Special Government grant for the year ending June 30th, 1909, based on the qualification and teaching experience of teachers, which was referred to this committee, we recommend that as requested by the Department this grant be paid to the teacher entitled to receive the same, and that the Secretary-Treasurer be authorized to issue cheques therefor in accordance with a detailed report to be submitted by the Inspector, but in view of the fact that the payment of this grant was not included in this year's estimates, we recommend that the same be not paid until January next.

The policy of this Board has always been to deal fairly and liberally with its teachers, as the best means of showing its appreciation of the good work being done by them.

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL, Chairman.

Upon motion of Messrs. Hill and Crane, the report was adopted.

Supervision Committee.

To the chairman and members of the Peterborough Board of Education.

Your Supervision Committee beg leave to report that the request of Nicholls Hospital Board for the use of the Domestic Science room for instruction of the nurses in Dietetics be granted, providing that the Hospital Board defray all necessary expenses, all of which is respectfully submitted.

J. CRANE, Chairman

Upon motion the report was adopt

Inspector Mowat asked on behalf of the teachers residing outside the city that the schools be not opened until Tuesday, January 4th, in order that they might spend New Year's Day at their homes.

It was moved by Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Nelson, that the schools close on December 22nd, and open on Tuesday, January 4th.

Mr. Fair stated that there was some complaint about the coal that the board had purchased for this winter's use, and it was suggested that an outside coal dealer be asked to pass his opinion on it, but this was not decided upon. It was moved by Mr. Fair and seconded by Mr. Crane that the tenderer who received the contract be paid $1,200 on account.

Mr. Nelson moved, seconded by Mr. Crane that upon the recommendation of Inspector Mowat Miss Moore's room in the old Collegiate be renovated.

The board then adjourned.

INDIGESTION GOES IN FIVE MINUTES

Heartburn, Dyspepsia, Gas and Other Stomach Misery Vanishes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach troubles or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy; though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as many people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

Longboat and Sherring To Run Ten Miles Here On Saturday Night

Two Famous Runners Will Meet in a Matched Race in the Brock Street Roller Rink on Saturday Evening—Both Men are in Good Shape and the Race Should be a Hard Fought One All the Way.

TOM LONGBOAT.
The Famous Onondaga.

BILLY SHERRING
Winner of the Athens Marathon.

Peterborough people will have an opportunity of seeing in action on Saturday night two men who perhaps more than any others, with the exception of Bobby Kerr, have advertised Canada in the eyes of the world from a sporting standpoint, in the person of Tom Longboat, the famous Onondaga and the eually celebrated Billy Sherring of Hamilton.

The two have been matched for a ten mile race in the Brock St. Roller Rink, starting at 9.30 o'clock Saturday night. The two men met at five miles at Chatham recently when Longboat registered a victory, but the Hamilton galloper is confident that with the additional training he has had since that time and at the longer distance he will be able to reverse the decision and score a victory over his Indian rival. Whichever way it terminates it will be some race, as the two are evenly matched and both are in good shape. Sol Mints has had the Indian in hand for some time and is too wise to let Longboat break training, so that he has the bronzed Mercury in as good condition right now as he has ever been keeping in mind the fact that there may be some bacon to bring home from the long distance racing game in New York during the coming winter. Sherring is also looking ahead to the same money making proposition, and is therefore in the pink of condition.

Although Longboat has visited Peterborough several times, local people have never seen him run, while Sherring has never appeared here, and the race followers will be glad of a chance to see the famous little Canadian who won the memorable Athens Marathon from a field of the world's best long distance men. Longboat's career, short in years, has been long in remembrances, and the hero of fifty races will get a good reception when he appears here on Saturday.

There will be skating before the big event and in addition there will be a three mile open race on roller skates It will be the last roller skating of the season as the rink will be flooded on Monday if the cold weather continues.

BOWLING LEAGUE MEETING

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Bowling League was held at the P. B. C. Alleys last evening, when the officers for the season were elected and arrangements made for the year's League rolling. There was a good attendance and the prospects are bright for a good season.

The following officers were elected:
President—Geo. Cairns.
Vice President—W. McIlroy.
Secretary Treasurer—M. J. Clancy.
Scorer—V. R. Craig.
Executive — H. Martin, R. M. Glover, D. B. MacRae, N Perry, and the officers.

The following teams are already in line: Examiner, B. A. C., Iroquois, "Mac's", C. G. E., Armouries, McIlroy's team, "Fitz's".

Another meeting will be held tomorrow night, at which the schedule will be arranged.

IN AGONY WITH PILES

Mr. G. W. Cornell, with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes, "For six years I was a victim of itching, protruding piles and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me and I was about as miserable as any creature could be. My druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did and obtained relief from the first box and complete cure with the second. This ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

THE MERCANTILE LEAGUE HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

A meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League was held last night in the Y. M. C. A. The officers for the coming season were elected as follows:

Patrons and Patronesses—Mr. Jas. Kendry and Mrs. Kendry, Mr. W. H. Denham and Mrs. Denham; Mr. E. G. Patterson and Mrs Patterson, Mr. C. H. Rogers.

President—Mr Wm. Hartley.
Vice-Pres.—Mr Wm. Richardson.
Sec.-Treas.—F. J. Heaslip.
Executive—R. P. Watt, I. D. Moore, Frank Gillespie, D. Stone.

A meeting will be held at a later date for the drawing up of the schedule.

Sam Small will deliver his famous lecture 'The Failure of Civilization' to-morrow, Thursday night, Dec. 9th in St. Andrew's Church at 8 o'clock
(NOT ON FRIDAY AS FIRST ANNOUNCED)
Everybody invited. COLLECTION 10 CENTS AND UPWARDS.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE MEETING AT LAKEFIELD

derful leaps and bounds. The past thirty years had witnessed wonderful improvements and even in agriculture the changes have been wonderful. Reeve Kidd loosened a little joke incidentally. Talking of growing peas he knew a farmer who always planted peas in the season of the "Twins" as seen in Ayer's almanac. The result was that instead of single peas in the pods they were twins and the farmers secured a double crop.

Mr. Shearer who was the first speaker, selected as his subject "Successful Agriculture". To accomplish the best in farming a good education is as necessary to gain the best results as in any other line of work. He emphasized the necessity of having a good trustee board and the best men in the community should come forward and present themselves for election. It was folly to try to conduct a school as cheaply as possible. This system would result in the ruining of the school as far as its real purpose of educating the pupils was concerned. Another necessity is to send the children to school every day. Every day they are kept at home makes it harder for the children to advance. They get behind, tend to keep the others back and disturb the school methods. On a rainy day it is cheapest to drive them to school or have the hired man do it. Regularity and system is now appreciated by farmers as essential and necessary to successful farming. Rotation of crops is recognized as invaluable in securing the best results from the fields. Keep down the cost of production. This is another factor that does not receive sufficent attention. Have the best implements. If you have to buy a new one get the best. Fields must be cleared of stones, fields cleaned of woods. Keep moving and moving quickly. Farmers should keep strict accounts of their farm business. With the most of us we have an ability for some particular thing and the individual farmer should devote his attention to those lines in which he is at his best. He should know what he is making from every department. The idea of the average cow now followed on all farms means a great deal to the farmer. He should hve an account of the milk each cow produces. He will find that cows in the same field do not produce milk equally well. This should be particularly followed by farmers in dairy districts. A good rule to follow is not to keep any more stock than you can feed well and without any waste. If you find you can feed more add to them. There are not many silos in this part of the country and they should be provided if the best results are to be gained.

Keep the boy on the farm if possible. Let him begin a small bank account. Once he gets a little "pile" to the good it will soon make a man of him.

Let him begin saving when young and he will develop the habit. The possession of the money will make him manly and confident.

In regard to boys leaving the farm they should know what they are going to take up. The man who tries to earn the money he receives will get along well at whatever business he enters. This motto holds good in every line. Mr. Shearer gave a few examples of the experiences of farm boys who had been successful in other lines, but they did not appreciate their farm conditions until they began to experience the hard knocks in other walks of life.

MR. COWAN'S ADDRESS

Mr. Cowan first conveyed his thanks to the Women's Institute for the splendid banquet that had been provided to the men. He had been at many meetings but nowhere had he been so hospitably treated. Speaking on the question of why boys leave the farms Mr. Cowan drew two pictures. One was of Mr. R. R. Ness of Howick, Que. He left his father's farm and went to work for his cousin at a salary of $200 a year and a small share in the profits. He soon had an opportunity to purchase the cousin's farm but he had only $200 saved. He was trusted with $4,000 by a bank and the cousin trusted him for the remaining $2,000. With the $200 he had saved, he purchased second hand machines and second rate cattle. In the first year he suffered set backs but he continued to persevere and has made a brilliant success of agriculture. He paid for his farm, purchased one adjoining at another $6,000 and has recently bought another. He went into the breeding of Ayrshire cattle and is famous throughout the country in that respect. All his neighbours are also breeding these cattle and the locality is one of the foremost as a centre for breeding Ayrshires. He has modern improvements in his barns and equipments throughout.

He has about 60 head of cattle in his stable and to see them all down that alleyway is a delight. They are groomed every day. Mr. Ness believes that they feel better when clean and sleek and will thrive better.

He has a window behind each cow and even has flowers there. Everything about the place is similar to the stable in its detail.

Such is the success that one young farmer accomplished between his 19th and 35th year and is now one of the most prominent agriculturists in the country. When he was only 21 years of age he married a school teacher and although some of the supposed wiseacres shook their heads it was really the turning period for this young farmer. His wife seemed to be his inspiration and assisted very materially particularly attending to the care of the finances and the records of everything connected with the farm.

THE OTHER BOY

It is often heard from a boy, "Oh, I am gong into the city. I can go to the theatre and to dances and have a good time." This boy will meet with failure. It would be better if he never left the farm. He will not make a success, for he will soon meet with disappointment and will awaken to the real conditions, which he never expected. Mr. Cowan cited instances of the heartbreaking competition in cities to-day. The boys do not know the nature of the merciless, driving in competition to secure business and hold positions.

Speaking of co-operation of farmers Mr. Cowan stated that in the next 20 years there would be a vast change in this regard. In the past farmers did not have good roads, they did not have telephones, etc. They were unable to cope with other classes. Another reason is that the farmers are being driven to co-operation. They are conducting co-operative concerns with great success and will continue to do so.

Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for bath or toilet. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

PLUMBING FIXTURES

From Farm and Dairy.

The most difficult feature regarding the installation of the new and more sanitary plumbing fixtures into our country homes, lies in the great cost entailed in putting these fixtures into place. We have lately discovered a new sanitary lavatory, illustrations of which are here represented, which does away with this most objectionable feature.

It is a running water lavatory, which does not require plumbing connections. The device is novel and ought to be bought in large numbers. It consists of a pedestal lavatory of galvanised iron, enameled inside and out, the basin of which rests on a hollow stand having a capacity of five gallons of water. The supply of water is carried in a galvanized iron tank hung on the wall, the front of the quartered oak frame being fitted with a plate glass mirror.

By turning a tap, therefore, water runs into the basin and empties into the pedestal, which can be emptied daily if needed.

RICH RED BLOOD

You Will Never Have It as Long as You Have Dyspepsia.

Just as long as you have dyspepsia your blood will not properly digest, and the nutritious elements in the food will not be extracted or absorbed, and impoverished or watery blood will follow.

This condition may not be apparent at first, but it will come just as sure as the sun will rise again.

Any stomach ailment, including all forms of indigestion, can be promptly cured by using Mi-o-na tablets, a scientific treatment unsurpassed.

It stops fermentation, belching of gas and taste of sour food almost at once.

The mighty power of Mi-o-na to invigorate and restore the stomach to perfect condition is known everywhere.

Mi-o-na cures by building up—by banishing the cause. For thin people it is a great flesh builder, because it causes the stomach to give more and purer nutrition to the blood. It cures sea and car sickness and vomiting of pregnancy almost immediately. Wm. Madill sells Mi-o-na for 50 cents a large box, and guarantees it to cure or money back.

HYOMEI (Pronounced HIGH-O-ME)
CURES CATARRH, ASTHMA,
Bronchitis, Croup, Coughs and Colds, or money back. Sold and guaranteed by Wm. Madill.

WANT ONLY YOUNG PASTORS FOR CHURCHES

London, Dec. 9.—Because some church committees on the lookout for a minister are prone to pass over a name because the man has been ordained many years, The London Presbytery yesterday passed a resolution recommending the removal from the assembly blue book the two columns containing the date of ordination and induction.

"Why should a man stand according to his years," said Dr. McDonald. "Some men are old and played out at fifty. Others are active and energetic at eighty.

"Last night I was talking with a Church of England clergyman in this city who declared the demand for young ministers only was nothing less than a scandal in the Church of England."

Shipyard For Belleville.

Belleville, Dec. 9.—W. E. Redway, of Toronto appeared before a public meeting here yesterday afternoon, and submitted a proposition looking to the establishment of a shipbuilding industry here. He wants a free site on Bay shore, $10,000 worth of dredging done by the city, a loan of $25,000 without interest to be repaid at the rate of $1,000 a year, and exemption from taxes other than school taxes. The matter was referred to a committee.

W. E. Redway was formerly with the firm of F. B. Polson & Co., but left about a year ago to enter business for himself as a naval architect.

Famine In Gas.

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 9.—Gov. Stubbs yesterday instructed Attorney-General Jackson to investigate the natural gas situation, with a view of commencing injunction proceedings against the Kansas Natural Gas Co., to prevent the company from supplying Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo., with gas.

The Attorney-General proposes to ask for an injunction on the ground that the Missouri towns are supplied with sufficient gas, while Kansas towns are suffering from a shortage.

The Topeka situation grew serious yesterday afternoon. Hospitals are without fuel gas and stores are closed because of the lack of heat.

Six Months for Having Stolen Goods.

Woodstock, Dec. 9.—Mary Lessing, arrested by the high county constable some weeks ago, charged with bringing stolen goods into Canada, was sentenced by Magistrate Ball to six months in the Mercer Reformatory. She is from West Oxford.

Fire from an exploding lantern completely destroyed the fine bank barns of E. Service, near Burgessville, with the season's crops and some stock. The loss is over $3,000, covered by insurance.

Saskatchewan Finances.

Regina, Sask., Dec. 9.—Estimates of revenue and amounts to be voted for public service for twelve months ending Feb. 28, 1911, show total estimated revenue of $2,754,000, made up of general revenue fund, $2,454,600, and supplementary revenue funds $300,000. Estimated expenditure out of general revenue fund, $306,000; leaving estimated surplus of $12,146. Estimated expenditure on capital account is $2,262,253.

Segregation of Freshmen.

Boston, Dec. 9.—The plans of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University for the segregation of the freshmen and the establishment of freshmen dormitories, as outlined in his inaugural address were approved yesterday by the board of overseers of the university.

Caught Foot In Switch.

Strathroy, Dec. 9.—The body of Jake Cutler, aged 70, was found at the east end crossing yesterday. Both legs were cut off and one foot was wedged in a switch.

Bullet Into His Brain After Shooting His Foster Mother

Adopted Son of Toronto Real Estate Agent Became Melancholy and Finally Insane—Had Been Ignorant of His Parentage Until Told About Six Weeks Ago—Has Since Been Morbid and Morose.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Melancholia, induced by brooding over the fact that he was an adopted son, and that his identity was veiled in mystery, led to the suicide of James MacMath, foster child of ex-Alderman Hugh MacMath, real estate broker of 1,394 West Queen street, after he had severely wounded his foster mother but an hour before.

The young man returned from Buffalo about 6.30, went to his foster father's house, and after having supper was sitting in an upper room talking with Mrs. MacMath. He mentioned that he was thirsty, and his foster mother went to the kitchen to get him a drink. As she was filling a glass her attention was attracted by a slight sound immediately behind her and she turned to look into the muzzle of a revolver in the hands of the crazed youth. He said not a word, but, as she started toward him with a startled cry, opened fire.

Three shots were fired, and one taking effect in the woman's breast she stumbled forward, slamming the door and forcing the maniac from the room. He then quietly left the house, and was next noticed when he entered the public lavatory opposite the post-office at 7.40.

James Hagan, 147 George street, was within. The young man addressed him, saying that it was a bitter night outside, but cosy enough in there. As Hagan moved away he heard a shot and turned to see the young man lying upon the tessellated floor with blood oozing from a bullet hole in his right temple.

The janitor of the place, who was also there, hastened to the Court street police station and summoned aid. Detective Harry Armstrong hurried to the scene, where Dr. Edmund E. King, East Queen street, arrived a moment later, and the man was hurried to the Hospital, where he died at 9.05 o'clock without regaining consciousness.

When eight-months-old MacMath was adopted. Ever since he was old enough to talk the boys have teased him about being an adopted child. Until six months ago he had been in ignorance of his birth. Since being told he had been morbid and morose.

Wednesday week he left home for Buffalo. Friday he came back, saying he had secured a position there. While home he remarked to Mrs. MacMath that he had nothing to live for. He went back, and was not heard from until he walked into the house shortly before 7 o'clock Tuesday night and Mrs. MacMath tried to cheer him up by giving him a good welcome. After having his supper he said he wanted a glass of water. He said he would get it himself, but Mrs. MacMath would not let him, going herself. While drawing it in the unlighted kitchen the shots were fired at her.

Grabbing the door she forced it shut in his face, but not before he had fired three times. One of the bullets from the 32-calibre revolver entered her left breast. He tried to force the door open, but Mrs. MacMath held it. When he left she ran out of the back door to a neighbor's house. She was terribly frightened that he would follow her and she pounded frantically at the door until they came.

She was attended by Drs. G. G. Rowe, West Queen street; James Spence, Jameson avenue, and G. H. Clements, West King street. Her wound is not thought to be very serious.

The suicide's own name was Jas. Menzies. He was identified by his name being on the tag of his clothes. His address was found by consulting Hobberlin's books, the number of the suit being on file.

Female Raffles Had Been Guilty Of Pilferings From Half The Houses In The Town

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 9.—The arrest and conviction at Revelstoke of Mrs. Emma Skinner on a burglary charge rudely interrupted a promising criminal career. She has just begun serving a term of three and one-half years.

Without the shadow of suspicion being cast upon her, Mrs. Skinner plied her calling for years. She was sheltered behind a reputation won as a hard-working washerwoman. Everybody in town respected the middle-aged matron of pleasant mien, whose push-cart laden with bundles of washing could be seen on the streets in daytime, and often until late at night. The long hours she seemingly devoted to her duties only enhanced the good will entertained towards her.

Her downfall dates back to a recent midnight. Womanlike her tongue got the mastery when she was joked by a pedestrian who encountered her on a back street. Mrs. Skinner read the riot act. The man beat a hasty retreat but not without first observing that the tarpaulin over her two-wheeled cart contained a large refrigerator. The incident escaped his memory until a day or two later when he learned that his neighbor's cooling apparatus had mysteriously disappeared. The police at last secured a tangible clue.

A search of the inner floors of the washerwoman's house revealed the whereabouts of hundreds of articles stolen from the houses of a score of citizens. Not the least important find was the refrigerator, but in the minds of others it did not rank in importance with a revolver, a mask and a suit of masculine attire hidden away in a clothes closet. Did Mrs. Skinner, tired of burgling, contemplate engaging in the more exciting pastime of playing the role of bandit?

At the trial before Magistrate Foster the prisoner was the most unconcerned person in the court room. She exhibited a sullen reserve, but took her sentence without showing a trace of emotion. Only three charges were pressed. She pleaded guilty. The majority of the people robbed absolutely refused to lay formal charges, but half the town turned out to identify stolen articles. The upstairs assembled a departmental store bargain day. The upper rooms were literally filled to overflowing with loot including scores of articles of bric-a-brac, pictures, knives, forks and spoons, rugs, carpets, chairs, glassware, chinaware, cooking utensils and a variety of furniture. There were washstands, baby cribs and most amazing of all, an oak wardrobe, with a plate-glass front. Other loot embraced a great number of wedding presents which were identified by the owners.

CROWDS INCREASING.

Guelph Has Hard Time Accommodating Show Visitors.

Guelph, Dec. 9—Tremendous crowds attended the Winter Fair yesterday, and moving about from one exhibit to another was rendered difficult. It is the horse show that is drawing the big crowds, and the directorate are facing the serious problem of increased accommodation.

Horse-judging continued during the afternoon. The best contested class of standard breeds that was ever entered at the horse show lined up. Magrazia, the beautiful brown stallion owned by Miss Wilks, carried off top honors. In Clydesdales (three-year-olds stallions), Grantham and Renfrew won out on Proud Chieftain, a grand colt bred by John Marr of Offermill, Scotland. Patterson Bros. of East Toronto carried off the red ribbon with Halfling, their well-known thoroughbred.

Lectures began in the old lecture room yesterday. Greater crowds than formerly attended. Mr. Hume of Menie discussed the type of Ayrshire milkers, and Mr. Stevenson of Ancaster the Holstein. Perhaps the most important and practical lecture was one given by Prof. W. H. Day, on drainage. A discussion on the use of the ditching machine took place. There is no more important work on the farm for the soils' productivity, all depends upon the character of the drainage.

Breed types of the different breeds of beef cattle were discussed by Robt. Miller, Stouffville, for Shorthorns, and Prof. G. E. Day for the other beef breeds. To-day's discussion on horses is being looked forward to by hundreds. Many western ranchers and breeders are here.

Notable in the extent of the movement and the record attendance is the Women's Institute. The delegates began their annual session yesterday and Massey Hall would not hold them.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, and a former Ontario newspaper man, was a speaker at the directors' luncheon.

Says City Clerk Played Mean Joke.

Winnipeg, Dec. 9.—C. R. Wilkes, whose name unexpectedly appeared on the mayoralty nominations sheet Tuesday, said yesterday morning he will begin an action against City Clerk Charles Brown for forgery, in that, he says, the latter put the name of "Ginger" Snooks, a well-known character and scavenger, upon his nomination paper.

Woman, Blown Into Canal, Drowns.

Iroquois, Dec. 9.—On Tuesday night Miss Euphemia Sharra, daughter of W. J. Sharra, lockmaster, was drowned. She was on her way to attend a meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, took a short way across the lock gates and must have been blown into the canal while walking down the coping.

Carrie Nation Breaks Loose Again.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, who came here to keep her eye on Congress, went into the buffet of the Union Station yesterday afternoon and taking out her hatchet wielded it indiscriminately, smashing about $50 worth of bottled whiskies. She was at once arrested.

Second Canal Planned.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The Government of the Republic of Colombia is contemplating the construction of a canal across the Isthmus of Panama, paralleling that of the United States, but at another point on the isthmus, and within Colombian territory. British capitalists are investigating the matter with reference to financing the enterprise. This is the startling news which has leaked out since the House Appropriations committee returned from its visit to the isthmus.

It is reported that the Rothschilds may finance the undertaking. Colombian officials are authority for the statement, alleging that the route for the competing canal has already been selected.

Burned In Lake Erie.

Detroit, Dec. 9.—A steamer was reported to be on fire last night in Lake Erie, about five miles off southeast shoal. The burning vessel is believed to be the 1,700 ton Anchor Line freight steamer Clarion of Buffalo, which left Detroit at noon yesterday for Erie, Pa., although she has not yet been positively identified. The Clarion carried a crew of 16 or 20 men. So far as known there were no passengers aboard.

The report of the fire was contained in a wireless message from the steamer.

Conmee Tells Names.

Port Arthur, Dec. 9.—Appearing before the City Council yesterday in support of his power proposition, Jas. Conmee gave the names of the principals in Ontario and Michigan Power Co. Those not hitherto made known are, J. C. Hunter of Duluth, Herman Finger of Port Arthur, D. C. Cameron and J. T. McArthur, of Winnipeg, and Mr. Sturgess of the Continental Loan Co., New York.

Grand Jury Loses No Time.

New York, Dec. 9.—George P. Sheldon, recently deposed as president of the Phoenix Fire Insurance Co. of Brooklyn, who is critically ill at his home in Greenwich, Conn., was indicted yesterday by the grand jury for grand larceny in connection with the alleged looting of the company's treasury to the extent of $1,000,000 or more. The revelations were first made on Monday

MAKING FIRST-CLASS BUTTER

From Farm and Dairy.

Frank Webster, Victoria Co., Ont.

One thing absolutely necessary in making a first-class butter is a ration of which no portion will impart any objectionable flavor to the butter. Turnips or rape are not a safe feed. Cows that have the run of a woods in early spring are likely to give tainted milk and often a rank growing piece of clover will taint the butter as well as giving a gassy cream that will not churn quickly.

Good butter can be made from any breed of cows if they are given proper care. Some breeds will make a higher colored and a harder butter than others. Butter made from Jerseys is sometimes so hard in winter as to be almost a fault, though it will stand shipping in hot weather better than a softer butter.

The feeds used will often make a difference. Some feeds have a tendency to make butter of a softer texture than others. Oil cake meal is noticeable in this respect, but at the same time it is palatable and nutritious and it leaves no objectionable flavor.

An essential in butter making is cleanliness. The nearer we approach absolute cleanliness in our dealings both with the cows and with their product, the higher our butter will score.

CLEAN UTENSILS

The separator, pails and all utensils used in handling the milk or cream should be perfectly clean. If cream is separated at the barn it should be removed at once to the house. A cream testing about 35 per cent. is quite satisfactory to work with. Be sure that the can, or whatever is used for ripening cream in has no rusty places in it. The action of the acid, developed in the cream as it is ripening, on the exposed iron will give undesirable flavors.

Do not add fresh cream to a batch until cold and then stir or mix thoroughly. Cream should not be churned for 12 or 18 hours after the last lot has been added. Do not keep the cream too long before churning or it will become over-ripe or too sour. It is a question if a real good article can be made, under most circumstances, unless cream is churned twice a week. In cold weather, the ream in this length of time may possibly not be very sour and if there is only a small quantity one will be tempted to keep it longer; but then often the butter will have a peculiar old or bitter flavor, or at least lack that delicate aroma and taste, characteristic of good butter, which is so hard to describe but yet appreciated by so many.

To ripen the cream in cold weather, one may add some of the buttermilk from a previous churning, if of good flavor, and also heat the cream. If the amount is not large enough to have a vat for the purpose, and still too large to handle easily, a part of it may be placed near the fire and well warmed. This when thoroughly mixed with the whole batch, will warm it several degrees. It would be hard to describe when the cream is just right for churning. It has a peculiar satiny appearance, a rather pleasant acid smell, and it will be firm or thick enough that the paddle or stick used for stirring and mixing will stand upon it.

Butter should come in from 20 to 45 minutes. If it takes much longer, something is wrong. Perhaps the cream is too cold; it will often swell a lot in the churn if too cold. If all the cows in the herd have been milking for a long time, the butter may be hard to get. A new or fresh cow occasionally coming in will help wonderfully in making butter come in a reasonable time. Dairy thermometers are not always accurate, but use the same one always. Churn at different temperatures until that temperature that will give the best results is found. This will be when the butter comes firm enough to work nicely and still not cold enough to make the churning long.

AFTER THE BUTTER COMES

When the butter has got to that granular stage in the churn where it is beginning to mass together, drain off the buttermilk and wash with lots of water, the water being warmed if needed. Then remove the butter to a worker. The amount of salt to add, will depend on the market you are sending to, some markets demanding more than others. One ounce to the pound is rather light for some places and is about what is wanted in others. Work the salt in thoroughly. Make the butter into a tidy mass on the worker about the depth of a print. Your butter papers should be of good quality and should have the name of your farm and your address printed on them. Wet the papers by dipping them into clean water. Place them conveniently on the table, as many as you can, and when the butter is printed place each print on its own paper; wrap neatly and the process is completed.

At "Elmico Dairy Farm," our butter is all marketed in this form. We ship it all to one person, the butter being put up in boxes holding 70 prints.

HANDICAPPED

This is the Case With Many Peterborough People.

Too many Peterborough citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest, and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief, but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pains and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Can you doubt Peterborough evidence.

W. Wormington, of 121 Brock St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"I had suffered with rheumatism for over three years. I found little or no relief in any of the remedies I tried. I became so stiff and sore that I could scarcely turn in bed, and had to lay off from my work. The urine was highly coloured and filled with a heavy, sand-like sediment, which plainly told the disordered state of the kidneys. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store, and was surprised to see how quickly the urine cleared. The kidneys were soon active and the uric acid went from my system. The rheumatism gradually became less severe and finally left me. I am better than in years previous and could not hesitate to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills.

SEASONABLE POULTRY NOTES

From Farm and Dairy.

S. Short, Carleton Co., Ont., in Canadian Horticulturist

Frequently the question arises as to which are the best females to keep for winter laying. In weeding out sometimes it is either the hens or pullets that have to go for lack of room. Experience has taught the writer that the best winter layers are yearling hens that have moulted early and that were late-hatched pullets the preceding season. Next comes early-hatched pullets. As a rule the yearling hens will lay larger eggs. The late-hatched pullets rarely lay before the middle of winter. In any event, if yearling hens and pullets are available, they are likely to be more profitable than older hens. This applies to the heavy utility breeds such as Brahmas, Cochins, Plymouth Rocks, Orpingtons and Wyandottes. Hens two and three years old sometimes prove exceedingly profitable of such breeds as the Minorcas, Leghorns and Andalusians.

Care should be exercised not to overfeed the laying stock when they are first shut in their winter quarters or in fact at any time. Enclosed fowl will not get the exercise they have been enjoying when running at large and are more susceptible to crop binding and going off their food. Keep them fairly hungry for the first week and then increase allowances. By feeling their crops at night, a good idea may be obtained as to whether or not they are getting enough or too much. When feeling in the morning, a general inspection of the fowl may be made and any birds that appear mopish and indifferent about eating should be caught and the crops felt to see if they have indigestion. If so, they should be put in hospital for a day without food and plenty of water. If no change has taken place, the bird should be treated by feeding with lukewarm water from a spoon and the crop kneaded until the contents are soft and the fowl returned to the hospital for another day. Usually one treatment of this kind will effect a cure.

CURTAIN FRONT HOUSES

Government authorities and others advocate the curtain front house as being the best adapted for this climate. Descriptions and plans tell us they are easy and cheaply built and results from fowl so kept are better than any other method. They are made with one thickness of boards so do not cost much. The curtain front is cheaper than glass and the fowls are better housed and appear healthy and lay better because the air is fresher. These statements bear some explanation. Any curtain front houses I have inspected and I have seen a good many have especially constructed sleeping rooms, double-walled and double ceiling, either sealed under the rafters or else a small loft made of slatted wood and the space between the slats and the roof stuffed with six or eight inches of dry hay or straw. The fowl, therefore, sleep in a warm and most comfortable sleeping apartment which I think is absolutely necessary for laying fowl. The curtain front is on the scratching pen adjoining which is sometimes very small and made of one thickness of first-class matched lumber so that there are no cracks or crevices for the cool wind to get through. The fowl go out into these whenever they are disposed to scratch and dust themselves. On the whole the arrangements are good and comfortable and better than some of the old time double boarded houses almost hermetically sealed and which admit no fresh air and are damp and deadly. These curtain houses seem especially suited to small combed fowl. I have not seen Minorcas or Leghorns kept under these conditions nor do I think the scratching room would be warm enough for them in zero weather for their large combs easily freeze and frost bites will stop hens from laying.

FACTORY MEETINGS SUCCESSFUL

From Farm and Dairy.

Through the advice and influence of Messrs. G. A. Gillespie and Henry Glendinning, the district representatives for Peterboro and Victoria counties, respectively, on the board of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, the annual meetings in connection with a large number of cheese factories in these counties have been addressed by Mr. Geo. H. Barr, assistant dairy commissioner, Ottawa, and Mr. Jos. Burgess of Woodstock, Ont. Mr. Barr has given his highly instructive illustrated address on "The Care of Milk for Cheese Making." Mr. Burgess who has charge of the cow testing work for Ontario has addressed these meetings on matters pertaining to the cow testing work.

Messrs. Barr and Burgess, while in Peterboro last week, called on Farm and Dairy. The meetings have proved popular and have been exceedingly well attended, the lowest attendance at any one place being 40. At an evening meeting held at Rosneath, fully 250 were in attendance, while at Westwood, over 100 turned out to take advantage of the instruction offered.

As a result of their efforts, the membership in connection with Cow Testing Associations in Peterboro County has been fully doubled. The means adopted of getting this instruction to patrons of cheese factories, namely, that of having these addresses delivered at the annual factory meetings is a most commendable one. The work of Messrs. Barr and Burgess in this connection should result in a great up-lift to the dairy industry in Peterboro and Victoria Counties.

This week, Messrs. Barr and Burgess are attending meetings in the Lindsay district.

EARLY PULLETS FOR FALL EGGS

From Farm and Dairy.

Prof. F. C. Elford, Macdonald College

About the middle of July we put into laying pens a few extra early pullets of the following breeds: Barred Plymouth Rocks, white Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and white Leghorns. These pullets were all hatched from the 24th of May to the end of the month and were, therefore, between four and five months old. The first egg laid was from a Rock pullet, that celebrated the day she was five months old by laying her first egg. The first Wyandotte egg was laid on August 4, and the first egg received from the white Leghorn was August 10. No egg was received from the Red pen until August 25.

Into each pen was put 25 pullets, or 100 in all. Up to the 1st of November only 68 of these have laid as follows: Rocks, 19; Wyandottes, 15; Reds, 12; Leghorns, 11. The egg yield to the same time with the average number laid by each pullet that was laying is: Rocks, total 483 eggs, average 25 eggs; Wyandottes total 208; average 14 eggs. Reds to that 189, average 16 eggs. Leghorns, total 142, average 13 eggs. The best individual records for the pen is: Rocks, 46; Wyandottes, 34; Leghorns, 33; Reds, 27.

For the 68 pullets that laid, the total eggs laid was 1021 or an average of 15 eggs for each pullet. At 25 cents a dozen it means that each pullet gave 30 cents worth of eggs in the three months. In reality they paid better for new laid eggs being so scarce the price was much higher but for one who wants a constant supply the experiment may be worth considering.

The Rock pullet that laid the 46 eggs is the pullet that laid first, commencing the day she was five months old. By the time she was six months old she had laid 23 eggs. She then quit for five weeks, and started in again and laid 18 eggs during October and 5 eggs up to the 6th of November. This was a little experiment. We wanted to see if we could get eggs from early pullets during the fall months, when eggs are usually low. Just how these pullets will lay during the winter remains to be seen.

ASTHMA

Mrs. Farndel of Clementsport, N. S., Suffered All Her Life From Asthma, But Was Permanently Cured by Catarrhozone After All Other Means Failed.

Mrs. Farndel gives the following statement of her case for the benefit of others who are suffering from asthma, and hopes that many will follow her example and use Catarrhozone:—

"I am now in my eightieth year, and cannot recall the time when I was free from asthma. I had always a choking cough, feverishness, spasms, difficulty in breathing, headache and nausea. My druggist advised Catarrhozone one day, and I bought a large outfit. It gave relief in five minutes, and helped me very much in one day.

"I inhaled Catarrhozone ten minutes every hour, and by the time two bottles were used I was completely cured. I am as free now from asthma as if I never had it. My perfect recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. I prize my Catarrhozone inhaler next to life itself."

FOR A CLEANER MILK

From Farm and Dairy.

The Milk, Cheese and Butter Act in force in Ontario provides that all dairy instructors appointed under the Act shall have free access and admission to the premises of all persons supplying milk or cream to any cheese factory or creamery, or for sale in cities, towns or incorporated villages. A large part of the work performed by dairy instructors of both Eastern and Western Ontario is in visiting cheese factories and creameries. Any milk producer who neglects to take proper care of his milk is liable, however, to be called upon at any time. Possible embarrassment, not to mention the imposition of penalties, can be avoided by keeping premises in such condition as one would like the instructor to find.

In view of the instruction that has been given through the agricultural press, bulletins, farmers' institutes and other mediums, there are few, if any, who do not know how to obtain clean milk. Cheese makers and dairymen generally report that milk has been received this past year in better condition than ever before. Much of this improvement is due to the work of the dairy instructors in visiting patrons. The last report of the Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, Mr. G. G. Publow, shows that in a single year, as many as 500 patrons had been visited by one instructor. This was in the case of Instructor R. W. Ward, of the Peterborough District. Other instructors made as many visits as 300 in one case, down to as few as 20, and even to 11.

Since this latter form of instruction has proved so beneficial, it would be well to extend it still further. Visiting patrons should be more generally practised by many of the instructors. Patrons who send poor milk to a factory lower the price paid to their brother patrons for their milk. These offenders need to be hunted out and persuaded and, if necessary, forced, to make the needed improvements in their methods.

FEARED PARALYSIS

Mr. P. A. Kruse, Schwartz, Que., writes. "For one year I was a complete nervous wreck, could not rest or sleep, had indigestion and terrible headaches and constantly feared paralysis. Six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food made me well and strong. There is no treatment in the world so good as this for building up the nervous system."

FEEDING DAIRY COWS

From Farm and Dairy.

J. F. Clark, Victoria Co., Ont.

Farmers in our locality that have silos, feed silage, hay and roots to their dairy cows. Those who have alfalfa use it in place of hay. Many of us have no silos and for the most part, we feed corn, roots and chop, also straw and hay. In my own practice, as I have no silo, I cut the straw and corn and pulp the turnips. This is mixed together 24 hours ahead of feeding time. The corn is allowed to heat, which seems to make it more palatable and the cows like it better. The feed is mixed by putting it into alternate layers. A handful of salt is sprinkled over each and then the whole is mixed over with a fork. The cows are fed twice a day, morning and evening with this mixture and some chop sprinkled on it. We have no set amount for each cow as some require much more than others, so each gets just what it will eat up clean.

For their noon feed, they get straw or hay. The cows are let out to water at nine o'clock in the morning and are left out just while the stable is being cleaned, unless the day is warm, then they stay out until noon. Punctuality is very essential if one would make a cow profitable. Our cream, as well as that from other farms in the neighbourhood goes to a creamery except in the case of a few fortunate enough to have contracts with different confectioneries in Lindsay.

STORY OF THE COAL.

Effort Was Made to Stop Its Use at One Time.

When coal was first dug and burned in England, we have no exact date to show, says Eden Hooper in London Answers. The early Roman accounts of ancient Britons do not particularly refer to this custom. But that coal was used by our ancestors at least 700 years ago we know from an existing state document, which sets forth that King John granted "to the honest men of Newcastle and to their heirs the right to dig coles in the neighboring Girth." So it must have been regarded as a valuable right even in those days.

It would seem that coal found its way to London in some small quantities at a period somewhat previous to the year 1298. In any case, another state document in existence, bearing the date of that year, refers to a person located in "Sacoles Lane, without Newgate," as one "who makes a habit of burning a noxious fuel." In 1273 Sa-coles — sea-borne coal — was proclaimed "prejudicial to human health," and its burning was prohibited. State documents further show that in 1306 the gentry petitioned against its use.

By an act of 1321, however, in the reign of Richard II., we find that coal was made a legal article of trade between Newcastle and London. But the burning of coal for common purposes did not make much headway until the reign of Charles I., 1625.

We find, indeed, that so enlightened a lady as Queen Elizabeth was "greatly grieved and annoyed with the taste and smoake of sacoles," and she forbade the burning of "stone-coale" during Sessions of Parliament, when she was herself in residence in London.

Those were the days when the punishment of hanging was accorded for the most trivial offence, and there is an authentic record showing that a man was thus punished in London for disregarding the prohibition against burning coal at certain times.

Even as late as the seventeenth century the opposition to the use of coal was so strong that numerous petitions were presented to Parliament to put down the evil. These petitions make very quaint reading, but lack of space forbids any extracts from them.

As I have briefly shown, the word "coal" has passed through a number of forms before its present spelling was decided upon. Even now, "Seaborne coal" is an expression in common use, differentiating between rail and sea-carried coals.

I have referred to a state document of 1298 which mentions "Sacoles Lane, without Newgate." This lane—now Secoal Lane—is still to be found, being a narrow byway off Fairingdon street, and abutting on the covered duct which conveys the waters of the Fleet stream into the Thames. Four hundred years ago—Henry VIII.—this miserable stream was a navigable river far beyond where Holford Viaduct now lies. Like all small tributaries, it gradually became dried up, and what is now left of it sheds itself through a narrow tunnel into the Thames at Blackfriars. However, in the past days it had its wharfside markets and thoroughfares, and there is no doubt that Secoal Lane takes its name from an early traffic in coal.

Coal was first carried to London by rail in 1845, when a small quantity was so brought by the London and Birmingham Railway—now the London and Northwestern Railway. In 1850 only some 40,000 tons came to London by rail against 3,500,000 by sea. But gradually, during the next fifty years, with the extension of the railway systems throughout the country, the quantity carried came to exceed that brought by sea. To-day the 16,000,000 tons annually consumed are about equally divided between rail and sea. The advent of rail-borne coal in London, altered the whole course of business, and proved to be a great public boon.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or, again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin, and visible pulsations of the arteries.

There may also be experienced a smothering sensation, gasping for breath, and feeling as though about to die.

In all such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart and restoring it to its normal beat, is, beyond all question marvellous, as our thousands of testimonials will show.

Mrs. Martha Mason, Marlbank, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart, would have severe choking spells and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

A PATRIOTIC PIG.

The Queer Pet That Was Adopted by a Regiment.

Perhaps the strangest pet that ever attracted a regiment's fancy was a pig. She attached herself to a Kentucky regiment on the way to invade Canada during the war of 1812.

As the men marched out from Harrodsburg one morning they came across two pigs fighting. They halted to see it out. When the march was resumed the victorious pig followed the regiment. When they encamped at night the pig halted and found a shelter. The next morning the pig started with the regiment, and when it stopped the pig halted. Day by day it trotted along until the Ohio river was reached. A ferryboat transported the troops to Cincinnati, but the pig swam the stream and waited on the other side until the regiment took up its line of march.

During the long trying of the late piggy received her full share of rations. Occasionally the men were put on short commons, but no one thought of sticking the regiment's pet.

When they came to the lake's shore piggy was offered a passage across to Canada. She refused to stir from American soil.

When the campaign closed the troops recrossed to American soil, where they had left their horses. As the line was being formed a familiar grunt was heard. There was piggy ready to resume the march. On the homeward way the pig suffered greatly from the cold weather. It crossed, however, the Ohio river and then gave in.

Governor Shelby of Kentucky had piggy conveyed to his farm, and there she passed her days in indolence and good living, honored as the regiment's pet.—Exchange.

A mission teacher on the Bowery, by the force of his enthusiasm, succeeded in gaining the interest of a well known tough, who began at once to change his way of living, certainly to the signal betterment of his worldly comfort. He wore new clothes, associated with attractive people and experienced the prosperity of peaceful ideas.

The convert, though much regenerated, could not wholly abandon his former life, and the drift of his mind toward things of the past came into startling evidence. He attended a non-devotional class meeting called by his mentor for the special purpose of considering the practical ways and means of promoting a monster basket picnic. An appropriate date for the picnic was one of the matters to be decided. Much to the general astonishment, the convert was greatly opposed to the date favored by all the others. A recess was taken to discuss the issue more informally, and the mission worker drew his protege aside to interrogate him.

"It is going to rain that day," declared the convert earnestly. "It will spoil the picnic."

"But how do you know it is so certain to rain?"

Then the convert blurted forth his reasons helplessly, but with conviction:

"I have it straight that Taboo's people will start her in the third on that very day. She is out for a killing, and I never knew her to run that it didn't rain."

Telephone Gesticulation.

"It was the constant gesturing of that fellow at the other end of the wire that made it so hard to catch what he said," growled a man who had been wrestling with the telephone in a downtown office.

"How in the world could you tell he was making gestures?" asked the incredulous listener.

"By the jerky way the words came over the wire. Many people get so excited when telephoning that they gesticulate as frantically as if they were talking with a man face to face. Their bouncing around and waving the air break the voice, and the sentences come over the wire in fragments. I have talked with so many people who, I learned later, were dancing a jig at the other end of the wire that I always can tell when that gesticulating is going on."

The Awakening.

Two weeks after he had faced the parson with the only girl in the world he chanced upon Jones, one of his old bachelor friends.

"Well, old man," remarked the latter, grinning, "I can't say you look the part of a happy benedict. What's the trouble? Have you suffered a disappointment?"

"I have," answered the other grimly. "My wife can't sing!"

"Can't sing?" echoed Jones cheerily. "But in that case I should have said you were to be congratulated."

"That's not the trouble," responded the young husband. "The trouble is she thinks she can!"

His Authority.

Browning—I hear you are engaged to that young widow who is visiting relatives here. Is it true? Greening—Yes. Browning—How did you discover that she was the one woman in the world for an old bachelor like you? Greening—Why, she—er—told me so.—Chicago News.

Where It Falls Down.

"Logic," remarked the visionary individual, "either proves or disproves all things."

"Yes," rejoined the practical person, "but it doesn't accomplish any of them."—Houston Post.

The Friend.

"Every man, in my theory, will get just what he deserves in the long run."

"Heaven pity you, old chap!"—Cleveland Leader.

GAME OF CUSTOMS.

Slow Thinkers Will Have to Pay Duty on Their Baggage.

Some children had been traveling in Europe with their parents, and among the numerous things to interest them were the custom officers, who investigated their baggage for goods on which to charge duty, says the Chicago News. When they came back to America they were detained a long time in the custom house waiting for an officer to examine their trunks. It was great fun for the children to follow the officers about and hear what the people had to say and how much money they had to pay for the dress goods and jewels and everything they had brought from abroad. So they immediately invented this game:

One person is chosen as the "customs officer," the rest of the company being passengers. The officer holds a handkerchief knotted into a ball.

"What has A in his trunk?" he asked, throwing the handkerchief at one of the "passengers." As he throws it he must fix in his mind one object commencing with A that can be packed in a trunk. The person at whom the handkerchief is thrown must answer some object commencing with A. If he answers the same word that the officer has in mind he must pay "customs" or forfeit to be redeemed later, or if he fails to answer quickly he must pay customs.

The fun lies in playing quickly and in keeping the passengers wondering whose baggage will be examined next.

THE ASS AND THE DOG.

A Fable That Teaches the Necessity of Mutual Help.

An ass, accompanied by a dog, was carrying bread to market in a basket. The master followed. While passing through a meadow the master fell asleep, and the ass commenced to browse.

"Friend," said the dog, "I haven't dined today, and grass is no food for me. Stop a minute, I will take a small loaf out of your basket."

The ass made no answer. I am surprised at this, for he is naturally a good creature.

Jowler began again. Grimalo, without losing a bite, still was deaf of one ear. At length, hard pressed by the importunities of the dog, he said to him:

"I advise you to wait. It will not be long before our master awakes, and he will not fail to give you your dinner."

As the colloquy was going on a famished wolf leaped out of a nearby wood.

"Dear friend, defend me!" cried Grimalo.

"Comrade," answered Jowler, "I advise you to wait until our master wakes up. He will not be long."

Thereupon the dog fled, and the wolf strangled the ass.

We must aid one another. He who refuses to give service when he can lays himself open to being refused help when he finds himself in need.—From the French of Perrin.

The Obedient Coin.

Take a matchbox and remove the drawer. Hold the box in a horizontal position and place a small coin upon the middle of the top. In order to make the coin go inside without touching it give it several light strokes on the side which you wish it to enter. As soon as it reaches the edge tip the box lightly, raising the end where the coin is until it is balanced upon the edge. Another gentle stroke of your finger and it will drop inside.

Salutations of Different Countries.

The Chinese when saluting each other say: "How is your stomach? Have you eaten your rice?" The Pole greets his neighbor by saying, "How do you have yourself?" The Russian says to his friend, "How do you live on?" The French say to each other, "How do you carry yourself?" The Persians recognise their friend by saying, "May your shadow never grow less." The plain, busy American, who has no time for all this, on seeing his friends either nods his head or flings a "How d'ye do?" at him.

VALUE OF BEAUTY.

Woman's Destiny Largely Determined by Personal Charms.

There is probably no other one thing that so influences and determines the destiny of woman as personal charm and beauty. Many argue and maintain that personal attraction, while desirable, is only secondary; that character, education and refinement are all important. Perhaps this ought to be true, but in our inner hearts we know that, while these things are absolutely necessary to the successful and popular woman, yet the one thing that first attracts the attention of both sexes, that continues to draw and keep the admiration and that wins favor in all places and at all times is the magic charm of a beautiful face, the exquisite complexion, the lustrous, abundant hair and the soft, white, shapely hands.

Every woman knows this to be true and understands that these charms, which every woman may have and is entitled to, become irresistible when coupled with refinement and modesty. The slovenly, careless woman, with coarse, rough hands, dirty nails, sallow or dull complexion, blackheads, simply, blotchy face, straggly, thin, lusterless and unkempt hair, not only fails to attract friends and acquaintances, but actually repels all mankind, even those who should admire and love. It is impossible for a man to love or respect an unkempt woman. Other women shun her because she has failed in that one womanly trait—keeping herself clean, sweet and adorable. Refined women require it. Men demand it.

Proper care will keep women beautiful always—not that the beauty of youth may be retained in after years, but the beauty and fascination which belong to all ages of women may be retained and are retained by all who value them at their true worth.

The world admires and reverees a well groomed woman. It turns in disgust from the careless, slovenly woman who disregards the necessity of making herself clean, neat and attractive. The wise woman knows the great value of personal appearance and preserves herself with all the means at her command. Fortunately most women realise these things and attend to their toilet to the best of their knowledge, but how few really understand or know what must be done in order to make themselves appear at their best and to prevent the loss of their charms with time!

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

When frying mush dip the slices first in the white of an egg. This makes it crisp.

After washing the lamp chimney polish it with dry salt. It makes the glass bright and will prevent its breaking.

Salt thrown into the oven immediately after anything has been burned in it will make the objectionable odor less disagreeable.

Grind a handful of sunflower seeds and give them to the canary. The birds relish the little tender pieces that are found among the seeds.

When running dates, figs or raisins through the food chopper add a few drops of lemon juice. It will do much toward preventing the fruit from clogging the chopper.

A delicious salad is made from canned cherries and pecan nuts tossed up with a well mixed French dressing. Served on leaves of lettuce hearts it is as pretty as it is tasty.

A housewife who never misses an opportunity for improving her table says that she always keeps a vanilla bean or two in her sugar jar. It imparts a flavor that is delightful.

In putting down linoleum or oilcloth have strips of molding nailed above the linoleum where it comes to the baseboard. This prevents dust from getting underneath and also preserves the edges from moisture under the floor covering.

If you take the children on the train and wish to feed them oranges, which tend to quench the thirst, prepare the fruit at home and wrap the sections in waxed paper. It is tedious to pare them on the train, and one is liable to soil the clothes in doing so.

Porcelain ware can be mended with ordinary putty mixed with oil. Work a small particle into the worn place, set it aside for several days, and food can be cooked in the vessel without danger of the unpleasant taste one naturally supposes would take place when putty is used.

FERROZONE

A case showing how Ferrozone acts is illustrated by the following from Mrs H. Wright, of Enfield, N.S.:

"Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss, and in the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale, and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat, and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone braced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better, and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone and my cure was complete."

If Ferrozone doesn't help you, and cure you—then nothing ever will; your druggist sells it in 50c boxes. Better try Ferrozone.

GOWGANDA SIDELIGHTS

SCENES IN AND AROUND ONTARIO'S NEW SILVER CAMP.

Music Is Used to Break the Tedium of the Isolated Little City and Pool Parlors Are to Be Found In the Wilderness—White Shirts Are Rare and Children Are Unknown—Men Who Have Done Well.

From the broad verandah which adds a rough ornamentation to the largest hotel in this queer little mining city, I looked southward across the bays and inlets of Lake Gowganda, just as the sun was retiring behind the dark forest growth of jack pine to the west, says J. S. Crate, in The World.

To the left the tents and shacks and the more pretentious buildings lined themselves in an irregular way that seemed to have some relation to the vagaries of the shore. It was a strange town, more than a mile in length, with no depth, and not the semblance of order. The place looked as though it had just happened, and as a matter of fact, that is the explanation. There were no streets and the people moved among the buildings along an irregular trail. The nearest semblance to a street was at the end of the old winter road, where a score of buildings had grouped themselves in something like orderly alignment.

As the shades of early sunset gathered into darkness the buildings seemed to vanish as spectres dissolve from the picture. The white tents could be still distinguished, but as darkness gathered in its intensity these, too, became more indistinct and vanished also.

Meanwhile lights commenced to wink at the windows; tents were suddenly aglow with a phosphorescent radiance intensified by the unsurrendering blackness of the forest setting.

The lake seemed to gather light by the mirage of its glassy surface. Canoes stole silently here and there across the bay, which would otherwise have been undetected but for the rhythmical rub of the paddles against the sides.

Far down the lake a light shone out on the blackness, and the ears could detect behind it the rapid throb of a gasoline engine. It was coming in from the west side mines with its load of passengers.

To the right was a tent almost big enough to shelter a circus side show. From this came the sounds of lively music and the voice of a woman singing a song from one of the latest musical comedies. The merchant who owned the tent had learned that his family could break the monotony of frontier life by the magic of music while the camp found solace in their songs.

The click of pool balls had become audible from inside the hotel. Voices were becoming louder with the simple excitements of the camp. Other pool tables were going in full swing in the hotels further down the shore. The night restaurants were as resplendent with lights as oil illuminants would permit. The constant moving of canoes in and out of the darkness was puzzling until it was explained that the men moved about from one section of the town to another in this way.

Finally a gasoline launch nosed up to the shore and a young man ran up to the hotel entrance. Once inside he danced around the stove to get his blood in circulation. "Av' bein oot fer an 'oor an' am verra neer frozen," he said. "The mon couldna run the engine. He tweested every tap he cud lay his hands on. Then a mon kem fra anither boat and set the thing agoin'."

Inside the place was filled with men. All were long leather boots, which reach almost to the knees, and many wore the broad felt hat of the typical frontiersman. A white shirt or collar in that group would have commanded instant notice. On the whole they were young men ranging in years from eighteen to thirty-five. There was an entire absence of children. The conversation was all about the mines or about freighting down the "branch"—all of which is done by packmen and canoes. Some of these men spoke in language that indicated familiarity with the drawing-room, back in the older centres of civilization. Investigation proved that many of them were S. P. S. men, graduates of Princeton, Harvard, McGill or Toronto. There were many foreigners, too, who gathered in groups and conversed in the tongues of far-off lands. These men were mostly workmen at the mines.

The absence of a printing establishment was indicated by the queer advertisements on the walls. One advised:

"Be up-to-date and have your letters typewritten by Tom Chitty."

Two young druggists were pointed out to me. They had come in with the rush with a stock of $100 worth of goods. They were making money, had a good stock, first-class credit outside and a substantial bank account.

I met Scobie, the barber, who one day last winter gathered up his razors in a Toronto store and started north. Scobie has shaved $1,000 net profit off the faces of the men of the north and has it "planted" in the bank. He pays $25 a month rent for a shop about ten by twelve, employs an assistant, charges 25 cents for a shave and banks $75 a week. Scobie is getting on.

I dropped into one of the three chartered banks at Gowganda, and asked as to the kind of business transacted.

"It is nearly all a deposit business with us," he said. "Men from the mines have few ways of spending their money and we carry a great many savings' accounts. We also make up the pay rolls for various mining interests. These vary from $7,000 per month down to $500. There are few requests for loans, as no one comes into the mining country without sufficient money to see him through."

THE VOICE OF THE SELKIRKS.

What is the meaning and trend of their motion,
These fevered and restless things at our feet?
They wander and fret like the waves of an ocean,
With their rage as vain and their hours as fleet.

Trampled and torn by the hooves of disaster,
O'ertaken by thirsts and hungers and fears.
Defiant of torrents no daring shall master,
They hurl their wills in the face of the years.

They come as the rainfall, and go as the river;
We listen impassive and wonder and wait,
Abiding the hour that our womb shall deliver
The passionless silence of ultimate fate.

'Tis we who have known not of tumult and fever,
'Tis we who are patient and measured and sure,
'Tis we who are done with desires for ever,
'Tis we who are passive, shall live and endure.

'Tis we who are silent and changeless and quail not,
'Tis we who persist through immovable peace,
'Tis we who have seen that their efforts avail not,
Exult, and survive, and never shall cease!

—By Arthur Stringer, in Canada-West Monthly.

SALT IN MANITOBA.

James Monkman Manufactured It Fifty Years Ago.

It would be news to most readers to be told that salt was produced from the Winnipegosis brine fifty years ago, writes J. B. Tyrrell in Canada West. James Monkman made salt at Swan River, Duck River and at Salt Springs four hundred yards from the lake. Many years ago the Hudson Bay Co. profitably manufactured salt at Swan River, when on the Red River the price of salt was twelve shillings a bushel—or one hundred weight of flour.

Monkman's works were of the most primitive description. When he found a spring he dug a hole five feet across and five feet deep, with a couple of rough stone walls alongside, and a chimney at one end. On this construction he set his shallow kettles, and ladled in the brine to be evaporated by the wood fire below. When winter came the kettles were turned upside down where they were and left there until business was resumed in the spring.

Professor Hind found that Monkman knew nothing of the use of the pump or of solar evaporation. The Winnipegosis brines are not so strong as those which come from the rock salt of Cheshire, and at present the cheapening of transportation to the prairies may have rendered them, for the time being, unprofitable. But I should not be surprised any day to learn that some enterprising manufacturer has appealed to the Government for the protection of a native product, with a view to satisfying Manitoba's needs from Manitoba's supplies.

In the salt country, too, there are rocks almost ideally suited for the manufacture of cement, and I found a large deposit of gypsum, from which, presently, no doubt, the cornices of elegant homes will be manufactured.

On the banks of the Saskatchewan, near Lake Winnipeg, I found a beach, ten per cent. of the material of which was amber of a good quality—not enough to make fortunes out of, so long as it is not convenient for transportation, but good enough to talk about and good enough to use.

A Lady Gold-Digger.

Lady Sybil Grey is the latest distinguished gold-digger. She accompanied her father, Earl Grey, Governor-General of the Dominion, on his recent trip to the Canadian Arctic goldfields. Near Dawson City, the capital of the Klondike, she pegged out a claim for herself with all the prescribed legal formalities, and christened it the "Sybil." Her first panning-out produced twenty dollars' worth of gold, which she considers a very promising start. During the long Arctic winter Lady Sybil will work her claim by deputy, but she intends, it is said, to return next summer to supervise operations and examine results in person.

Caught It Both Ways.

A former manager of the Toronto Railway Co. was talking the other day about the trouble of making connections with street cars at transfer points. He said that he became discouraged when he was manager of the road. One night he got off a King street car, and after a race up Yonge street, succeeded in catching his car.

"Why don't you fellows watch for people making connections and wait a moment or two sometimes?" he panted.

"Didn't you catch it? What the h—l are you kicking about?" was the astonishing reply, and the ex-manager did not pursue the subject further.

The Witches' Tree.

Country people speak of the elder tree as "the witches' tree," and planted it near farm buildings and dairies to keep off witches. They also say that the roots should never come near a well, still less grow into it, or the water will be spoiled.

Evelyn's opinion was also unfavorable. He says: "I do by no means commend the scent of it, which is very noxious to the air."

Cattle scarcely touch the elder, and the mole is driven away by the scent. Carters often placed branches on their horses' heads to keep off flies. Nothing will grow well in the company of the elder, and when it has been removed and all its roots carefully grubbed up it is some few years before the ground becomes perfectly sweet and good for anything.—"Selbourne Magazine."

"Margarine" or "Marjorine."

Lord Onslow, who has been taking a hand in the negotiations over the land clauses in the British budget, told an amusing story during a discussion in the House of Lords some time ago on the Butter and Margarine Bill. In the early days of margarine a committee sat to discuss it. They were not quite sure how the word should be pronounced, and when a certain stolid-looking waiter was called before them as a witness the chairman showed him a sample and asked, "Do you call this 'margarine' or 'marjorine'?" "Neither, sir," blandly replied the waiter; "we calls it butter."

Another Barrier Broken.

Many people hold that the inability of women to "bear arms" is a conclusive argument against female suffrage. A certain individual who has a fondness for information asks if it has been proved that women cannot defend their country as soldiers. He has observed that in fiction the girl who masquerades as a fighting man, however bold she may be in words, proves to be an arrant little coward when she feels a sword or pistol in her hand and sees another threatening her. But he has read history as well as fiction and asserts that some of the women who, disguising their sex, have actually served for years in the army have been distinguished for bravery and martial qualities.

Beyond Soundings.

The Royal Canadian Yacht Club's initial navigation class last month was marked by a tragic exhibition of sarcasm gone to waste. A retired lake captain who had set up a school for seamen had been retained to impart some knowledge to the amateur tars on this particular occasion, and one member of the large audience which turned out to acquire wisdom was Commander Spain, R.N. The latter's toleration for the sweet simplicity of fresh water mariners' technique is not boundless, and his efforts to conceal it were not phenomenally successful.

"Young fellows come to me," began the instructor, "with nothing but two years' experience wheeling—"

"What dye say?" asked the commander in a slightly bored tone.

To him "wheeling" meant only two things—pushing a truck or riding a bicycle; certain not the quartermaster's or helmsman's occupation.

"I said young fellows come to me with nothing but two years' experience wheeling," repeated the ex-merchant skipper in a slightly louder tone of voice.

"Wheeling? What's that?" The commander's tone by this time betrayed irritation.

But the instructor was unruffled. He was used to uninitiated lubbers asking all sorts of questions, and had no idea that he was talking to a commander of the royal navy. He leaned tolerantly towards his questioner and said in a friendly, confidential sort of way:

"Steering, sir."

A DISTINGUISHED JURIST.

Late Sir Henri T. Taschereau Came of a Legal Family.

Son and grandson of a judge, and descendant of one of the most distinguished of French-Canadian families, it is small wonder that the late Sir Henri T. Taschereau, LL.D., Chief Justice of the Province of Quebec, should have been one of Canada's foremost jurist and most prominent citizens. He was the son of Jean Thomas Taschereau, judge of the Supreme Court of Canada; and he was the grandson of another Jean Thomas Taschereau, who was a member of the first Legislative Assembly of Canada, who did good service in defence of the country against the Americans in 1812, and who was also a distinguished judge. The founder of the family in Canada was Jacques Taschereau, of Touraine, who emigrated to Quebec in 1725, as secretary of Intendant Dupuy. Since then five generations of brave soldiers, distinguished citizens, noble churchmen, and honorable jurists have done their share of work first for Canada and then for the Empire. The Honorable Gabriel Elzear Taschereau, the son of the secretary, was, while very young, one of the soldiers who fought against Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham in 1759. Later on, in 1775, being then a British subject, he was one of the best soldiers of Canada against the American army. He died a colonel of the Quebec militia. This man was the great-grandfather of the late chief justice.

Sir Henri Taschereau was born in 1841, and was educated at the Quebec Seminary and Laval University, and was called to the Bar in 1863. For a time he was an alderman of Quebec, and represented the city on the North Shore Railway Board for four years. From 1872 to 1878 he represented Montmagny in the Dominion Parliament in the Liberal interest. In the latter year he was elevated to the Court of King's Bench in the Province of Quebec, and two years ago became chief justice. Last year the honor of knighthood was conferred upon him. In 1864 he married a daughter of the late Mr. E. L. Pacaud, of Arthabaskaville, and two years after her death, in 1883, he took his second wife, the widow of Mr. Henri Masson, of Montreal. He was the father of Mrs. Joseph Pope, Ottawa; Mrs. John A. Carling, London, Ont.; Mrs. (Col.) Vidal, Mr. Robert Taschereau, K.C., Montreal; Mrs. Lyon, of Montmorency, France; and Mrs. Sutherland, of Montreal. The late chief justice died at Montmorency, France, while on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Lyon. His body was brought back to Canada for burial.

Prison Statistics.

The annual report of the Department of Justice contains some interesting figures compiled by G. W. Dawson, inspector of penitentiaries as to the penitentiary population of the Dominion. There was, during the fiscal year 1908-09, a decided increase in the number of convicts from urban centres, due no doubt to financial depression and lack of employment, but for the country districts, the statistics as to criminality do not show much change. The average daily population of the penitentiaries was 1,635, as compared with 1,418 for the previous year.

The inspector, in commenting upon the fact that, by the fixed sentences system, scores of dangerous criminals are set free to again mingle with society, says: "From our experiences in the administration of penal institutions, we are convinced that society would be more adequately protected by the application of indefinite sentences to habitual offenders."

Roman Catholics in prison number 871, Anglicans 185, Methodists 173, Presbyterians 78, Baptists 78, Lutherans 15, Hebrews 15. Twenty-eight have no creed. Convicts of British birth number 310. There are 66 life convicts, of whom 33 are confined in Kingston. Ten per cent. are under 20 years of age. Fifteen per cent. are unable to read or write. Seventeen per cent. have been total abstainers, while forty per cent. have been intemperate.

The report shows a decrease in the number of pardons, and an increase in the number of convicts liberated under parole system, as 244 were liberated as against 215 for preceding year. Absolute pardons numbered 14, as compared with 29.

The assertion is made that the parole system is the most important and useful reform yet introduced, and the recommendation is made that the various provinces be requested to make provision for supervision of prisoners released on parole from provincial institutions. Only one convict escaped during the year, and he is still at large.

"Caught Cold."

Had a Distressing, Tickling Sensation In The Throat.

Mr. Albert MacPhee, Chignecto Mines, N.S., writes: "In Oct., 1908, I caught cold by working in water, and had a very bad cough and that distressing, tickling sensation in my throat so that I could not sleep at night, and my lungs were so very sore I had to give up work. Our doctor gave me medicine but it did me no good so I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and by the time I had used two bottles I was entirely cured. I am always recommending it to my friends."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup combines the potent healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognised worth and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Sore Throat, Pain or Tightness in the Chest, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" so be sure and get the genuine when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Three Fined $100 and Costs.

Welland, Dec. 9.—Reuben Upper, a licensed hotelkeeper at Allanburg, was fined $100 and costs for selling liquor on Sunday. It was his second offence. Fred Lanzi, an Italian of Welland, was fined $100 and $14.65 costs, and George Vasiliviel, a Pole, was fined $100 and $16.10 costs for selling liquor without a license. They are both from the steel plant district.

Martial Law In Honduras.

Porto Cortez, Honduras, Dec. 9.—Martial law in Honduras was proclaimed Tuesday. A state of expectancy exists.

The proclamation is the result of a suspicion at the capital that General Manuel Bonilla will take advantage of the situation in Nicaragua to invade Honduras with a rebel band and regain the Presidency.

Leopold's Health.

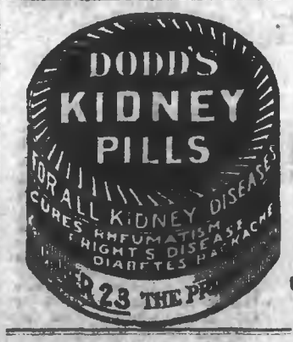
Brussels, Dec. 9.—Late in the day official denial was made of the report that King Leopold was seriously ill. The announcement concluded: "The King is afflicted with muscular rheumatism, which is exceedingly painful, but yesterday he was able to walk about his apartments."

Temperance Candidate Likely.

Orangeville, Dec. 9.—A convention of the temperance and independent electors of the riding of Dufferin has been called for Dec. 14, when a candidate may be named to contest the bye-election. The Liberals are not expected to enter the contest.

Typhoid Epidemic In Montreal.

Montreal, Dec. 9.—There are 193 typhoid cases in the five city hospitals, and a great many cases cannot secure admission.



BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

France will not send a warship to Nicaragua.

Burglars got $1,100 from the stock of W. E. Irvine, jeweler, at Orangeville.

November fire losses in the United States and Canada aggregated $15,000,000.

The residance of H. Wickens, Brampton, was burned yesterday while the family were away.

Conception Day was generally observed as a departmental holiday in the capital. There was no session of Parliament yesterday.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, P.M.G. of Canada, sailed yesterday from Liverpool on the Oceanic, for New York.

Navigation returns at Montreal show that the customs returns exceed those of last year by $2,012,000. The open season was nine days more than last year.

Sherbrooke's first French daily, to be called La Tribune, will be issued by the end of the year and will begin with a circulation of 3,500. La Tribune will be independent in politics.

J. J. Muldoon, who, at 460 pounds, was the heaviest man in Canada, was buried yesterday at Quyon, Que. The weight of the coffin and body was so great that, instead of being carried out of the house, it had to be taken out on rollers.

Steamer Ran Aground.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 9.—Bringing reports of the worst storm of the year raging on the northern coast, the steamer Princess May arrived yesterday from Skaguay and Prince Rupert.

Recent high tides and winds caused the water to rise to such a height that some of the outlying American salmon canneries in Alaska were flooded and some of the pack was damaged. The Princess May wallowed in the tremendous seas on the way south. When off Alert Bay she struck a rock, and was on for two hours, till the tide lifted. Seas were running high when the accident occurred at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, and the weather was so thick it was impossible to see ten feet ahead. Before the passengers were placed in boats, however, it was discovered the damage was not extensive.

Cook's Records at Copenhagen.

Copenhagen, Dec. 9.—The north polar observations of Dr. Frederick A. Cook reached here yesterday in an iron box on board the steamer United States. Walter Lonsdale, Dr. Cook's secretary, had stood guard over its precious contents since they left the hands of the explorer. On the pier Lonsdale and two detectives bundled the iron box into a motor car, and, jumping in themselves, were driven hastily to the University of Copenhagen, where the papers were formally turned over to the authorities and placed in a strong-room, where they will be guarded closely.

Keep Navigation Open.

Fort William, Dec. 9.—The underwriters have decided to extend the lake marine insurance another two days, which will make it possible for small steamers to leave here until midnight Dec. 10.

Eight hundred thousand bushels of wheat and 305,000 bushels of oats are yet to be sent across the lake. Steamers loading grain or waiting in port are the Hebbard, Mac, Crown, Collingwood and Rosedale. The weather is very rough.

Kingston's Storm Damage.

Kingston, Dec. 9.—During the heavy gale Tuesday night, and yesterday morning, forty feet of the fence around the convent grounds was blown down.

Capt. Malone and the crew of the steamer Prince Rupert, from Fort William, had a exciting time making the port. The smokestack was washed away, and the deck strewn with articles. The velocity of the wind was 45 miles an hour.

Trusts Not Altogether Bad.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 9.—Prof. Adam Shortt of Kingston addressed the Canadian Club yesterday afternoon on "The Regulation of Trusts." Combinations under certain conditions were not an evil, he said, but quite the contrary. All that was necessary was to have a power, the Railway Commission, for instance, to regulate and control them for the public good.

New French Daily.

New York, Dec. 9.—Announcement is made of the establishment of a new French daily newspaper in New York. It is called Le Progres, and is designed to be a "representative organ of the French-speaking population in America." The first number is scheduled to appear to-day, and on Sundays there is to be an illustrated supplement.

Power From Barge Canal.

New York, Dec. 9.—The barge canal to be built between Lake Erie and the Hudson River, if constructed with a downward slope, could be made to produce $50,000,000 worth of power, said Edward B. Taylor, of Pennyan, N.Y., in a paper before the American Institute of Chemical Engineers here yesterday.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Active and Stronger at Buffalo.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning offerings were 1200 cattle, 650 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 150 calves. A somewhat easier feeling prevailed in the market for cattle on account of the increased supplies, and the fact that this was partly a holiday. Top quality steers sold at 5c; fairly good at 4½c to 4¾c; fair at 4c to 4¼c; common at 3½c to 3¾c per lb., while bulls brought from $2.65 to $3.15, and canners from $1.50 to $2.50 per cwt. The demand for sheep and lambs was fair and the supply was small. Sales of sheep were made at 4c to 4¼c, and lambs at 6c to 6¼c per lb. The market for calves was strong, with prices at from $3 to $10.50 each. There was no change in the hog situation. Sales of selected lots from west of Toronto were made at $8.75, and from east of Toronto at $8.50 per cwt., weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market offerings consisted of 700 cattle, 325 sheep and lambs, 375 hogs and 150 calves. The demand for hogs was good at firm prices.

Storm Ties Up Lake Steamers.

Windsor, Dec. 9.—A big fleet of boats is held up above the Lime Kiln crossing, and another bunch of boats is reported at anchor near Bar Point. The water went down nearly a foot and a half between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesday at the crossing. The barge Hartnell, upbound with coal, ran aground on Bar Point late Tuesday night. The steamer D. G. Kerr, upbound with coal, also ran aground on Bar Point, but was released.

Operate G.T.P. by Electricity.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 9.—Representatives of New Brunswick and Quebec Province and the Federal Government, the G.T.P. commissioners, the Railway Commission and the Miramichi Lumber Co. will meet in Ottawa Dec. 16, to discuss the proposal that the G.T.P. should operate its trains through the New Brunswick forest region by electricity.

West Indies Commission.

London, Dec. 9.—The West Indies Commission, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Sir D. Morris and E. H. McCarthy leave England on Jan. 16 for Jamaica. They expect to meet Messrs. Fielding and Paterson at Kingston on the 27th.

One Farthing's Damages.

Birmingham, Dec. 9.—Damages of one farthing were granted here to the heirs of Richard Cadbury, the millionaire chocolate manufacturer, in their suit for libel against The London Standard. The litigation grew out of charges relative to the use of alleged slave-grown cocoa from the island of St. Thomas, a possession of Portugal off the west coast of Africa.

It is not the quantity but the goodness of food that counts

When buying the things for dinner, remember this fact—select only food that you know is good, that is both wholesome and appetizing. In this respect you find a perfect cheese and a perfect food, equally as good for children as for adults. Made by experts with scrupulous care and cleanliness from the finest, purest cream, and fully ripened, which means predigested—Imperial Cheese has three times the food value of any other cheese. Satisfy yourself—try a jar. 10c, 15c, 25c and 50c. Sold only in sealed opal porcelain jars. Kept by your grocer.

Imperial Peanut Butter

Just as superior a food as MacLaren's Imperial Cheese. All the concentrated goodness of the best selected Spanish Peanuts with a flavor peculiarly appetizing—a pure, nutritious food that should be on your table at every meal. 10c, 20c and 30c the bottle. Your dealer has it.

A Pure Food Dessert

Imperial Dessert Jelly is different from the ordinary jellies—it is rich in food qualities, wholesome and nourishing, easy to make and can be had in any flavor. Best for invalids and children because of its absolute purity. One taste will convince. Try a package—at your grocers.

CANADA CREAM CHEESE tempts the appetite—mild, rich and creamy. Your grocer has it, in packages, three sizes, 10c up.

Prepared and guaranteed pure by the Mad Dog In Galt.

Galt, Dec. 9.—A supposed mad dog terrorized residents of Ward Four yesterday morning, biting several persons, snapping at others, and finally escaping in the direction of Blair. It was a small brown cocker spaniel. The injured are the little son of Coachman Smith, whose hand is severely torn; a lad named McKeown, bitten on the fingers, and a son of W. Jones, grocer, bitten on ankle, the teeth did not penetrate the flesh. The dog had a fight with a second dog, which was also bitten.

Smith, whose son is a victim, attacked it with a club, but it escaped. He then pursued it with a revolver.

Ready for Reciprocity.

New York, Dec. 9.—"Canada stands ready to consider any proposals which the U. S. Government by diplomatic channels or a commission cares to submit looking to the signing of a reciprocity treaty between the two countries. The Dominion will make no advances in this direction, but this does not mean that Ottawa is adverse to a trade protocol looking to the advancement of the commercial relations of the two countries."

This statement was made by Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy of Montreal, who left yesterday on the Lusitania for a two-months' stay in London and Paris.

Killed on Bridge.

Milton, Dec. 9.—George Kullham, a farm laborer, was struck by the G.T.R. express from Allandale about half a mile from Milton Tuesday night and instantly killed. Kullham, in company with three others, had been walking the tracks, and separated on reaching a bridge, two leaving the rails, and Kullham and another walking across. When near the centre the express was sighted. Kullham, frightened, hesitated, and was killed.

Alberta Railway to Extend.

Montreal, Dec. 9.—President W. R. Clarke of the Alberta Railway, which will extend from Edmonton 350 miles north to Fort McMurray, was here yesterday and stated that 150 miles would be completed by next fall. He says that at Fort McMurray they will connect with 3,500 miles of waterway extending to the Arctic Ocean, taking in the Peace, Arthabaska and McKenzie Rivers.

Water In the Milk.

St. Catharines, Dec. 9.—The Board of Health has published the results of an analysis of samples of milk taken from various delivery wagons. Some showed a big percentage of water, and many were selling skimmed milk.

Clerk Routed Burglars.

Quebec, Dec. 9.—Burglars who broke into a large store at Trois Pistoles were driven off after an exchange of revolver shots with a clerk, who wounded one intruder in the shoulder.

Nomination at Lunenburg.

Lunenburg, N.S., Dec. 9.—The Conservative convention at Mahone yesterday nominated Dr. C. S. Marshall of Bridgewater to oppose Sperry, the Liberal candidate, for the Dominion seat made vacant by the resignation of Mr. McLean.

Will Have His Revenge.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 9.—Former President Cardenas of Nicaragua, who was overthrown by Zelaya in 1891, has taken the field with 500 men against his old enemy, and is heading an expedition from Costa Rica into Nicaragua.

Poisoned Mother by Mistake.

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 9.—Given carbolic acid by her daughter by mistake for brandy, Mrs. William Tate, ill with tuberculosis, died yesterday before medical aid could reach her.

Every Bone Broken.

Fort William, Dec. 9.—While apparently oiling the main shaft at the C.P.R. coal dock plant, Fred Pattilli was drawn into the fly wheel and crushed to death, practically every bone in his body being broken.

Not Guilty of Graft.

Boston, Dec. 9.—Thirty-three American steel firms and individual agents for steel companies were found guilty of collusive bidding for city steel contracts in the Superior Court yesterday, after eleven weeks' trial.

MORE SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST DR. COOK

Two New York Men Claim That They Were Paid to Fabricate Parts of the Reports That Have Been Sent to Copenhagen---They Did Not Get Their Price and Claim That the Explorer Has Disappeared After Making a Small Payment to Them.

SAY DR. COOK IS IGNORANT OF MANY THINGS

New York, Dec. 8.—The New York Times will publish to-morrow the remarkable narratives of two men, made under oath, declaring that they were employed by Dr. Frederick A. Cook to fabricate astronomical and other observations for submission to the University of Copenhagen, which is about to pass upon Dr. Cook's assertion that he discovered the North Pole on April 21, 1908. These men are George H. Dunkle, an insurance broker, of 31 Nassau street, New York, and Captain August Wedel Loose, a sea captain, of 437 Thirteenth street, Brooklyn. For their labours they were to have received jointly from Dr. Cook $4000, with an additional bonus of $500 to Captain Loose upon the acceptance of the records by the University of Copenhagen. They say that Dr. Cook had paid them only $260 when he disappeared on the eve of the dispatch of his "records" to Copenhagen, two weeks ago, and his failure to pay the sum remaining due them they freely acknowledge to be their motive for coming forward with the story.

Copies of Affidavits.

Accompanying these narratives in the Times to-morrow will appear copies of the affidavits of Capt. Loose and Mr. Dunkle affirming their accuracy, a facsimile of Dr. Cook's instructions to Capt. Loose, in Cook's hand-writing, in possession of the Times, and the affidavit of Capt. Loose swearing to the accuracy of the same.

The translation of this memoranda by Dr. Cook is as follows: "Svartevaag, start March 17-18; strong wind; haze."

"March 30.—Observations latitude and longitude; daily observations to April 23."

Were Intimate With Cook.

The Times has followed the steps described by these two men and has verified their goings and comings, their purchases of books and charts, and the fact of their intimate relations with Dr. Cook. Whether the "observations" calculated by Capt. Loose and supplied, as he alleges, to Dr. Cook were adopted by the latter and made a part of his report to the University of Copenhagen it is, of course, impossible to say without a comparison of Capt. Loose's narrative with that report.

Laughs at Cook's Ignorance.

In the narratives of Capt. Loose and Mr. Dunkle, Capt. Loose frankly expresses his scorn of Dr. Cook's claims, laughs at his ignorance of the simplest essentials for accurate observations in the Arctic regions, and describes at length how, working backward from the Pole, he calculated observations that would fit in with Cook's narrative and coached him on the necessary modifications of the latter, as, for example, that he must be sure to record that he rose before 4.15 o'clock on a certain morning, because it was at that hour that a certain star, mentioned in one of Loose's calculations, would be visible.

Cook in Deep Water.

Mr. Dunkle describes the inception of the enterprise; how from the newspapers they gathered that Dr. Cook was in deep water, and inferred that he would be glad to pay for help; how Dunkle got John R. Bradley, Cook's backer, to introduce him; how the subject was led up to delicately, and the bargain finally struck, and carried out; and how at last Dr. Cook disappeared, after accepting their work and paying only $260 for it.

Did Not Take His Altitudes.

Dunkle took Capt. Loose up to see Dr. Cook at the Waldorf-Astoria on Nov. 4. Of this meeting Dunkle says: "Before I left Capt. Loose asked Dr. Cook a number of questions about his polar trip. I heard the captain ask the Doctor if he had taken his altitudes while on the trip to the Pole—that is, the altitude of the horizon. Dr. Cook replied that he had not.

"'Well, if that is so,' replied the captain, 'then you cannot hope to convince the scientists that you reached the North Pole.'"

Visit to Ship Supply Store.

Both Captain Loose and Mr. Dunkle tell of a visit to the shop of John Bliss & Co. at 128 Front street a few days after the captain's talk with the explorer at the Waldorf, and of purchasing for Dr. Cook various nautical and astronomical works, besides three charts of Smith Sound and the polar regions. Robert Flight, who sold the books and charts, told a reporter of The Times that he recalled the visit and that the purchases were made as described. The charts he sold, Mr. Flight said, were numbered 260, 274 and 275. He knew Captain Loose intimately, and recalled having asked him when the charts were bought if the captain intended going to the North Pole. "And from what I have known of the captain's experience as a navigator and his acquaintance with everything pertaining to observations," said Mr. Flight, "I would bet that if anyone could find his way to the Pole Captain Loose is that man."

Frequent Conferences With Cook.

Captain Loose, in his statement, says he stayed at the Gramatan Hotel from November 16 to November 19, working out observations for Dr. Cook, and that he and the doctor had frequent conferences. Mr. Dunkle went with him on November 16, leaving the next day, he and the captain having connecting rooms Nos. 126 and 128. Mr. Dunkle registered for them. The hotel register shows the arrivals on November 16 of George H. Dunkle and "Andrew H. Lewis," the fictitious name agreed upon for Captain Loose. They were assigned to rooms 126 and 128.

Thanked Profusely by Cook.

Capt. Loose says he remained secluded in his room during his stay at the hotel so as to run no chance of having the doctor found out. All the time he worked hard on the polar calculations, giving them to Dr. Cook as they were completed.

In the last day of his stay at the hotel, Captain Loose says, he gave Dr. Cook the final set of observations he had made for him, and the doctor thanked him profusely, declaring that he now felt confident that his records would be accepted at Copenhagen.

CANADA SHOULD SETTLE CONTROVERSY.

With the news of the arrival of Dr. Cook's records at Copenhagen for submission to the University there, comes a story from New York that will fan the embers of the Cook-Peary controversy into a fierce flame. It is no less than the charge, made under oath, that two New York men were employed to fabricate evidence in support of Dr. Cook's claim to be the original discoverer of the North Pole. Dr. Cook himself disappeared two weeks ago, and the men preferring the charge against him frankly say that his failure to pay them the full amount agreed upon actuated them in the making of their declarations.

Cook's claim to have ascended Mount McKinley has always been enshrouded in doubt. The fact that his evidence was unconvincing was used by those who did not believe his assertions that he discovered the North Pole as the basis of their demand for indisputable proofs. And in the face of the story published this morning the ranks of the doubters are sure to be strengthened, even though the University of Copenhagen should decide in Cook's favour.

Commander Peary's manner of dealing with Cook's claims offended many who were inclined to impose confidence in him. He has, however, always contended that "the truth would out," and to-day's story is bound to have a considerable effect in supporting his claim to be the first white man to locate the Pole.

But perhaps the best way to settle the whole controversy would be to have the Pole discovered by a Canadian, and to make sure that when he locates it his observations are verified by other white men qualified to speak with authority. Then there would be no sarcastic questioning as to the reliability of Eskimos and coloured gentlemen of undoubted bravery, but of negligible standing in the scientific world.—Toronto Globe.

THEY RECOMMEND PERMANENT ASSESSORS

Special Committee Selected Mr. T. B. McGrath and Mr. W. H. Thompson, His Assistant, at Salaries of $700 and $400 Respectively, the Former to Work the Entire Year.

NOTES OF THE MEETING

The special committee appointed by the Council to consider the appointment of permanent assessors met last night with Mayor Rush in the chair and the following recommendation was passed:

Moved by Ald. Morgan and Hicks, that T. B. McGrath be appointed assessor at a salary of $700 a year, and W. H. Thompson assistant assessor at a salary of $400 a year, dating from Jan. 1st, 1910, the assessor to give his whole time to the work of assessing in such other work as the Council may direct and the assistant to give his time to the work of assessing from Feb. 1st in each year until the work of making the assessment for that year is completed and the assessment roll returned to the City Clerk the assessor and assistant to sign the rolls before they are returned."

Were Unanimous.

The members of the committee were Ald. Hicks, Morgan, Duffus and Gillespie. At the outset it was unanimously decided to recommend the appointment of two permanent assessors. Ald. Hicks suggested that the steps be followed in natural order and said they should decide whom they would recommend for the positions, what their salaries would be, and the duty they should be called upon to perform. Mr. T. B. McGrath and Mr. Wm. H. Thompson were the assessors last year at salaries of $600 and $500 respectively. Mr. Thompson wrote to the committee stating that he would be willing to accept the position, if permanent, at $400 a year. It was felt that the two men who acted last year should be appointed. City Clerk Armstrong explained the duties of the assessors. They commenced about Feb. 1st and the rolls had to be handed in by Oct. 1st. They also had to attend the meetings of the Court of Revision that followed. This year Mr. McGrath did this himself and Mr. Thompson returned to his former work.

Ald. Hicks stated that he considered that an assessor and an assistant should be appointed. It was desired that an uniformity of taxes should be reached in the city. Everybody would then stand upon the same ground. Mayor Rush stated that he had two lots for sale and they were assessed at $480 and he would willingly sell them for $400. He had spoken to Mr. McGrath about it but the explanation given was satisfactory and supported the assessment figures.

A question was raised by Ald. Gillespie about the appointment of the men this year. He thought that it might be possibly as well to leave it until the next Council met. Ald. Duffus considered that it was as well now as next year and put forth arguments supporting his opinion. The other members held similar views and Ald. Gillespie said that he was not objecting to the appointment now, but he thought it was placing probably an added expense upon the new Council.

Another point that was debated was that of Mr. Thompson being made responsible as is Mr. McGrath. It was decided that both should sign the rolls, the difference in salaries representing the time that Mr. Thompson is not working. Mr. McGrath will be employed throughout the entire year, but his assistant will be free after Oct. 1st, when the rolls should be returned, until the following February, when the next year's work will be begun. A special meeting of the Council will have to be called shortly to receive the report of this committee.

ANOTHER ONE HAS BEEN ARRAIGNED FOR PERJURY

Another charge of perjury was preferred against a witness in the liquor case against the Oriental hotel before Magistrate Dumble. Victor Fowler was arrested last night by P. C. Newhall and was arraigned before His Worship in court this morning. He was charged with swearing that he did not receive anything to drink early Monday morning, December 22nd, whereas in truth he did. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood was not ready to go on with the prosecution and the case was enlarged until Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Bail of $500 was granted the prisoner in two sureties of $250.

FOR CHARITY

Clothing Will be Accepted for Two Children Under Three Years of Age

A case of deserving charity is that of two children, the oldest of whom is three years of age and who are in need of heavy clothing now that winter has set in. The parents are not in a position to provide the necessary garments for the severities of a Canadian winter and as there are many people throughout the city who could undoubtedly assist them by gifts of the clothing desired, Mrs. F. Miller, Water St., who had been assisting the family, will accept any donations of clothes that will be suitable for children of their tender years. The case is a deserving one and will surely meet with the sympathy it deserves.

THE PRIZE WINNERS AT GUELPH TO-DAY

Special to The Examiner.

Guelph, Dec. 9.—Perhaps the most important competition of the Winter Fair, that of best beef animal, was decided this morning, James Leeck, of Green Bank, winning the coveted ribbon. Special Drummond Cup, given for the best pen of five lambs, any breed, was awarded John Kelly, of Shakespeare. Demonstrations on horse judging drew crowds all morning. Discussions were conducted by Mr. Wm. Smith, of Columbus, John Gardhouse, and Mr. H. Reed, of the O. A. C., and Dr. Routledge, of Lambeth, each point on Clydesdale, Shires, Thoroughbreds and Standard breds being illustrated with horses led on to the platform for that purpose.

DIES IN NEW YORK

Cornwall, Dec. 9.—J. G. Snetsinger, ex-M.P., died last night in New York city, aged 77 years.

THE VALUE OF TURPENTINE

When all else fails the physician recommends his wealthy patient to take a trip to the turpentine groves as a cure for throat and lung troubles. The turpentine of commerce cannot very well be used but by adding linseed Dr. Chase succeeded in getting up the most effective treatment for throat and lung troubles that was ever discovered. It is known as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

FINED $29.75 FOR ASSAULT UPON A MAN

For assaulting a man on Monday night, an East City resident was fined twenty dollars and costs, amounting to $29.75, in the police court this morning. He pleaded not guilty, but the evidence was such that his Worship made a conviction, imposing the above fine. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution.

The informant stated that he was returning to his home in East City on Monday night about eleven o'clock. He was pasing the Maple Leaf hotel when the prisoner called him back and asked him if he had a dollar. Witness told him that he hadn't. The accused then struck him between the eyes and knocked him down. As the complainant went to get up he came at him a second time, striking him in the face with his fist. Witness got away and came to the police station.

P. C. Newhall testified to the accused calling at the police station on Monday night, when the complainant called. Latter's face was smothered with blood and there were two cuts on his face and lumps behind his ears. One eye was terribly swollen. He was pretty badly battered. The officer followed him patr of the way home to see that no one interfered with him.

The defendant in the witness box, stated that on Monday night he was standing on the verandha of the Maple Leaf Hotel, when the plaintiff came along and said, "I owe you some money." The accused asked him to give it to him if he could spare it. An argument followed as to whether it was 90 cents or $1.00 that Guy had paid defendant's wife and a scuffle ensued. He said that he only shoved Guy and that he must have received his injuries in the fall.

Another witness stated that he saw Mr. Guy come along and heard the conversation about the money. He saw defendant hit Guy. Witness told him that he had better go home but Guy came back and they clinched. The accused struck Guy again.

The magistrate made an order that the informant be paid half the fine.

THE BACHELORS' BALL

The "At Home" under the auspices of the Bachelors of Peterborough in the Conservatory of Music Hall last night was a brilliant and enjoyable social success, reflecting the greatest credit upon the energetic committee that had the affair in hand. About seventy-five couples were present and there was no lack of partners on either side so that everyone had a most enjoyable evening. The music was furnished by a pianist from Toronto, who gave every satisfaction, and his delightful playing added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Recherche refreshments were served by Mr. T. H. Hooper, who catered for the event with his usual effectiveness.

The patronesses were Mrs. R. W. Travers, Mrs. John Crane, Mrs. P. Campbell, Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton, Mrs. C. Currier, Mrs. J. Hamilton, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer Mrs. Pearce, Mrs. R. R. Hall.

Mr. W. H. Burritt was honorary secretary for the event and the stewards were Messrs. Keith, G. Lech, J. B. Mimms, R. M. Armstrong, C. R. Cameron, W. S. Davidson, S. Rush, H. F. Hall, Chas. Ackerman.

WRECK OF THE OTTAWA ON LAKE SUPERIOR AS TOLD BY FIREMAN

Mr. D. A. Darragh Has Been Through Two Disasters on That Lake and Decides to Give up Sea Going---Steering Apparatus Broke During Gale and Vessel Was Lost---Broken by the Waves.

After passing safely through three wrecks, two of which were on Lake Superior, Mr. D. A. Darragh, who was fireman on the ill-fated G.T.R. steamer, "Ottawa", which was driven ashore with its steering gear broken and useless off White Fish Point three weeks ago, has decided to forsake the sailing life and in future will prefer the feeling of terra firma beneath his foot rather than the deck of a rolling vessel. Mr. Darragh was fireman on the Ottawa which has since been broken and shattered on the Lake Superior shore near White Fish Point and not even a broken spar has been picked up as a memento of the wreck. The vessel was going from Ft. William with 90,000 bushels of grain and on this trip, which was referred to in the press at that time, a storm was encountered on the Monday referred to. It was at first a severe wind disturbance, but soon changed to snow and froze almost as it fell, coating the deck and rigging of the vessel.

Floated Like a Tub.

About eight o'clock that evening the apparatus controlling the rudder snapped and could not be repaired temporarily. The big hulk immediately surrendered to the gale and tossed and tumbled about with every gust and at the mercy of the unrelenting waves. "You have seen a tub casting about aimlessly and helplessly, so you can imagine what it would be like. Well, for more than an hour that is the experience we went through. The Ottawa was tossed around and round like a top. You can hardly appreciate how lifeless and inert it was, offering not the slightest resistance to the forces that were slowly driving it toward the shore and destruction.

The Captain ordered every man to the boats shortly after nine o'clock, when it was found that nothing could be done and it was feared that the boat would settle at any moment. We were then about eighteen miles from the beach.

Long boats were manned and put out into a frothing sea, in the snow and the teeth of the gale. One of the men was a young man of 19 years. It was likewise his first trip and after the steering gear went to the bad he lost all his nerve and had to be helped into the boat where he lay in the bottom like dead. As every big wave would wash over us its crest dashing over the side would nearly drown him as he lay in the bottom. When he reached shore he disappeared and none of us had any idea where he had gone. We all landed safely not a man being lost.

Hard to Get Men.

The Superior route is all right until the first of September, and after that it begins to get rough and you cannot tell when you are going to meet a rough trip. For that reason the men are averse to working after that date, and a great majority of them quit and the companies are forced to engage green men. The most of them are a little afraid of Superior and its treacherous late season storms.

I have now been through three wrecks, and I believe I have made my last trip. That is my present intention, not to go back to the water. I was on the Bannockburn when it broke in two on Superior a few years ago. I only know five of the crew who came through that affair with their lives, the rest having been lost. I was also on a vessel that went through the lock at Cornwall several times and made us hustle a bit before we were out of danger."

The Ottawa went to pieces on White Fish Point, nothing being saved of her entire cargo and the vessel itself was broken into match wood. Mr. Darragh states that Lake Superior is considered a treacherous water by old sailors and particularly during the last months in every year when the gales are more frequent and the trips are therefore looked upon as more dangerous.

HORSES DRIVEN INTO GAP IN PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE

Three Verulam Farmers Spend Trying Time in Tuesday Night's Gale---Bridge Broken by the Battering of the Ice---Farmer Named Sherman Slipped Into Water in Endeavour to Land His Team.

Examiner Special.

Bridgenorth, Dec. 9.—Three Verulam farmers returning home on Tuesday night from Peterborough met with an experience in crossing the bridge at Pigeon Creek that they will not soon forget. The wind had blown hard all afternoon and had dashed the ice up against the bridge, breaking it in several places. In the evening three farmers residing in Verulam Township, Victoria county, were returning home after delivering grain at Peterborough, and not knowing the condition of the bridge, the foremost man, a Mr. Sherman, drove his team into the opening. The others stopped in time, but they were unable to rescue Mr. Sherman's team, unassisted, and had to send for other assistance.

Under Difficulties.

The wind was sweeping along at a hurricane clip, and was cold and bit-

THE EXAMINER'S CHRISTMAS SPECIAL ISSUED ON SATURDAY

The Examiner's special Christmas edition will be published on Saturday of this week and promises to be the most complete and the best that has ever been issued from this office, a statement that has considerable force when some of the Christmas numbers that have been published by The Examiner are taken into consideration. The 1909 Holiday number will contain thirty-two pages brimful of interesting and unusual features that will make the issue one well worth preserving. There will be Christmas stories and Christmas articles, Christmas pictures, and last, but not least, Christmas advertising. A magazine section profusely illustrated will be a feature of the edition that should prove pleasing to every reader, as it contains many things of merit and interest. Local interest is augmented considerably by the fact that in the issue there will appear many beautiful photographs of local children. Some fond parents in this city are due for a surprise when the Christmas edition of the Examiner is issued as the photographs of many of the children are being published without the knowledge of the parents. Last year The Examiner published a number of similar pictures and the innovation was so well received that it has been decided to carry out this plan again for the 1909 edition. A large amount of attractive Christmas advertising will be found so that in addition to being interesting, the special number will be found profitable, as it will give the people of Peterborough much valuable advice as to Christmas gifts and the places where they may be secured.

Those who have not sent in their advertising copy for Saturday's Examiner are given notice that all copy for the special edition must be in by noon on Friday.

Four thousand Examiners will be printed on Saturday so that there will be extra copies available for those who wish to send them to friends outside the city. The papers intended for that purpose will be sold complete with a mailing tube for 5c.

The Examiner Christmas number will be well worth preserving and citizens should remember to get a copy on Saturday, remembering the experience last year when the edition was completely exhausted before 9 o'clock on the evening on which it was published.

PHOTOGRAPH OF TUESDAY'S FIRE IN BUSINESS SECTION.

The above photograph is an interesting picture of the scene at the height of the disastrous fire which visited the establishment of Mr. T. D. MacGregor on Tuesday afternoon. It shows the crowd which quickly gathered to view the blaze, and also gives some idea of the volume of smoke that poured from the burning store. The photograph was taken by Mr. Fred Roy, of the Roy Studio, who, although in the midst of the rush of Christmas business, managed to get several splendid pictures of the fire, and to finish them up within two hours of the sounding of the alarm.

ANOTHER ADVANCED STEP.

The Intercolonial Railway was built as a condition of political agreement and not as an answer to traffic and travel demands. It had an advantage over the Trent Canal in its present condition; the railway had one end through in the opposite direction for a long time that led to nowhere. As it had chiefly its roadbed to draw nourishment from, it didnt' thrive. It has had to be papped for half a century, and has swallowed up a tidy roll of the people's money. On rare occasions and under unusual stimulus the Intercolonial has consented to give out at the end of a year a dollar or two more than was put into it. It has nearly always yielded a deficit at the end of a fiscal year. The Dominion Government tried to improve conditions. Hon. Mr. Emmerson surprised himself, the public and the Intercolonial itself by squeezing out a surplus. Later the road was put under a commission or obard of management. This seemed to be a step in the right direction of improvement and in Parliament on Monday another important step was taken, that of authorizing the Minister of Railways to lease branch lines as feeders to the national railway. This is hoped to work an improvement unless the railway so long accustomed to feeding from the public crib does not take kindly to being fed from any other source. However the move is in the right direction and promises not only to develop a large volume of traffic for the line, but to promote the interests of the districts served by the branch lines giving them an outlet they have not had in the past.

GOOD ROADS AND GOOD SENSE.

Never a more important statement was made than that made by Mr. A. W. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Public Works for Ontario and Good Roads missioner and enthusiast at the Guleph winter fair luncheon. Mr. Campbell said that what was urgently wanted in regard to good roads was to get outside the sphere of experimentation. Ever since Canada was Canada the matter of roadmaking, so called, has been the subject of experimentation in corpore vili, a sort of vivisection. Strong hearted scientists, under the name of vivisection, make experiments upon the bodies of living animals, to see how far they can be chopped to pieces without destroying life. For years and years the people of Ontario seem to have been conducting the experiment of seeing how far they could mutilate and maltreat public highways without destroying them bodily as they do facially. In the matter of good usable roads, in the matter of common sense roadmaking, the farmer of this province is as far behind what he should be as he would be if he had retained the reaping hooks with which his forbears gathered their crops. If a farmer of to-day tilled his fields as he builds his highways, he would have an empty barn and an empty stomach. The Garden of Eden wouldn't yield a crop under such persuasion. Yet good roads are as essential to the best farming results as a spout to an eave trough. Good roads are as essentially connected with good farming as an outlet to a field drain. Without a proper and free outlet the efficiency of the drain is impaired Without the outlet of good roads the profits of the farm are diminished. In town as well as city the public highways are everlasting quicksands that swallow up the money of the taxpayers, scattered broadcast by the hand of incompetency and voluntary ignorance. Good roads and good sense should go together, but the poles are not farther asunder than they are—that is in practice.

EMPIRE REALITY AND DREAM.

There is, and there will doubtless continue to be, only one Empire of the type of the British Empire, at least until the "Federation of the World" foreseen and sung by Tennyson, comes into existence. The British Empire is unique; geographically disintegrant, but united by bonds of sentiment more than any other bond. Empires like the Russian, German, and Austrian, are geographical units. The British seem to be the only empire-builders, and the world has little need to be advised to beware of imitations. It is the result of the law of expansion. The people of the British Isles found themselves crowded, and they pushed off their crafts into the sea, and sought new homes in other lands washed by other seas, where they took root, transplanting the same love of freedom, the same principles of equity and high political morality, love of justice, and the moulding vitality of Christianity, that obtained in the home land. Like the British constitution the British Empire is a development as well as a growth. One by one the scattered colonial units, nourished by the blood of the mother, have grown to adolescence; from adolescence to nationhood, to independent sovereignty, in all essential respects, but still as much a part of the central power as the right hand is of the body. Human history records no such union of great powers. The Roman Empire, wide as was its spread, was merely an octopus; a great central head, throwing out tentacles that fastened by their tribute suckers upon oppressed and tax harried states. Such an empire could not stand; there was no common bond of interest, no communal spirit, no nerve-system of sentiment, like that in the British empire that thrills through every member, and gives vitality and strength to the almost intangible material and political connections. There can be only one British Empire and the United States have learned this. They cherished the idea of acquiring dependencies in all parts of the world and establishing the principle and fact of an empire. They had no difficulty in cuckooing that venerable relic of empire, Spain, out of the Philippines and Cuba. But there the dream of empire, for it never got beyond that stage, has ended. It is admitted that American rule in the Philippines has been a failure; and Cuba is a most troublesome infant. The only expansion open to the United States is upward. This does not mean northward, for Canada blocks the way. It means a growing upward in all the essentials that make a nation great; in culture, in education, in refinement, in the elevation to the level of citizenship according to the Anglo-Saxon—the British idea—of the heterogeneous ethnical mass that constitutes a great part of its population. It cannot expand northward for Canada is there with its own tap root thrust deep into this continent, and other roots are thrust in three continents, and the isles of the sea that hold the British Empire. Canada cannot be dislodged without widespread upheaval. And there is no desire on the part of our neighbours to disturb the present relation. No nation can forever feed on itself. The United States has long been sufficient unto itself. But its vacant spaces are filling and it must obey the great law that makes trade intercourse as necessary as human intercourse. We shall continue to live in amity with our neighbours. It is our mutual interest to maintain this implied as well as actual relation. We may have little tariff tiffs like that in the air at present, but like marital tiffs, they will subside and leave the bond of common interest unimpaired. The only menace to imperial integrity and that is only one of sound and fury, signifying nothing, is Germany. Germany has dreams of Empire, but she cannot become a serious rival in this regard with Great Britain. She began too late in the day to develop the true colonising and Empire-making spirit. She never had Britain's apprenticeship. As the years roll on the ties of empire become tighter and stronger. The problem of imperial defence, of imperial cooperation, of imperial consolidation solves itself. The self-governing Dominions of the Empire fall in line without friction. The British navy will soon have a sturdy flock of fledglings in three quarters of the globe.

IMPERIALISM DECLINING.

(Toronto Star.)

The anti-imperialists have held a meeting in Boston. They declare that American rule in the Philippines has been a failure and that "the imperial bubble has broken." The latter declaration at least is true. The people of the United States have abandoned the idea of imitating the British Empire, and of acquiring dependencies and colonies in various parts of the world. They hold on to the Philippines because it is easier to hold on than to let go; but all the dreams of a world-wide empire governed from Washington have vanished. The ambitions of the United States, if not confined to their present territory, are centred upon the continent.

The British Empire is the result of natural and almost necessary development. The British Islands are in Europe, but not of Europe. A seafaring and adventurous people found themselves cramped for space in two small islands; they roamed the world in search of trade and adventure, and to colonize new lands. Thus grew up the greatest empire in the world, the greatest shipping mercantile navy, the greatest fighting not in the exact wording of treaties, but in the trade returns; in the actual exchange of products. The trade returns show that Canada, upon broad-practical and statesmanlike grounds, is entitled to the most friendly treatment from the United States.

Instead of asking us to give up the French treaty, which was negotiated long before the Aldrich law was passed, and was not intended to affect American trade, our neighbours should have their own tariff law amended, so as to make an intelligent distinction between friends and enemies. A law which stamps as an enemy a customer who buys $150,000,000 worth of American goods is surely not acceptable to the American people.

TORTURED BY PILES

Could Not Rest! Could Not Work! Could Not Play!

HOW ZAM-BUK BROUGHT RELIEF.

Mr. Julius Glacier of Denbigh, Ont., says: "I was so tortured by piles that I could not get ease whether lying down, sitting, or standing. The ailment robbed me of strength, of appetite, and of all desire to live! I had suffered so long and so acutely that I came to think there was no ease for me, but one day I found out that I was wrong!

"I was told that Zam-Buk cured piles, and that this balm was altogether different to ordinary ointments, scores of which I had proved useless for so bad a case as mine was. I got a supply of Zam-Buk, and began to use it regularly.

"Without going into unnecessary detail, in a few weeks I found myself cured. I owe my cure to Zam-Buk entirely, and I trust my experience will be the means of leading other sufferers to try this great herbal balm."

Nothing need be added to this plain powerful testimony save one question —if you suffer like Mr. Glacier did, why not get relief from the same source as he did?

Zam-Buk — as he truly says — is "something different" to the ordinary ointments and salves. It is a powerful combination of healing and soothing herbal essences. No mineral astringents or poisons; no impure animal fats.

It is a proved cure for inflamed areas (as in piles) erysipelas, eczema ulcers, sores, abscesses, cold cracks, chapped hands, burns, cuts, scalp sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. It is the most suitable balm for children's rashes. All druggists and stores at 50c box, or post-free from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto, for price.

HORSES DRIVEN INTO GAP ON LAKE

ing. The bridge was covered with ice some of which had been cast up by the waves, and the water had frozen in other places. A number of farmers responded to the request for help. Under the most unfavourable and discouraging conditions the men combined to attempt the rescue of the horses. In this work Mr. Sherman lost his footing and slipped into the water, and might have been drowned had not Mr. Thos. Flood caught him by one shoulder and drawn him out again with the assistance of the other men.

One Horse Dropped Dead.

After a great deal of hard work the team was drawn out on to the bridge but it was too late, for one of them fell dead almost immediately. The other was so benumbed and exhausted that it could not stand and the men had to hitch a team to it and draw it a distance of half a mile to the shore and helped it to a farmer's stable, where it received careful attention, and in the morning had almost fully recovered. In the morning Reeve Michael Perdue of Ennismore, was called and found the bridge broken in three places and also that it had been moved out of place one hundred feet for a distance of about a quarter of a mile. The Reeve ordered the bridge closed at both ends until the caretaker, Mr. Flood, could obtain the material to repair it. If the weather is at all favourable it is expected that this will be accomplished in a short time and the bridge will be again open to traffic. The horse Mr. Sherman lost was valued at $180. and was only five years old. It had been dragged up on shore during the night.

An Awful Night.

The majority of people did not stir out of doors on Tuesday night, but hugged their cheery fireside and thanked their fates that duty or necessity did not take them into the gale that was blowing. It was one of the fiercest wind storms in a long time, and accompanied by snow as it was, made it all the worse. When the situation on the broken end of that bridge is taken into consideration one can realize to a slight extent the experience these men endured.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES ATCHISON.

The death occurred at Bobcaygeon yesterday of Mrs. James Atchison, after an illness of two weeks from pleurisy and pneumonia. She was sixty-one years of age and was born in Ireland. Previous to removing to Bobcaygeon twenty years ago she was a resident of Peterborough. She was a woman of many estimable qualities and was highly respected by all who knew her. Her husband predeceased her three years ago.

Two sons and one daughter, Messrs. Wm. West, of this city, and M. J. Atchison and Miss Maud Atchison, of Bobcaygeon and one sister, Miss Maggie Lowry, of Peterborough are left to mourn her loss.

The remains will arrive here tomorrow on the 11.26 C.P.R. train and the funeral will take place to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

ROUNDED UP IN MONTANA

"Rocky Boy's" Band of 122 Have Been Captured in the States.

Washington, Dec. 9.—"Rocky Boy's" band of Indians, said to belong in Canada, have been rounded up in Montana, under the superintendent of the Blackfeet Indian Reservation, according to information received at the Interior Department. There are 122 persons in the band, who have been roaming around the country desultorily living as best they could.

When they were taken in hand their ponies were sadly in need of subsistence, and the Interior Department authorized the expenditure of $1,000 for that purpose. The band will be held during the winter at the Blackfeet agency, and next spring will be taken to the border of the reservation.

WILL OPEN SLIDES

Tobogganing Will Be in Full Swing as Soon As the Weather Permits.

The young people of the city will learn with pleasure that the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. intend to open the toboggan slides in the near future if the weather continues favourable and the necessary snow falls. The rink will also be maintained and outdoor sports of last year will be encouraged to the same extent as before. Mr. Larmonth stated to-day to the Examiner that the opening of the slide and rink depended upon the weather, which is now suggestive of midwinter.

WEDDING BELLS

LITTLE—NORTHEY.

A very pleasant event took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. James Northey, Queen-St., Lakefield, when his daughter, Pearl B., was united in marriage to Mr. Henry A. Little, of Hall's Glen. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Bedford in the presence of a few of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. They were attended only by Misses Myrtle and Ella Northey, sister and niece of the bride as pretty little flower girls, while Miss Stella Northey played the wedding march. The bride was given away by her father, and was charmingly attired in a beautiful gown of cream eolienne over silk embroidered with orange blossoms and pearls, wearing tulle veil and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses.

While congratulations were being extended Mr. Ira Snelgrove, of St. Thomas, brother of the groom, sang "The Crown" by Rae, after which the wedding supper was served. The bride was the recipient of a large array of beautiful presents, the groom's present being a black Persian lamb coat and bracelets to the flower girls. Mr. and Mrs. Little, will reside at Hall's Glen, where they will be followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

HOCKEY

Hockey's First Indian.

Belleville Intelligencer: Talking of that intermediate team, we are going to have a bunch that will make the railbirds sit up and smile? Well, rather. And the team that takes their measure will surely know they have been playing something different to dominoes.

There are a couple of dark horses, for one of them is an Indian from Deseronto, who is said to be a regular Longboat on skates. Then we will have dashing Charlie Bedboro, who cut such a wide swath on the Picton team last year. In goal we will have Spangenberg. Pepper at point, of course. Burke, on the wing should be on edge this winter. And there are some others. But take the tip—Belleville intermediate team this winter will be hard to keep up with—and harder to stop.

Mr. Ed. Wettlaufer, Vice President of the O. H. A., was in the city last night on his way to Port Hope on business. Mr. Wettlaufer is a brother of Mr. Nelson Wettlaufer, of the Bell Telephone Company, and is an authority on hockey matters. He has been on a business trip throughout the district, and says that Belleville, Port Hope and Trenton will all have teams in the intermediate O. H. A.

JOHN DREW INJURED

Well Known Actor Hurt by Being Thrown From His Horse.

Ne wYork, Dec. 8.—John Drew, who is appearing in "Inconstant George," the actor was thrown from his horse while riding with his daughter on the bridle path in Central Park yesterday and seriously injured. The horse trampled on the actor as he lay on the ground.

The extent of his injuries is not known. Mr. Drew is at present appearing in a play in this city.

Later the physicians announced that Mr. Drew had received a severe fracture of the left shoulder and it was feared that he had been injured internally.

SALOON LAWS ARE DRASTIC

In Vancouver, Washington, Now It Is Illegal to Ask a Friend to Have a Drink.

Vancouver, Wash., Dec. 9.—Mayor Kiggins has signed the drastic ordinance regulating saloons in this city and now all of the twenty-eight saloonkeepers are preparing sales of furniture, chairs, tables, phonographs, music boxes, moving picture outfits, pianos and such plunder, as all of these articles are strictly prohibited.

The ordinance will allow the saloons to remain open from 7 a. m. until 10 p. m. on week days. Of course, the saloons will be closed all day Sunday.

The most talked of feature of the strict ordinance is the one prohibiting treating. The law went into effect yesterday, and on and after that day, when a friend desires to take a drink with a friend, he will be constrained to say, "Let's have a Dutch treat," or words to that effect.

GYPSY HAWKINS COMING TO THE CITY

One of the best evangelists who have ever visited Peterborough will open a mission in the Park Street Baptist Church on Sunday, January 2nd, to the 14th. Gipsy Hawkins comes to Canada highly recommended by such men as Rev. Evan Jones, president of the National Council of Evangelical Free Churches of England."

Mr. Jones says of Mr. Hawkins: "He stands in the front rank of evangelists, who are being used of God in the work of evangelization among all classes, and is dearly loved by all."

Peter Will, the secretary of the Dundee United Evangelistic Association, says: "His preaching is thoroughly evangelical. He states the truth intelligently, faithfully, earnestly."

Rev. James Douglas, pastor of the Keugar Baptist Church, of which Gipsy Hawkins is a member, says: "His picty and consecration of spirit has been marked features in his character and his gift as a speaker impressed me greatly when he was but a lad."

Rev. John Wilson, pastor of the Woolwich Tabernacle, and ex-president of the Baptist Union, says: "He is well known to all leaders of the Christian church in this country. He is in the front rank as an evangelist."

Allan Stewart, of Glasgow, himself a prominent worker for souls, says: "Gipsy Hawkins will tell his life story the last night of the mission, entitled "From Gipsy Boy to Pulpit."

Norman MacPherson, minister of the Trinity United Free Church, Charlotte street, Glasgow, says of him, "Mr. John Hawkins is well known to me as an evangelist of great spiritual power. He knows his Bible thoroughly, believes it fully, preaches it freshly and faithfully, and lives it consistently. He knows men and shows great tact in dealing with their spiritual condition."

Rev. Geo. H. Morrison, minister of Wellington Church, Glasgow, says: "There is no trace of cheap sensationalism in Gipsy Hawkins' methods and yet he reached many of whom we had almost despaired. His character corresponds with his calling, and profession."

These and many other kind things have been said about Gipsy Hawkins. The meetings are open to all, and all who attend this mission will undoubtedly be blessed.

BASKETBALL GAME LAST NIGHT

Was you in the crowd last night that saw the basketball game? Well it was a game played in the good old fashioned way, and every one that was there enjoyed it. It was a little rough in places, but that didn't seem to bother the spectators in the least, in fact they seemed to enjoy it more than the players. Leach, of the Normal School, scored the first point of the game, and the Business College didn't like that a little bit, for they kicked things around so that they stirred the Normal School up, and up they went and they played good basket ball for a little while. The first half ended 4-1 in favour of the Normal School.

The second half started and talk of excitement. Well, it was simply great. You couldn't hardly call it baskeball; you know it was half way between basketball and football. The spectators couldn't see where there was any fouling, but the referee saw all kinds of fouls, and he had to call some of them, so as to give the players a little rest, or they would be in bed yet. McKone was the man with the good eye for the basket and he did some shooting that was appreciated by the spectators. It was a hard fight and the game ended 11-6 in favour of the Normal School.

Line-up:—

Normal School		Business Col.
Grenzebach	L.F.	L. Stevens
Leech	R.F.	P. Billington

Montgomery	L.G.	L. Derocher

REGARDING MR. LASTAR'S LETTER OF MONDAY

Regarding Mr. Lastar's Monday letter, gentlemen who are supporting the Local Option campaign and others in Peterborough have taken exception to, and offence at some portions of the letter written by Mr. B. Lastar, which appeared in the columns of the Examiner on Monday, December 8th.

The view appears to be taken by some that the Examiner is in sympathy with Mr. Lastar's manner of writing, so far as his abuse of the ministers of the city is concerned. Such is not the case, and we are no more in sympathy with this style of campaign, directed against the local ministers than we would be if directed against any other body of respectable men, or, in fact, any individual or body of men in the city, and we particularly feel so in regard to the letter of Monday.

We do not feel that any cause is helped by heaping abuse on opponents.

The Examiner deprecates the use of personalities and in future will see that such are eliminated from all Local Option or anti Local Option correspondence, paid or otherwise.

THE ABBATOIR QUESTION

Brantford, Dec. 6.—Brantford is planning to deal with the question of meat supply and adequate inspection in the near future. For some time there have been evidences that diseased meat is being offered for sale and the medical health officer and inspector have pointed out to the Board of Health that it is impossible to have a proper inspection after the meat has been slaughtered and quartered. In order to make the inspection thorough they say it is necessary that it take place at the time of slaughter, for the only way to detect disease is in the glands. After the animals are quartered these are missing, and it is no longer possible to give a definite opinion as to the quality of the meat, which, while it may look all right, may be alive with tubercular germs. Hence the local authorities are moving towards the establishment of a municipal abattoir.

REV. MR. DANIELS ON MISSIONS

Rev. Dr. Daniels, field secretary in Ontario and Quebec, for the Western Canada missions, addressed a fair-sized audience on the work of the Baptist church in the missionary line in the far western provinces. The speaker has spent several years in the West and he is well acquainted with the work being done out there. His work at the present time takes him to all parts of Ontario and Quebec.

The address of Rev. Dr. Daniels last night dealt with the difficulties and the encouragements in connection with the work. The difficulties arising from the fact that the country is so large and the incoming settlers are scattered so far away from the main railroad lines that there is a demand for a great many new missions, and it is hard to secure men to fill the posts. Then the foreign element is so large that it is difficult to secure men who can speak their languages.

Some of the encouragements, however, are, that the majority of the settlers are from the British Isles, and the United States, and they are already practically Canadians. Even in the work among the foreigners there is the encouragement that they are greatly taken with the country and are doing well. They are a contented people and will soon come to love the country. They are also very ambitious for their children, realizing that they must become enlightened and like Canadians in order to do well here. This helps a great deal in the work among them.

The Baptist Church is doing a big work among the foreigners and the home church is taking a much deeper interest in it and is subscribing more liberally towards it.

DISCRIMINATING LADIES.

Enjoy Using Herpicide on Account of Its Distinctiveness.

The ladies who have used Newbro's Herpicide speak of it in the highest terms, for its quick effect in cleansing the scalp of dandruff and also for its excellence as a general hair-dressing. It makes the scalp feel fresh and it allays that itching which dandruff will cause. Newbro's Herpicide effectively cures dandruff, as it destroys the germ that causes it. The same germ causes hair to fall out, and later baldness; in killing it. Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. It is also an ideal hair dressing, for it lends an aristocratic charm to the hair that is quite distinctive. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by Jury & McDermid, Druggists; also Payne's drug store. One Dollar bottles guaranteed.

TROUBLE FOR THE SCHOOLS

Members of Congress Say Things About West Point and Annapolis.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Angered because they allege that there is a growing disposition to convert the academies at West Point and Annapolis into hereditary institutions for the education of the families of army and navy officers, certain members of Congress are threatening to stir up trouble for these institutions the coming session.

They propose to have an investigation made and to throw restrictions about the conduct of these institutions so as to give the sons and relatives of civilians an equal chance with the young men from army and navy families. It is charged that favoritism is shown in appointments to these schools and the relatives of army and navy officers have the best of it.

The matter when aired will undoubtedly be entertaining. Members who do not like the way things are going are asking whether the government has set out to establish an army and navy aristocracy.

BOY IS SHOT WHILE PARENTS WAIT IN THE DIVORCE COURT

Carthage, Mo., Dec. 8.—The news that their son had blown the top of his head off with a shotgun was brought to former County Assessor Sherman Qualls and wife today, as they sat in Division No. 1 of the Circuit Court and waited for their divorce court to be called. The dead boy, Herman, who would have been sixteen years old tomorrow, had gone duck hunting with some boy friends. Alone, he was following them up the Spring River. When out of sight of young Qualls his companion heard a gun roar. They found the boy had landed his boat and was lying on his back, the top of his head shot away. The position of the body and the gun would seem to indicate that death was accidental, but the boy had been moody. He took the trouble of his mother and father much to heart.

(NOT ON FRIDAY AS FIRST ANNOUNCED)

Judgment Has Been Reserved Until Monday In Liquor Case

Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment until Monday in the case against the proprietor of the Oriental hotel, charge with the illicit sale of liquor. More evidence for the defence was taken and P. C. Newhall and P. C. Meharry were recalled. During the course of the proceedings, Chief Roszel and Mr. G. M. Gordon, counsel for the defence, engaged in several lively tilts.

John T. Maunder, of Lindsay, stated that he came to the Oriental Hotel on Saturday night, November 20 On Sunday night the proprietor and he were out walking, returning to the hotel about 10.45. He stayed around the rotunda until he went to his room about five o'clock in the morning. He denied getting any drink there through the night, and the closest that he was to the bar door was to the lavatory. The proprietor could not have been in the bar thirteen times, as stated by P. C. Meharry, as he was with him all night. He denied having gone for a walk with the defendant early Monday morning.

"Take that last statement down, your Worship," broke in the chief.

"There is altogether too much bluff and intimidation in this case," said Mr. Gordon. "It is nothing but a persecution."

P. C. Newhall was recalled. Mr. Gordon asked that the witness be sworn, but His Worship refused as he had previously been sworn while giving evidence in the same case on Tuesday.

"I ask that the witness be sworn as there is likely to be action taken," said Mr. Gordon.

"Bluff again," replied the chief.

"Will you shut up. I am talking to the court," reiterated the counsel for the defence.

His Worship refused to swear Newhall and the latter proceeded. He identified Mr. Maunder as the man who was with Victor Fowler when served drinks by the proprietor. P. C. Newhall also swore that Mr. Maunder and the proprietor went out for a walk after one o'clock, going along Hunter St. to Aylmer and down Aylmer St. to Simcoe St.

During the cross examination of the witness, Mr. Gordon asked him this question, "Did you not say that you saw the defendant use a pump working it up and down."

"No, I said a pump arrangement," answered P. C. Newhall.

"I want that taken down, your Worship as I propose to lay a charge of perjury against Newhall," Mr. Gordon stated, but the magistrate refused to record it.

P. C. Adams was called and stated that he saw Mr. Maunder and the proprietor out walking early on the Monday morning.

P. C. Meharry was also called in rebuttal, after which His Worship stated that he would reserve judgment until Monday.

SURVEY OF LAKE

Engineers Will Spend the Winter at Rice Lake.

During the winter a survey will be made of Rice Lake under the direction of Mr. Alex. Grant. The work which has been started will be done over the ice and the entire lake will be covered. The purpose is to secure detailed information of the lake as a section of the Trent Canal system. The river betwe n Peterborough and the lake is also being surveyed. Mr. Mack, who is now at Hastings, will be the engineer in immediate charge of the work.

WARNING

Since its introduction into Canada the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations similar in name. Look out for them; they are not the genuine. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. You can always get the genuine at Wm. Madill's.

Parisian Sage is the quickest acting and most efficient hair tonic in the world.

It is made to conform to Dr. Sangerbond's (of Paris) proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness and scalp itch are caused by germs.

Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks, or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.

And remember that baldness is caused by dandruff germs, those little hard working, persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.

Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing, not stick or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using it. 50 cents a large bottle.

DRUGGED WHISKEY

Some Queer Mixtures Sold at Fort William —One Man Goes Blind After a Few Drinks.

Examiner Special,

Fort William, Dec. 7.—The despatch from Toronto stating that, according to Government information, poisoned whiskey is being sold in hotels here, has aroused a sensation, and would seem to shed light on several mysterious deaths recently. It is charged that some of the whiskey being retailed would cause death if consumed regularly for a few weeks. One man is known to have gone completely blind after drinking five glasses of doped liquor. It is believed by medical men that he may never regain his sight. Another man went to sleep and never woke after being drunk, and at the inquest last night Coroner Birdsall declared that there was morphine in the liquor in sufficient quantities to affect the optic nerves. Rigid investigation is demanded.

HERE'S A MESSAGE TO ALL WOMEN

Madame Letourneau Tells Them to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Read Why She Gives This Advice and How She was Relieved of Her Sufferings.

St. Paul du Buton, Montmagny Co., Que., Dec. 8.—Special.)—It is a message of hope that Madame F. X. Letourneau of this place sends to the suffering women of Canada.

"After my last child was born," she states, "I suffered with Kidney Disease which developed into Rheumatism, Sciatica and Backache. I was fearfully nervous. My limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins and pains in the back of my head and through the eyes. I was a perfect wreck.

"Chancing to read that my symptoms were those of Kidney Disease I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills and began to improve almost at once. Six boxes worked a complete cure."

Diseased Kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of the ills that make life a burden to so many women in Canada. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased Kidneys.

Mr. C. E. Pratt left last week to spend the winter months at Young's Point.

THREE O.H.A. TEAMS FROM STRATFORD

Stratford, Dec. 8.—The announcement that Stratford will have three teams in the O. H. A., senior, intermediate, and junior, will indeed be a surprise to the hockey fans throughout the city. But such, in effect was the decision reached at a meeting of the hockey Executive held last night.

The Executive felt that there was ample material in the city for three teams. Robert MacNicol has been appointed manager of the senior, and the duty of getting out the juniors will also devolve upon his shoulders.

The matter of grouping was discussed, but no decision was arrived at, the matter being left in the hands of he president. With three teams on the move hockey enthusiasts will surely have enough to keep them on the go this winter.

The meeting of the O. H. A. Executive on Monday, Dec. 13, will be awaited with interest. This grouping takes place at this meeting.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

SATURDAY'S RACE IN RINK ATTRACTS MUCH ATTENTION

The announcement that Tom Longboat and Billy Sherring would meet in a ten-mile race at the Brock Street Rink on Saturday night has caused considerable comment in Peterborough, and the indications are that there will be a bumper house to see the two great professionals perform. Both men are in good shape, and confident of winning with the view of getting a race with Shrubb afterwards. The little Englishman has invaded Ontario once more and is busy throwing out challenges to every one. The result of Saturday night's race will have a good deal to say about who will meet Shrubb next, as the agile Alfie will probably take on the winner and both are keen for a match with the Britisher.

The race will start at 9.30 o'clock, being set at that hour to allow the clerks an opportunity of seeing the big event. There will be roller skating before the race, with the band in attendance, and as it will be the last chance of the season for a turn on the rollers, the patrons of Brock Street will no doubt turn out in large numbers for a farewell skate. The programme will be augmented by a three mile roller skating race, and altogether it looks like a big night's sport.

HOCKEY PROSPECTS IN THE PETERBOROUGH DISTRICT

The cold snap has started the hockey bug going with a vengeance and fans in Peterborough are discussing the outlook for the season on every hand. The prospects are that Peterborough will be in a big group in the intermediate series. Lindsay, Port Hope, Belleville and Trenton will all have teams in that series and the probabilities are that Peterborough will be grouped with those four clubs, which wil make some district. Trenton with a new rink, has keen designs on the championship and according to all reports have a strong, well balanced team, which will be heard from later on. Belleville has all last year's team available, including Pepper, Burke, Allen and company and have in addition Bedboro of the Picton juniors, whose work was one of the features of the junior O.H.A. season last year. Nothing is known of the Port Hope team, but it is said they will be able to place a seven on the ice that will be plenty capable of holding its own with the other teams in the district. Lindsay has last year's forward line intact with the addition of Leo Cote, who was a star there a couple of years ago. Koyl, Sullivan and Newton, last year's sterling defence, are not available, and they are counting on either Goosie Taylor or Gamble of the Port Hope juniors for goal. Byron Green for point and Beatty, of Omee, for coverpoint and Beatty, Omemee, for coverpoint. That defence does not come up to the Newton-Sullivan-Koyl standard, but it will be some class just the same.

ARE DETROIT TIGERS DUE FOR A SLUMP NEXT SEASON

Are the Detroit Tigers due to slump during the season of 1910?

No team in organized baseball—or rather, in either of the big leagues—has been able to win the pennant more than three times in succession.

In the National the Pittsburg team three times in a row copped the bunting, and then dropped out of the running for several years. Last summer the Pirates came back into their own and copped the rag. Are they due to win it a couple of more times?

Chicago for three years in succession won the honors in the National, and also twice gathered in the world's championship. It was the desire of owner Murphy and Manager Chance to set a new record by taking four straights, but their hopes were blasted by the superior playing of the Pittsburg team.

In the American League, Detroit has captured the pennant three times in succession, landing the honour in 1907, 1908 and 1909. Can Jennings and his team repeat and thereby smash tradition? It is a much-mooted question.

Jennings is a resourceful chap and he may be able to turn the trick, but there are many who believe that the Tigers are doomed to disappointment in the next campaign. The clever move of the Detroit manager, in getting Delahanty from Washington and Jones from St. Louis late in the year, undoubtedly saved the Tigers. Rossman and Schaefer were going, and the addition of the new men prevented imminent danger.

The one ambition of Jennings' life since joining the American has been to win the world's series. He has had three cracks at the honour and three times he has failed. Last season he had an excellent chance to win but luck broke against him throughout. That Jennings is anxious for a fourth trial goes without saying. To get this chance he must of course again win the pennant. It would not be at all surprising if several deals were made this year in which some of the Detroit veterans figured.

While Jennings may not be able to see it, there are quite a few of the critics who are certain that the backstopping end of the Tigers must be strengthened. Schmidt has failed to deliver in the big show. Jennings evidently feared to trust Sanage, and Beckendorf was no doubt regarded as too inexperienced. Malachi Kittredge, the former big leaguer, who had charge of the Scranton club when Beckendorf caught there, insists that the big German is a better receiver than either Schmidt or Stanage. In all probability he will get a chance in 1910.

Can Bill Donovan come back next season? Will George Mullin repeat his remarkable work of 1909? Will Summers show dependable form and can Willetts get over his wildness? The Tigers could be strengthened in the box.

It's a cinch that Hugh Jennings is just a little wiser to the conditions of the Detroit team than any one else. That Jennings will bolster up his team if he can put through the deals is a certainty.

If anyone breaks through tradition by winning four pennants in a row, Hugh Jennings is likely to be the boy to turn the trick.

John Webb, who is said to be the "pugilistic father" of Jim Jeffries, while with a crowd of sportively inclined friends recently, related the following account of Jeff's first fistic venture:

"Down in Los Angeles, California, I was running a furnishing goods store. Among my customers was a youth about 17 years of age, who played and sold oranges about the street, and consequently was not dressed in the height of fashion. One day he came in to buy a shirt the sleeve of the one he had on having been torn out, displaying an arm that attracted my attention on account of its shapeliness, size and indication of strength.

"Being somewhat of a patron of the fistic art, I then sized the young man up and found that he was tall, weighed about 145 pounds, well proportioned and had the promise of making a man of unusual physical power. The proposition was then made to Jeff, for he it was, to come down to the club and have a little fistic set-to with some of the boys. At first he demurred but finally was prevailed upon to go, the $7.50 which was offered as a purse no doubt having something to do with his decision.

"He put his opponent out in three rounds. In his next scrap a few months later, he put his man out, and it took ten minutes to bring him back. These events, of course, began to be talked about in the town, which was not as big then as it is now, and finally got to the boy's father. They, although poor, were proud, and they did not relish the notoriety they were getting, and to remonstrate with me one of his two sisters came down to the store one day with a broom and drove me out the back door, saying she was not going to have me make a pugilist out of her brother.

"We got better acquainted afterward, and had many a good laugh over it. Nothing further important enough to chronicle happened until the match between Fitzsimmons and Corbett was made, and the principals, then training in Carson City, were looking about for sparring partners. On my recommendation, Corbett took him on, and in the first round Jim knocked Corbett down, and then jumped through the ropes, saying he did not want to go back, as he might kill him if it went any further.

"After much persuasion, and with the promise that he would not be expected to spar, but was to let Corbett do the punching, he went back. He said at that time, "I can lick Corbett, and in two years I can lick Fitz.' At that time he was only 21 years old.

"His subsequent career is ancient history. For his first important fight with Corbett he got $20,000, $15,000 of which he sent to his mother with which the family built a fine home."

Mr. Webb expressed the opinion that Jeff would win in his fight with Johnson.

Few Doses Put Bad Kidneys In Order

Lame Back, Bladder Misery and All Other Kidney Disorders Vanish.

Usually sufferers from backache, bladder trouble or out-of-order kidneys feel relieved after several doses of Pape's Diuretic.

Misery in the back, sides, or loins, sick headache, inflamed or swollen eyelids, nervousness, rheumatism, and darting pains, heart palpitations, dizziness, sleeplessness, listless, worn-out feeling, and other symptoms of inactive, sluggish kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night) smarting, discoloured water and all Bladder misery ends.

Feeling miserable and worried is needless because this unusual preparation goes at once to the out-of-order Kidneys and Bladder, distributing its cleansing, healing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it. The moment you suspect any Kidney or Urinary derangement, or feel rheumatic pains, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic and a few days' treatment will make any one feel fine.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store—anywhere in the world.

WHITE TO REFEREE

Probabilities are That the New York Man Will Handle the Johnson-Jeffries Mill.

FAVOURED BY BOTH

New York, Dec. 8.—Now that State Senator "Tim" Sullivan has agreed to act as stakeholder of the fortune that will come to Jeffries and Johnson for beating each other up before a moving picture machine and many thousand people, the much mooted question is:

"Who will be the third man in the ring?"

The place for holding the fight rests in the hands of Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason, the promoters, and they have a lot of wires yet to pull before they announce finally the spot.

It is believed Jimmy Coffroth's arena in 'Frisco will be the place, and that Gleason and Rickard secured the right to hold the fight in Nevada merely to hold that as a club over Coffroth's head and prevent him from charging too high a rental for his fight club.

But the selection of a referee rests entirely with the fighters, though if they cannot agree, each is to name a man, these two to name a third, and the three together to agree upon the referee. As the third man would, therefore, have the vote that would select the referee, it is believed Jeffries and Johnson will agree upon the referee rather than have him selected by some outsider.

At the dinner at which "Tim" Sullivan was selected as stakeholder, Charlie White was present. There is expressed to-day the belief that White will be the referee and fight men say he would be a good man. White refereed every big fight held a few years ago in New York under the Horton law. He has refereed with Jeffries and the boilermaker is said to want him again. Johnson is said to favour White, as there seems to be little doubt that he will act.

The referee is to get $1,000 for his work.

Ailments of Men Happily Overcome

SUCCESSFULLY TRIED BY MANY

Undoubtedly the following prescription will work wonders for that great class of men, who through dissipation of their natural strength, find themselves in their "second childhood" long before the three score and ten allotted to life's pleasures and enjoyments are reached.

It is presumed to be infallible, and highly efficient in quickly restoring in "nervous exhaustion," weak vitality, melancholia, and the functions.

First, get fifty cents' worth of compound fluid balmwort in a one-ounce package, and three ounces syrup sarsaparilla compound; take home, mix and let stand two hours; then get one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadonene compound (not cardamom). Mix all in a six or eight ounce bottle, shake well, and take one teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring followed by a drink of water.

By mixing it at home no man need be the wiser as to another's shortcomings, and expensive fees are avoided.

Lack of poise and equilibrium in men is a constant source of embarrassment even when the public least suspects it. For the benefit of those who want a restoration to full, bounding health, and all the happiness accompanying it, the above home treatment is given. It contains no opiates or habit-forming drugs whatever. Mix it at home and no one will be the wiser as to your affliction.

NOW AND THEN a merchant gets it into his head that "one advertising medium is as good as another." He then proceeds to buy his advertising in a way to discredit his business judgment.

People will be pretty sure to infer that a merchant who buys his advertising unwisely will buy his store-stocks unwisely—and of course this may not always be true. But it is always a good plan to show the same discrimination in buying advertising space that you show in buying the stocks which you are advertising. HOCKEY MATTERS IN PORT HOPE

Port Hope Guide: The wintry air and the stir about the rink to-day makes one commence to think about hockey. It has been definitely decided to enter a junior team in the O. H. A., and there is no reason why a first-class intermediate team cannot be gathered together. Let the intermediates get busy and enter a team, and the grand old game will once more boom in Port Hope as it did in the days of the open air rink. The entrance fee must be in by Saturday next.

ALF SHRUBB IS WILLING TO RUN

Toronto, Dec. 8.—"Sol Mints, Longboat's manager, seems to have a lot to say about the twenty-mile race at Buffalo," said Alf. Shrubb, to-day. "He says I want 15 or 18 miles. Now, I am ready to run Longboat at Buffalo 20 miles and telegraphed the promoters as soon as I had heard that they wanted the race, saying I would run Longboat the 20 miles. It is only up to Sol Mints to wire and tell Charlie Murray, of Buffalo, that Longboat will run. Then, I think, terms can be arranged, and when it is arranged I am satisfied that I will win.

'I don't consider that the runners had a fair chance in the race at the Island. Too many spectators were near the track and did not give the proper freedom. Tell Sol. Mints to go ahead and fix up the 20-mile race. Mr. Murray will give my reply to him."

MINERS ARE DESPERATE

Cold Weather Drives Nova Scotia Strikers to Violence and an Assault is Made on the Breakers at Dominion Colliery.

DAILY DISTURBANCES

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 10.—Trouble is brewing in the colliery districts of Cape Breton, where for the past five months two thousand U.M.W. miners have been out on strike, demanding recognition from the Dominion Coal Co.

Daily disturbances occur and with the approach of winter weather serious results seem imminent.

While driving home yesterday Angus McLean, a miner at No. 3 pit, narrowly escaped losing his life. He was sitting in a wagon with two other men when a shot was fired from the side of the road, which struck McLean on the side of the head, inflicting a serious wound.

There was a disturbance at Dominion Colliery yesterday morning, when a crowd of about 300 strikers assembled at the gates and with sticks in their hands threatened the men as they went in to work.

The coal company and the town police were there in force and there is little doubt that had it not been for their presence there might have been bloodshed.

It appears as if the strikers are desperate, as the strike continues to drag along through the cold weather, and are making a last effort to persuade the men who are still at work to come out with them in order to effectually tie up the company.

BILL FOR AN 8-HOUR DAY

Mr. Verville's Measure Once More Before the Commons and is Sent to Committee After Being Discussed in the House.

MORE INFORMATION

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—Mr. Verville's bill to enforce an eight-hour day on all kinds of Government work and supplies came up for second reading in the Commons yesterday. He made a strong appeal to the Minister of Labor to support the bill.

Claude Macdonnel remarked that Mr. Verville had introduced the bill first on Dec. 11, 1906, when it was read a first and last time. He introduced it a second time on Feb. 14, 1908, when it was read a first time, but he did not attempt to get it any further. A third time Mr. Verville introduced his bill on April 21, 1909, but when it came up for second reading, he moved that it be discharged from the order paper in order to give him an opportunity to discuss the question in another way.

Mr. Macdonnel contended that under this bill, Government contractors could not hope to compete with factories in which more than eight hours a day was the vogue.

Dr. Edwards said it was impossible to have an eight-hour day on the farm, and they should consider what effect this legislation would have on workers generally.

Hugh Guthrie regarded an experiment of this kind on public works property, so called, as a good policy, but he thought the House should have the fullest information before committing itself to the strict terms of the bill.

Hon. Mackenzie King thought the House could not consider too carefully whether the bill would do what the mover said it would do. He reviewed the history of the dealings of the Government with labor men, and said that the House should have fuller information before committing itself to a proposal which was not quite clear.

He hoped the bill would not go to the cemetery, and to avoid that fate suggested that it be referred to a select committee.

The Minister got into gripe with Col. Sam Hughes, who resented an insinuation that he had failed to draw the attention of the House to the grievances of workmen in his constituency. Col. Hughes pointed out that he had done so, but thought even that [illegible] in view of the numbers by forcing the second reading of his bill to a vote.

E. L. Borden said that the most important measure ever passed in the the interests of labor in Canada was passed by Sir John A. Macdonald; but for this law, men who went on strike would be criminals in the eyes of the law. He said that the Government to-day was acting in exactly the reverse from what it had in 1907. He had asked at that time that all matters touching disputes between employers and employes should be referred to a committee, for it was only fair that both sides should have been heard before legislation should have been dealt with by the Parliament. However, the Government at that time replied that it had all information. Even Ralph Smith had veered round and had voted against him then. Now, however, he found him proposing the same policy.

Mr. King replied that if any member introduced any measure which would make possible an eight-hour day he would support it.

Mr. Meighen remarked that the extreme capaciousness of his "ifs" was a feature of his addresses. The Minister was already vieing with the Minister of Public Works as the "jollier" of this generation. He asked Mr. King to state definitely if he was prepared to adopt the eight-hour day labor in Government work.

Amid cries of "Question" the Speaker rose, the committee was declared appointed and the House passed on to the consideration of Mr. Macdonnel's bill to amend the Elections Act, to enforce the provisions of the Act respecting the appointment of fair wage officers the Department of Labor employes.

Major Beattie said he had a great deal of sympathy with the bill, but he failed to see how workmen generally could find any relief from it in its present form. The bill might be amended to suit workmen all over the country. He said he was prepared to support any measure which would bring relief to the work people of this country.

C. A. McGrath supported the bill on the grounds of health and the help it would give towards doing away with unemployment. He was ready to lose a few dividends, if that were necessary in order to accomplish this good object.

A. B. Crosby warmly supported the bill and declared the measure was here to stay. It ought to be sent to a committee of the House without any lawyers upon it. They would soon get it into working order.

Ralph Smith described the bill as impossible. He would support any principle of an eight-hour day which would bring equality, but it was impossible for some men to do their best work during longer hours than seven or eight, while other men required longer. Trade unions, he remarked, had done more for the reduction of hours than anything else.

G. H. Cowan, Vancouver, came out as an eight-hour day man, and condemned both the Minister of Labor and Ralph Smith, for attempting to shelve the question and refer it to a committee. He asked Mr. Verville to challenge the manufacturers of the country

TWO VESSELS ARE LOST IN TERRIFIC STORM ON LAKE ERIE

Seven Men Drowned and Thirteen More are Reported Missing—Steamer Richardson Sinks off Buffalo and the Steamer Clarion Goes Down Near Point Pelee—Bad Weather on Lake Superior.

Buffalo, Dec. 10.—In the wintry gale that has swept Lake Erie, for 24 hours, the big freighter W. C. Richardson of Cleveland, bound from Duluth to Buffalo, with a cargo of flax seed foundered early yesterday when she was within half a mile of the harbor entrance.

Five of the crew perished. The remainder numbering fourteen were rescued from the wreck by the crew of the propeller, Wm. A. Paine, which had anchored on the Waverley shoals, just off the west breakwater, an hour before the Richardson sank.

Last night the Paine is still riding at anchor in the heavy seas, and the rescued men are all on board. She will be unable to enter the harbor until the storm abates.

The only communication established with the Paine yesterday was by Capt. Farrell of the tug Mason. Circling around the anchored vessel he learned that Chief Engineer S. E. Mayberry, Second Mate E. J. Clary, and three deckhands or firemen had lost their lives.

The cause of the wreck can only be surmised until Capt. Burke is brought ashore, but it is believed that while he was trying to swing her around at anchor, to ride out the storm, her cargo shifted causing her to list so badly that she was swamped. Her prow and one funnel show above water.

The insurance on the Richardson, amounting to $250,000 expired at noon to-day. The cargo valued at $400,000 was fully insured.

Two Dead; Thirteen Missing

Cleveland, O., Dec. 10.—Two men lost their lives and the fate of thirteen others is unknown, as a result of the burning of the steamer Clarion, near Point Pelee, in Lake Erie, early yesterday.

Six members of the crew were taken from the Clarion by the steamer W. G. Hanna, and brought here, and one reached by train to the Buffalo headquarters of the Anchor Line Co., the owner of the Clarion.

According to the hurried tale all attempted to leave the Clarion, as soon as it was ascertained that she could not be saved.

Capt. E. J. Bell of Ogdensburg, N.Y., and twelve other members of the crew took to the lifeboat. They left without food and it is feared that they may either starve or freeze to death before rescued, even if they escape being drowned, for high seas are running on the lake.

One of the crew fell overboard when attempting to enter the lifeboat, but was later pulled out of the water and put in the lifeboat.

The mate was frozen to death after he had been overcome by smoke and exposure. An effort was made by the six men who stayed on board to enter another life boat, but it eluded them. One sailor fell overboard and was drowned in his efforts to reach the boat.

The Clarion was a 1,700 ton steel freighter. She was bound from Detroit to Erie, Pa., to lay up.

Lake Superior in Fury.

Port Arthur, Dec. 10.—All rigors, hardships and dangers of winter navigation are being encountered by the few boats on Lake Superior. The extraordinary cold and gales causes banks of vapor to rise from the water, adding fog to the navigators' difficulties.

Boats entering the harbor are covered inches deep in ice. The Caronic of the Northern Navigation Co. left midnight for Sarnia, but returned yesterday to await more favorable weather.

Capt. Wright states the seas rolling on the lake are terrible, beyond description.

The waves swept even over the hurricane decks, leaving layers of ice.

Among boats expected from the east are Ames, Huronic, Wahcondah and Neebawah.

Man Who Suicided In Toronto Had A Ticket From Peterborough To The City

With a partly emptied bottle of carbolic acid and an empty glass on the little table beside his bed, Howard J. Wilson was found dead, lying on his bed in an upstairs room at 180 King street west at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

He had evidently committed suicide last night, for everything in the room pointed to deliberate preparation for the act.

He was dressed in a white shirt and black trousers. His boots were still on, but he had removed his collar and tie. The carbolic was partly spilled over the pillow, and some of it had trickled down from the corner of his mouth.

He had written four letters, and left them on the table beside the carbolic bottle.

The letters were addressed to J. J. Lattimer, proprietor of the Power House, Toronto; Miss Ethel Llewellyn, 169 St. Vincent street, Toronto; Roy Massen, 261 Horton street, Detroit; and Mrs. Mahlon Godshall.

A fifth letter was addressed to Harry Comeroy, Whitby, Ont.

In his pocket was a card bearing his name, Howard J. Wilson, and marked in care of Mrs. Godshall.

A fifth letter was addressed to Harry Comeroy, Whitby, Ont.

Was An Electrician.

He had a membership card in the local union of Electrical Workers, and another little card found on him bore the Lew Doskstader motto: "Treat the boose gently. Don't fight it. It's bigger than you are."

A railway ticket from Peterborough to Toronto, good for return until Dec. 26, was also in his pocket.

Mr. J. J. Lattimor, proprietor of the Power House, where Wilson boarded, can think of no reason for his action.

"He always paid his board on time and is paid right up to date," said Mr. Lattimor. "He has been out of work about a week, but I didn't think he was hard up. He had been in Oshawa for six weeks on a job, and has had work since he got back. His home is not in the city, but I don't know where he comes from or anything about his family."

Wilson registered at the office last night and paid 75 cents for his bed. He said and did nothing whatever to arouse the suspicions of the clerk.

Thought Him Asleep.

This morning the chambermaid opened the door of his room about ten o'clock, and saw his feet at the end of the bed. Thinking he was yet sleeping, she did not look further.

It was nearly one o'clock when the clerk asked the maid if No. 11 had left his room yet.

Then he went upstairs and found the body, stiff and stark, lying full length on the bed.

Policeman Holmes was called in, and he notified the coroner.

No reason is known for the suicide. The reasons may be given in the letters; in fact, it is evident that Wilson wrote them solely for that purpose.

TWO RIBS BROKEN

Mr. Fred Barnes of the Opera House Orchestra Injured in a Fall.

The friends of Mr. Fred Barnes, solo clarionitist of the 57th Regimental Band, and also of the Opera House orchestra, had the misfortune to fall yesterday, breaking two ribs, which is confining him to his home for a time. Mr. Barnes resides on Lock street, and is an employee of the Brinton Carpet Co. His musical ability is recognised by the musical element of Peterborough and is particularly noticeable in the Opera House in the various selections. He was missed last night, but his friends hope that he will soon be able to be out again.

A NEW PROPHET.

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain has not the rugged good health and robust physique of Sir Charles Tupper, but he has all thet airy and unreasoning optimuism that characterized the Chamberlain War Horse in his palmy political days in Canada. Mr. Chamberlain prophesies a sweeping victory for the tariff reformers, videlicet the Tory party, in the coming British elections. This suggests 1896 and Sir Charles Tupper. In the general elections of that year Sir Charles predicted a clean Conservative sweep from ocean to ocean. The result was the return of Sir Wilfrid Laurier by one of the most striking political triumphs in the history of Canada. History is likely to repeat itself in the matter of prophesy.

THE POOR MAN'S LOAF.

The British tariff reformers' program widens the cleavage—if cleavage can be considered in relation to a connection that never existed—between the House of Lords and the people, as championed by the Liberal party. The relation of the House of Lords to the people has been one that draws the irresponsible chamber and the class it represented into mutiny against the discipline of British principles of justice. The Lords and the privileged classes have long negatively oppressed the people—the "common" people of England. The people who pay taxes and sustain the nation, by refusing to pay, or at least, by escaping payment of, a fair share of the burden of taxation. The tariff reformers or Chamberlainites, not only sympathise with the protest of the Lords but propose to impose a tax burden upon the people greater than they will escape by the adoption and operation of the Lloyd George Budget, which compels the Lords and their class by sharing the burden to lessen the general weight of it. The proposal of the tariff reformers to impose a tax on the poor man's bread with the sop to the imperial idea of a slight preference to the "colonies" is refreshing. This proposal will be almost as distasteful to the "colonies" as to the British bread-eater, Canada, as one of the "colonies" doesn't want a preference at the expense of the British workman and his family, who find the struggle of making ends meet dreary at the best. We blazoned on the Queen's Jubilee arch, in London, the legend, "Canada the Granary of the Empire." How can we be that if we lend ourselves to a proposal to make the poor man's loaf dearer and so harder to get? Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave a preference to Great Britain without bargaining for an equivalent. If in 1897, representing Canada and Canadian sentiment, he declined preference, can we now entertain the idea of a preference which will add to the burden of existence of the British working classes? The true imperial idea is a mutual helpfulness. As members of our imperial family one section of the empire must not and will not grab advantage at the expense of another.

CANADA'S IMPERIAL RELATION.

(London Daily Mail.)

There must be few men under the British flag in whom the imperial idea is more happily incarnated by birth, position, and personality than it is in the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General of Canada, who is at present in London conferring with Mr. Sydney Buxton on matters connected with the improvement of the postal and telegraphic communications between the Dominion and tht Mother Country.

By his descent from a French family which left Rouen 300 years ago to settle in Canada, Mr. Lemieux stands as a reminder of the fact—too often forgotten— that the British Empire owes its greatness not to the expansive instincts of the home nation alone, but to the same power that raised Rome from a city-State to the dominance of the world—the power of incorporating and welding into its own structure all that is best and hardiest in the peoples that have come within its widening boundaries.

By position Mr. Lemieux indicates the method in which the Empire will be rendered stronger yet in years to come. A statesman of the young Canadian nation, he has come here to discuss with the Government of the Mother Country the best means of multiplying and strengthening the bonds of affection that bind the two nations together, as a prudent son might come to a wise father for friendly advice and counsel.

And, lastly, in his personality Mr. Lemieux stands as a type of the man who has made the Empire great. Forceful, alert, a man in whom grand conceptions and a power of rapid organization are allied to a cool, even judgment, and the gift of a charming personality. Mr. Lemieux is worthy to fulfil the high duty of helping to guide the early days of a nation that stands yet only upon the threshold of its own destiny.

"Among the matters that have brought me over here," hesaid, "is the project of establishing an 'all-red service of fast steamers between this country and Canada, and between Canada and Australia. It would be an institution of great value in strengthening the ties that bind the Colonies to the Mother Country. We in Canada are enthusiastic for the scheme.

"You ask me whether the sentiment that was once frequently advanced, that the 'ultimate destiny' of Canada was incorporation with the United States, has any hold upon public opinion in Canada"—Mr. Lemieux spoke emphatically—"No sane man in Canada thinks that today, and few besides the most irrepressible of jingoes in the United States. We Canadians are and we intend to remain, a nation within the Empire."

This is the man whom the great journals of the Empire's heart delight to honour. Hon. Mr. Lemieux is a type of scores of men whom the influence of British traditions, of British conceptions and application of the principles of British free institutions have made in some respects more imperialist than the lineal descendants of the men that founded and give tone, texture and character to the Empire. To an ardent love for the mother land, the French Canadian adds a deep reverence and esteem for British connection; and, remembering that what it stands for is common to every section of the empire he develops the family feeling, and becomes an imperialist from judgment and conviction. He can adopt to his case in relation to France the sentiment of Cowper—"with all thy faults I love thee still." Though he finds under the British flag a degree of liberty, freedom and privilege which he cannot hope to find in France. The French Canadian's memories of the home land, he brought with him, from France, where absolute monarchical rule weighed heavily, and made welcome the experiment of life in a new world. The memory of home conditions remained with him, and when Canada passed to British rule the wider freedom, the truer liberty, the broader privilege, appealed to him in conflict with the memory of another century's political conditions in France, and the contrast became to him, and succeeding generations, as real as if old France and its institutes were contemporary France. The French Canadian's loyalty to British institutions may be, or in the beginning have been, largely the loyalty of interest, and who will blame him. His adopted country, passed by the fortune of war, under the power of the traditional enemy of his country, and he would naturally expect the treatment meted out by other countries to a subject race. He was not so treated. He was at once adopted into the British family, and became heir to all the privileges and sights enjoyed by British subjects to the manor born. From a Protestant conqueror he received the full enjoyment of his theologically antagonistic religion; from the inflexible political foe of his mother land he received all the political rights and privileges enjoyed by the subject British born. He even received generosity added to justice; he received the privilege of retaining his mother tongue. All this was heaping coals of fire upon his head. He was grateful and upon his gratitude is founded the French Canadian's loyalty, as well as upon his interest. This describes the class of which Hon. Mr. Lemieux is an advanced type. But there are irreconcilables, who, with an introspective outlook—to use an Hibernianism, cannot remember benefits—only injuries of past centuries—retaining the rancours and antipathies felt and held by their ancestors in old France. This class holds the exceptions just as we few in English-speaking Canada, little Canadians, surface loyalists, willing to subordinate imperial interests to the advancement of petty partisan interest, who cannot take the big outlook, the broad view, but measure every movement, having to do with interimperial relations, by the narrow standard of party rabidness or vindictiveness born of disappointed ambition, or other equally noble sentiment. We have these exceptions amongst us always; and, at a time when all the empire is drawing together in greater cordiality of heart and unanimity of co-operation; they will be found antagonising movements tending to closer imperial solidarity, and setting up and falling down and worshipping, their own little graven image.

MR. RYAN WILL BE WELCOME

Popular Actor to Pay a Return Visit to Peterborough To-morrow.

The appearance at the Grand Opera House to-morrow matinee and night of Mr. Daniel Ryan, recalls pleasant memories of the last visit to Peterborough of that talented actor. It will be remembered that Mr. Ryan was at the Grand for a week last year presenting "The Bells," "Salome" and other high-class plays, to large and pleased audiences duting the week. Those who saw Mr. Ryan last year will welcome the opportunity of seeing him again. In "The Fox," which he has chosen as his vehicle this season, he has a magnificent play of French Canadian life, with a part that fits him like a glove and as he is supported by an unusually capable company, his production is one of the notable dramatic events of the season. He will undoubtedly play to capacity business to-morrow.

FUNERAL OF THE FIRE CHIEF

Chief Howard of Peterborough Fire Department Was a Pall Bearer at Ottawa.

This morning the firemen who had worked under him for many years; a large detachment from the Ottawa police force, Mayor Hopewell and nearly all the members of the city council, the heads of the different departments at the city hall; members of the Catholic Order of Foresters, and of the Knights of Columbus, and many representative citizens paid the last respects to Chief Peter Provost, head of the Ottawa fire brigade, who was laid at rest in Notre Dame cemetery.

The funeral was one of the largest seen in the capital for some time. Besides the many from the Capital and vicinity representatives of fire departments of municipal bodies at Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Peterborough, Hull and other centres attended. Besides Mayor Hopewell, Ex-Mayors Fred Cook, J. A. Ellis, and D'Arcy Scott— all of whom knew the chief intimately, were present.

The Pallbearers.

The pallbearers were: Chief Tremblay, of the Montreal Fire Department; Alderman Mercier, of Montreal; Mr. George Tait, of Toronto, acting for firemen from Toronto and Hamilton; Chief Howard, of Peterborough; Mr. J. C. Enright, representing the Ottawa branch of the Catholic Order of oFresters; Mr. V. Boisvert, acting for the local branch of the Knights of Columbus; Chief Genest, of Hull; Major de la Ronde, of the Ottawa Police Force, and Deputy Chiefs Latimer and Stanford, and Captain Graham, on behalf of the Ottawa firemen.—Ottawa Journal.

MOTHERS SHOULD KNOW.

The troubles with multitudes of girls is want of proper nourishment and enough of it. Now-a-days they call this condition by the learned name of Anemia. But words change no facts. There are thousands of girls of this kind anywhere between childhood and young ladyhood. Disease finds most of its victims among them. They are too weak and frail to resist. Some of them are passing through the mysterious changes which lead up to maturity and need especial watchfulness and care. Alas, how many break down at this critical period; the story of such losses is the saddest in the history of home. The proper treatment might have saved most of these household treasures. If the mothers had only known of and given it to their daughters they would have grown to be strong and healthy women. It is palatable as honey and contains all the curative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. Search the world over and you will find nothing to equal it. Taken before meals it improves the nutritive value of ordinary foods by making them easier to assimilate, and has carried hope and good cheer into thousands of darkened homes. Dr. Charles Curtis says: "Your preparation is a sure cure for the most violent cold, if properly taken. In treating children, it has proved in many cases under our observation a sure preventive of the progress of pulmonary affections, and has in every case of incipient consumption acted as a stay of that dreadful disease." The more it is used the less will be the ravages of disease from infancy to old age. It is both a food and a medicine,—modern, scientific and effective from the first dose. "There is no doubt about it." Sold by chemists throughout the world.—Warne Drug Co.

INDIAN WITNESS ARRESTED

Albert Tobico, the Indian from Hiawatha, who was the missing witness in the case against Ernest Weaver, at the police court this morning, was arrested this morning by P. C. Meharry. He will be kept in custody until the case is heard by Magistrate Dumble on Friday next.

Blacksmithing and Woodworking Business For Sale

The undersigned offers for sale his blacksmithing and woodworking business, situated on the side line between Peterborough and Norwood at Jermyn P. O. The blacksmith shop building is two stories, 32 x 42, with cement floor and cement forge. The upper story is the full size of the blacksmith shop (32x42). Attached to the blacksmith shop is the post office building, which may be entered from the blacksmith shop. Adjoining is a first class brick dwelling, with frontage 18 and 30 feet, with kitchen. It is an L-shaped house with cement cellar. Also verandah and beautiful lawn. There is a good stable with cement floor, three stalls, with straw barn attached. The land comprises one half acre. This is one of the best blacksmith stands in the County of Peterborough. The farmers all patronize this shop. TO ABOLISH THE MARKET TOLLS

Farmers Near Kingston Wants That City to Have Free Market.

Next ytar the surrounding townships will once again press the city council to abolish the market tolls, in view of the fact that the county will be almost clear of toll roads. The market toll question has long been a topic of debate. On several occasions the county representatives offered to buy up several toll roads if the city would strike off the market fees charged farmers, but the city council heard the appeals unmoved. One by one the toll roads have been freed until now only three remain, and its dollars to doughnuts that by next fall the Kinston-Storrington road will be the only one in all Frontenac on which toll gates and toll keepers will exist. The penny toll, however, is still collected on Kingston's two markets. It's on the produce market, however, that the county people want the toll abolished. It can remain on the hay and wood market, but on the large market, which all farmers patronize, it should be abolished, they say. — Kinkston Whig.

SALE OF WORK ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The results of the "Sale of Work" at the Margaret Cox Home for Girls, (Dr. Barnardo's Home) on Thursday were very gratifying to those interested in its success. Many who had known the Home in former years, took this opportunity of seeing the alterations and improvements recently carried out there, and testified to their interest by liberal purchases at the stalls, and in several instances by kind donations. The sale will be continued on Saturday afternoon, December 11th. There will be many dainty articles suitable for Christmas gifts, also dolls, home-made candies, etc. The proceeds will be devoted to the purchase of a new organ for the Girls' Assembly Hal.

REALLY DEVELOPS THE BUST, ARMS AND NECK

An increase of six inches is not unusual after a month's treatment.

Go to any druggist and get separately two ounces of glycerine, three ounces of rosewater, one ounce tincture cadomene compound, (not cardamom) and five cents' worth of borax. Mix the glycerine and tincture cadomene, shake and let stand two hours. Then add rosewater and a teaspoonful of borax. Apply morning and night, rubbing until absorbed; then wash with hot water and soap; dry thoroughly Continue a few weeks and beautiful development rewards the effort.

ONE FINED AND THE OTHER WENT TO JAIL

Patrick Innes, song book seller with the Smart Set Company, got a little the worse of liquor during his stay in Peterborough and was placed under arrest last night. He pleaded guilty to having been drunk, before Magistrate Dumble this morning, and was fined two dollars, which he paid. He left to join his company at Hamilton.

Charles Johnston, a vagrant, was not so lucky. He pleaded guilty to having been drunk, but he had no two dollars to pay his fine, and he had to take ten days on the hill.

Had Weak Kidneys For Two Years.

Doctor Failed to Help. Doan's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Mr. Edmund Assels, New Carlisle, Que., writes:—"I feel it my duty to let you know of the great cure I have obtained by using Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled with my kidneys for two years. I tried a doctor, but he failed to help me. I read in the D.B.B. Almanac about Doan's Kidney Pills, and began using them, and after the first box began to feel better. I only used four boxes and they completely cured me. I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure, and would advise everyone suffering from kidney disease to try them."

Perhaps no other organs work harder than the kidneys to preserve the general health of the body and most people are troubled with some kind of Kidney Complaint, but do not suspect it. It may have been in the system for some time. There may have been backache, swelling of the feet and ankles, disturbances of the urinary organs, such as brick dust deposit in the urine, highly colored, scanty or cloudy urine, bladder pains, frequent or suppressed urination, burning sensation when urinating, etc.

Do not neglect any of these symptoms, for, if neglected they will eventually lead to Bright's Disease, Dropsy and Diabetes.

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto.

Evils That Are Threatening Our Modern Civilization

A Popular Infidelity, Profanity, the Liquor Traffic and Foreign Immigration Insidious Enemies of a Strong Nation in North America — Should be Guarded Against.

LESSON FROM DEAD NATIONS

Rev. Sam Small addressed a large audience in St. Andrew's church last night on the subject of "The Failure of Civilization." In the beginning he referred to the downfall of the Babylonian and other civilizations of the earlier centuries and coming down to later times dwelt upon the decay of Greece and Rome's splendid Empire. It is contended by many observers that it is too soon for the people of the North American continent to begin the consideration of this subject. We are still in the formative period they maintain, but America is only another name for opportunity and it is for us to profit by the example of the nations that fell into decline and lost their power and prestige and to grasp that which will mould us into a nation to God's liking. The nations of old had the same opportunities as we possess, but they failed to appreciate that which would safeguard them against disestablishment. That opportunity is expressed in the two commandments, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, etc., and thy neighbour as thy self." It is the following of these precepts that will bring a nation to perfection and for such a nation God is looking.

It is possible that the leading nations of to-day's world may go the same way of their illustrious predecessors. Who are we that we have grown so great and independent that we would tell God that we are through with Him. It is the same God who spoke to the people of former days, and the commandments are the same as delivered to them. It is for us to improve this opportunity of salvation and of perfection of higher civilization.

Rev. Dr. Small took up the evils that threaten the developing civilization of the United States and Canada. That which impressed him most in his many travels throughout the country was the growing spirit of popular national infidelity. He did not mean that kind of infidelity such as impressed by the fool "who says in his heart there is no God." He could not understand the man who could not see the hand of God in himself, and in all the wonders of nature. The agnostic and others of practically the same class received the same consideration from the speaker. It is the sort of infidel who professes to believe in God and who when brought to bay will agree with anything that is said. This spirit manifests itself in the passage of laws that give official status to things that are crimes against the home, society, humanity and the law of God. It manifests itself in municipal affairs and makes ordinances that grant privileges that are directly contrary to the ten commandments. Civilization cannot be said to be thoroughly established when the Sunday is permitted to be desecrated with impunity and the Government offers no satisfactory protection. The people of America have greater cause to be thankful than other nations for the many blessings enjoyed. Dr. Small gave instances of cities in the United States that had allowed open Sundays as they are known and which had fallen into a depraved condition, finally ending in riots that had to be quelled by the State.

He spoke also of the spirit of irreverence for God's name as manifested in public blasphemy. In this respect he was pleased to note the great change noticeable in Canada during the past twenty years and the same condition was gradually making itself apparent in the United States. There are laws in many of the states that renders the use of profanity in public liable to a penalty the same as for drunkenness. There is no valid excuse for profane language being used. It is no evidence of manliness and it was found that the greatest cowards were likewise the men that swore the worst. But the meanest man of all is he that brings profanity into his home and swears in the presence of his children and his wife. "He is the meanest coward in christendom," the speaker said and added that he was worse than a dog on the street. The liquor traffic and foreign immigration were two other evils that had to be safeguarded against, particularly the former, which Dr. Small stated was the worst work of the devil.

STOMACH DISTRESS IS ENDED FOREVER

Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas or Indigestion Vanish in Five Minutes.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis, or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fulness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in the mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervouness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

HIS HONOUR THE BARBER.

The Smart Set Company, headed by that well known coloured comedian, S. H. Dudley, delighted a large audience last night by their presentation of His Honour the Barber," a production that for laughing purposes left little to be desired. From the first scene until the final curtain everything was bright and amusing and the audience found the offering decidedly to their liking if the applause that punctuated the performance at frequent intervals may be taken as a criterion. Replete with catchy music and cramful of amusing situations "His Honour the Barber" fully lived up to its advanced notices and the Smart Set company may be assured of a hearty welcome if they play a return date in this city. Their visit here two years ago was a success but last night's efforts surpassed their previous effort.

S. H. Dudley, as Raspberry Snow, the barber, with an ambition to shave the President, was a scream all the way through, and his clever work demonstrated that his claim to be the peer of all coloured comedians has some title to recognition. His comedy was ever good and he was a big favourite from his first appearance. He was supported by a clever company, among whom was Andrew Tribble, who will be remembered as playing here with Cole and Johnston, in "The Shoofly Regiment" the year before last. His portrayal of the role of Babe Johnston, Raspberry's affinity, formed an excellent foil to Dudley's work.

There is a splendid singing chorus of twenty-five dusky beauties well costumed and lively while the male chorus sings well. The musical numbers were all tuneful and many of them are being whistled on the street to-day. The hits were "Come After Breakfast," sung by Dudley himself, "Rainbow Sue", "Consolation Lane," "There's a Crybaby in the Moon," and "Merry Widow Brown."

REMANDED FOR ANOTHER WEEK

Chief Witness Was Absent and Case Again Enlarged.

Ernest Weaver appeared before Magistrate Dumble, at the Police Court this morning, after a week's remand in the county gaol, charged with providing Albert Tobicock, a young Indian, with liquor, in September last. Tobicok, who is the main witness, was not present when called upon this morning, and Chief Roasel asked for a warrant for his arrest. Consequently the case was enlarged for another week, and Weaver had to go back to gaol.

THE PAINS OF THE AGED

Are usually due to the tendency of the kidneys to wear out as age advances, giving rise to the accumulation of poisons in the blood and causing backache, lumbago, aching limbs and rheumatism. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are particularly prized by aged people because they can be relied upon to invigorate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and so remove the cause of pains and aches.

WILL DISCUSS THE VARIOUS BY-LAWS

Board of Trade Meeting on Tuesday Night Next—To Consider the By-laws Which Will be Voted On.

An important meeting of the Board of Trade will be held on Tuesday night next, December 14th, in the Council Chamber, and it is hoped that a large number of the citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity of becoming acquainted with municipal matters of the present moment. The business for this meeting is announced as business matters, by-laws, etc. The election day is not far away now, and it will not be long until the ratepayers will be again casting their ballots on the municipal sheet. As there are a number of important by-laws to be presented to the people this year the Board of Trade has deemed it advisable to call this meeting in order that the electors will be able to discuss the different measures and that they will go to the polls with a clear idea of the by-laws on which they are going to vote.

HER BABY HAD ECZEMA

Mrs. P. Clark, Belmont, Man., writes:—"My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to help her. Hearing of some remarkable cures Dr. Chase's Ointment had made we began using it and with the third application the sore began to heal. The cure was thorough and complete and we give all credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

DEER ROAMING

Some Seen Near Indian River and in Enniamore.

Several stories have been received relative to deer wandering away from their usual haunts and straying near to settled centres. A short time ago it was reported from Indian River that two deer had been seen a little east of the hamlet. They were not molested and disappeared again into the woods. Again from Enniamore comes a story about a doe and two fawns that worked their way down through Verulam and crossed over into Enniamore. In some strange manner those deer had apparently lost their way, having become separated from the rest of their kind.

FORMER RESIDENT OF PETERBOROUGH

Passed Away in Appleton, Wisconsin—Death of Mr. Thos. McNeish.

Thomas McNeish passed away at his home, 330 North St. Thursday evening, November 25th, after an illness of nine months. He is survived by a wife and six children, five daughters and a son, as follows: Mrs. W. F. Grandy, Bloom City, Mrs. J. K. Kurtis, Shiocton, Mrs. H. R. Williams, Lincoln, Neb., Mrs. H. J. Daniels, Black Creek, Mrs. Edmond Cance, Shiocton, and Mr. W. H. McNeish, Appleton, who is a student at Lawrence College. The deceased had been a resident of Black Creek for thirty-five years, but for the past two years, resided in Appleton.

The funeral service was held at his late residence, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. It was conducted by Rev. Herbert T. Wilkie, of the Methodist church, of which the deceased was a member, and the remains were taken to Black Creek for burial. Appleton Post.

The late Mr. McNeish was formerly a resident of Cavan, having left here in company with Messrs. Wm. Fitzgerald and Patrick Devlin a brother of Mr. Wm. J. Devlin of this city, thirty-seven years ago. A strange coincidence is that these men have all passed away within the last fifteen months. Mr. McNeish was well known in Cavan township. A brother, Mr. Jas. McNeish, resides in Millbrook and Mr. J. Elliott lives in this city.

WANTED HELP BUT---

Aged County Mendicant Apparently Did Not Want to go to House of Refuge

An elderly man asked for assistance from the Relief Officer, Mr. F. W. Miller. As he was from the county it was only right that he be received at the House of Refuge. Mr. Miller made arrangements for him to go to the home, near Lakefield, and fixed a date. The man did not call that day, but shortly after he presented himself again to Mr. Miller and wanted assistance again, and upon being asked stated that nothing had been said about his going to Lakefield. It appeared to be almost a case of aphasia the old man was suffering from, but his memory was good on other things. Mr. Miller was lenient and arranged for another day, telling the man not to fail. The afternoon came around, but the old man did not nor has he since returned to the Relief Officer. He did not give any reason for not wanting to go to Lakefield, but probably preferred the city, even though it was not as comfortable.

Another Protest About Immoral Cards And Pictures

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In reference to the circulation of immoral post cards and photographs that have been so boldly distributed in the past few years in all parts of the country. I think by the steps that are now being taken in many places, the people are beginning to realise that they are becoming one of the greatest evils of the age, owing to their having become a source of depicting rudeness and obscenity between the sexes, which can but lead to immorality. Owing to the many arrests and punishments of the vendors of the very obscene class of cards being made, the displays of the less vulgar ones that could be purchased in all classes of stores has been much lessened, but still there is no town or city in the land but what you can find cards sold openly on most suggestive and vulgar lines. And while some of them are not displayed in windows they can be obtained inside, and it is known that the proprietors of many of these stores have them concealed and sell them from their pockets, and customers use a code word in asking for them. These suggestive cards, that can be so easily obtained in these stores are doing more harm than the very obscene ones that are sold secretly, owing to their being so easily obtained by the young people. Then there are the slot machines that can be found placed in public places and arcades, in most all cities where cards can be obtained of a most obscene nature. Now, the only way to rid the country of this immoral literature is to follow the steps which have been taken in Kansas City and other places, which is as follows:

"Kansas City, Mo. Journal, Sunday, Nov. 14, 1909. Crusade on post cards now. Those of the suggestive variety are under the ban.

"A crusade against suggestive pictures displayed for sale in the windows and racks of postal card stores was begun yesterday by the prosecuting Attorney. Judge Ralph S. Latshaw of the Criminal Court agreed yesterday to issue orders to the County Marshal for the seizure of the pictures, should the prosecutor request it. The order was not issued, however, as the shop men agreed not to offer suggestive post cards and pictures for sale. Henry Jost, as assistant prosecuting attorney, visited six stores yesterday morning. The proprietors agrted to destroy all malicious pictures. "Postal shops must keep their windows and racks clean," said Mr. Jost, "unless the orders of this office are obeyed, the dealers will be arrested and their stock of suggestive post cards seised."

The following is from Los Angeles, Cal. Express, Sept. 10, 1909:

"Will seize all vulgar post cards. Mayor Alexander and Chief of Police Dishman to enforce an ordinance by making arrest of all dealers in vulgar and suggestive post cards."

Since my last letter was published in the Montreal Gazette, I find the following published in the Montreal Witness of last week:

"Numerous complaints have been made to the Chief of Police against the very questionable character of some of the pictures and post cards which are exhibited in some of the store windows in different parts of the city." And as the present law is not stringent enough, the following section has been added to the bye-low:

"No person shall expose in any show window or elsewhere any post cards, images, chromos, drawings, paintings, statues of other things of the same nature unless previously authorized to do so by the superintendent of pgolice."

If the police do not take it up in the small towns I should think it would be the clergymen's place to investigate all stores where these cards are sold.

Prospects Bright For The Peterborough Poultry Show

The prize lists and entry forms for the second annual exhibition of the Peterborough Poultry Association, which will be held on January 4th, 5th, and 6th, have been issued, the two being combined in one attractive folder, which gives prospective exhibitors all the information they need and at the same time furnishes them with the necessary entrance form.

The prizes this year are more complete than last year. In addition to first, second and third prizes in seventy-nine regular classes there are no less than sixty-six special prizes offered, including eight silver cups, donated respectively by F. Clarke & Sons, R. M. Glover, Lang & Maher, R. H. Jackson, Alex. Elliott, H. Neil, Jas. O'Shea, and F. H. Schneider, and a $5.00 gold piece, donated by Martin Connors.

Arrangements have been made for the services of a thoroughly competent licensed judge to judge the poultry, while a judge from the Ontario Agricultural College will look after the dressed poultry.

The exhibition will open to the public on Tuesday, Jan. 4, at 2 p.m., and will be open daily from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m., closing at ten p.m. on January 6th. All birds intended for competition must be received by noon on Tuesday, the 4th, as the judging will commence at 1.30 p.m. that day, and all birds not in their places at that time will be barred from competition.

The entries close on January 1st. The present outlook is that the Exhibition will be a grand success. A magnificent start was made last year, and with the prestige gained by the Association for the businesslike and fair manner in which they conducted their first show, there is every reason to expect a grand exhibition. About 600 birds were shown last year and it would not be surprising if the total for the second exhibition would reach the 1,000 mark.

SALE OF WORK AT BARNARDO HOME ATTENDED WITH GREAT SUCCESS

Interesting Affair Yesterday Afternoon Opened by Mayor Rush---His Address---Large Number of Prominent Citizens in Attendance---Many Substantial Donations.

The sale of work at Dr. Barnado's Home or, as it is known, the Margaret Cox Home for girls, yesterday, from 3 o'clock until 10 o'clock, was attended with the greatest success, and the Superintendent and her able assistants, have every reason to feel deeply grateful. To see that their untiring efforts had been appreciated must indeed have been a source of great satisfaction to them. A large number of prominent citizens were in attendance, evidencing their interest in the noble work the Home is doing. The sale was held in the spacious dining-room, which is a part of the new wing added to the building last year. It looked very attractive, gaily decorated as it was, with flags and bunting. Six booths, three on either side of the hall, and a prettily arranged tea room in the east end received a liberal patronage. They were in charge of the young girls of the Home, and the fancy articles on sale were all made by the resident girls, and those who have been placed in homes.

The proceeds, which were exceedingly encouraging, are for the purpose of purchasing an organ for the building. A number of liberal donations were received yesterday, and a letter of regret, accompanied by a handsome cheque, was read from Hon. Senator Cox, who was unable to be present.

Mayor's Address.

The enjoyable affair was opened shortly after 3 o'clock by his Worship, Mayor Rush, who made the following address:

"I am greatly pleased to be with you this afternoon to show my own appreciation of this Institute, and also the appreciation of the citizens of Peterborough. There is no institution in our city more worthy of our esteem, and assistance, than this Margaret Cox Home for Girls, established so many years ago by that noble gentleman, Dr. Barnardo, with the liberal assistance of the Hon. Geo. A. Cox. For a lifetime Dr. Barnardo gave his love, thought, and means for the establishment and carrying on of the work of helping homeless girls and boys, and caring for them, not only in their younger years but until they are more fully capable of caring for themselves. What nobler work could there be than this? Men who have good homes, and who had the advantages of parental protection and guidance, are able to appreciate the greatness of this work through which thousands of children who lacked these advantages, and lacked even the necessary necessaries of their tender existences, were taken by the hand, placed in comfort, and educated and trained for usefulness in after life by Christian women and men. There are a great many homes in Canada that are reaping the benefit of these teachings, homes where children from the institution have been adopted as members of the family, and they have proved a blessing.

"For over a quarter of a century this building has been devoted to this development and useful purpose, and it is a pleasure to see the provision that has been made for increased accommodation and for the greater convenience and comfort of those for whom it is maintained. Not only those directly connected with the work, but all who feel an interest in an undertaking which alleviates suffering and benefits our kind, are indebted to the Hon. Senator Cox for his generosity in devoting this building, with its spacious grounds and beautiful situation to this purpose and in enlarging it, and providing the much improved accommodation. We are pleased that one of our citizens has been and is so closely associated with the welfare of this institution. It is gratifying to have such a benevolent establishment in our city. There are undoubtedly advantages in a business way in having it located here, but the gratification does not arise from such a cause, but from the fact that the name of our city is in this way so intimately connected with a benevolent enterprise that has enlisted the co-operation of the best and wisest of the Mother Land, and has been eminently successful in accomplishing great good for thousands of individuals and for the world at large. I hope that the work will continue to prosper and be even more successful and that the immediate object you have in view in holding this bazaar, and for which the people have worked so hard, will be attended.

H. RUSH, Mayor.

Mrs. Rush was presented with a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums by a little girl.

Prominent British Bankers Paid A Visit To Peterborough

Sir George Prescott and Mr. E. Mackay Edgar, of the London Banking House of Sperling & Co., With Party, Went Through C. G. E. Works, Brinton Carpet Factory and Other Manufactories

HAVE FAITH IN CANADA

Mr. E. Mackay Edgar, a partner of the London Banking House of Sperling and Co., with a number of prominent Englishmen, spent yesterday visiting the largest manufacturing establishments, among them being the Canadian General Electric Co. and the Brinton Carpet Co. Other members of the party were Sir George Prescott, another member of the same banking firm and Mr. B. J. L. Bosanquet, of London. They arrived in Peterborough yesterday morning on a special car of luxurious equipment and furnishings and with dining apartment provided. They have been visting some of the prominent Canadian cities for the purpose of securing a personal interview with manufacturers and of visiting the leading Canadian manufacturers. The Electrical Development Plant at Niagara Falls was visited and inspected. The party will sail for home from New York about the end of December.

Canadian Securities.

In an interview Mr. Edgar spoke from the Englishman's standpoint in regard to the value of Canadian securities.

"I believe that more British capital will come to Canada next year than ever before. The feeling towards this country in Britain is most friendly, and the big capitalist is inclined to withdraw his funds invested in Britain and place them here, because he believes that a great future awaits the Canadian security, owing to the wonderful growth of the country. Canada needs capital, needs a great deal, and it seems to me that Britain will supply it as long as the securities sold them are good, and are not misrepresented.

In making the above statement Mr. Edgard said that this condition of affairs was not due in any degree to the budget, which is now the centre of a political crisis in Britain. The "British," said Mr. Edgar, "who has been accustomed to place his available funds in British securities, has come to see that while these are solid enough, there is no great future before them. He has also come to see that his money invested in Canadian securities brings him a good return, while the additoinal prospect of an increase, owing to the phenomenal growth of Canada. That is what is taking place, and it was bound to come. There is no doubt that all good Canadian securities are bound to greatly increase in value.

"A good illustration of this is furnished," continued Mr. Edgar, "in the demand in England for Canadian bank shares. We vendors of Canada's securities have been constantly assuring the British capitalists of the solid value of your bank stocks. Before I came to Canada a number of jobbers in London signified their anxiety to secure a block of shares from some Canadian bank. I presented their case to Molsons, on arrival, and told them that I could dispose of a block of five thousand shares, valued roughly at a million dollars, if they could provide it. The directors looked kindly upon the proposition, and the matter will soon come before the shareholders of the bank. There is no attemtp on the patr of the Britisher to secure control of this bank. But should the stock be issued the result will be that a million dollars of new capital will have come into the country.

"Another circumstance indicative of the friendly sentiment existing in Britain towards things Canadian," he said, "is the great success of the sales of different municipal bonds there. When one compares the population of Canada, and of the various municipalities, such as Toronto, with that of Britain and of British cities, the investment would not seem to be a good one. But her agan, the future awaitin gall things here worked wonders, and so the flotations were most successful.

"Britain is anxious to help Canada, and will continue to do so just as long as the Canadian manufacturer and the Canadian railroad men continue to crry out their part of the programme. Canada is near to the motherland, while Australia, India and South Africa are far away. The British capitalist can run over here in a few days and watch his investments, anvl can, at the same time, include the United States in his trip. I think that fact also counts a good deal. That is why I believe that more money will come to Canada next year than ever before, and I think that this money will come not only to the railroads, but to the industrial and banking ohuses as well."

ROBBERY AT MOUNT PLEASANT

Special to The Examiner.

Mount Pleasant, Dec. 9.—The County Constable, Wm. Handley has not been able to trace the parties who entered Shields store on Sunday night, the 28th ult., and carried away with them goods of various kinds in value of about $30.00 or over. He traced them going north as he supposed, about three miles distant from Mount Pleasant it is supposed that they entered the cheese factory, but nothing is reported as taken out of it, as they laid in a sufficient stock of the choicest eatables that could be found in Shield's store, along with tobacco cigars and other goods. It is hoped that the government will station a policeman here or arrange with our constable here by allowing him a salary sufficient to keep a watch at night over the property of the citizens of this village. We pay taxes for protection.

Having rented his farm, John J. Thexton intends to move into his residence about Christmas time. He has made great improvements on his property during the summer months situated in the village.

The noise of the threshing machine is heard almost daily along with the sound of wagons moving the grain to market, the prices of which the farmer seems to be well satisfied with.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The British ship Johanna, with a car of sugar, worth $250,000, is a total loss off Santo Domingo.

An independent telephone service is promised in Chicago within a year, with 250,000 'phones within a radius of 500 miles.

There are upwards of 350,000 signatures on the 500 petitions so far received by the Government, asking for amendments to the law against gambling.

Owing to the almost complete abolition of toll gates in Frontenac the County Council intends to take further steps to have the city of Kingston do away with its market tolls.

A member of the senior class at the Royal Military College, has been suspended for three months, for having returned to the college in the early hours of the morning in a ribaldistic condition and precipitated a merry row.

The naval defence bill providing for the financing of the Dreadnought offer and New Zealand's contribution to the British navy, has been passed through all the stages of the House. The supplementaries third reading was carried without division.

Thomas White, a well-known Yarmouth farmer, aged 60, was instantly killed at Sparta yesterday afternoon. He was working at an engine in Cole's sawmill, when he came in contact with a fly wheel and was drawn in. The body was badly mangled.

Henry F. Heenan, forty-four years of age, and employed as cashier in the Dominion Fire Insurance Co.'s office in Toronto, drank carbolic acid yesterday and died after being admitted to the hospital. Heenan was two thousand dollars short in his accounts and a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

Winnipeg Has Big Fire.

Winnipeg, Dec. 10.—Fire which started at 1.30 p.m. yesterday afternoon, completely gutted the furniture factory and warehouse, a six-storey building, of W. B. Sterling Co., at Fort and Graham streets, causing loss of about $100,000.

Smoke and water loss also damaged the Leslie Furniture Co.'s warehouse, and several retail stores facing on Main street, Smith and Bruce, architects, and Martel and Shewan, liquor dealers, tenants on the ground floor also suffered losses.

The insurance is $50,000 on building, and $15,000 on the Sterling stock.

The fire started in the fifth floor, and rapidly spread to the sixth floor, with a strong wind blowing and the temperature at 30 below zero, only the torrent of water from the high pressure system stopped the conflagration.

"A colder spell than ever was before known in December," was comment of one old-timer yesterday. Certainly temperatures have been extraordinary low in this province during the past twenty-four hours.

Brandon reports a minimum of forty-five below, and prospects are for another very cold night.

This unusual cold snap follows the unprecedentedly heavy snow fall for this time of the year, and a month of November unique for mildness.

Marathon Dance Contest Stopped.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 10.—After dancing continuously for 14 hours and 1 minute without nourishment, the last of the 63 couples that started Wednesday night in a Marathon waltz contest to see which pair could waltz the longest, were stopped yesterday by Mayor Charles H. Nevin, on advice of physicians.

Six of the women contestants at the end of several hours, were taken to a hospital, one suffering from a ruptured blood vessel and another of muscular paralysis. All but two pairs had ceased the waltzing long before officers interfered.

These women presented a fearful sight during the last hours of the dancing, with their eyes bloodshot and their bodies swaying. Their male companions were barely able to keep their feet.

Nearly 500 spectators crowded the hall where the contest took place.

Threw Down for Nelson, B.C.

Nelson, B.C., Dec. 10.—William Whyte, second vice-president, is reported to have approved of Balfour, opposite Proctor, as a site for the new C.P.R. tourist hotel in Kootenay. Construction will commence early in the spring. Balfour is 23 miles from Nelson, where it is regarded as a breach of faith the city having an understanding with the railway company that the hotel was to be in or near Nelson, in return for concessions made by the city.

Half Million For Yale.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 10.—By the will of the late Charles H. Farnam, jr., filed in the Probate Court here yesterday, an estate estimated at about half a million dollars is left to Yale University to be used for buildings for the Sheffield Scientific School.

Million Dollars Less for Coal.

Washington, Dec. 10.—A million dollar cut in the appropriations for supply of coal for the United States navy was recommended to the House naval affairs committee yesterday by Admiral Cowles, chief of the bureau of equipment of the navy.

SICK HEADACHE

A Symptom of Troubles Which are Removed by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

These troubles are permanently banished by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Sick headaches are not merely afflictions to be borne as patiently as possible—they are danger signals. They never come unless the digestive system is out of order, and their regular recurrence is proof positive of serious trouble and a warning that should be heeded promptly.

Sick headaches are caused by Indigestion, Biliousness or Constipation, and no amount of "headache powders" will do more than temporarily relieve them. The only way to get rid of them entirely is to cure the Constipation or Indigestion that is causing them, and nothing will do this quicker or more effectively than Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are purely vegetable in character, and are free from any harmful drug. For over fifty years they have been in constant use in Canada, and have proved most effective in regulating the bowels, aiding digestion, banishing sick headaches and restoring vigorous health.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have stood the test for over fifty years. 25c. at all dealers. W. H. Comstock Co., Ltd., Brockville, Ont. 7

BELIEVES IN COOK.

Dr. Torp of Copenhagen Says Charge Is All Fiction.

Copenhagen, Dec. 10.—Dr. Torp, rector of the University of Copenhagen, said last night that the charges published yesterday in The New York Times against Dr. Frederick A. Cook, are based on pure fiction. Nevertheless, he added, we would accept the offer to examine the documents prepared by Loose and Dunkle, which The Times has agreed to send to Copenhagen.

Walter Lonsdale, secretary to Dr. Cook, who brought the explorer's records to Copenhagen, said that the papers delivered to the university contained the original observations made by Dr. Cook during the expedition, without alterations.

Loose and Dunkle, Mr. Lonsdale added, were guests at the Waldorf-Astoria during Dr. Cook's stay there, but the explorer's acquaintance with them was slight.

The committee which will examine Dr. Cook's records is composed of the following: President, Prof. Elis Strumgen, director of the astronomical observatory; Dr. C. F. Prochnik, astronomer attached to the observatory; Gustav Holm, explorer; Prof. A. B. Yansen, president of the school of navigation; Dr. Royder, director of the meteorological office, and Dr. Hugo A. Segstrom, director of the Lundok Observatory.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook's personal lawyer, Henry Wellington Wack, has severed relations with his client. Mr. Wack refused last night to confirm or deny his withdrawal, but it can be affirmed on competent authority that Mr. Wack wrote Dr. Cook so long ago as Nov. 30, that he must beg him to seek legal advice elsewhere.

Mr. Wack said last night that he had no idea where Dr. Cook is, but personally was inclined to believe he is abroad.

Ontario Apple Men Meet.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—Ontario Apple Shippers' Association has elected the following officers: President, Samuel Nesbitt, Brighton; secretary-treasurer, W. Montgomery, Brighton; executive, D. C. Matthews, Cobourg; E. McHenry, Oshawa; J. C. Smith, Burlington; H. W. Thorpe, Toronto; J. E. Johnston, Simcoe; J. J. Mitchell, Thornbury; M. Snetsinger, Thornbury; Elmer Lick, Oshawa.

A resolution was adopted to memorialize the Government to negotiate for the removal of the German duty on apples.

The inspection of apples by more than one inspector at different points in the course of shipment was the subject of another resolution. The shippers want the first inspection to be final, and to have a certificate issued when a shipment is passed. The matter will be taken up with the Government.

About 150 shippers were present at the meeting from all part of Ontario, representing practically the whole output of the province.

Serving Papers Leads to Shooting.

Kansas City, Kan., Dec. 10.—The attempt of Charles H. Lukens, a deputy sheriff, to serve papers in a divorce suit on Charles Galloway, a business man Wednesday night, led to the killing in a street of Lukens, and mortal wounding of Galloway, when he locked himself up in a clothes' closet to resist arrest, and the serious shooting of Harry Anderson, a detective.

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

GOOD GAME IN THE Y. M. C. A. BASKETBALL LEAGUE LAST NIGHT

The Blues and Whites played their game off last night and the Blues won out by a score og 20-6. While it was a large score the game was worth seeing, and those that did see it seemed to enjoy it. The little fellows played hard, but the other team was too much for them. The game would have been much better had the Whites had their old reliable Ross Laing. But for some unknown reason Laing stated that he would not play with the team any more this season.

The line-up was as follows:

Blues	Whites
W. Stratton	H. Smith
H. Lees	D. Carlisle
H. Hill	Hd. Hill
D .Pearson	. Mulhern
R. Scott	W. Thornton

Officials—Referee Bruce Lees, timer R. Howden; scorer, C. Bartlett.

Circus Notes.

We have some of the greatest fun-producers ever seen by any one, in the saw-dust arena. Last night McLaughlin had two of these fun-producers at the gym., and it looks as if there is going to be something doing the night of the Circus.

The Pyramid Workers were at the Gym. Wednesday night, building up their stunts for the circus, and they need very little practice, for they are right up with the best of them now.

This Circus affair is something new, and it will come to Peterborough for two days, Dec. 31st, and Jan. 1st. New Year's Day is to be a big day at the Y. M. C. A., and if you want to spend a jolly good evening why postpone all engagements for that night and go and see it.

Dan Lees (you all know him—I mean Bruce, well he and another fellow, whose name is not familiar, do some balancing and flips that would make some of the professional sacrobats sit up and take notice.—Com.

BIG CROWD WILL SEE THE TWO FAMOUS LONG DISTANCE MEN

To-morrow's big race at Brock Street Rink between Billy Sherring and Tom Longboat starts at 9.30 o'clock, sharp, a very convenient hour, as it gives those who have leisure, plenty of time to skate before the race, while, on the other hand, it gives the merchants and clerks a chance to see the contest. There is much interest being taken in the appearance of Sherring and Longboat here, and the two famous runners will get a big reception. A large number of Indians will be in from Chemong and Hiawatha villages for the race, so that Longboat will not lack for supporters of his own race. Will Sherring, although personally unknown here has always been a favourite since he painted the name of Canada on the athletic map by winning the Athens Marathon, bearing the Maple Leaf of Canada home well in front of a big field of the world's best performers. That one feat of Sherring's was bigger than anything Tom Longboat has accomplished, but the Indian, through the frequency of his contests and the number of times that he has won, has continued to place Canada before the eyes of the sporting world.

It will be the first time that the two have met at anything over five miles, and as both are at their best when set to go the longer route, ten miles indoors should catch both about right.

In addition to the running race the programme will include a three mile roller skating race, in which much interest is being taken among the fast skaters of the city.

BEST EVER ISSUED.

The Examiner's Christmas edition will be issued to-morrow and promises to be the most ambitious publication of this kind that the Examiner has ever attempted. Thirty-two pages of bright stories and splendid illustrations will be printed and the edition will be worth preserving. Not only will it be a magazine of Christmas reading, but it will also be a guide to Christmas shopping and the housewives will find many pointers as to what and where to buy Christmas gifts. An issue of 4000 papers will be printed, selling at 2 cents or in a tube ready for mailing, at 5c.

RUPTURE

DANGER OF DEATH — HOW TO AVOID IT.

In my article when I was announeing the coming arrival to Peterborough of Mr. A. Claverie, the distinguished European Specialist, I have said that Rupture was a disease to be dreaded.

I have since received several letters inquiring if the disease was really as dangerous as I have stated.

I hasten to reply that rupture is one of the most fearful infirmities known, although most of those who suffer from it are not aware of it.

Not to speak of the inconvenience of the pains it causes, the Rupture, if not supported, or if it is wrongly supported, which is just as bad, is bound fatally to increase more or les regularly until it attains fearful proportions.

From that time digestion is bad, the appetite decreases, the patient becomes weak until he is unable to work or even to move. It is old age when yet young, it means the shattering to pieces of all the strength of the patient.

And yet, there is osmething more terrible in sight; a scrotal rupture. It threatens the small as well as the large ruptures.

All of a sudden, the ring which allows a passage to the rupture sharply tightens, and this without any apparent cause, and if at this moment the rupture is protruding outwards it is choked, strangled and cannot be pressed back; this means death within twenty-four hours.

One may judge how urgent it is to take the most earnest precautions when one suffers from rupture.

But it is not by wearing ordinary trade trusses that one may be protected against such terrible danger, because the trusses are in most instances unable to support perfectly the rupture and to maintain the bowels in their proper place.

This question of treatment of rupture is a serious and grave problem for science and not traders to solve. It is then only through science and perfected appliances that good results can be secured.

And, for these reasons, I cannot too strongly recommend to my readers not to fail to go and see Mr. A. Claverie, the specialist known in the whole world when he will visit your city.

His method and his apparatus have the endorsation of the highest medical authorities, and have been adopted by nearly one million sufferers, the world over.

His last creation specially, solves the question of the system of palliative cure definitely and it is impossible to count how many desperate cases have been relieved and even cured.

You will thus go and see Mr. A. Claverie as you will surely find with him, safety and cure.

DOCTOR NAMY.

Mr. Andrew Claverie will be in Peterborough on Wednesday, the 15th and on Thursday, the 16th of December. He will be at the Oriental Hotel from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. All advice given free. Absolute secrecy. Special attention for ladies.

THE LATEST IS "MAKE LOVE"

There are some things in life that if they don't make you laugh by their absurdity, would certainly bring you to the verge of tears. One of these is the way the average man is pleased to what he fondly calls "make love."

Oh, deary me! When you think of the advantages men have—the way they may show their likings and lovings, the practice they get in lovemaking, and yet the horrible failure most of them make of it—if it wasn't so exasperating one would be sorry!

There isn't a woman alive I could not make fall in love with me if I were a man. Any girl could! Girls would take to lovemaking as ducks do to water if they might do the wooing. Not that we want to make love, you understand—I mean as girls. Only, knowing instinctively how we ought to be made love to, it is trying to have to smile sweetly over the cruda efforts of men to whom experience in this line apparently never teaches anything.

I'd like to have a school—a school wherein every man should be forced to graduate before he was permitted to make love to one of us.

First of all I'd teach my pupils not to be afraid of us. There isn't a more hardening thing to a girl's heart than to be allowed to see her suitor is rather scared of her.

She wants to be shy and timid and frightened of him; but for both of them to be trembling would be too absurd, so she gets vexed instead.

Men are sillies!

I'd teach them, on the other hand, not to be too bold. It's all very well for clever people to cry "L'audace, l'audace — toujours l'audace!" (In case you are, like myself, awfully shaky in French, I might remark this means "Audacity does it!") It does not altogether.

One of the most important things that I should strive to teach my school would be the great art, in the preliminary stages of lovemaking, of making it without drawing the attention of the whole world.

When she is not quite sure herself how she is going to answer the question that begins to loom before her, and she sees others are smilingly certain that she'll say, "Thank you, kindly"" naturally she doesn't. No nice girl allows herself to be taken for granted in this way. Ever so many "noes" might have been "yeses," but for the wise looks and whispered insinuations of good-natured friends.

When it comes to—er the sort of things that inevitably adorn lovemaking, men really require an immense amount of instruction.

What girl has not suffered from the absolute lack of discrimination as to time and place shown by her lover?

Ignorant male persons should in my school be taught that a kiss, like a good hand of trumps, requires leading up to. A sort of mild football scrimmage spoils the lady's coiffure and temper alike, and a scrim is, of course, not to be avoided if it is a case of George being too sudden, or if—fatal mistake! he allows the object of his affection to see that he knows she knows he is going to kiss her, and doesn't mind!

Besides, a girl may adore any one, and yet rather they wouldn't violently embrace her when she is clad in, say, a fresh white pique, and on the way to a garden party. It does crease so dreadfully, and a man never knows when your hat is on straight.

HAS NOT MARRIED HER LEADING MAN

Robert Dempster Will Have to Rub the Wishing Ring Again Before Luck and Marguerite Clark Smiles on His Plea.

In the New York Review's Most Popular Actress in America contest Ruth Maycliffe who appeared at the Grand with Charles Cherry in the Bachelor, is now in third place. Louise Alexander is first with 936 votes, Blanche Ring second with 914 and Miss Maycliffe has 862. Each week sees a great difference in the standing, although Blanche Ring, who is now appearing in the Yankee Girl, has always been near first place. Ruth Maycliffe is now playing the cities along the Pacific Coast with Mr. Cherry. In the Review contest Marguerite Clark is sixth. In each issue of the Review there is a blank voting form, which may be used by any subscriber of the paper which can be purchased in this city every Tuesday. All the latest theatrical doings is recorded and the sheet is a very interesting one.

Marguerite Clark denies that she and Robert Dempster are married.

Last Sunday the Review printed a report that the dainty little actress had taken her leading man for better or for worse, he having placed the "wishing ring" upon her finger.

This new came direct from intimate friends of Miss Clark, who still declare positively that it is true.

However, Miss Clark certainly should know something about her domestic affairs and condition of servitude, and her assertion that she has not taken upon herself the matrimonial yoke should have its due weight.

Miss Clark says "the report "that she is married injures her professionally.

We send our earnest condolences to Mr. Dempster, but bid him cheer up and not be disheartened. He is still Miss Clark's leading man.

Miss Clark soon will become star of "The King of Cadonia." Mr. Dempster will follow her into that company and will continue the stage wooing, which often has been known to lead into the real thing.

"The Wishing Ring," Miss Clark's legitimate starring vehicle, will not be abandoned when she transfers her charm and activity to "The King of Cadonia.' The musical comedy will come into New York before many months have elapsed, and during the metropolitan engagement Miss Clark and Mr. Dempster will give a series of special matinees of the fairylike comedy.

In the meantime every one is charged to have in mind Miss Clark's emphatic assertion that she is not married.

Mr. Dempster has not been heard from.—New York Review.

"BOOTBLACK KING" QUITS RACING GAME WITH A MILLION

When the thoroughbred returns to these surroundings next season the silks of Tony Aste, the Bootblack King, will be found among the list of missing colours. No more will the layers scent a killing by this clever manipulator. The days when he had the knights of the chalk on the qui vive are all over and Aste, following the lead of the other daring operators of his time, will never be anything but a memory to the turf.

Aste had his day—and it certainly was a grand one, but lately Dame Fortune, which is acknowledged to be very fickle, failed to smile upon this quiet Neapolitan, and he has not met with any alarming success. Whatever they may say, Aste was as game as they make them. He tried to stave off the ill luck that followed him the past two years, but when Crack Shooter broke his leg at Saratoga last August and was destroyed, Aste realized that his day on the turf, was over. When he was fully satisfied on this score, he decided to dispose of his stable and the recent sale at Lexington, Ky., was the finish of one of the most remarkable characters on the American turf.

Aste earned the soubriquet of 'Bootblack King' through the fact that he earned a fortune by polishing shoes. Like many successful men, he started at the bottom, and, by dint of perseverance, worked his way up to the top. Starting with a brush and a box of blacking, the indefatigable hustler speedily built up a business that, within a few years, brought him in an income of $50,000. After he had reached this stage, Aste looked around for more worlds to conquer, and decided that racing was the best that he could tackle.

$1,000,000 Ahead of Game.

The turf is no quiet stream, and Aste had his ups and downs as other daring operators, but now, when the balance sheet is drawn, it can safely and conservatively be estimated that Aste is at least one million ahead of the game.

Aste had a career on the turf that, when the sport was at its height, was spectacular in the fullest meaning. The good old days of the high steel and chalk have flitted from the scene and are memories of the past, but veterans who handled the stream of gold in those times will never forget the many trouncings that this quiet, unassuming owner handed the ring when his colours came flying down the stretch in advance of his rivals.

Aste built up a reputation that will always live in turf annals. He engineered some of the cleverest coups of the decade and, better than anything else, always got away with them.

Many times the officials ordered an investigation when an Aste runner would perform a form somersault, but no action was ever taken, and he retires from the game with a clean bill of sale.

His most remarkable coup and the one that made the wily knights of the chalks it up and perch around was when his colt Hippocrates won the sixth race at Sheepshead Bay on June 24, 1905. Hippocrates had been showing a flash of form in his previous starts, but not enough to be taken seriously.

The layers opened the colt at 8 1, but no coin put in an appearance, and the odds gradually receded to the thirties. Instantly a number of unknown players descended upon the bookies and started to load them with Hippocrates money.

As the odds shortened the wagers began to swell in volume and as the field trotted to the post there was a veritable panic in the betting emporium, for the Aste money had forced the odds to 4 to 1. The running of the race was nothing short of a revelation. Hippocrates had all his speed with him and cantered under the wire a victor by four lengths. When the clerks figured up the slaughter it was discovered that no layer was overbooked and Mr. Aste was $250,000 richer.

Aste also owned a mediocre runner, Plater, that caused more headaches at a racetrack than any ten horses together. When the checks were down he would tear around the course like a Hindoo, but when no stable coin showed he was not able to beat a track horse. After one of those races a racing official let out a wild whoop and rushed into the judge's enclosure declaring that "racing of this order must be stopped." Aste was called upon for an explanation and satisfied the authorities.

It was only a few years ago that a scandal was created when his filly, Gold Lily, was beaten. "There was an investigation, and eventually Knapp, the rider, and a bookmaker were given their walking papers. Aste was the one who made the complaint as he had a big wager down and the performance was one he could not fathom.

When the late William C. Whitney was beginning to become a power in racing he purchased Nasturtium from Aste for $50,000, with the fullest expectation of winning the Futurity with the colt. Again Nasturtium was eligible to the Derby in England. Nasturtium failed to get in the money in the Futurity and, in fact, never did anything startling under the Whitney colours. Aste cleaned up $45,000 on this sale as he had bought the colt in the early part of the season for $4,000.

When a total stranger breaks into the game and ends his career so successfully, it proves that he was a clever man. They may come and go, but it will be many years before a worthy successor to Tony Aste, the Bootblack King, is found.

GREAT DANGER OF FIRES IN CHRISTMAS DECORATING

The Fire Underwriters' Association Warn Merchants Against the Use of Inflammable Material.

CAREFUL OF LIGHTS

The Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association is conducting its usual campaign against the dangerous nature of some kinds of Christmas decorating and has issued a circular to the merchants who are most affected. However, the danger is not confined to dry goods and departmental stores, as almost any other mercantile establishment is liable to make a display and it is frequently made in churches, public halls, etc.

Whenever any kind of display is made, special care should be given to the electrical installations, particularly those of a temporary nature. They should only be put in by competent electricians, and all fuse blocks and cut-outs should be located away from inflammable material, and what are known as "enclosed" or "cartridge" fuses only should be used. "Open" fuses are particularly dangerous. The enclosing of incandescent lights with paper and other inflammable material is altogether too common a practice and is highly dangerous.

Following is a copy of the circular:

Dear Sir,—Following our usual custom at this season of the year I beg to call your attention to the dangers to life and propery from Christmas decorations, displays, etc., which are frequently made at this time of the year. The use of Christmas greens, harvest specimens and other inflammable materials, such as draperies, scenery, cotton, to represent snow, and the like, (especially in connection with electric and other lighting systems) is decidedly an increase of hazard, it being impossible to make displays of that nature perfectly safe.

The third statutory condition of your insurance policy reads in part as follows:

"Any change material to the risk, but within the control or knowledge of the assured, shall avoid the policy, as to the part affected hereby, unless the change is promptly notified in writin to the Company or its local agent."

In addition to the danger to property from the displays referred to, the danger to life, in crowded stores or places of meeting, by reason of a panic occasioned by a fire, even though it be small and easily controlled, is so great that the Underwriters, who have made a study of such hazards, would fail in their duty should they not give this warning.

By order,
JOHN A. ROBERTSON,
Secretary.

THE TEMPTATIONS OF MARRIED COQUETTES

Is it natural for women to flirt? In the majority of cases the craving for the admiration of the opposite sex is not merely a passing phase in a woman's life; it is a perfectly healthy and natural attribute. There is hardly a woman living who does not cherish feelings of intense satisfaction at the thought that her beauty or cleverness attracts and holds the attention of the creature called man.

Allowing this, then, it must be admitted that most women are flirts, for to endeavour to compel, attract, or hold the admiration of the opposite sex is nothing more or less than flirting. Now, if this condition is natural to woman—that is, if she is known as a born flirt—she will continue to be at heart a coquette, whether she is single or married.

Curiously enough, many a married woman would much rather be thought coquettish than be termed a flirt; and yet, after all, a coquette is one who, prompted by vanity, endeavours by art to gain lovers or admirers. It must therefore be admitted that every woman has placed by nature in her hands a very powerful and, to some extent, dangerous weapon, and it behooves her to be careful of its use.

This applies particularly to the newly-married girl, who may be what is generally termed a confirmed coquette. It is so very tempting, if only to tease the husband or to make him just a trifle jealous, to appear to encourage the attentions of some other man friend. And yet, what great discretion she must exercise, lest she bring down on herself the wrath of her husband, or lessen the esteem of her friend.

It may be all very well for the man who admires the married coquette; unfortunately, there are a good many men about who, if they think a married woman is a trifle too frivolous or skittish, will encourage her to over step the mark.

Neither beauty nor exceptional charms are required to make a successful flirt. Men like coquettish girls. They amuse them, flatter their vanity, and help the time along very pleasantly indeed; yet the advantage is always on the side of the sterner sex.

Skin Diseases.

Under this name such troubles as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Erysipelas, Tetter, Shingles, Psoriasis, Scurf, Itching Rashes, Eruptions, Boils, Pimples, etc., are included. Skin diseases, as a rule, are not dangerous, but are unsightly, irritating and often terribly annoying to the sufferer; they depend mainly on bad blood, from one cause or another, for if the blood is pure and the circulation good no skin disease can exist, except it arise from lack of proper cleanliness or from contagion.

To get rid of skin diseases it is necessary to observe strictly all the laws of health; maintain regular action of the bowels; avoid high living, eating only plain nourishing food. Cleanse and keep the blood pure by taking Burdock Blood Bitters, which unlocks all the secretions, and makes new rich blood by acting on the entire system.

Had Salt Rheum Six Years.

Mrs. E. M. Myers, East Jeddore, N.S., writes:—"I don't think there is anyone in this Dominion can recommend Burdock Blood Bitters more than I can. I suffered terribly with Salt Rheum for six years, and did everything for it without relief. For curiosity sake I bought six bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it completely cured me. I would advise others to use it."

For sale by all dealers. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE STORY OF TWO CHRISTMAS DAYS

BY JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE.

Tom Smith was Uncle Peleg Smith's only boy, and bein' up tender by him and Aunt Mandy, his ma. But he was a masterful boy even in the cradle, and would look at you with his big, resolute eyes as if he wuz bound to have his own way even before he could creep.

And so it kep' on, tryin' to creep before he had strength to, and when he could creep tryin' to puff himself up by sumthin' and walk, and when he walked he wanted to run, and so he went on. He was bright as a new dollar and got a good education, and I couldn't help likin' him, though he wuz wild as a mustang colt. But after awhile he kinder stiddied down to solid work, after he had sowed a considerable crop of wild oats of which oats more hereafter) and he worked his way up till he got independen rich, had four o rfive immemse factories and wus pilin' up money by the millions, as factories will when they gobble up smaller concerns, hire child labor, and all such equinomeal ways of coinin' wealth.

His wife wuz from a high family and married Tom, so it was spozed to use his millions to prop her old family tree, which wus gittin' kinder mouldy and toothin'. And she did use his money fast, scattered it broadcast from her lily fingers and undes the shower sprung up city and country houses, yots, liveried servants, jewels, shifton, trips abroad, etc., etc.

But Tom didn't care, for money flowed out fast from the immense hoppers of his manufactories. He shevelled in cotton and flesh and blood, brains, and happiness, and there flowed out gold and wornout bodies, child faces with the light stomped out; hearts, shrivelled bodies and souls. He couldn't hardly count his wealth, so he didn't begrech her lavishness. For though he didn't love her so much as he admired her, and she give him back a rather pale affection, still she gin him one thing that atoned for everything else, a dear little baby girl. Way aunt Mandy see plain how he made a perfect idol of her, and we talked about it when we wuz invited there to a Christmas party.

I spoze Tom made that party and invited his relations jest to show off that baby and I didn't blame him, for if there wus ever a lovely creeter it wuz little Alice Adelaide, a sweeter child I never see, but I told Josiah if that child wurn't spilte I'd miss my guess. Two nurses, a motherly head nurse, and a brisk young helper, a doctor comin' every day to see to its diet and surroundings, three big rooms opening into each other on the sunny side of the house for its use, each one fitted up like a queen's, the day nursery, night nursery and nurse's room, with big winders lettin' in the sunshine and sweet air, open fireplaces with shinin' grate's lookin' as if they wus made of gold leaf, to keep the baby from danger.

A snowy bed, draped with pink silk, shaded by costly lace, rosewood furniture, shinin' floors, cossly rugs, beautiful pictures and statues of angels and children, electric lights hid in snowy lilys and half-open pink roses. Everywhere wus beauty, and over all the luxury and watchful caution wus the divine atmosphere of the most tender love and adoration.

No wonder the baby throve. It wus a wonder of baby strength and beauty, its sound white limbs, pink cheeks and brigh sparklin' eyes told the same story of rosy health and happiness. At dinner Uncle Peleg happened to mention that it wus growin' colder, and Tom's face clouded with keen anxiety, and he room had varied half a degree in warmth, but he looked cheerful when he come back, the thermometer in every room registered the same heat. But he remarked anxiously to Adelaide that the baby's dress seemed a trifle thinner than the one she'd worn the day before, and he felt worried for fear she might git cold, and he proposed that she should go at once and see about it. Adelaide (she did have sensible streaks) sez, "Perkins is a faithful and experienced nurse, devoted to Alice, she will see that everything is right, and the dresses are all alike, we got a dozen new ones last week, she has outgrown her others."

His anxiety seemed to abate some, but the minute dinner wus over he went up agin to his shrine to worship and feast his eyes on the joy of his life.

Lots of families in Jonesville didn't have half the comfortable quarters the cow did that had the honor to produce the milk that Alice drank. One special man took care of the palatial home of that cow, fed it on choice food, and washed and tended her till she looked sleek and shinin' as any well-groomed human could. Uncle Peleg, who had been takin' notes whilst he wuz there, told me goin' home, "Is is a rank idolatory and I shall feel embarrassed next Sunday when I collect money to convert idolators in Injy, I shall feel that I ort to be sendin' a missionary to Tom."

"Yes," sez Aunt Mandy, "Thomas worships that child, but there never wus so beautiful a child before in the world."

Aunt Beany sez, "Id'no as it is any [illegible] child than my Mary Ann's, [illegible] course our child hain't got [illegible] to wait on't, but it is a [illegible]."

"[illegible] News [illegible] po," sez Aunt Mandy, [illegible] is a peaceable creter. [illegible] hep' the same mind [illegible] wus sin and would [illegible] Bed. (He's clost company to Tares in lecture). [illegible] wus sin, it wus [illegible] Poor Tom! spoze [illegible] what I put it took place [illegible] spoze, dead [illegible] and death.

Baby Alice wus [illegible] home on [illegible] when Tom wus away, [illegible] trace of her could be found. [illegible] Tom come home next day, after he resented out of the dead faint he fell into when he heard the news, acted like a crazy man for months, hirin' detectives right an dleft, offerin' the biggest rewards ever offered, orderin' round the police of two continents as if they wus his own hired men. After months and months of this, goin' day and night as if he was made of machinery instead of flesh and blood, one day after a long followed clew had proved worthless, he dropped down as if shot by a cannon ball and lay on Death'se doorsteps for weeks. And at last when he climb up them slippery steps out into the world agin he wusn't the old Tom at all.

The old Tom was gay tempered, happy, ambitious, pleasure loving, with all his hard work. But this Tom was a cold, sour man, carin' for nothin' under the sweet heaven. He relation on his side and hern, seemin'ly nothin' t ohim but painted figgers he looked coldly on. Adelaide wuz only a pale shape that sot at the head of his table and ornamented his home. The hull world wuz like a play at some cheap theatre that had to be endured till the curtain fell. Nothin' remained to him but ambition, that after awhile roosted up a little and gradually he got engrossed in his work again, hard workin', skemin', unscrupulous, takin' any means to advance his fortunes.

Well, Alice had been lost for years and not a trace discovered of her when Adelaide invited the relation on Tom's side to another Christmas party. She had a beautiful dinner and put a handsome present by the side of each one's plate.

Tom wuzn't cross, but he acted uninteregted, as if nothin' mattered. Not a word wuz said about Alice, nor we dassent for our lives speak of what filled our hearts and minds full. We wuz invited for a week, Tom's parents, Josiah and I. The rest went home the next day. The day after Christmas Uncle Peleg proposed that we should visit the factory. We wus goin' on the street car, but Adelaide wouldn't hear to it, and we went in a big carriage with coachman and footman dressed in livery, went through the broad streets, by gorgeous houses, with great winders decked with gay Christmas wreaths down to narrer dirty streets filled with gaunt, hungry faces.

Tom run us to the factory. It wus a immense buildin', but dark and gloomy, with low ceilin's that seemed to shut in the bad air, and narrer, grimy winders, too thick with dist to let in much light. It wuz an awful place, and I told Tom, "The air here is so dretful that I don't see how the hired help stand it."

And he said, "The air wus probable better than they had to home." And as he said about everything, "It wus better than they had to home."

As we went through the dingy rooms filled with pale, spiritless figgers we see tendin' one of the looms a little child standin' on a stool to make her come up high enough to reach her work. It wus simple work that a child could do, but hard for one of her strength, and my heart ached as I looked at the bent, weary little figger and the unhappy, anxious look on the white, patient face. Her dress wus ragged and soiled and too thin for the season and her feet wus most bare, a cold draft blew in from a door behind her and she shivered. I sez to Tom, "That poor little thing is sufferin' from cold." And he sez, glancin' at the pitiful figger, "It is probable much warmer here than at her own home."

Sez I, "It is a burnin' shame, Tom, for such children to be put to work. Poor baby! She ort to be cuddled in her ma's arms this minute. Why, I held Tirza Ann in my arms when she wus big agin as this child. It is a shame to think such outrages are permitted in a civilized land."

"Outrages!" sez he coldly.

"Les, outrages!" sez I. "What else is it for a child to grow up with no childhood, no childish pleasures, to say nothin' of health and comfort and decency?"

"Oh, well, cousin Samantha, if you are going to try to correct all the abuses of this world you'll have to git up early and set up late. That child most likely has known nothin' but hardship and privation all her days. While she is working here, though doubtless it is hard for her, yet she is safe for the time from being abused and beaten by drunken parents, and they will give her enough food to keep up her strength so she can work."

"Then you approve of such infants workin' from mornin' till night and night till mornin', do you?" sez I, fixin' my eyes full of bayonets and daggers on his cool unmoved face.

"Oh, this one don't work day and night. When one set of children work all day the other children take their places for the night work."

"Shameful!" sez I, "as shameful as I ever see in my life."

"Well, what are you going to do about it? The people want their children to work, and of course it is cheaper than adult labor, so what can you do?"

"You can refuse to hire 'em, you can shake your coat skirts free of this sin, and you could lift that baby there out of this livin' grave if you wanted to."

"What good would that do?" sez he.

"What is one more drop in the sea of humanity that flows on such these hard channels?"

[illegible] makes all the difference in the world to the Drop is. If it held [illegible] trace of her shine and beauty of our [illegible] child feel different. Spozin' [illegible] little pitiful, half dead creeter was our own flesh and blood, our own tender darling, bent with hard labor, her hands marred with toil, her body achin' with hard tasks put on her tremblin' shoulders jest to earn a few more needless dollars to put away in some iron vault—if it wuz our child what would we say to it?"

He looked sombry and mad. The stream of his sorrow had turned to gall. I had tapped it and it run anger. But I didn't seem to care and I sez:

"Hear that child cough, Thomas Peleg Smith!" I never used his full name only when agitated and by the side of myself.

"Well, what of it? Children have coughed before and probably will ag'in." And he flounced off, and I went up to the child and spoke to her. She didn't look up or answer. It wus agin the rules. And I sithed and three or four tears fell onbeknown to me, and I sez gently, for I felt drawed to her, "What is your name, dear?"

She didn't answer, on account of the rules, I spoze, which I rejoiced in breakin', and would been glad to smash the hull on 'em under my feet as I looked on that baby. She had a sweet face, as I could see under the oily grime and dust, "What is your name? You needn't look up, but I will take the blame if you will answer."

I spoze my axent won her, and she answered in low voice without lookin' up—"Alice." And then agin her little form shook in the draft and her slender figger wus tore by that terrible cough.

Sez I, "Dear, would you like to go with me from this noisy room and hard work out into the country, and run round and grow well and strong?" For a minute her face grew righter, and then the old hopeless look come back. "Mother wouldn't let me, and I can't git out of here."

Sez I, "Where dus your mother live?" She told me without raisin' her eyes, and jest that minute Tom come back, he heard me talkin' with one of his employees and the stream of gall wus still on tap.

She cowered down as if she would sink through the floor, but still the patient little creeter kep' on with her work. "Yes, sir!" sez she. I was too excited and mad to pity Tom Now, and I sez, "Her name is Alice."

He gin me an awful look and rushed me right along toward the door where the rest wus waitin', and never said a word goin' home, but sot with a shadder black as a thunder cloud on his forward.

That very afternoon Josiah was took with a crick, they run in the Allen family, and nothin' to do but he must git home to once, and I knowin' what a man's disposition and nats are in sickness, felt I would rather conceal 'em in the seclusion of our own home, so we carried the mess train.

And no sooner wus he well than I sot off myself for the city. I never went nigh Thomasmes, but took a hack and driv where Alice said her mother lived. It was a dretful place (owned by Tom I learn afterwards) a totlin' old tenement with slantin' walls that seemed losin' with the

BY JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE.

Tom Smith was Uncle Peleg Smith's only boy, and brung up tender by him and Aunt Mandy, his ma. But he was a masterful boy even in the cradle, and would look at you with his big, resolute eyes as if he wuz bound to have his own way even before he could creep.

And so it kep' on, tryin' to creep before he had strength to, and when he could creep tryin' to puff himself up by sumthin' and walk, and when he walked he wanted to run, and so he went on. He wuz bright as a new dollar and got a good education, and I couldn't help likin' him, though he wuz wild as a mustang colt. But after awhile he kinder stiddied down to solid work, after he had sowed a considerable crop of wild oats of which oats more hereafter) and he worked his way up till he got independen rich, had four o rfive immense factories and was pilin' up money by the millions, as factories will when they gobble up smaller concerns, hire child labor, and all such equinomical ways of comin' wealth.

His wife wuz from a high family and married Tom, so it was spozed to use his millions to prop her old family tree, which was gittin' kinder mouldy and tottlin'. And she did use his money fast, scattered it broadcast from her lily fingers and undes the shower sprung up city and country houses, yots, liveried servants, jewels, shiffon, trips abroad, etc., etc.

But Tom didn't care, for money flowed out fast from the immense hoppers of his manufactories. He shovelled in cotton and flesh and blood, brains, and happiness, and there flowed out gold and wornout bodies, child faces with the light stomped out; bent, shrivelled bodies and souls. He couldn't hardly count his wealth, so he didn't begrech her lavishness. For though he didn't love her so much as he admired her, and she give him back a rather pale affection, still she gin him one thing that stoped for everything else, a dear little baby girl. Why aunt Mandy see plain how he made a perfect idol of her, and we talked about it when we wuz invited there to a Christmas party.

I spoze Tom made that party and invited his relations jest to show off that baby and I didn't blame him, for if there wuz ever a lovely creeter it wuz little Alice Adelaide, a sweeter child I never see, but I told Josiah if that child wuzn't spilte I'd miss my guess. Two nusses, a motherly head nurse, and a brisk young helper, a doctor comin' every day to see to its diet and surroundings, three big rooms opening into each other on the sunny side of the house for its use, each one fitted up like a queen's, the day nursery, night nursery and nurse's room, with big winders lettin' in the sunshine and sweet air, open fireplaces with shinin' grates lookin' as if they wuz made of gold leaf, to keep the baby from dinger.

A snowy bed, draped with pink silk, shaded by costly lace, rosewood furniture shinin' floors, costly rugs, beautiful pictures and statues of angels and children, electric lights hid in snowy lilys and half-open pink roses. Everywhere wuz beauty, and over all the luxury and watchful caution wuz the divine atmosphere of the most tender love, and adoration.

No wonder the baby throve. It wuz a wonder of baby strength and beauty, its sound white limbs, pink cheeks and brigh sparklin' eyes told the same story of rosy health and happiness. At dinner Uncle Peleg happened to mention that it wuz growin' colder, and Tom's face clouded with keen anxiety, and the room had varied half a degree in warmth, but he looked cheerful when he come back, the thermometer in every room registered the same heat. But he remarked anxiously to Adelaide that the baby's dress seemed a trifle thinner than the one she'd worn the day before, and he felt worried for fear she might git cold, and he proposed that she should go at once and see about it. Adelaide (she did have sensible streaks) sez, "Perkins is a faithful and experienced nurse, devoted to Alice, she will see that everything is right, and the dresses are all alike, we got a dozen new ones last week, she has outgrown her others."

His anxiety seemed to abate some, but the minute dinner wuz over he went up agin to his shrine to worship and feast his eyes on the joy of his life.

Lots of families in Jonesville didn't have half the comfortable quarters the cow did that had the honor to produce the milk that Alice drank. One special man took care of the palatial home of that cow, fed it on choice food, and washed and tended her till she looked sleek and shinin' as any well-groomed human could. Uncle Peleg, who had been takin' notes whilst we wuz there, told me goin' home, "It is a rank idolatory and I shall feel embarrassed next Sunday when I collect money to convert idolators in Injy, I shall feel that I ort to be sendin' a missionary to Tom."

"Yes," sez Aunt Mandy, "Thomas worships that child, but there never wuz so beautiful a child before in the world."

Aunt Seeny sez, "I'd no see it is any better child than my Mary Ann is; of course our child hain't got up a dozen to wait on't, but it is a lovely child."

"Yes, that's so," sez Aunt Mandy, she always wuz a peacable creeter. But Tom's father hep' the same mind that idolatory wuz sin and would have to be punished. (He's clost communion and believes in election). Well, if Tom's worship wuz sin, it was punished to the full. Poor Tom! poor, poor fellow! That's what I put in my letter to him after it took place, he didn't see it I spose, dead sick, layin' between life and death.

Baby Alice wuz stole from her palatial home on a black midnight when Tom was away, and not a trace of her could be found. When Tom come home next day, after he roasted out of the land that he fell into when he learn the news, acted like a crazy man for months, hirin' detectives right an dleft, offerin' the biggest rewards ever offered, orderin' round the police of two continents as if they wuz his own hired men. After months and months of this, goin' day and night as if he was made of machinery instead of flesh and blood, one day after a long followed clew had proved worthless, he dropped down as if shot by a cannon ball and lay on Death'se doorsteps for weeks. And at last when he climb up them slippery steps out into the world agin he wuzn't the old Tom at all.

The old Tom was gay tempered, happy, ambitious, pleasure loving, with all his hard work. But this Tom waz a cold, sour man, carin' for nothin' under the sweet heaven. he relation on his side and hern, seemin'ly nothin' t ohim but painful figgers he looked coldly on. Adelaide wuz only a pale shape that sot at the head of his table and ornamented his home. The hull world wuz like a play at some cheap theatre that had to be endured till the curtain fell. Nothin' remained to him but ambition, that after awhile roosted up a little and gradually he got engrossed in his work again, hard workin', skemin', unscrupulous, takin' any means to advance his fortunes.

Well, Alice had been lost for years and not a trace discovered of her when Adelaide invited the relation on Tom's side to another Christmas party. She had a beautiful dinner and put a handsome present by the side of each one's plate.

Tom wusn't cross, but he acted uninterested, as if nothin' mattered. Not a word wuz said about Alice, nor we dassent for our lives speak of what filled our hearts and minds full. We wuz invited for a week, Tom's parents, Josiah and I. The rest went home the next day. The day after Christmas Uncle Peleg proposed that we should visit the factory. We wuz goin' on the street cars, but Adelaide wouldn't hear to it, and we went in a big carriage with coachman and footman dressed in livery, went through the broad streets, by gorgeous houses, with great winders decked with gay Christmas wreaths down to narrer dirty streets filled with gaunt, hungry faces.

Tom met us at the factory. It wuz a immense buildin', but dark and gloomy, with low ceilin's that seemed to shut in the bad air, and narrer, grimy winders, too thick with dirt to let in much light. It wuz an awful place, and I told Tom, "The air here is so dretful that I don't see how the hired help stand it."

And he said, "The air wuz probable better than they had to home." And so he said about everything, "It was better than they had to home."

As we went through the dingy rooms filled with pale, spiritless figgers we see tendin' one of the looms a little child standin' on a stool to make her come up high enough to reach her work. It wuz simple work that a child could do, but hard for one of her strength, and my heart ached as I looked at the bent, weary little figger and the onhappy, anxious look on the white, patient face. Her dress wuz ragged and soiled and too thin for the season and her feet wuz most bare, a cold draft blew in from a door behind her and she shivered. I sez to Tom, "That poor little thing is sufferin' from cold." And he sez, glancin' at the pitiful figger, "It is probable much warmer here than at her own home."

Sez I, "It is a burnin' shame, Tom, for such children to be put to work. Poor baby! She ort to be cuddled in her ma's arms this minute. Why, I held Tirza Ann in my arms when she wus big agin as this child. It is a shame to think such outrages are permitted in a civilized land."

"Outrages!" sez he coldly.

"Yes, outrages!" sez I. "What else is it for a child to grow up with no childhood, no childish pleasures, to say nothin' of health and comfort and decency?"

"Oh, well, cousin Samantha, if you are going to try to correct all the abuses of this world you'll have to git up early and set up late. That child most likely has known nothin' but hardship and privation all her days. While she is working here, though doubtless it is hard for her, yet she is safe for the time from being abused and beaten by drunken parents, and they will give her enough food to keep up her strength so she can work."

"Then you approve of such infants workin' from mornin' till night and night till mornin', do you?" sez I, fixin' my eyes full of bayonets and daggers on his cool unmoved face.

"Oh, this one don't work day and night. When one set of children work all day the other children take their places for the night work."

"Shameful!" sez I, "as shameful as I ever see in my life."

"Well, what are you going to do about it? The people want their children to work, and of course it is cheaper than adult labor, so what can you do?"

"You can refuse to hire 'em, you can shake your coat skirts free of this sin, and you could lift that baby there out of this livin' grave if you wanted to."

"What good would that do?" sez he.

"What is one more drop in the ocean of humanity that flows on through these hard channels?"

"It makes all the difference in the world what the Drop is. If it held the hull sunshine and beauty of our lives we would feel different. Spozin' that little pirifal, half dead creeter was our own flesh and blood, our own tender darling, bent with hard labor, her hands marred with toil, her body achin' with hard tasks put on her tremblin' shoulders jest to earn a few more needless dollars to put away in some iron vault—if it wuz our child what would we say to it?"

He looked sombry and mad. The stream of his sorrow had turned to gall. I had tapped it and it run anger. But I didn't seem to care and I sez:

"Hear that child cough, Thomas Peleg Smith!" I never used his full name only when agitated and by the side of myself.

"Well, what of it? Children have coughed before and probably will ag'in." And he flounced off, and I went up to the child and spoke to her. She didn't look up or answer. It wuz agin the rules. And I sithed and three or four tears fell onbeknown to me, and I sez gently, for I felt drawed to her, "What is your name, dear?"

She didn't answer, on account of the rules, I spoze, which I rejoiced in breakin', and would been glad to smash the hull on 'em under my feet as I looked on that baby. She had a sweet face, as I could see under the oily grime and dust. "What is your name? You needn't look up, but I will take the blame if you will answer."

I spoze my axent won her, and she answered in low voice without lookin' up—"Alice." And then agin her little form shook in the draft and her slender figger wuz tore by that terrible cough.

Sez I, "Dear, would you like to go with me from this noisy room and hard work out into the country, and run round and grow well and strong?" For a minute her face grew righter, and then the old hopeless look come back. "Mother wouldn't let me, and I can't git out of here."

Sez I, "Where dus your mother live?" She told me without raisin' her eyes, and jest that minute Tom come back, he heard me talkin' with one of his employees and the stream of gall wuz still on tap.

She cowered down as if she would sink through the floor, but still the patient little creeter kep' on with her work. "Yes, sir," sez she. I wuz too excited and mad to pity Tom Now, and I sez, "Her name is Alice."

He gin me an awful look and rushed me right along toward the door where the rest wuz waitin', and never said a word goin' home, but sot with a shadder black as a thunder cloud on his forward.

That very afternoon Josiah wuz took with a crick, they run in the Allen family, and nothin' to do but he must git home to once, and I knowin' what a man'se disposition and acts are in sickness, felt I would rather conceal 'em in the seclusion of our own home, so we started the next train.

And no sooner wuz he well than I got mad myself for the city. I never went nigh Thomases, but took a hack and driv where Alice said her mother lived. It wuz a dretful place (owned by Tom I learn afterwards) a totlin' old tenement with slautin' walls that seemed ossin' with the physical and moral impurities" with stuffed in the miry, shattered pages, dirt, grime, disorder wuz rampant, and the vile smell seemed to make it impossible for human bein's to live there, and inside it wuz still worse. A slatternly virago in the hallway pinted up the stairs when I asked the way and sez, "The child is dyin'!"

"Dyin'!" sez I, feelin' faint and dizzy for a minute, "what is the matter?"

The woman laughed, if the coarse demon-like noise could be called laughin'. "Oh, it is strange that a kid like that should work like a horse all day month after month, to earn money to keep a drunken slut and be beat and pounded to beat and live in such a sweet spot as this, it is bloomin' strange it should be sick and die, hain't it?"

I went up the crazy stairs in silence, and no one can describe the grimy horror of the room I entered through the half-open door, or the looks of the hag that sot there on a broken stool with an empty brandy bottle by her side. In a corner on a pile of rags lay the figger I sought. For a minute I thought she wuz dead, and wuz glad, glad she'd escaped from such a spot, and I said mekanically, "She's dead!" The woman burst out into a horrible sting of profanity, endin' with:

"No, she hain't dead, curse her lazy bones! She hain't earned anything for a week, and I've had to sell the clothes her money bought me to git what I must have. But she's got to work tomorrow if she's alive." And then come another outburst of oaths and vile epithets. The child opened her large eyes; the same patient look wuz in their depths, and the same fleetin' impression swap' through me of seein' them before somewhere, long ago. Then agin she closed her eyes, too fur gone seemin'ly to speak. I looked around the room and onbeknown to myself sez:

"What a place for a human bein' to live in." The bloated, awful figger partly rose up, "I'm glad of it! I wish it was worse! I would put up with ten times, yes a hundred times as much to drag someone else down with me!" And she fixed her evil eyes on Alice's pale face. "Do you

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle

It was bitter to draw back; but it was madness to remain. Nigel looked round and saw that half his men were down. At the same moment Raoul sank with a gasp at his feet, a bolt driven to its socket through the links of the camail which guarded his neck. Some of the archers, seeing that certain death awaited them, were already running back to escape from the fatal passage.

"By Saint Paul!" cried Nigel hotly. "Would you leave our wounded where this butcher may lay his hands upon them? Let the archers shoot inwards and hold them back from the slits. Now let each man raise one of our comrades, lest we leave our honor in the gate of this castle."

With a mighty effort he had raised Raoul upon his shoulders and staggered with him to the edge of the ditch. Several men were waiting below where the steep bank shielded them from the arrows, and to them Nigel went back until no one lay in the tunnel save seven who had died there. Thirteen wounded were laid in the shelter of the ditch, and there they must remain until night came to cover them. Meanwhile the bowmen on the farther side protected them from attack, and also prevented the enemy from all attempts to build up the outer gate. The gaping smoke-blackened arch was all that they could show for a loss of thirty men, but that at least Knolles was determined to keep.

Burned and bruised, but unconscious of either pain or fatigue for the turmoil of his spirit within him, Nigel knelt by the Frenchman and loosened his helmet. The girlish face of the young Squire was white as chalk, and the haze of death was gathering over his violet eyes, but a faint smile played round his lips as he looked up at his English comrade.

"I shall never see Beatrice again," he whispered. "I pray you, Nigel, that when there is a truce you will journey as far as my father's chateau and tell him how his son died. Young Gaston will rejoice, for to him come the land and the coat, the war-cry and the profit. See them, Nigel, and tell them that I was as forward as the others."

"Indeed Raoul, no man could have carried himself with more honor or won more worship than you have done this day. I will do your behest when the time comes."

"Surely you are happy, Nigel," the dying Squire murmured, "for this day has given you one more deed which you may lay at the feet of your lady-love."

"It might have been so had we carried the gate," Nigel answered sadly; "but by Saint Paul! I cannot count it a deed where I have come back with my purpose unfulfilled. But this is no time, Raoul, to talk of my small affairs. If we take the castle and I bear a good part in it, then perchance all this may indeed avail."

The Frenchman sat up with that strange energy which comes often as the harbinger of death. "You will win your Lady Mary, Nigel, and your great deeds will be not three but a score, so that in all Christendom there shall be no man of blood and coat-armor who has not heard your name and your fame. This I tell you—I, Raoul de la Roche Pierre de Bras, dying upon the field of honor. And now kiss me, sweet friend, and lay me back, for the mists close round me and I am gone!"

With tender hands the Squire lowered his comrade's head, but even as he did so there came a choking rush of blood, and the soul had passed. So died a gallant cavalier of France, and Nigel as he knelt in the ditch beside him prayed that his own end might be as noble and as debonair.

CHAPTER XXI.

Under cover of night the wounded men were lifted from the ditch and carried back, whilst pickets of archers were advanced to the very gate so that none should rebuild it. Nigel, sick at heart over his own failure, the death of his prisoner and his fears for Aylward, crept back into the camp, but his cup was not yet full, for Knolles was waiting for him with a tongue which cut like a whiplash. Who was he, a raw squire, that he should lead an attack without orders? See what his crazy knight errantry had brought about. Twenty men had been destroyed by it and nothing gained. Their blood was on his head. Chandos should hear of his conduct. He should be sent back to England when the castle had fallen.

Such were the bitter words of Knolles, the more bitter because Nigel felt in his heart that he had indeed done wrong, and that Chandos would have said the same though, perchance, in kinder words. He listened in silent respect, as his duty was, and then having saluted his leader he withdrew apart, threw himself down amongst the bushes, and wept the hottest tears of his life, sobbing bitterly with his face between his hands. He had striven hard, and yet everything had gone wrong with him. He was bruised, burned and aching from head to foot. Yet so high is the spirit above the body that all was nothing compared to the sorrow and shame which racked his soul.

But a little thing changed the current of his thoughts and brought some peace to his mind. He had slipped off his mail gauntlets, and as he did so his fingers lighted upon the tiny bangle which Mary had fastened there when they stood together upon St. Catharine's Hill on the Guildford Road. He remembered the motto curiously worked in filigree of gold. It ran: "Fais ce que dois, advienne que pourra—c'est commande au chevalier."

The words rang in his weary brain. He had done what seemed right, come what might. It had gone awry, it is true; but all things human may do that. If he had carried the castle, he felt that Knolles would have forgiven and forgotten all else. If he had not carried it, it was no fault of his. No man could have done more. If Mary could see she would surely have approved. Dropping into sleep, he saw her dark face, shining with pride and with pity, stooping over him as he lay. She stretched out her hand in his dream and touched him on the shoulder. He sprang up and rubbed his eyes, for fact had woven itself into dreams in the strange way that it does, and some one was indeed leaning over him in the gloom, and shaking him from his slumbers. But the gentle voice and soft touch of the Lady Mary had changed suddenly to the harsh accents and rough grip of Black Simon, the fierce Norfolk man-at-arms.

"Surely you are the Squire Loring," he said, peering close to his face in the darkness.

"I am he. What then?"

"I have searched through the camp for you, but when I saw the great horse tethered near these bushes, I thought you would be found hard by. I would have a word with you."

"Speak on."

"This man, Aylward the bowman was my friend, and it is the nature that God has given me to love my friends even as I hate my foes. He is also thy servant, and it has seemed to me that you love him also."

"I have good cause so to do."

"Then you and I, Squire Loring, have more reason to strive on his behalf than any of those others, who think more of taking the castle than of saving those who are captives within. Do you not see that such a man as this robber lord would, when all else had failed him, most surely cut the throats of his prisoners at the last instant before the castle fell, knowing well that come what might he would have short shrift himself? Is that not certain?"

"By Saint Paul! I had not thought of it."

"I was with you, hammering at the inner gate," said Simon, "and yet once when I thought that it was giving way I said in my heart: 'Goodbye, Simkin! I shall never see you more. This Baron has gall in his soul, even as I have myself, and do you think that I would give up my prisoners alive, if I were constrained so to do? No, no; had we won our way this day it would have been the death-stroke for them all."

"It may be that you are right, Simon," said Nigel, "and the thought of it should assuage our grief. But if we cannot save them by taking the castle, then surely they are lost indeed."

"It may be so, or it may not," Simon answered slowly. "It is in my mind that if the castle were taken very suddenly, and in such a fashion that they could not forsee it, then perchance we might get the prisoners before they could do them scathe."

Nigel bent forward eagerly, his hand on the soldier's arm.

"You have some plan in your mind, Simon. Tell me what it is."

"I had wished to tell Sir Robert, but he is preparing the assault for to-morrow and will not be turned from his purpose. I have indeed a plan, but whether it be good or not I cannot say until I have tried it. But first I will tell you what put it into my thoughts. Know then that this morning when I was in yonder ditch I marked one of their men upon the wall. He was a big man with a white face, red hair and a touch of Saint Anthony's fire upon the cheek."

"But what has this to do with Aylward?"

"I will show you. This evening after the assault I chanced to walk with some of my fellows, round yonder small fort upon the knoll to see if we could spy a weak spot in it. Some of them came to the wall to curse us, and among them whom should I see but a big man with a white face, red hair and a touch of Anthony's fire upon his cheek? What make you of that, Squire Nigel?"

"That this man had crossed from the castle to the fort."

"In good sooth, it must indeed be so. There are not two such ken-speckled men in the world. But if he crossed from the castle to the fort, it was not above the ground, for our own people were between."

"By Saint Paul! I see your meaning!" cried Nigel. "It is in your mind that there is a passage under the earth from one to the other."

"I am well sure of it."

"Then if we should take the small fort we may pass down this tunnel, and so carry the great castle also."

"Such a thing might happen," said Simon, "and yet it is dangerous also, for surely those in the castle would hear our assault upon the fort and so be warned to bar the passage against us, and to slay the prisoners before we could come."

"What then is your rede?"

"Could we find where the tunnel lay, Squire Nigel, I know not what is to prevent us from digging down upon it and breaking into it so that both fort and castle are at our mercy before either knows that we are there."

Nigel clasped his hands with joy.

"Fore God! Be curse, ... noble plan! But alas! Simon, I see not how we can tell the course of this passage or where we should dig."

"I have peasants yonder with spades," said Simon. "There are two of my friends, Harding of Barnstable and West-country John who are waiting for us with their gear. If you will come to lead us, Squire Nigel, we are ready to venture our bodies in the attempt."

What would Knolles say in case they failed? The thought flashed through Nigel's mind, but another came swiftly behind it. He would not venture further unless he found hopes of success. And if he did venture further he would put his life upon it. Giving that, he made amends for all errors. And if on the other hand success crowned their efforts, then Knolles would forgive his failure at the gate way. A minute later, every doubt banished from his mind, he was making his way through the darkness under the guidance of Black Simon.

Outside the camp the two other men-at-arms were waiting for them, and the four advanced together. Presently a little group of figures loomed up in the darkness. It was a cloudy night, and a thin rain was falling which obscured both the castle and the fort; but a stone had been placed by Simon in the daytime which assured that they were between the two.

"Is blind Andreas there?" asked Simon.

"Yes, kind sir, I am here," said a voice.

"This man," said Simon, "was once rich and of good repute, but he was beggared by this robber lord, who afterwards put out his eyes so that he has lived for many years in darkness at the charity of others."

"How can he help us in our enterprise if he be indeed blind?" said Nigel.

"It is for that very reason, fair lord, that he can be of greater service than any other man," Simon answered; "for it often happens that when a man has lost a sense the good God will strengthen those that remain. Hence it is that Andreas has such ears that he can hear the sap in the trees or the cheep of the mouse in its burrow. He has come to help us to find the tunnel."

"And I have found it," said the blind man proudly. "Here I have placed my staff upon the line of it. Twice as I lay there with my ear to the ground I have heard footsteps pass beneath me."

"I trust you make no mistake, old man," said Nigel.

For answer the blind man raised his staff and smote twice upon the ground, once to the right and once to the left. The one gave a dull thud, the other a hollow boom.

"Can you not hear that?" he asked. "Will you ask me now if I make a mistake?"

"Indeed, we are much beholden to you!" cried Nigel. "Let the peasants dig then, and as silently as they may. Do you keep your ear upon the ground, Andreas, so that if anyone pass beneath us we shall be warned."

So, amid the driving rain, the little group toiled in the darkness. The blind man lay silent, flat upon his face, and twice they heard his warning hiss and stopped their work, whilst some one passed beneath. In an hour they had dug down to a stone arch which was clearly the outer side of the tunnel roof. Here was a sad obstacle for it might take long to loosen a stone and if their work was not done by the break of day then their enterprise was indeed hopeless. They loosened the mortar with a dagger and at last dislodged one small stone which enabled them to get at the others. Presently a dark hole blacker than the night around them yawned at their feet, and their swords could touch no bottom to it. They had opened the tunnel.

"I would fain enter it first," said Nigel. "I pray you to lower me down." They held him to the full length of their arms and then letting him drop they heard him land safely beneath them. An instant later the blind man started up with a low cry of alarm.

"I hear steps coming," said he. "They are far off, but they draw nearer."

Simon thrust his head and neck down the hole. "Squire Nigel," he whispered, "can you hear me?"

"I can hear you, Simon."

"Andreas says that some one comes."

"Then cover over the hole," came the answer.

A mantle was stretched across it, so that no glimmer of light should warn the new-comer. The fear was that he might have heard the sound of Nigel's descent. But soon it was clear that he had not done so, for Andreas announced that he was still advancing. Presently Nigel could hear the distant thud of his feet. If he bore a lantern all was lost. But no gleam of light appeared in the black tunnel, and still the footsteps drew nearer.

Nigel breathed a prayer of thanks to all his guardian saints as he crouched close to the slimy wall and waited breathless, his dagger in his hand. Nearer yet and nearer came the steps. He could hear the stranger's coarse breathing in the darkness. Then as he brushed past Nigel bounded upon him with a tiger spring. There was one moment of astonishment, and not a second more, for the Squire's grip was on the man's throat and his body was pinned motionless against the wall.

"Simon! Simon!" cried Nigel loudly.

The mantle was moved from the hole.

"Have you a cord? Or your belts linked together may serve."

One of the peasants had a rope, and Nigel soon felt it dangling against his hand. He listened and there was no sound in the passage. For an instant he released his captive's throat. A torrent of prayers and entreaties came forth. The man was shaking like a leaf in the wind. Nigel pressed the point of his dagger against his face and dared him to open his lips. Then he slipped the rope beneath his arms and tied it.

"Pull him up!" he whispered, and for an instant the gray glimmer above him was obscured.

"We have him, fair sir," said Simon.

"Then drop me the rope and hold it fast."

A moment later Nigel stood among the group of men who had gathered round their captive. It was took dark to see him, and they dare not strike flint and steel.

Simon passed his hand roughly over him and felt a fat clean-shaven face, and a cloth gabardine which hung to the ankles. "Who are you?" he whispered. "Speak the truth and speak it low, if you would ever speak again."

The man's teeth chattered in his head with cold and fright. "I speak no English," he murmured.

"French, then," said Nigel.

"I am a holy priest of God. You court the ban of holy Church when you lay hands upon me. I pray you let me go upon my way, for there are those whom I would shrive and housel. If they should die in sin, their damnation is upon you."

"How are you called then?"

"I am Dom Peter de Cervolles."

"De Cervolles, the arch-priest, he who heated the brazier when they burned out my eyes," cried old Andreas. "Of all the devils in hell there is none fouler than this one. Friends, friends, if I have done aught for you this night, I ask but one reward, that ye let me have my will of this man."

But Nigel pushed the old man back. "There is no time for this," he said. "Now hark you, priest—if priest indeed you be—your gown and tonsure will not save you if you play us false, for we are here of a set purpose and we will go forward with it, come what may. Answer me and answer me truly or it will be an ill night for you. In what part of the Castle does this tunnel enter?"

In the lower cellar."

"What is at the end?"

"An oaken door."

"Is it barred?"

"Yes, it is barred."

"How would you have entered?"

"I would have given the password."

"Who then would have opened?"

"There is a guard within."

"And beyond him?"

"Beyond him are the prison cells and the jailers."

"Who else would be afoot?"

"No one save a guard at the gate and another on the battlement."

"What then is the password?"

The man was silent.

"The password, fellow!"

The cold points of two daggers pricked his throat; but still he would not speak.

"Where is the blind man?" asked Nigel. "Here, Andreas, you can have him and do what you will with him."

"Nay, nay," the priest whimpered. "Keep him off me. Save me from blind Andreas! I will tell you everything."

"The password then, this instant?"

"It is 'Benedicite!'"

"We have the password, Simon," cried Nigel. "Come, then, let us to the farther end. These peasants will guard the priest, and they will remain here lest we wish to send a message."

"Nay, fair sir, it is in my mind that we can do better," said Simon. "Let us take the priest with us, so that he who is within may know his voice."

"It is well thought of," said Nigel, "and first let us pray together, for indeed this night may well be our last."

He and the three men-at-arms knelt in the rain and sent up their simple orisons, Simon still clutching tight to his prisoner's wrist.

The priest fumbled in his breast and drew something forth. "It is the heart of the blessed confessor Saint Enogat," said he. "It may be that it will ease and assoil your souls if you would wish to handle it."

The four Englishmen passed the flat silver case from hand to hand, each pressing his lips devoutly upon it. Then they rose to their feet. Nigel was the first to lower himself down the hole; then Simon; then the priest, who was instantly seized by the other two. The men-at-arms followed them. They had scarcely moved away from the hole when Nigel stopped.

"Surely some one else came after ..."

Preparations For The Great Festival Of Empire

Will be Held in Crystal Palace, London, in July Next--Dominion of Canada Will Take a Prominent Part--50,000 Pounds Have Already Been Guaranteed to Cover the Expenses of the Undertaking.

The great Festival of Empire, to be held at the Crystal Palace from May to July next, in which the interest of the whole world has been aroused by the preliminary letter from the Earl of Plymouth, promises to be one of the most noteworthy gatherings in the Empire. Although the preliminary announcement was made only a week ago, the project has met with enthusiastic aproval from all quarters, and its success has been assured from the outset.

It is the call of the Old Country to those of the Family who went out years ago to turn the backwoods into pasture and the unknown into Empire; and at the Crystal Palace, with the undulating Surrey hills beyond, the Family Party will hold its festival. It is to be a gathering that should have a political significance. It will not be a flaunting of strength in arms; but the sign and token of a brotherhood that time can never impair.

The Earl of Plymouth, as chairman of the council, has already given an outline of the festival: "It will be the occasion," wrote his lordship, "of a social gathering in England of our fellow-subjects of the British Empire from the different Dominions across the Seas; and it is hoped that the result will be far-reaching in its effect and of real value in increasing our mutual understanding and goodwill, and thus in more firmly welding the bonds of Empire."

The scheme is a colossal one, but were it of even greater magnitude, the gentlemen who have placed themselves at the head of it would be capable of carrying it through to a successful issue. Already upwards of £50,000 is guaranteed to meet the expenses.

In the several Dominions the work of preparation is being conducted with boundless enthusiasm. The committee in each has been asked to invite two hundred representatives of the particular Dominion to attend the festival, the selection being left entirely to the local committee. The contingents will take part in the final scenes of a beautiful pageant which is being arranged by Mr. Frank Lascelles, which is intended to unfold to the assembled guests the story of Old London, "The Heart of the Empire." Mr. Lascelles produced the Quebec Pageant last year, and that ceremony will live in the memory of every one who witnessed it. There was a poem in every scene, and in every scene a power for good that Canada will never forget.

"Years cannot efface the memory of it" one visitor wrote. "Time turned back and Quebec was herself as she was centuries ago. The present gave to the romantic past as a vast concourse of spectators beheld historic scenes which portrayed great events in the lives of the Old World and the New. Ten thousand of us saw on the Plains of Abraham, where one of the most decisive battles of the world was fought, the arrival of Jacques Cartier and his planting of the cross of Christ on the banks of the St. Lawrence. In the foreground they saw the primitive savages around their tepees, and then in the distance, riding slowly, gracefully, on the broad bosom of the river, they saw the white sails of Cartier's 100-ton vessel. And what splendid, natural actors were the Iroquois Indians, who played the parts of their ancestors. Amazement was depicted in their every attitude as they watched the cross borne up the river bank and planted in their midst."

The quotation may serve to illustrate Mr. Lascelles' intentions with regard to the Crystal Palace pageant. Of course, London offers unlimited scope to the master of such a ceremony and scenes from its very earliest days are to be produced with careful attention to historical accuracy. There will be twenty-two scenes, and no fewer than 15,000 performers are to be engaged in presenting the pageant, which will be in three parts. The contingents from Oversea will find a place in those scenes which will be symbolical to the gathering of the children round the mother.

The grounds of the Crystal Palace comprise 200 acres but the pageant will be confined to the forty or fifty acres known as the Rhododendron Garden. This is on the left of the Palace facade, and commands a glorious view of the Surrey hills. The grand stand, which is being erected will accommodate 20,000 persons.

The Palace itself will be given over to a series of exhibitions representing in each country. These will be arranged in the way of illustrated histories, as it were, of each of the Oversea Dominions, portraits of the great Empire builders, founders of the Colonies, and leading statesmen connected with their development, and the great men whose names are revered in each of them. Pictures of the leading cities of the Empire and their chief buildings will also be found duly arranged together with a mass of vitally interesting information concerning the Empire at large.

In the Great Hall an Empire concert will be held on the opening day, May 24, in which singers and instrumentalists from the distant parts of the Empire will take part and concerts will be held frequently at which performers from the different Oversea Dominions will be specially engaged.

Cinematograph films are being specially prepared to give an idea of the industries, as well as the scenery, of the Britains Oversea. Harvesting operations and pulp wood making, among other industries, will be shown in Canada; sheep shearing, ranching, etc., in Australia; mining in Africa, and so on. The courts representing the Empire of India, the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, and United South Africa will be arranged in accordance with the practical advice of the High Commissioners and Agents-General, under the presidency of Lord Strathcona.

Lectures on Empire, and on the different nations under the British Crown, will be given frequently with free admission by statesmen and by well-known historians throughout the progress of the festival, which should prove of great patriotic and educational value. The University of London which already has arranged a series of lectures throughout Greater London for the ensuing winter months will, under the general council, be in charge of these lectures, the chairman of which is Lord Avebury.

Loan collections of portraits of great men connected with the growth of the Empire of paintings, engravings, and the like, connected with different countries, prints and engravings of Old England and Old London, collections of old costumes and armour will be arranged in conjunction with the council by a committee, with the advice of the Viscount Dillon, F.S.A.

Already negotiations are proceeding which will result, it is hoped, in narrowing the seas which lie between the Dominions and the Motherland. Briefly, to touch upon these is as much as one is able to do at present. Every year thousands of Britons visit this country from Australia, India, Canada and South Africa. They will have further incentive next summer; and the council is striving to make it possible for slender purses to meet the necessary expense. Every member of the Family must feel that he is included in the general invitation to "Come Home." Should the negotiations with railway and steamship authorities be successful—and there is no reason to fear the reverse—the cost of travelling to the Mother Country will be reduced to a minimum. It is hoped that within a week or two special announcements in this direction will be made. Cablegrams will be despatched to the respective Dominions, so that the preparations for the visit can be made well in advance of the opening day of the Festival.

An illustrating the attitude of the Press towards this great undertaking the following statement published by the "Evening Standard and St. James' Gazette" is interesting and typical:—

"The sunny slopes of the Sydenham Hill will witness a remarkable sight next summer. On these broad acres and in the Crystal Palace itself will take place such an event as the world has never seen before. The Empire will hold its festival. The Mother-country will welcome with glowing hearts and outstretched hands her full grown sons. Strong and stark they are now and yet stronger is the link between them and home. The well-forged link rang true, the tested chain held fast in the South African War.

Many things have happened since then, heart to heart talks between emissaries, splendid offers of naval assistance, new arrangements by which the mother can talk to her children on the other side of the globe with greater ease, economy, and directness—all tending to add to the durability of the bond. And now comes this great festival at which the sons of the Empire will meet face to face, and hear the great dome of the Palace resounding with the music common to all and loved by all. Here the resources of science will be impressed to give every member of the family a graphic idea of what the others are doing on far-flung prairie, sun-baked veldt, and stormy fishing grounds. And together they will watch the history of Old London unfold itself in the pomp of pageantry. Prominent among the organisers of this great family festival this joyful renewing of love and devotion, is that bulwark of the Empire, Lord Strathcona. Fired by his example the Oversea States are responding nobly to the call. As far as lies in them the family gathering will be a success. It lies with us of the Mother-country to establish beyond all cavil or dispute the success of the gathering by opening our doors as well as our hearts to our brethren from over the seas."

To Londoners themselves, the fact that the Crystal Palace has been selected as the rendezvous is a source of deep gratification. The glories of the magnificent palace of glass, built by Sir Joseph Paxton in 1851, seem about to be revived. And what Londoner does not cherish a warm affection for this wonderful structure? How popular an attraction it has been may be gathered from the statistics which the Commissioner of Police has been kind enough to supply. On an average no fewer than two and a half millions of persons have passed the turnstile every year. From 1886 to 1909 the grand total of visitors to the Palace is 96774,788.

NOW THE CANADIAN RUGBY COMPARES TO IRISH GAME

Toronto, Dec. 8.—Just while so many people are talking reform in football it is interesting to hear a "criticism" of the Canadian game by an Irish Rugby player from real Cork, who has played for a number of years on the Black Rock juniors of that city. On the whole he likes the Canadian game, but sees room for certain improvements. The gentleman interviewed by The News was T. A. Scanlan, of Cork, Ireland. He was one of the four thousand persons who saw the Varsity team win the championship of Canada at Rosedale Saturday. Unlike the other 3,999 who were there, he had never seen a Canadian Rugby game before, and so the event had more than the ordinary amount of interest for him. Mr. Scanlan has only been in the country three months—just long enough to hear a great deal about the great fall sport which had enlivened his interest to such an extent that he decided to go to the final match.

"The first thing that struck me," he began when asked to tell what he thought of the game, "was the absence of numbers on the backs of the players. There were twenty-eight players on the field, and it took me a long time to distinguish one from another. The Canadian game is altogether different to the English.

Wasn't So Rough.

"I had heard that it was a murdering game, and when I saw the players march out on the field, dressed in their padded suits of armour, I thought that what I had heard was correct, but it didn't prove to be quite as rough as I had expected. In the Old Country it is very seldom that a player gets seriously hurt—a broken collar-bone is the worst that one generally hears of. Only once did I ever hear of a man being killed. The game over there is more scientific, but one thing I can say, Canadian Rugby is faster. There is very little to the game here compared to the Old Country style—the rule books over there are large volumes filled with regulations covering many different plays. Our game is a study—one can never practise too much as there is always something to learn.

The English Scores.

"Your method of scoring is so strange. The English scores are: Three points for a touchdown, two more for a 'convert,' four for a drop kick and three for a kick over the goal from penalty. A team can't score by kicking to the dead line or by tackling a man behind the line. I don't consider it fair sport for a side to score point after point on kicks, as Gall did Saturday. In the Old Country if the ball goes behind, except it be a touchdown, the defending side is allowed to kick the ball from 25 yards out.

"The methods of scrimmaging the ball are totally different. In our game the ball is thrown in between the two scrims by a half back, and the centre man heels it back quickly without touching it with his hands to a man behind, who sends it back further. The four three-quarter backs, two half-backs and full-back extend themselves out to one side, and whenever the man with the ball is about to be tackled he passes it along. Often times this is done without looking to see, if the man is there, as the players are trained to follow right along closely. They do a great deal of passing. The tackling, too, is better, even though the men wear much less clothing.

Uncertainty.

"There is always an element of uncertainty in scrimmaging the ball. Each side has a chance to get it—it all depends on which is the quickest centre man of the two. This does away with the necessity of having a rule that a team must make ten yards in three downs as in the game here.

"There are some pretty big men playing the game across the sea. On the Cardiff team, which I have seen play a number of times, were two big players—Brown and Cassy. Both of whom would make two of 'Bull' Ritchie, of the Varsity team.

"I think the Canadian game could be improved by doing away with the scoring of points by kicks to the dead line, as you call it, and also by having the players numbered. The people could buy programmes and they would know exactly who made a play by referring to the line-up.

Must Go Behind.

"Apparently players can pounce upon a man as soon as he has caught the ball. I saw them do this many times Saturday, but in the English game opponents cannot tackle a player catching a ball until he has run ten yards or unless they have run around behind him — between the player and their own goal—before he catches the ball. In spite of the fact that no points can be scored by kicks to touch in goal and also that a player catching the ball has certain advantages, they do lots of kicking over in the Old Country."

All But Canada.

Mr. Scanlan doesn't understand why Canada is the only colony in which the English game is not popular, as Australia, New Zealand and South Africa all play it, and occasionally teams from these parts tour through the British Isles.

THE BANK OF MONTREAL

The ninety-second annual general meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held in the Board Room of the Institution yesterday, at noon.

There were present—Sir Edward Clouston, Bart., vice-president and general manager; Sir William Macdonald, Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy, Hon. Robert Mackay, Messrs. A. Baumgarten, R. B. Angus, E. B. Greenshields, David Morrice, Hon. J. K. Ward, G. F. C. Smith, Lieut.-Col. Prevost, James Kisley, K. C.; C. J. Fleet, K. C.; John Patterson, Alfred Piddington, George R. Hooper, B. A. Boas, George Durnford, Hugh Paton, H. Dobell, W. H. Evans, G. Scott, H. Joseph and J. Taylor.

In consequence of the absence of the President, Sir George Drummond, K.C.M.G., through indisposition, Mr. R. B. Angus moved that the Vice-President and General Manager, Sir Edward Clouston, take the chair.

This was seconded by Mr. E. B. Greenshields, and unanimously concurred in, after which it was resolved, on motion of Mr. Hugh Paton, seconded by Lieut.-Col. Provost: "That the following be appointed to act as scrutineers: Messrs. G. F. C. Smith and George R. Hooper; and that Mr. James Aird be secretary of the meeting."

The Vice-President then submitted the report of the Directors as follows:

THE DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The Directors have pleasure in presenting the Report showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 30th October, 1909.

Balance of Profit and Loss Account, 31st October, 1908.....		$ 217,629.56

Dividend 2½ per cent. paid 1st June, 1909	300,000.00
Dividend 2½ per cent. paid 1st Sept., 1909	300,000.00
Dividend 2½ per cent. payable 1st Dec., 1909....	300,000.00	$1,440,000.00
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$ 603,796.30

Since the last Annual Meeting Branches have been opened at Three Rivers, P. Q., Weyburn, Sask., Oakwood, Ont., Moose Jaw, Sask., Outlook, Sask., Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sub-agencies at Merritt, B. C., Cloverdale, B. C., Spring Coulee, Alta, and Bathurst Street, Toronto.

The Branches at Grimsby, Ont., and Millbrook, Ont., have been closed.

With deep regret the Directors have to record the death of their esteemed colleague, Mr. A. T. Paterson, who had been a member of the Board for upwards of twenty-eight years.

The vacancy on the Board has been filled by the election of Mr. A. Baumgarten.

All the Offices of the Bank, including the Head Office, have been inspected during the year.

G. A. DRUMMOND,
President.

Bank of Montreal,
6th December, 1909.

E. S. CLOUSTON,
General Manager.

Montreal, 30th October, 1909.

SIR EDWARD CLOUSTON, VICE-PRESIDENT.

Sir Edward Clouston then spoke as follows:

"The most important change from last year in the statement submitted to you is the unusually large increase in deposits, amounting to $52,000,000. Part of it is temporary, pending large payments in connection with special transactions, part is the natural increase from depositors as a result of the prosperous condition of affairs in this country, but the largest portion of the increase is from money brought into Canada from other countries. It is quite possible that if the apprehensions expressed in many quarters as to the consequence of the new methods of British taxation are realized deposits from this last source may be still enlarged. It is very important, therefore, that nothing should be done in Canada by injudicious legislation, the exploitation of doubtful enterprises, or otherwise, to stop this flow of capital. Our call loans have increased by about the same amount as our deposits, and what is not necessary to retain as a portion of our reserves, will be gradually brought into this country to meet commercial requirements as they arise.

The profits are some $130,000 less than last year, but considering the low rates ruling for the greater part of our fiscal year in London and New York, the result may be regarded as satisfactory. I am glad to say that the outlook for the coming year, or at least for the earlier months, is more promising, and I shall be much disappointed if we do not make a better showing when next we meet.

The rapidity of the recovery of trade from the set-back following the monetary crisis in the United States two years ago has been as striking as it is satisfactory. Conditions today are, as a whole, excellent. The large harvest gathered in the Northwestern Provinces in itself affords a basis for active and profitable business for some time to come. How considerable a factor in the commercial life of Canada the agricultural output of our Northwest has become may be realized from the fact that the yield of wheat, oats and barley in this year, $313,636,000 bushels, as compared with 232,780,000 bushels in 1908, 160,000,000 bushels in 1907, or 22,061,000 in 1900. A tenfold gain in the grain product of the Northwestern Provinces in nine years conveys some idea of the commercial potentialities of the country.

The marketing of wheat has been quite prompt, and the railways have had no difficulty in moving the crop. In the ten weeks to November 14th there had been inspected in the Northwest 43,566,000 bushels, being 10,300,000 bushels more than in the corresponding period of 1908, while the shipments from Fort William and Port Arthur amounted to 36,815,000 bushels up to November 14th, or 13,300,000 bushels in excess of the preceding year's shipments.

Our foreign trade has not only reached, but has begun to exceed, the high-water mark of two years ago. In the six months ending September 30th, last, imports for consumption and exports of domestic products were of the value of $292,857,000 or $64,000,000 in excess of the corresponding period of the preceding year, imports having been larger by thirty-six millions and exports by ten millions. The adverse balance of trade has thus again begun to grow, but while men and money pour into Canada from abroad the disparity need not cause uneasiness. Domestic industries are, speaking generally, working well up to the limit of capacity. Labour is fully employed; the lumber trade has improved. The export of dairy produce has been larger than last year, with high prices ruling throughout the season; all farm products, indeed, are exceptionally dear.

Such tests, bank note circulation, bank clearings, railway earnings, all point to the great activity of business. At the end of October the note circulation exceeded $99,600,000, or $6,600,000 more than a year ago. Business failures have been neither numerous nor serious, being for the year to October 1st, 1,486, with liabilities of $12,919,000 as compared with 1,629 failures and liabilities of $16,958,000 in the previous twelve months.

Railway construction is proceeding apace over the whole face of the Dominion. West of Lake Superior nearly 1,100 miles have been built this year, and the Western Provinces now have 11,500 miles of railway, as much as the mileage of all Canada twenty years ago.

Immigration has picked up after the short relapse in 1908, the estimate of the number of new settlers this year being 150,000, about one-half of whom are experienced farmers who have moved into our Northwest from the United States. The evidences of expanding trade, accumulating wealth, and material progress and development might be cited at great length, and a pleasant picture painted of our happy condition. There are always, however, dangers to be avoided, and never more so than when the outlook is so bright and inspiriting. A tendency to over-speculation in real estate in some parts of Canada is already apparent, and this, like other forms of gambling, can bring only disaster when the inevitable crash comes. How suddenly conditions may change the rapid advance in the Bank of England rate last autumn attests. Only by prudence both in taking and granting credits and by avoidance of wild-cat ventures and exploitations on the high reputation Canada enjoys in the British money market, can we reasonably anticipate a continuance of the prosperity now enjoyed.

There is only one other observation I desire to make. As you are aware, the decennial revision of the Bank Act will take place during the present session of Parliament. In one or two respects changes of a more or less technical character will be found necessary, but the Act has been so thoroughly revised in the past, it withstood so staunchly the trials of 1907, and its operation has been found to conform so admirably to the requirements of trade and the interests of a rapidly developing country, that I hardly think it likely that any material change will be made.

In our note circulation we have a system which enables us by its elasticity to carry out the heavy autumnal demands without creating any monetary stringency; and to show how valuable it is to the whole business community, I need only point to the fact that we are moving the large crop in the Northwest with great ease and without any advance in rates to our commercial customers.

I beg to move "That the report of the Directors now read be adopted and printed for distribution among the Shareholders."

This was seconded by Mr. E. B. Greenshields, and unanimously adopted.

Mr. H. Joseph then moved: "That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank."

Mr. C. J. Fleet seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to.

Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy moved: "That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, the Assistant General Manager, the Inspectors, the Managers and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year."

The motion was seconded by Mr. David Morrice, and was unanimously carried.

Sir Edward Clouston expressed acknowledgment on behalf of himself and fellow-officers.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot for the election of directors was then proceeded with. The scrutineers appointed for the purpose reported the following gentlemen duly elected:

R. B. ANGUS,
A. BAUMGARTEN,
SIR EDWARD CLOUSTON, BART.,
HON. SIR GEORGE DRUMMOND, K. C. M. G., C. V. O.,
E. B. GREENSHIELDS,
CHARLES R. HOSMER,
SIR WILLIAM C. MACDONALD,
HON. ROBERT MACKAY,
DAVID MORRICE,
JAMES ROSS,
SIR THOMAS G. SHAUGHNESSY, K. C. V. O.
THE RIGHT HON. LORD STRATHCONA AND MOUNT ROYAL, G. C. M. G., G. C. V. O.

At a meeting of the Directors held later, the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G. C. M. G., G. C. V. O., was elected Honorary President; Hon. Sir George Drummond, K. C. M. G., C. V. O., president, and Sir Edward Clouston, Bart., Vice-President.

THE FIELD

A few days ago this diagram was prepared to show the situation in this Province of Ontario, with its 806 municipalities. It shows the proportionate numbers that have licenses and are free from licenses. It, of course, does not represent the proportions of either territory or population from which bar rooms are excluded, but the numerical fact it does represent is both instructive and inspiring. The white part of the circle stands for the corporate municipalities that are free frol licenses, and the shaded and black parts the municipalities in which the liquor traffic still operates. The shaded was intended to indicate the number in which Local Option contests are now going on.

So rapid, however, is the progress of our course that any statement of its position is out of date almost as soon as it is published.

Already the field of fight is enlarged, and the number of places in which campaigns are under was is

164

In how many of these sahll we win? That depends upon ourselves, upon our earnestness, our wisdom, our energy, our loyalty to God and our fellow-men. He "wins" in the highest and best sense of the term who does his full duty.

What Has The Bar Done For You?

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

The Question of Revenue.

This question is one that is receiving much attention. Dr. Small made reference to it in his address at the Opera House on Sunday night. The money received into the city treasury from license fees, amounts to something less than 30 cents a head of the population. The head of a family of five, if he voted against local option on account of what it would save him in taxes, would be selling his vote for $1.50, if he were an average ratepayer. A low enough figure surely.

A communication from a citizen of Peterborough, which was handed to the editors of this column this week, puts the matter on a little higher plane. The letter in part reads:

"As a student of the local option "uestion, there is one thing that "has been borne in on my mind more "than any other, and that is that both "sides in the controversy seem to "lost sight of what seems to be the "most salient point in the whole mat"ter, viz., that this is not a commer"cial question but a purely moral "one. Whilst the supporters of lo"cal option are alive to the fact that "the moral point is the important one, "they have been so busy controvert"ing the arguments of their oppon"ents that they have forgotten to "bring this to the forefront. The "matter of dollars and cents should "have absolutely no place in the ques"tion. If the thing is right from a "moral viewpoint, what right have "the supporters of the open bar to "bring in, in support of their con"tention, the argument that the clos"ing of the bars will have the effect "of ruining either themselves, or bu"siness generally?"

Along with this we submit the opinions of two others on this phase of the question. The first is part of a sermon by a distinguished clergyman of the Roman Catholic church, Bishop Macdonell, of Alexandra, Ont. It takes the same high moral ground. The other is a deliverance of Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, who will appear here in two or more addresses on Sunday, Dec. 26th. Governor Glenn has been "through the fray." He speaks from experience and knowledge at first hand, and his words carry weight wherever he goes.

Bishop Macdonell.

Some people will hold out the argument, that if you reduce the liquor trade, you cut down the municipal revenue, or national revenue, and that the end justifies the means. But the end does not justify the means, when the end in view, no matter how good it may be, can only be attained by immoral or sinful means. Then it does not justify the means. That is the teaching of the Catholic church. What would Jesus Christ say if he were here? He would tell us as he has already taught us, "What will it profit a man to gain the whole world if he lose his own soul?" Then we must do as hrist has told us. We must follow his teachings, no matter how the municipal revenue may suffer, no matter how the national revenue may suffer. Still this old and silly argument is used, that the liquor business must be sustained to keep up the revenues. And where does all the revenue come from? Is it not from the pockets of the unfortunate slaves of this vice, who fill the coffers of the bar with what should have gone to the improvement of their homes? And with what result? Do we not see many of these homes in the hands of strangers today, and no trace of the original owners? How has this change came about? Through intemperance, or indolence superinduced by drunken habits.

His Lordship concluded his sermon by quoting St. Paul and his dreadful warning to drunkards. He exorted his hearers not to fail in their duty, but to do everything in their power to eliminate this great evil.

Governor Glenn.

Now for argument's sake, let us admit that prohibition is going to add a little bit to your tax. Some poor man, on account of all these licenses being done away with, will have to pay twenty-five cents a year more; some of you fifty cents; some of you a dollar; some five dollars; some that God has prospered, a hundred dollars; some that God has made richer, five hundred dollars; some that are millionaires, possibly a thousand dollars. You want to save that twenty-five cents, don't you? You want to save that fifty cents, that dollar, that hundred dollars, that five hundred dollars, that thousand dollars?

Now, over on this hand, I will put the body, I will put the mind, I will put the immoral soul of your pure-eyed child, your sweet little girl, your manly, noble little boy, who might be influenced by this curse of strong drink, to drink, and drinking, become a drunkard, and the drunkard die, and in dying be damned. Is there a man in this audience, so low, so contemptible, as would measure the soul, the mind, the body of that precious girl or boy against dollars and cents?

But there never was a more miserable lie told on the face of the earth. This miserable, pitiful little license we are getting from these breweries and distilleries and saloons does not begin to compensate us for what we are paying out every day on account of their existence. Put on one side the license money; then put on the other side the cost of the crime, the cost of poverty and sickness, and the debit side is ten times greater than the credit side, in this state or in any other state in this Union.

OBJECTIONS AND ANSWERS.

In a recent issue of Pearson's Magazine, appeared an article on the subject of Prohibition and Local Option, which purports to be written by a minister of the gospel. It treats the subject, however, from the point of view of the liquor dealer and others who have a pecuniary interest in the business, rather than from that of a seeker after truth. This article is being quietly circulated in Peterborough by the interests opposed to local option, and in all probability will be distributed in larger numbers as the campaign nears its end.

The writer makes frequent bald assertions that prohibition has been a failure, but advances little proof of his statements except a few things he claims to have seen personally, and some stories that have been told to himself and other "clergymen;" by hotelkeepers here and there. He strongly advocates, in opposition to any attempt at prohibition, some system of license or "regulation" as he prferes to call it. The whole argument is based on the assertion that prohibition in various forms, has been tried for 50 years, and has been a failure. For this reason regulation is to be preferred, but the writer very conveniently forgets that regulation has been tried for 800 years among English speaking people and has not been a howling success.

The objections dealt with below are quoted form the article referred to.

Fairly Tested.

Objection No. 1.—No legislative system has ever been more extensively nor fairly tested than prohibition."

Answer.—Yes, the system or regulation, for which the writer pleads so eloquently, has been bore extensively tested and for much longer time. It has been in operation at least twenty times as long. Has it ever succeeded to any greater extent than prohibition? Is it not a fact that every license law that ever was enacted, has been just as persistently violated and defied as any prohibition law? Can it not truthfully be said that these laws have been, at some time, just as violently condemned as the local option movement is at the present time? The very men who are now fighting prohibtioin with denunciation, derision and prophecy, were only a few years ago using the same weapon against every proposed advance in the direction of better regulation.

Has It Failed?

Objection No. 2.—"There could be no stronger evidence of the failure of prohibition than the fact that states that adopted the system fifty years ago, have since abandoned it and gone back to the policy of license and regulation.'"

Answer.—Twenty-five years ago, a prohibitory law was a new thing. The first laws framed were necessarily crude and defective. Every failure showed where improvement could be made. The present law is a great improvement on the earlier attempts at prohibitory legislation. It may also be added that many places where the earlier laws were tried and abandoned, have after another trial of license gone back to prohibition. Does this not prove, by the same process of reasoning that regulation is even a greater failure?

Becomes a Prophet.

Objection No. 3.—"Nothing is more certain than that every state and local community in which prohibition now obtains will ultimately have to return to the policy of regulation."

Answer.—Why certain? The writer advances nothing to support this but his own opinion. He is likely to be just as poor a prophet as the unfortunate people who have been bold enough to talk rubbish about grass growing on streets, factories leaving towns, markets disappearing, etc. There has never been any great reform movement but has had its prophets of evil. People whose greed and self interest are aroused, have ever been predicting disaster and return to old conditions, when they have seen the hope of their gains disappearing. Take for instance the abolition of slavery both in the British possessions and in America. There were thousands of eloquent advocates of the traffic, and among them, many mis-guided clergymen, who prophesied, just as this preacher does, that any reform movement would surely lead to ruin and a return to the then existing conditions. The cry, then, just as now, was for regulation. But what happened? The prophets, where are they now?

"Our Old Friend, Maine."

Objection No. 4.—"Now let us turn for a moment to our old friend, the state of Maine. That prohibition has been a failure and a farce in that state is a matter of common knowledge. No one who is not a blind partisan will deny this."

Answer.—Well, let us see. Here are a few facts, a comparison between Portland, Me., and Boston, Mass., the nearest large city; a little "Tale of Two Cities."

For every 10,000 population, Boston has 426 arrests for drunkenness, and Portland has 84.

It costs Boston $3 per head to police the city, and Portland $1.05.

It costs Boston 29 cents per head for jails, and Portland 2 cents.

In the whole of prohibition Maine, there are 13 criminals per 10,000 of population and in "regulated" Massachusetts there ser 33.

These are facts and not stories told to a clergyman whose name is wonderfully like that of the author of the article. In the face of these facts, it ought to be borne in mind that no community in America has made a more prolonged and earnest effort at regulation than Boston. It is said at the present time to have the highest license fee in the country.

Lawbreaking.

Objection No. 5.—Prohibition creates widespread and habitual law-breaking. Consider the number of crimes that are committed daily in "dry" territory. And consider the bad moral effect of this habit of law-breaking on the civic life."

Answer.—This one is old and pretty nearly dead. It has done service for a long time, and has been knocked out so often that one is surprised to find it still kicking. It is a common argument of the liquor interests that prohibition of the tariff increases crime. In this column, figures have been noted from police records and other sources, opinoins of judges, police commissioners, and other civic officials have been given to show that decrease in crime invariably follows the introduction of prohibition. Did space permit, figures could be quoted from the records of this province, to show beyond the shadow of a doubt two things. First that after the introduction of prohibitory laws the total number of convictions is greatly decreased. Second that in proportion to population, the number of convictions in "dry" territory is small compared with that in similar "wet" territory. Not only so, but the convictions are for crimes of a less heinous and violent character. Proof of this has already been furnished in this column. The only form of crime that seems to increase in "dry" territory is that of illegal selling of liquor. And yet in his address here a couple of weeks ago, Mr. Ireland in speaking of conditions in Owen Sound said that it was conceded that less liquor is now sold their illegally than under license. It is probable, judging from present indications, that it will be possible to say the same about Peterborough a year hence.

The Working of Regulation.

It may be necessary to refer to this article again. In the meantime the public are again cautioned to watch for arguments like these, that may be dumped on them during the last days of the campaign, when no public reply can be made, and there is no time to look into them fully. If they could stand the test, we would have them now.

In conclusion, we cannot do better than make another quotation from the same article, in which the writer in speaking of some of the defects that "regulation' 'ought to correct, says: "Some liquor dealers have condon"ed and encouraged conditions repug"nant to moral sense and destructive "of decency and good order. They "have encouraged other vices, such as "gambling and the social evil. They "have catered and pandered to the "worst passions and impulses of hu"man nature. And they have done "all this in a cold-blooded desire to "increase the volume of their busi"ness."

Is it not somewhat remarkable that a man who condemns prohibition, on the ground that it has failed to make good after a trial of fifty years, should advocate a system that produces such evils as these after a trial of almost a thousand years?

SHOULD THE HUSBAND TELL EVERYTHING TO HIS WIFE?

A great many people say that which is not readily given is not worth asking for; but in the case of a husband's confidence I venture to assert that such a theory is unsafe and unsound.

Man is, as a rule, "a very good fellow," but the best of good fellows are unconsciously take advantage of whatever latitude and license may be granted to them; therefore the husband who feels that his wife makes no demand upon his confidence is very likely to get into the bad habit of keeping things to himself that would be just as well and much better told to his wife.

It isn't that he is either secretive or deceitful, but it is just the inherent instinct of a great many masculine natures, which causes them to find a certain hollow pleasure in "keeping their own affairs to themselves."

And a married man (that is, if he is to hea happy married man) shouldn't have any affairs which he wants to keep to himself, and he wouldn't have any if only the wife gently exercised her right to be his chum an deonfidant on all subjects.

But, oh! How tactfully a wife must go to work if she finds her husband inclined to withhold his confidence.

There must be no nagging, no worrying, no complaining—only just a gently attitude of taking it for granted that, of course, he will tell her all there is to be told.

Sometimes, however, this placid attitude is not strong enough to work desired results, and then a wife must put all her pride in her pocket and dessert her right to be the sharer of hr husband's confidence as well as of his home.

Too much pride is a dangerous thing in married life, and particularly dangerous when the wife is proud to the extent of overdone self-effacement.

"My dear, good lady, what a dreadful idea to insist on knowing all about everything the poor man does. Why, I never expect Hugh to tell me anything, nor to show me his letters, nor to tell me where he has been. To my mind, the idea of enforced confidence is both inartistic and absurd."

This was what a friend of the writer said when she had been married four months. This is what she says now that she has been married four years.

"My dear, there are no details too small for intimate discussion between husband and wife. When Hugh comes home I always extract details concerning his day's work, and there is nothing which he hears and knows (except other people's secrets) that is not confided to me. I know now that that is the main secret for martial happiness, and if I had not pulled up in time we should have drifted out of all mutual sympathy and understanding, simply for the reason that I began by letting Hugh feel that it was quite permissible for him to keep all his affairs to himself."

Man is so largely a creature of habit, and so ready to take ells when given inches, that woman is bound to gently and insidiously guide him all the way.

Blasted Hopes.

In a dim Alberta Canyon, with my pad across my knees,
I am sitting, safely sheltered from the wild revolving breeze;
All around the trees are swaying and the snowflakes falling fast—
Sad reminder, sweet Jemima, that the days of warmth are past.

Leagues on leagues of boundless prairie, lakes stupendous intervene
'Twixt the dear old town you dwell in and this wild and woolly scene,
And I wonder how your spirit brooks the constant ebb and flow
Of the swiftly shifting seasons, summer sun and winter snow.

Is your heart as full of frolic, is your laugh as tuneful still
As the day our troth we plighted on the heights of Julian's hill?
Oft, alas! my heart grows leaden, and my hope seems like the reed,
Trembling in the faintest zephyr by the wharf at Viamede.

And I cannot help but wonder are you still the same as when
You were wont to whisper softly I was just the best of men;
Then I wore a speckless collar, then my tie was well arranged.
Oh, those dear old days of dalliance, changed, alas! forever changed.

Six long months, but well we know yet the cruel world would say:
"What an idiotic fluster o'er face wells of yesterday!"
Six long months, so well we know that many an empire's fallen flat,
Foe been crushed and earthquake happened in a shorter time than that.

Ah, how can I doubt you, dearest, for the tear was in your eye,
And your lips were all a-tremble as we said the last good-bye?
Write and tell me I am foolish; call me whatsoe'er you will;
But indite the boundless solace that you really love me still.

Though 'tis said that absence sparps loving hearts to grow more fond,
I am full of doubt my dearest, for a word's a fragile bond;
Absent loves though sometimes cherished oftimes still are put to flight,
And it needs no less the smagic just to keep some loves alight.

Yet, I know my fears are groundless, for throughout that golden week
Oft I marked your liquid glances and the teardrop on your cheek,
And I diagnosed the symptoms as a case so oft retold,
Contradicting men most flatly when they said you had a cold.

Jack is still in far Alberta, clerking in a wayside store,
But with sweet Jemima Jenkins he may daily nevermore;
For a summer boarder wooed her, wooed her in seductive tones;—
In two months Jemima Jenkins changed her name to Mrs. Jones.

TORY PARTY DEMORALIZED RECOGNIZE NO LEADERSHIP

Members Vote Any Way They Choose on Public Questions--Their Party is Without Unity--Foster's Mischievous Speech on Rush-Bagot Treaty Stirs up a Matter That is Best Left Alone--French Treaty Passes the Commons

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is willing that every opportunity be given to investigate the public accounts, although Conservatives notoriously abuse their privileges in committee.

Mr. Foster's ventilation of the provisions of the Rush-Bagot treaty as to armaments on the Great Lakes may have disagreeable consequences.

Conservatives who voted for the French treaty in 1908, vote against it now. Some spoke against it and voted for it.

Armstrong, Conservative, of East Lambton, flatly contradicted by Lalor, Conservative, of Haldimand, on German trade affairs.

Whatever position the Conservative party may occupy in the country it is a fact which cannot be contradicted, that so far as members of the party are concerned in the House of Commons, they are a disorganised body of men.

Tories Demoralized.

While Mr. Borden is the recognized leader of the Conservative party, and as such leader is paid a salary of $7,000 by the Government, in addition to his sessional indemnity of $3,500, thus placing him precisely upon the same footing, financially as a Cabinet minister, in the House it does not appear that he leads the party or any considerable portion of it.

Would Be Leader.

Mr. Foster, who assumes to act as leader upon occasion, is not recognized by many upon his own side as having any authority to speak for them. In fact, some of the most influential Conservative members say that at the last election they had no financial or platform help, and they feel quite independent upon public questions.

Some Tory Complaints.

Some of these same men allege that Mr. Foster does not think it necessary to disclose to caucus what action he intends to take upon public questions. The result is that Mr. Foster prepares a speech upon some question, other members have to join in, with very little notice and less information with the result that Mr. Foster is glorified and members of the party in the House are made to look correspondingly foolish.

The French Treaty.

Upon the question the French treaty, when it was ratified in the House on March 3, 1908, every Conservative in the House voted for it with the exception of five. When the treaty with slight variation was voted upon on Tuesday last in addition to the above (with the exception of one man not now in the House). Six other men, Messrs. Blain, Henderson, Lake, Sproule, White and Wilson, all Conservatives, voted against it, although upon the last occasion they voted for it.

Spoke Against, Voted For.

This is not all. Mr. Borden and Mr. Monk, who spoke against the treaty, did not vote against it. There were many strange examples of the split in the Conservative ranks. The Armstrong-Lalor incident is one of them.

Trade With Germany.

Mr. Armstrong, Conservative of East Lambton, has an idea which occupies his entire thought. It is our trade with Germany. He is constantly rating the Government for not making better trade relations with Germany. He appears too dense to understand the situation although it has been explained to him several times by the Finance Minister, that Germany placed Canada on her highest tariff because Canada would not give Germany the same preference which Great Britain receives and that as a result Canada had retaliated by placing a surtax against German goods.

Rebuked by Brother Tory.

Mr. Armstrong describes this as "trade war, which has worked disastrous results for thirteen years." It remained for one of his own party, a practical manufacturer, Mr. Lalor, Conservative member for Haldimand, to administer a fitting rebuke. Mr. Lalor stated that Canada was within her rights and acted wisely and properly in placing a surtax on German goods to offset the surtax which Germany placed upon our goods.

This was a hard blow coming from one Conservative to another and was cheered from the Liberal side. Mr. Lalor, however, drove his argument home, and presented figures which showed that since the surtax our trade had been greater with Germany than it was before.

German Trade Increases.

Mr. Lalor quoted the figures showing that the imports to Germany in 1890 before the surtax, were $507,000, the figures gaining somewhat up to 1896, when the amount was $767,000. In 1896, when Germany placed a surtax upon Canadian goods, we exported $1,837,000. He contended that the trade of Canada had not suffered in consequence of the surtax, but on the contrary had gained. Mr. Lalor, after administering a strong rebuke, supported by statistics, to Mr. Armstrong, concluded by saying that the Government took the right course when imposing the surtax and could do nothing else. His last words were "The only way by which we can get better trade relations with Germany is by cancelling our present preference to Great Britain, and I do not suppose that the Canadian people generally are anxious that should be done."

Mr. Armstrong's only reply was to ask Mr. Lalor whether he did not think it possible for the Government to so arrange the tariff that they could protect the woollen industry in which he (Mr. Lalor) is interested.

To this inappropriate and suggestive question. Mr. Lalor presented a dignified silence.

More Tory Ignorance.

Mr. Monk, Conservative leader in Quebec, demonstrated his ignorance of trade conditions in France, when discussing the treaty. He said that France produced enough wheat, butter, cheese and other such commodities to render her independent of importations from other countries. In reply to this Sir Wilfrid informed him that France imported what valued at $27,000,000, flour 5,887,000 francs, oats 60,080,000 francs, barley 26,000,000 francs, maize 51,000,000 francs and other grains to the value of 25,000,000 francs. Eggs 88,000,000 francs, horses 11,000,000 francs; cheese 48,000,000, and about 200,000,000 francs worth of wood.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier effectively disposed of every objection urged stated further that in his opinion we should push our commercial relations in every part of the world. The Premier's powerful speech must have influenced Mr. Monk, for that gentleman voted for the treaty.

Public Accounts Committee.

A subject often mentioned in the House is the method of conducting investigations before the Public Accounts Committee. It is well known that the Opposition approach the investigation of public accounts, not with any knowledge of wrongdoing, which may be probed, but with an evident desire to find wrong where wrong does not exist. In their fishing expeditions for evidence, and carried away by party zeal, members of the Opposition often ask questions which intrude upon the private business of the witnesses, and have no bearing upon the subject under consideration.

Witnesses Are Protected.

It has happened in such cases that Liberal members have interposed the very proper objection that such questions are irrelevant and should not be asked. When the chairman has decided questions were proper, he has instructed the witness to answer, but there have been cases where a grave injustice would be done to a man's business if compelled to answer. In such cases the witness has been instructed by the chairman he need not answer.

Always Voted Thanks.

To prove how fairly the chairman has dealt with such cases it may be said that invariably when the committee had completed its labors some member of the Opposition has expressed the views of his colleagues in proposing a vote of thanks to the chairman and giving testimony to thee uniform courtesy and fair dealing of the chairman.

A Challenge Unaccepted.

In face of these facts it cannot well be seen what the Opposition have to complain about. However, Sir Wilfrid, who knows the Government have nothing to conceal, promised to give every latitude to the committee, even may be to go back a year further than has been customary. Mr. Lennox, who brought the mater up, was silent when Mr. Carvel invited him to quote one instance where a proper question had been disallowed by the chairman.

Liberal Investigators Hampered.

Several Conservatives stated that all investigation of public affairs was done by members of the Opposition and that Liberal members never thought there was anything to investigate. This is unfair and misleading. When timber affairs were under discussion and investigation Mr. MacDonald, Liberal of Pictou, had some timber matters to investigate; but the time of the committee was so taken up by Mr. Ames with the one case of limits granted to a particular syndicate that he lost interest in the affair when he found there was nothing wrong. It was upon his motion that timber investigation ceased, a motion made in Mr. MacDonald's absence; therefore Liberals were, by the action of Mr. Ames, prevented from making an investigation which they contemplated.

Committee Is Deluged.

So many papers are called for by the Opposition that the whole time of the committee is consumed, and the Liberal members have very little opportunity to investigate anything. This is the truth of affairs, which is well known to every man who attends the sittings of this committee.

Inaccurate Quotations.

Mr. Northrup, Conservative of Hastings, has several times brought up the question of a certain railway subsidy which fell into the hands of a railway company, which company he claimed had not earned it. He brought the subject up again last week and attempted to prove that the Minister of Railways, Hon. Mr. Graham, had specifically stated that a grievance existed (meaning this particular case) and that he would remedy it.

In support of this view, Mr. Northrup quoted from Hansard what Mr. Graham said, and gave the pages.

Mr. Northrup quoted three paragraphs of Mr. Graham's speech, saying they were on page 2815, 2816, Hansard, 1907-8. Upon reference to the speech it is found that these paragraphs are found at three different places in Mr. Graham's speech; they are not connected, and the last paragraph came first in the original speech.

What Mr. Graham Said.

The fact was that Mr. Graham stated that he was anxious to find a remedy, speaking generally, and not with reference to the particular case under discussion, and that there was a weakness in the law somewhere, and he would not be satisfied until he found a remedy.

Mr. Northrup took these fragmentary parts of Mr. Graham's speech, placed them together, and stated in the House that a remedy had been promised for the particular grievance he was airing.

Loose Tactics.

This matter is important because it shows that Mr. Northrup for purposes of his own, incorrectly reported the Minister, deceived the House and made it appear that the Minister of Railways had pledged himself to redress the grievance of which Mr. Northrup complained, whereas the Minister only stated that he was anxious to prevent a similar transaction.

Foster's Dismal Meanings.

Mr. Foster wasted several hours on Wednesday of last week in reading what had occurred at Colonial conferences since 1887. The blue books containing the work of these conferences are available, and every member of the House knew their contents. Much of the material is ancient and has been varied in later years. Mr. Foster waded through the whole tiresome mass, and when he had concluded, Sir Wilfrid made this simple remark:

"The only observation I will make is that he has presented the conclusions of the different conferences that have taken place in a very fair and accurate manner."

Two hundred members, each one of whom was quite familiar with what had occurred at these conferences, had to remain idle while Mr. Foster occupied the stage for several hours, and the few thousand dollars which this reading cost the country will be later described by him as one of the extravagances for which the Liberal Government are responsible.

More Mail Lies.

As an instance of not trusting the people the Mail quotes the National Transcontinental Railway. Has the Mail forgotten the famous speech of Sir Wilfrid Laurier before going to the people on this scheme in 1904, that he would stand or fall by the verdict of the people? At that time not a dollar was expended, not a sod turned, and the people said by a majority over 70, "Go and build the railway," and in 1908 the people said, "Finish the work." The Mail should remember history.

Foster's Mischievous Talk.

When Mr. Foster seeks an opportunity to embarrass the Government or make some political capital, the interests of the country are of secondary importance.

On Wednesday the honourable gentleman traced the history of events leading up to the Rush-Bagot treaty which was negotiated in 1817, and remains in force today. The effect of the treaty is to limit the armaments of vessels on the Great Lakes, and while the vessels of the United States in the lakes carry an armament in excess of what the treaty provides Canada's consent has first been asked and obtained.

Mr. Foster is a short sighted man; he cannot realize that in the treaty there is a clause which provides for a termination of the treaty by either party giving six months' notice. What would be the position then? The United States could do as they wished without asking the consent of Canada.

What Might Happen.

At present the United States government invariably requests permission to bring what are described as training ships into the lakes, but with a revocation of the treaty they need ask permission of no one.

To agitate a question of this character is bad policy, and if the ventilation given to this subject leads to a notification by the United States of intention to abandon the treaty, and Canada is compelled to sustain an expensive fleet on the Great Lakes, Mr. Foster alone will be responsible.

ANDREW CARNEGIE IN COURT FOR BREAKING SPEED LAWS

New York, Dec. 9.—About the time that Andrew Carnegie was due on the first tee of the St. Andrew's golf course yesterday morning he found himself on the bridge in the Morrisania Police Court, and the only holes in sight were the opening to Magistrate Herrman's ink well and the hole that Mr. Carnegie's chauffeur had got himself and his employer and Judge Reid of Pittsburg into by driving the Laird's touring car at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, according to the policeman who had made the arrest, at twenty miles, according to Mr. Carnegie.

The motor car was at Tremont avenue and the Concourse when Motorcycle Policeman Nerney stopped it. Mr. Carnegie explained that he was Andrew Carnegie and was about to play golf. Nevertheless Nerney arrested James Hill, the chauffeur, and all hands went to the police court.

"You know, Your Honour," said Mr. Carnegie, when the prisoner was arraigned, "that I am very careful about my chauffeurs. They are the best in Scotland, and in addition to very good wages I pay them a 10 per cent. bonus to leave liquor alone. I do not intend that they shall violate the speed law under any circumstances. I was watching the speedometer this morning and know that we were going only twenty miles, and not twenty-five, as the policeman charges."

Then Magistrate Herrman made a hole in ust one stroke. "By your own admission, Mr. Carnegie," he said, "you were violating the law, for the speed limit in the part of the town where you were stopped is fifteen miles."

"Well, now, that's news to me," replied the steel man. "In Scotland the limit is twenty miles and that was what I had in mind. I am very much surprised. We were on our way to keep an appointment at the S. Andrew's golf course. Mis our day's pleasure be spoiled by this unfortunate mistake? have no money with me."

"I'll lend you all you need," said the Magistrate, "but you don't need any."

"Well, I'll pledge my home at No. 2 East Ninety-first street. It's valued at a million, but I wouldn't sell it for that. I entertained my old Peittsburg associates, the Forty-three, there last night."

"I wish I were one of them," said the Judge.

"You'd be a millionaire if you were," replied Mr. Carnegie as he put his signature to the bail bond.

A Famous Gem Of Prose.

IN HIS OWN DEFENCE

By Andrew Hofer

(From a speech which preceded his execution, by order of Napoleon Bonaparte, at Mantua, Italy, Feb. 20, 1810).

You ask me what I have to say in my defence—you who glory in the name of France, who wander through the world to enrich and exalt the land of your birth—you demand how I could dare to arm myself against the invaders of my native rocks? Do you confine the love of home to yourselves? Do you punish in others the actions which you dignify and reward among yourselves? Those stars which glitter on your breasts, do they hang there as a recompense for patient servitude?

I see the smile of contempt which curls your lips. You say: This brute, he is a ruffian, a beggar! That patched jacket, that ragged cap, that rusty belt!—Shall barbarians such as he close the pass against us, shower rocks on our heads, and single out our leaders with unfailing aim—these growelling mountaineers who know not the joys and brilliance of life, creeping amidst eternal snows, and snatching with greedy hand their stinted ear of corn?

Yet, poor as we are, we never envied our neighbours their smiling sun, their gilded palaces; we never strayed from our peaceful huts to blast the happiness of others who had not injured us. The traveller who visited our valleys met every hand outstretched to welcome him; for him every hearth blazed; with delight we listened to his tale of distant lands. Too happy for ambition, we were not jealous of his wealth; we have even refused to partake of it.

Frenchmen! You have wives and children. When you return to your beautiful cities, amidst the roar of trumpets, the smiles of the lovely, and the multitudes shouting with triumph, they will ask, Where have you roamed? What have you achieved? What have you brought back to us? Those laughing babes, who climb upon your knees, will you have the heart to tell them, "We have pierced the barren crags, we have entered the naked cottage to level it to the grounds; we found no treasures but honest hearts, and those we have broken because they throbbed with love for the wilderness around them? Clasp this old flintlock in your little hands; it was snatched from a peasant of Tyrol, who died in the vain effort to stem our torrent!" Seated by your brandies, will you boast to your generous and blooming wives, that you have extinguished the last ember which fightened our gloom?

Happy scenes! I shall never see you more! In those stern and cold eyes I read my fate. Think not that your sentence can be terrible to me! But I have sons, daughters and a wife who has shared all my labours; she has shared, too, my little pleasures—such pleasures as that humble roof can yield—pleasures that you cannot understand.

My little ones! Should you live to bask in the sunshine of manhood, dream not of your father's doom. Should you live to know it, know, too, that the man who has served his God and country with all his heart can smile at the musket levelled to pierce it. What is death to me? I have not revelled in the pleasures wrung from innocence or want; rough and discoloured as are these hands, they are pure. My death is nothing. O that my country could live! O that ten thousand such lives could make her immortal!

Do I despair then? No; we have rushed to the sacrifice, and the offering has been vain for us; but our children shall burst these fetters; the blood of virtue was never shed in vain. Freedom can never die! I have heard that you killed your king once because he enslaved you; yet, now again, you crouch before a single man who bids you trample upon all who abjure his yoke, and shoots you if you have the courage to disobey. Do you think that when I am buried there shall breathe no other Hofers? Dream you that, if to-day you prostrate Hofer in the dust, to-morrow Hofer is no more?

In the distance I see the liberty which I shall not taste; behind I look on my slaughtered countrymen, on my orphans, on my desolate fields; but a star rises before my aching sight which points to justice, and it shall come. Before the sun has sunk below you mountains I shall awake in a paradise which you, perhaps, may never reach.

HERPICIDE'S MISSION.

It Takes Away the Dread of Birth-Days.

Nothing is more annoying to men and women of middle age than to see those unmistakable signs of age—thin hair and grayness—approaching. But science has discovered that these conditions are no longer "unmistakable" evidences of old age, for the dandruff germ theory proves that even very young people may suffer hair loss, while those fortunate enough to escape the ravages of the scalp germ, retain their abundant locks to a ripe old age. Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and removes the risk of appearing old before your time. Save your hair and your feelings, by using the genuine Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by Jury & McDermid, druggists; also Payne's drug store. One dollar bottles guaranteed.

Two Mills Using Same Quality of Wheat May Not Produce Same Quality of Flour

The quality of flour largely depends on the milling. Two mills might grind wheat of the same quality and the product of one far outclass the other. It is not only the high quality of the hard wheat used, but also the superior milling facilities, that places "PURITY" flour so far above all others. Our milling plant at St. Boniface, Manitoba, cost nearly $1,000,000, and is one of the most perfectly equipped mills in the world. The wheat itself is subjected to the most wonderful system of cleaning and scouring, passing through twenty distinct machines. Fifty-five steel rollers, the largest in Canada, reduce the wheat into flour. Then it is purified and dressed by "bolting" it through silk sifters of fine mesh. Not a "branny" particle or speck of dust is ever found in "Purity" Flour.

You may have to pay a little more for Purity, but baking results, quality and quantity, prove it is worth far more than the slight difference.

We have two other modernly equipped mills at Brandon, Man., and Goderich, Ont.

McCORMICK'S KNOCKOUT OF McCOY ONE OF QUEEREST IN HISTORY OF THE RING

Many ring critics have discussed the oft-told story of the one-round knockout which big Jack McCormick hung, oh, so many years ago, upon Kid McCoy. Stories have been printed times without number with descriptions of that strange uncanny fight and theories and conjectures are still numerous—perhaps rightly so. For never in ring history has there been a queerer fluke or a funnier finish to a battle—and the fans who saw that knockout will cherish it to their dying day as one of the most amusing and yet astounding happenings of the age.

The writer was at the ringside that night and saw the punch. 'Nuf ced, as Roosevelt would have you spell it. Most of the critics who still comment on that battle didn't see it, and have only had to go by hearsay and conjecture.

Summerfield and Essig were running a club in the Star Theatre, of Chicago, that winter—a house which is now Sid Euson's. McCormick had been showing pretty good class in six-round bouts, although Joe Choynski had out-shaded him, while McCoy was always an interesting card. So they were matched, and the outcome of the bout stung the promoters in the wallet. McCoy was given $1,000, win, lose or draw. McCormick signed on percentage, and as the promoters figured him a sure loser they figured on paying out simply McCoy's $1,000, plus the losing end of half of the house. As McCormick won they had to cough up McCoy's thousand, plus the winning end of half the house, and they lost much money on the show.

It seemed the softest kind of coin for McCoy, and there was no betting. Nobody even offered to risk any money that Jack would stay six rounds, as it was generally felt that any bets on that proposition would be offered with an objetc in view — to let McCormick stick the six, though losing the decision. Hence this fight went through without any bets of any kind, and the sudden downfall of McCoy brought nobody any revenue —what a fortune oculd have been reaped by any one who could have foretold the finish!

McCoy at this time was fighting fast, with all the cruel blows and beautiful science that made him superior to most men thirty pounds over his size. McCormick, though far larger, was slow and lumbering — a man who could make a strong fight hand to hand, and who, with his knowledge of wrestling and his bulk, could have been a champion under the old London rules. Against McCoy he seemed to have no show, and the crowd that came to the Star that night came to see an exhibition of McCoy's boxing skill and not a genuine, fairly matched battle.

When the men stepped forth, Tommy Ryan, in McCormick's corner, told him to wade straight in and slug, taking a desperate chance. Jack walked in, swinging wildly, only to receive sting after sting upon nose and jaw. In less than thirty seconds he was swinging frantically and not only wild, but as slowly as a log. McCoy danced back and curvetted forward, that mocking smile always on his face, and those hands working like piston rods. He was smothering McCormick, and Jack was lumbering like a ship in a stormy sea.

Near the edge of the stage, almost where the ropes guarded the boxers from stepping into the footlights, McCormick started an overhand right. It was not a swing, straight punch or uppercut. It was sent forward with about the movement a man uses in throwing the ammer, and it went so slowly that everybody in the house could see it as it began, travelled and finished. The graceful, laughing McCoy ducked his head away from its track and then snapped his head forward and miscalculated. Right at the end of the arc the huge fist hit him full upon the chin with all the weight of McCormick's bulky body behind it. McCoy toppled over exactly like a tree hit by lightning and his head hit the floor with a gorgeous bump. Twice his head bounced up and down like a rubber ball and then settled back immovable. Malachy Hogan counted 10, but ther was no need. McCoy was done.

It was one of the strangest knockouts ever seen in any ring and undoubtedly the strangest one ever received by the suave McCoy. McCormick, had he been wise, could have made a lot of money on the reputation he gained by that blow, but he was foolish enough to meet McCoy again with little delay, and the Kid handed him a fearful trimming, getting vengeance and dousing Jack's light forever as a first-class luminary. —Hamilton Times.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

Three New School Buildings are Being Erected---Observatory Building is Almost Completed---Election for the Alma Mater Society Warmly Contested---Queen's Wins Debate.

Written Especially for The Examiner.

Queen's University, Kingston, Dec. 7.—The growth of Queen's is evidenced by the erection of three fixne new buildings, an observatory, a chemistry building and a metallurgy and mining building. The observatory is now nearing completion. Like the other two buildings, it is built of Kingston limestone. It contains clock, equatorial and transit rooms and is equipped with a revolving steel papier mache covered dome.

The new three-story chemistry building, which is to cost $100,000, is built after the Norman style of architecture and is 160 feet long by 70 feet in width. It contains eleven large students' laboratories for general use, and is also equipped with special quantitative, qualitative, organic, electrolytic and water and food analysis laboratories. In addition to lecture, theatres, library and museum, it is worthy of note that each professor has a special laboratory of his own. All laboratories are fully equipped with draft cubboards for carrying off chemical gases and odors.

The $40,000 necessary to build the new Nicol Mining and Metallurgy building was donated by Professor William Nicol, head of the department of mining in the School of ines. It is also of three stories and ieas 75 feet by 88 feet. It contains chemical, electrolytic, electro-metallurgical, fire assaying, metallurgical and special research laboratories. The to pfloor is devoted to drafting. The very latest equipment is being installed in all departments, and nothing is being neglected to make it possible for Queen's to hold her present position as the best school of mining on the continent.

The election for the "Alma Mater Society" were held on Saturday after a strenuous week's campaigning and resulted in the return of the Arts candidate, Mr. M. R. Bow, B. A. (Regina, Sask.) for president by a majority of 58 over Mr. Dennis Jordan, B. A. (Kingston), the medical candidate. For the vice-presidency W. Dobson, of hockey fame, defeated "Ken" Williams, Queen's well-known star rugby player. Various devices were used in the campaign to advertise candidates. These included banner streaming from kites that floated over the college grounds, public meetings, and sandwich men. The science men in an unavailing effort to win the ladies' vote, even went so far as to declare their allegiance to woman suffrage and Mrs. Pankhurst.

Queen's has again proved her superiority in debating by defeating Toronto University in Toronto on Dec. 3rd on the subject, "Resolved, That Canada instead of building her own ships should contribute money ta the British Navy." Queen's debaters, Mr. P. L. Jull and Mr. George Telford, upheld the negatieve. On Jan. 21st Queen's will debate at Ottawa with Ottawa University for the Intercollegiate championship.

The names of two of Queen's graduates have been recently added to the list of Ontario public school inspectors. These are M. R. Reid, M. A., appointed inspector for the northern district of Frontenac and Lennox and Addington, and A. L. Campbell, M. A., Principal of Western High School, made inspector for South York.

W. J. Ramsay, B. A., a Queen's graduate on the staff of Listowell High School, has been appointed classical master of the Regina, Sask., Collegiate Institute.

Seasonable Weather For Christmas, Says Foster

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 10 to 14, warni wave 9 to 13, cool wave 12 to 16. This disturbance was expected to bring high temperatures, stormy weather and not very cold when the cool wave comes in.

Next disturbance will be the climax and all kinds of weather that might be expected in this winter month will come with it. It will, on its journey around the earth, reach the Pacific coast about 14, cross Pacific slope by close of 15, great central valleys 16 to 18, eastern states and provinces 19. Warm wave will cross Pacific coast about 14, great central valleys 16, eastern states and provinces 18. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 17, great central valleys 19, eastern states and provinces 21.

This disturbance will bring severe storms, a great warm wave, a cool wave that will bring temperatures down to winter levels. A great fall in temperatures will come from about 17 to 25 and fix up the weather for Christmas more in accord with the spirits of Old Santa Claus. Another disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 19, cross Pacific slope by close of 20, great central valleys 21 to 23, eastern states and provinces 24. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 19, great central valleys 21, eastern states and provinces 23. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 23, great central valleys 24, eastern states and provinces 26.

This disturbance will continue the severe winter storms, be followed by a cold wave with snows north and cold rains south. I am not advising farmers to market their grain, but those who intend to deliver grain in December will find best weather maybe not the best markets—from about 6 to 18. After that the markets may be better, but the weather will be unfavorable to such work.

The Comet.

The astronomers claim that the great comet will pass between the earth and sun about 930 on evening of May 18 next and that, therefore, the earth will pass through the tail the comet. But as the comet will then be comparatively close to the sun the passing of the earth through the comet's 10,000-mile tail will not consume much time. If the astronomers have correctly calculated and the earth does pass through the comet's ail, we will not know it, as the event will take place at night and we will be on the opposite side of the earth from the comet and sun.

But the dust of the comet's tail may not make a good atmosphere for breathing purposes, and probabilities are that some disease, perhaps a strange disease, may follow the deposit of comet dust in our atmosphere. It is believed that some epidemic diseases are caused by the effects of outer planets on our earth.

All scientific men admit that the planets affect the movements of each other but they are not yet ready to admit that they cause diseases.

THE STORY OF TWO CHRISTMAS DAYS

mean that child?" sez I, "you wicked woman, you!"

"No, I don't mean that child. I mean the child's father. I would go through the flames of hell if I could drag his pet, his darling with me!"

I riz up as if a spring had broke loose inside of me. I knew her—"Inez Bolton," sez I, "is that Tom Smith's child?"

"Yes, it is Tom Smith's child, and it is in his factory, endin' over his looms, addin' to his bloody millions that his only child got her death."

Well, I may as well tell it; it has got to be told. When Tom wuz sowin' his wild oats, it might be expected that the red stalk of revenge would spring up, for it thrives with other evil growths. Inez loved Tom in the old primitive way, one man on earth and one only. And I guess she meant all the romance that was ever on Tom's heart. He promised to marry her, but later pride and social ambition glittered so about Adelaide's lovely face he forgot Inez and honor, thankin', I spoze, Inez would forgit him. But there wuz Spanish blood in the veins, and night and day she dreamed of revenge as she watched the midnight lights of the great city, and the gray dawn break onto a gray life, anon tryin' to drown her agony in the wine cup. Revenge! Revenge! Nothin' on earth seemed so sweet to her.

Sh heard how Tom adored this child, and took service in the house next door. There wuz a fire escape out of the nurse's room. A warm night when the window wuz up, chloroform administered by a deft hand, the baby taken out when all wuz asleep. Ines had perfected her plans. And while the papers wuz full of false clews and rewards, and anarmy huntin' for the child a poor widow with a little girl come into a dingy tenement in a low part of the city by night. No one thought of lookin' into that micerable room and undes them ragged garments for the lost one. And while the cities of the old and new world wuz ringin' their alarm bells, Inez crouched in the dark room and hugged her revenge to her heart.

Well, to reckon backwards, I didn't stop to argy with Ines. I went down them rickety, filthy stairs as if I wuz swep' by a power outside of me, and I didn't know the tears was floodin' my face till the same shamblin' virago asked me, "What wuz I cryin' for, and if the kid wuz dead." I told her to go up and stay in the room awhile, thinkin' mebby the two evil creatures might do less harm watchin' each other, and I went to Tom as fast as the hack would carry me.

He wuz in his luxurious dinin' room partakin' of every luxury money could buy when I told him. Adelaide fell into highstericks. Tom never spoke, but I shall never see another such face till the Judgment Day when men meet their sins agin face to face. He started right outdoors, never took his hat or overcoat or nothin', and I don't believe he noticed I got in the hack and sot by the side of him. When we got there what he felt as he looked around the room and at that poor little victim of another's sins I couldn't tell, only what wuz writ down on his face, but the letters of that story wuz writ deep. Inez lurched at him snarlin' like an angry cur, but she never looked at her. The other woman grasped her in her brawny arms and we left 'em tusslin' together like wild cats.

He took up the dyin' child, wrappe dher in the carriage robe I gin him and held her in his arms all the way back. I don't believe he knew I wuz in the carriage with him, he only see the little white face on his bosom. His face wu rwhite as the child's and there wuz a look on it I never ant to see agin. I myself cried and wep' and wep' and cried, and so did Adelaide, when we got there, and the servants, ut not a tear did Tom shed, not a word did he speak only to give directions for the child's comfort. But durin' the month that Alice lived his hair turned whiete as snow. And he come out of that room of sufferin' and death a new Tom, the old domineerin', ambitious Tom buried so deep he could never be resurrected again.

And all that time we watched Alice fadin' away like a lily bud that has been bruised and trompled on before it blowed out (I wuz there a sight, it seemed to comfort Adelaide some). But durin' all that time I never thought of sassin' Tom and askin' him how he felt now about one more drop on the ocean of life. No, my tears fell on the page I had wrote his heartlessness and inhumanity on, and blotted it out, and I prayed his gardeen angel didli kewise.

That was three years ago, and Tom has gone home, his heart broke, I believe, when he see that little white dyin' face, though his life dragged along most a year longer. He left his ig fortune to build clean, hvable tenements and factories that should not be basts for human lives, but healthy places of labor, reasonably short hours, recreation and rest places provided, and no child labor. That dretful manufactory I wun tore down and on its site erected a eautiful home for poor children where love an dcare and beauty treign instead of the awful sperits that did hant it, and the rosy, healthy little ones lifted out of the dirt and crime and ignorance into the sweet fresh life will carry this divine influence on into eternity.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN BYERS.

Mrs. Margaret H. Brown-Byers, beloved wife of John Byers, died on Wednesday morning, Nov. 24th, at the age of 46 years, 5 months and 8 days, after little less than a week's illness. The cause of death was an acute stomach trouble, presumably the result of an accident received about a month ago, when Mrs. Byers fell on the back steps of her home. The news of this lady's death was passed from ear to ear during the early hours of the morning, and wherever it went it left sorrow; and the expressions of sympathy were many and from the heart.

Mrs. Byers was born near Cobourg, Ont., where she resided until she was married to John Byers, about twenty years ago, after which she, with her husband, resided in Ballichoro until about ten years ago, when, with their daughters, Beryl and Jean, they moved to Oshow, where the family has resided since, and have made hosts of friends.

Besides a husband, two daughters and brother, Dr. J. P. Brown, of this place, who were at the bedside when the end came, a mother, sister and one brother in Cobourg, and three other brothers who reside in the States, are left to mourn this lady's death.

In life Mrs. Byers was a highly respected citizen, a woman of the highest standards of her sex, with a kind and cheerful disposition; a sympathetic and devoted wife and a tender and loving mother. To the public she was always ready to lend a helping hand in time of need—both in acts of kindness and in words. Having these attributes of true womanhood, truly she could say at the end of life's journey, "O Death, where is thy sting? O Grave, where is thy victory?"

THE CHRISTMAS WARDROBE

Now when the Christmas spirit is in the air; when the shops are presenting everything from thimbles to refrigerators in attractive gift form; when the fascinating novelty shops are veritable treasure troves where one may pick up rare prints, artistic framed engravings, bits of brass and appropriate mottoes for every one of a large circle of friends! the wardrobe must be gone over with a critical and appraising eye, in view of the approaching festivities of holiday week.

Season for Debutantes.

Next to the children, the debutantes look forward with most joy to the ten days of celebration around Christmas, for at this season big brother and his chums come home from college and a merry time of it there is with cotillions, theatre parties, dances, and "junior" dinners. But the older women also must be prepared for the special holiday good times; the bridge and luncheon parties arranged for out-of-town visitors, the at homes, which always come at this season, and most of all the weddings crowd fast after Christmas. If a new gown is not included among the Christmas gifts, those that have given service earlier must be freshened and refurnished by means of some of the many dainty trimmings and accessories which are obtainable now.

Velvet Gown the Dernier Cri.

The velvet gown is the dernier cri just now in Paris, and these sumptuous velvet costumes are made even richer by borders of fur in luxurious Russian fashion. Such a gown is, of course most simply made with a sweeping skirt bordered with the fur and perhaps a tunic falling to the knee, also edged with fur along the bottom and up the front, fastening which is usually arranged a little to one side of the centre front. With these velvet gowns—which, by the way, are almost without exception, in black, are worn Irish or Venise collars and cuffs, the later being turned up from the edge of the elbow sleeve. The number of velvet gowns at the premier night of opera in New York was significant, and with many of these velvet gowns were worn priceless laces of old point, with quaint and charming effect.

Of course only the frankly youthful and beautiful woman, and the unquestionably old woman may wear black velvet and white lace with impunity. To the older woman this costume lends dignity, grace and distinction. In it the very youthful woman is captivating-looking all the younger and fairer because of the sombre gown; but the middle-aged matron and spinster belle of uncertain age should beware of black velvet and point.

Bridge Parties and Theatres.

younger and fairer because

Numberless bridge, tea, luncheon, and afternoon theatre frocks are seen and each seems more charming than the last. Over those dainty costumes in the street are worn fur coats to the skirt hem, or smartly cut topcoats of heavy wool fabrics, with semi-fitting lines and broad, tapering collars of skunk or fur. These afternoon frocks are in two types, the Russian tunic type with a chiffon poloniase to the knee draped over an under frock of light weight wool or mohair and wool fabric, being perhaps the most popular. Cheruit showed a chic little frock of this order last week a chiffon poloniase of dark red being draped over a serge foundation of red and black checked material, black cord frogs ornamenting the chiffon poloniase and a dashing toque of red velvet completing the costume. Chiffon over wool is a favourite inconsistency of Cheruit's but the American modistes prefer to hang these chiffon tunics over lighter stuffs like silk cashmere or the soft, pretty parmomohairs which show a mixture of wool threads and are particularly clinging and graceful in character. A blue chiffon tunic over a garnet frock of deep marine blue has touches of jet on the corsage and through the lower hem of the chiffon tunic was threaded a soft black satin ribbon sash, which was knotted behind the knees.

The "Aerial Sashes."

These knee high sashes are called in France "aerial sashes," because they imitate the confining cord tied around the skirts of the woman, making a balloon ascension. Sometimes the sash is girt so tightly that its wearer has hard work to walk, but when loosely draped, the knee sash is really very pretty and graceful.

In contrast to the tunic frocks there are the pretty little dresses with pinafore overskirts, the front of the overskirt extending up over the bodice in a sort of bib that is very graceful and feminine. The woman planning a new frock for over-Christmas festivities should be sure to have one of the seamless guimpes with sleeves cut in one with the yoke. These guimpes are extremely artistic, revealing the usually most graceful line from shoulder to arm, and when made of lighter fabric than the gown itself they make a pretty trimming. For instance a blue net over silver, a brown parmo stuff gown a guimpe of brown net over gold; a black gown, a guimpe of black chiffon over white thieave lace, or of black chantilly over white chiffon; and so on. Of course this short-sleeved, seamless guimpe is cut quite loosely about the armhole and sets over a long-sleeved and usually high-necked guimpe of white or cream net.

Creamy Lace for Yokes.

The French dressmakers are using creamy lace of the finer sort for yokes and collars now, in preference to the somewhat hackneyed net. Fine val-lace, or val with cluny, makes a dainty yoke and stock collar; and there is a new French lace called "Galais," which combines val with chantilly patterns. The beautiful gowns that come from the big Paris houses have always infinitely dainty neck finishes; hand stitchery and the softest, finest laces being placed in this portion of the costume and also at the wrists. It is in these little details that the Frenchwoman excels in chic and daintiness.

If the afternoon costume has a long skirt, it has a short coat; and if the coat is long, then the skirt is in trotting length. Nothing is smarter just now than the long broadcloth skirt with a hip length Russian coat, belted in at the waist and trimmed with fur. These suits are developed as yet only in a very worn throughonen hash in very handsome materials and over them are worn through the streets big topcoats of wool or fur, which are left in the brougham or motor when one attends a luncheon or bridge, or takes tea in a fashionable restaurant. With thee Russian blouse suits are carried huge muffs with handsome, immense fur collars or shawls to match.

Dresses for Cotillion.

Christmas cotillions mean fresh, pretty dresses for the oyunger women, for who wants to attends these important affairs in anything that has already seen service. These are dainty sets which may be tucked and draped with festoon of rosebuds for the debutante; and there are bordered chiffons which make most delightful dancing frocks the flowered border in pastel shades bein garranged at the edge of an overskirt, or at the bottom of a tunic. Chiffon is the dominant note for evening costumes and one cannot go far astray in selecting a satin evening gown over which is draped a chiffon tunic, with touches of metallic lace, narrow borders of fur or roses in the soft dull Morocco shades as a trimming.

Why Women May Fib About Their Ages

An old Italian proverb says, "Men are as old as they feel, and women as they look," which seemed to suggest that years are of no account to the women of youthful appearance, and there is something in this point of view, for the question naturally arises:

"Is a woman justified in concealing her age?" Some say "Yes," others contendit is foolish to do so, for there is no need to obtrude the unkindness of Father Time, when Mother Nature sees fit to circumvent his stealthy doings.

There is no doubt that a woman who wishes to make the best of her social ,professional or business life is unwise to lay the question of years on one side, because in these days of rush, worry and of competition between the same the attractions of the young ladye of eighteen are often superior to those of twenty-five or thirty.

In the musical, literary and dramatic professions youth, with its attendant claims to charm, is a very great help, and the one who is sure of her own age will prove far more lucky in securing an engagement than the one who is "not sure of her exact age."

Of course, there are a great many difficulties and disadvantages to be encountered, but as long as a woman presents any claims to being a "girl," it is fortunate for her. Perhaps her own livelihood, or that of some one very dear, depends on the capture of work, and employers nowadays prefer "up-to-dateness" and the go-aheadness of youth to the one who has turned the ugly corner of the "thirties." The money-earning woman who needs as many years as possible of what is accepted as youth in which to carve out her own special niche in the working world is not justified in concealing her age, for such a thing cannot be done without a loss of self-respect, and sometimes direct falsehood.

Then there is the romance side of the question. Not long since a widow proposed marrying her junior whose professional position would take him and his wife abroad into an entirely fresh social circle. She was thirty-five years of age, but did not look a day over twenty-two, and she said to a friend, "Oh my dear, I really must put my age back, for Edwin's sake. It might hold him up to ridicule if people really knew the truth."

And this raises another point. Some contend that the very happiest marriages are those where the difference of age that loves to snear he furnished with awkward statistics? They contend there is no need for the wife to be so mean as to audaciously proclaim a suitability of age which is not true but by a few tactful hints, avoidance of dates, and a delightful vagueness as jubilees and other awkward trouble, obliterate, any special evidences of disparity.

One does not advocate such methods, or any others which are tainted with deceit, but in a case such as the above it is maintained it would not be altogether reprehensible if a wife assisted to maintain her own and her husband's dignity by not thrusting forward facts likely to draw forth uncomplimentary and annoying observations.

Another question asked is whether a woman is justified in concealing her age from her lovers. Generally speaking, the latter will answer the query himself. He may guess from various interferences that she is not as young as she looks, but what does that matter? She will be his "dear little girl" till the black curls have whitened—while the unrevealed years, and carefully arranged, yet thinning, hair mark Time's unkind progress—but she is always his "little girl."

This is the argument of the genuine lover; for the man who endeavors to discover this one excusable feminine secret of age, when the girl of his heart refrains from supplying any information on the subject, is generally one from whom it is hardly worth while concealing what he desires to know.

Deceit in an yform must not be tolderated. Many men sacrifice everything for the sake of a pretty face, but the majority are wiser in their generation, and when a man finds a partner of his own age, or thereabouts, who can bring into the partnership what he himself lacks, one who will help him, he will never tire of working and serving devoutly.

THE HEART A GREAT WORKER

What a wonder is the heart! Day and night it works away pumping tons of blood through the body and never tires or wears out so long as it is supplied with rich, red blood, such as is formed by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. While sending supplies of nutrition to other parts of the body the heart renews and rebuilds its own wasted cells and so retains health and strength.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Paul's last words—II. Tim. iv:1-18.

Golden Text—For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. Phil. i-21.

Verses 1-2.—When a minister in authority gives instructions to a devoted minister under him, concerning the work to which he is appointed, are his words more or less effectual if he calls God to witness? Why or why not?

What precisely did Paul mean by "Preach the Word?"

What, if any, reason is there to believe that preaching or its equivalent can never be "out of season."

Why is the duty to preach and practise truth, honesty, love, and the presence of God never out of season?

Why is every man under vital obligation to be always on the qui vive to promote the temporal and eternal interests of his fellows?

Verses 3-4.—What is the minimum of Christian faith necessary for "sound doctrine" and salvation? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Why is it that burglars, counterfeiters, gamblers, liars, drinkers and other bad men, and women, often persuade themselves that they are right?

When men do not believe in the supernatural, that is, God, prayer, immortality, rewards and punishments after death, etc., give your reason for your belief whether it is not, a result of some moral defect in their lives?

Verse 5.—What are the chances of success, in any calling, for a man who will watch, suffer, work, and demonstrate his faithfulness?

Verse 6.—Which is the more desirable time, the day of one's birth, or the day of one's death, and why?

How did Paul at this time know that the day of his departure was at hand?

Verse 7.—What can you say for or against the theory, that the better the man the less he thinks of himself?

Sate your views as to whether Paul was guilty of boasting here, or whether it was but an honest statement that he had 'fought a good fight,' and that he had "kept the faith"?

Is God hard to please, or is it possible for an ordinary, honest Christian to please God in all things, and to have the consciousness that he is so pleasing him?

Verse 8.—Was the crown of righteousness that Paul was going to receive, a gift of grace, or a reward for merit, and will it be the same case with all the faithful?

What will be the nature of the reward which awaits the Christian after death?

Verses 9-12.—Is it a sign of weakness or strength, and why, when a Christian craves human company and friendship?

What is the moral quality of a man who forsakes his friend when he is in trouble?

Are friendships rare or plentiful, which remain steadfast, and true alike in prosperity and adversity, through evil and good report, and how do you characterize such a friendship?

Verse 13.—Upon which will a normal right thinker put the emphasis, on things for the body, mind or spirit, respectively?

Verses 14-15—Is there any reason to believe that Jesus would have prayed that a bad man may be rewarded according to his works?

What should be the attitude of a good man toward those who speak evil of him?

Verses 16-18—What effect ought the lack of co-operation of friends, and the opposition of enemies to have upon the work of a true and determined man?

Going Out of Business

¶ Do you appreciate what this means to the buying public of Peterborough and vicinity?

¶ It means that our $25,000.00 stock of Holiday goods and stationery will be put on the market at cost. The reasons for this are apparent.

¶ It is conceded that we have the largest and best selected stock of Holiday gift goods that can be found in any retail stationery store in Ontario; and to close the deal with our successors we are required to reduce the stock by some thousands of dollars.

¶ The only way we can do this is to give our customers the goods at prices that are no more than cost and in some cases less than cost.

¶ THE CHRISTMAS and HOLIDAY GOODS especially WILL BE SLAUGHTERED as we do not want to take them in to stock, they not being seasonable again for almost a year. We are going to take stock on the First of January and arrange for the transfer of the business to other hands and from to-day for the next two weeks] Holiday Goods, of which we have an excellent stock of appropriate gift articles, will be sold at cost.

THE PETERBOROUGH BOOKSTORE

owing to these conditions, is the cheapest and best place to buy your Christmas gifts this year.

Christmas in Mexico

CHRISTMAS in Canada and the United States means for the girls and boys the coming of Santa Claus, the hanging up of stockings, the Christmas tree with its candles and pop corn and bright array of gifts, skating, sleighing and tobogganing for those who are so fortunate as to live far enough north.

Christmas is celebrated in a very different way in Mexico, the next door neighbor to the United States on the South. Would you like to go with me to spend the Christmas season in Mexico? Then we must start some days before the middle of December, for the festivities there are long continued, starting nine days before Christmas—the twenty-fifth of December, as you all know, and lasting until the Feast of the Epiphany on the sixth of January; and this entire time is one long delightful jubilee.

If, instead of a tedious railway journey, we had Aladin's wonderful lamp and could simply close our eyes, rub the lamp, wish and be there, what a change we would find upon opening them! We would close our eyes upon a country of ice and snow and open them in a land of white sunshine, of skies as blue as those of Italy, a summer land of lovely flowers. Only on the lew lofty volcanic peaks is snow ever seen, and not even the most daring of you would dream of tobogganing there.

Instead of shoppers hurrying to and fro, muffled in warm clothing and furs, we would find canals crowded with flower-laden boats and market plazas thronged with gaily-dressed natives. Flowers are so cheap that even the most humble home can afford sprays of the beautiful Christmas plant, Noche Beuno.

As there are no chimneys, the children do not try to stay awake on Christmas Eve to see Santa Claus descend with his pack. Only in the homes of American residents do the children hang up stockings. Among the Mexicans the custom is unknown.

The celebrations which begin on December sixteenth and continue until the twenty-fifth, are called Posadas. The word in Spanish means an "inn," or abiding place. While the celebration was originally religious, it is now only partly religious and has become a very gay and sociable occasion. The Posadas are limited to the cities, but in those places the poorest as well as the richest families hold them.

The origin of the Posada is in the gospel story of the birth of Jesus. Caesar issued a decree that all the world should be taxed, so Mary and Joseph went up to Jerusalem to be enrolled. Mary made the journey on an ass which Joseph led. Each night of the nine which the journey is supposed to have taken, they were obliged to ask for shelter which was often refused. On the last day, arriving at Bethlehem, they found the city full of people and no place either in private house or inn for them to rest. At last they took shelter in a stable and there the Christ was born.

In order to celebrate this journey fully, the Posadas begin with the journey at Nazareth. Each year a house is chosen in a family circle or among a group of friends, and at the house for nine consecutive nights, the festival is held. Or, sometimes, the celebration will be held at different houses during that time.

The journey from Nazareth to Bethleher is represented by the first part of the celebration. At the appointed hour, the guests assemble at the house which has been chosen for the celebration and each person present is furnished with a lighted candle, and, two and two, they march around the halls and through the corridors, several times chanting the solemn "Litany of Loretto." As each invocation is ended the audience chants "ora pro nobis" (pray for us). At the head of the procession the figures of Joseph and Mary, made of clay or wax, dressed in gay colored satins, are borne, either in the hands, or lying in a basket. Sometimes these figures are dressed in brilliant costumes of lace with tinselled borderings. At each door the procession pauses and knocks and begs admittance, but no answer or invitation to enter is given.

At last, however, the door is opened and all go in and Joseph and Mary have secured shelter for the night. The pilgrims are placed on an altar and some prayers recited, though these are generally hurried through in the quickest manner possible.

Frequently on the last night a stable is arranged in a room or on the roof where Joseph and Mary are placed with utmost reverence. On this night, a figure of the infant Jesus is also carried. After the litany, the party proceed to have a general good time, which is kept up until a late hour. Everywhere, throughout the city is heard the litany sung by processions winding in and out of rooms and around improvised shrines. The patios are hung with lights, and fireworks blaze skyward in every direction.

The piñate takes the place of the Christmas tree. It is an oval shaped, earthen jar, handsomely decorated with tinsel and streams of tissue paper, made up to represent clowns, ballet girls, monkeys, roosters, various grotesque animals and even children almost life-sized. The jars are crammed full of sweets, rattles, whistles and crackers. The breaking of the piñate follows the litany and is an exciting event which generally occurs in the patio. It is suspended from the ceiling and then each person desiring to take part is blindfolded in turn, and armed with a pole, proceeds to strike the swinging piñate. Three trials are permitted. Sometimes many are blindfolded before a successful blow brings the sweets and bon-bons rattling to the floor. Then there is a race and a scramble for the dainties. Thousands of these piñates are broken each Christmas season and the vendors perambulate the streets with a pole across the shoulders on which are suspended the grotesque figures. It is quite a common sight to see business men hurrying home carrying these strange-looking tissue paper trimmed figures.

These are the chief features of the Christmas celebrations in Mexico, so different from our own. A merry time, the girls and boys of Mexico have to be sure, but don't you think we will be quite willing to stay at home another year for a real holly and mistletoe Christmas with jingling bells and a frost-bound earth?

CHRISTMAS MORNING.

In the rush of the merry morning,
When the red burns through the gray,
And the wintry world lies waiting
For the glory of the day;
Then we hear a fitful rushing
Just without upon the stair,
See two white phantoms coming,
Catch the gleam of sunny hair.

Are they Christmas fairies stealing
Rows of little socks to fill?
Are they angels floating hither
With their message of good-will?
What sweet spell are these elves weaving,
As like larks they chirp and sing?
Are these palms of peace from heaven
That these lovely spirits bring?

Rosy feet upon the threshold,
Eager faces peeping through,
With the first red ray of sunshine,
Chanting cherubs come in view;
Mistletoe and gleaming holly,
Symbols of a blessed day,
In their chubby hands they carry,
Streaming all along the way.

Well we know them, never weary
Of this innocent surprise;
Waiting, watching, listening always
With full hearts and tender eyes.
While our little household angels,
White and golden in the sun,
Greet us with the sweet old welcome,—
"Merry Christmas, every one!"

By the Cool, Quiet Lakes

OUT of Chicago, the twin trails of steel known as the Grand Trunk Railway, take you, via Detroit or Sarnia, to Toronto, the natural gateway to that wonderful wilderness known as the Highlands of Ontario.

From Toronto other trails lead north, northwest and northeast into an Outer's Paradise, so vast and so varied in its scenic beauty and attractiveness that the incoming tourist, having read a few of the many descriptive pamphlets which picture the various resorts, suffers from an embarrassment of riches. But no matter which trail you take, it will lead you into a land exceedingly fair, for there are thousands of lakes and resorts between Toronto and Hudson's Bay that are indescribably charming and attractive. There are the Thirty Thousand Islands of the Georgian Bay, threaded by the splendid steamers of the Northern Navigation Company, for those who like to sit and lounge lazily aboard ship, and watch the islands drift by like play-house scenes of childhood. And there, away to the north, is Temagami, made more interesting recently by the marvellous discoveries nearby of Cobalt and Gowganda, probably the richest silver fields in the world. Temagami Lake, with its many islands and its three thousand miles of shore line, and two attractive hotels for those who want hotels, is an extremely fascinating spot for those who want to get "back of the people"—"beyond the settlement". In the lakes, reached by short portages from Lake Temagami, the best bass fishing to be found on the continent can be had. From the head of Lake Temagami, the canoeist may drift down the Montreal River, find splendid fishing and have a glimpse of the new mining fields along that stream.

If you take the trail due north from Toronto, three or four hours' ride will bring you to Muskoka Lakes, and to the Royal Muskoka Hotel—the Ponce de Lion of the north. A few miles farther up the line, you arrive at Huntsville, where pretty little lake steamers with romantic Indian names, carry you down Fairy River, across Fairy Lake, to the Wawa, easily the most charming and delightful summer hotel to be found in the Dominion. There is boating, golf, tennis and entrancing trails that wind about through the native forest. There are ample airy rooms with hot and cold water, brass bedsteads, electric lights—in short, all the modern comforts of civilization with the wild wood at the back-door. In a tower at the top of the house there is a revolving searchlight, that lights the little Island-studded sea, picks up the incoming steamer, the fishermen coming in with their fish, the young couple in the bark canoe, her hand in his.

The boats that call at the Wawa, sail on up the Lake of Bays to Dorset, from which point fishermen may portage over to Hollow Lake, where the largest trout are taken. And then, too, from Toronto, there is that wonderful sail down the St. Lawrence through the Thousand Islands, through Lachine Rapids to Montreal.

This, of course, is only a splash, a mere hint, of what the Highlands hold for the tourist.

The vexing problem of what to do with the boy in the "Dog Days" is being solved by hundreds of American and Canadian parents, who bundle the boys off to one of the many boys' camps in the healthy Highlands of Ontario, where they can be taught a little, entertained much, and kept clean-minded and happy.

The general idea is to establish a camp in some wild spot, where the boys may live under canvas and get a genuine bit of simple life. A corps of instructors maintain discipline and give such book instruction, or none, as the boys may desire or need in their regular school work, or preparation for college. A feature of the camp is instruction in the elements of woodcraft. The farther in the wild the camp is pitched, the more interesting is the camp life, and the more valuable the woodcraft training, making a veritable School of the Woods.

Canada is probably the only country in the Western Hemisphere that can offer the most attractive territories for life in the untrammeled wilds and where there is still a magnificent wilderness of land and waterscapes, forests, mountains and rivers, lakes and streams, which teem with the gamiest of fish, and whose forests abound with numerous species of big game and game birds.

Among the principal districts that appeal to the lover of "out-of-doors," Ontario has the most attractive, and several popular localities in this Province are becoming better known each year. The territory is known as the "Highlands of Ontario," embracing nine distinct districts. Those most suitable for camping and canoeing, however, are the "Temagami Forest Reserve," the "Algonquin National Park of Ontario," the "Lake of Bays" region, and "Lake Couchiching."

It has come to pass, owing to the waste and destruction of the forests of America, sometimes by fire, and to make fields for the farmer, that the American tourist has nowhere to shade him from the summer sun. The man who seeks the wilderness when the old "Spring-fret comes o'er him," must turn his face to the North. And nowadays the North no longer means anything but Canada and its fastnesses.

One of these "silent places" that is just beginning its passing, and yet is within thirty-six hours of Chicago, twenty-four hours of New York City, and twelve hours of Buffalo, is the Temagami Forest Reserve, situated 300 miles north of Toronto in Northern Ontario.

The Reserve is a practically unbroken wilderness of 5,900 square miles of forest and water. Lake Temagami, shaped much like a giant octopus, has 100 square miles of water, 1,400 islands and 3,000 miles of shore line. The whole Reserve is a network of lakes and connecting streams, lying in an unbroken forest. Here the campers can go for hundreds of miles by canoe and portage without seeing a clearing, a house or a white man.

Nature was in an ironical mood when she made the Temagami region. To the eye it is a beautiful mingling of forest and water and hills. The hills are solid rock. There is nothing here for the farmer. There is nothing here for the grazier. It would be a paradise for the lumberman. It may be a second Cobalt for the miner. It is unexcelled for the city man, who yearns to get near to nature's heart. Seeing these things, the Province of Ontario created a playground of 5,900 miles of forest reserve for the people.

It seems almost ridiculous to speak of a country as a wilderness, when there are three hotels on its principal lake and two steamboat lines running on regular schedule. Moreover, there is the Hudson's Bay Company's post on Bear Island, in the body of Lake Temagami, with its store and church and little cluster of dwellings.

But this is literally all. There is nothing else. Here and there you may catch from the steamer a glimpse of a tent showing white against the gray of the rocks and the green of the forest; you may see the spiral smoke of a camp fire in the distance, and you may even meet or pass a canoe paddled by campers or anglers. But over all hangs the silence and mystery of the wilderness. The hotels and the post but emphasize the solitude; the steamer's course is but one path in the wild. Behind the nearest island it is quite possible to run into a lordly moose or a noble red deer or a lumbering bear.

To the right and left, before and behind, lies a labyrinth of islands, and beyond the islands yet other labyrinths of portage and lake and hills in the midst of the virgin forest. Some of the Reserve is even unexplored, last year parties from the Keewaydin Camps found and named five new lakes, and added them to the Government Map.

In a vacation camp the boy gets into intimate touch with nature and learns things that are not in books, such as self-reliance, decision, and steadfastness of purpose. Rubbing elbows with a hundred other boys from all parts of the country is good training for the apron-string boy, for there is no test like camp life to show up the lazy boy and the selfish boy and the boy with the yellow streak, and to effectually check or cure these blemishes. Also this life near to Nature induces clean thoughts and decent ways.

The American boy takes kindly to the wilderness, and in return the mother of all men gives him strength, physical, mental and moral. And the young fellow who has learned to take care of himself in the wilderness has a better chance to succeed in any walk of life to which his lot may call him.

Camping, with all its pleasures, is probably the most healthful way to enjoy an outing in the woods, and where one has good fishing, beautiful camping spots, clear and pellucid water for drinking and bathing, magnificent scenery, interesting canoeing routes and all the pleasures that can be derived in outdoor life at an altitude of 1,500 to 2,000 feet above the sea-level, a week, two weeks, a month or the entire summer can be spent with the utmost profit. Such a region is the territory known as the "Algonquin National Park," situated on the Ottawa division of the Grand Trunk Railway System, about two hundred miles north of the City of Toronto, and one hundred and seventy miles west of the capital of the Dominion—Ottawa.

The "Algonquin National Park" is a region that has already won favor with a large number of travellers who are looking for new fields to explore, for a place where civilization has not yet encroached upon nature's domains, and where man's handiwork is not in evidence. Irrespective of the scenic grandeur of the entire park, the main attraction is the grand fishing that is offered, and which is open to all true sportsmen who recognize the carrying out of the regulations for the protection and preservation of the fish and game.

The situation of the Park and contiguous territory might be called the eastern section of the "Highlands of Ontario," and covers an area of 1,800,000 acres of forest and water stretches, there being no less than 1,200 lakes and rivers within its boundaries.

The charm of the delightful region of the Maganetawan River is in its rugged scenery, its magnificent rivers and its inland lakes, dotted with myriads of islands set on the bosom of the waters like gems scintillating in an emerald setting.

The steamers of the Maganetawan Navigation Company are modern and handsomely fitted up, and they are lighted by electricity and equipped with searchlights.

For fifteen miles the river is followed, winding to and fro, as all Muskoka rivers seem to do. Lake Cecebe forms the next link for ten miles, at the foot of which is the Village of Maganetawan.

GOOD SHEPHERD — By B. Plockhurst

Testimony of Great Men to Jesus of Nazareth

CHRIST'S character grows more pure, sacred and lovely, the better we know Him. The whole range of history and fiction furnishes no parallel to it. Christ is the glory of the past, the life of the present, the hope of the future. We cannot even understand ourselves without Him.—Philip Schaff.

Jesus the Lord became a sacrifice for sin; a pattern for all righteousness; a preacher of the Word which Himself was; a corner-stone to remove the separation between Jew and Gentile; an intercessor of the Church; a Lord of nature in His miracles; a conqueror of death and the power of darkness in His resurrection. He fulfilled the whole counsel of God, performed His whole sacred offices and anointing on earth, accomplished the whole work of the redemption and restitution of men to a state superior to the angels, and reconciled or established all things according to the eternal will of the Father.—Francis Bacon.

Do you think He came, the true and perfect King, only to go away again, and leave this world as it was before, without a law, a ruler, a heavenly kingdom? God forbid! Jesus is the same yesterday, to-day and forever. What He was then, when He rode in triumph into Jerusalem, that is He now to us this day—a King, meek and lowly, and having salvation, the head and founder of a kingdom which can never be moved.—Charles Kingsley.

To bring life and immortality to light; to give such proofs of our future existence, as may influence the most narrow mind, and fill the most capacious intellect; to open prospects beyond the grave, in which the thought may expatiate without obstructions; and to supply a refuge and a support to the mind amidst all the miseries of decaying nature—is the peculiar excellence of the gospel of Christ.—Samuel Johnson.

I commit my soul to the mercy of God, through our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and I exhort my dear children humbly to try to guide themselves by the teachings of the New Testament.—Charles Dickens

Now, if we describe the work of Christ by a short expression which may give the clearest view of it, we shall describe it thus: that He came to restore the intuition. He came, it is true, to save, and to give eternal life; but the way in which He did this was by restoring the intuition.—Matthew Arnold.

Men own that the human character of Christ is the completest human character the world has ever seen, and yet they give their admiration to incomplete characters; and, not yet risen to the full revelation of the Lord, they call that manly which they know all the while is something less than the full-orbed attainment of the perfect man.—Phillips Brooks.

In the early ages of Christianity, there was little care taken to analyze character. One momentous question was heard over the whole world: "Dost thou believe in the Lord with all thine heart?" There was but one division among men—the great unatonable division between the disciple and the adversary. The love of Christ was all, and in all; and in proportion to the nearness of their memory of His person and teaching, men understood the infinity of the requirements of the moral law, and the manner in which it alone could be fulfilled.—John Ruskin.

What touches us touches Christ; what annoys us annoys Christ; what robs us robs Christ. He is the great nerve-centre to which thrill all sensations which touch us who are His members.—T. DeWitt Talmage.

Jesus did not ask us to pass from better to worse, but, on the contrary, from worse to better. He had pity upon men, who to Him were like sheep without a shepherd. He said that His disciples would be persecuted for His doctrine, and that they must bear the persecutions of the world with resolution. But He did not say that those who followed His doctrine would suffer more than those who followed the world's doctrine; on the contrary, He said that those who followed the world's doctrine would be wretched, and that those who followed His doctrine would have joy and peace. Jesus did not teach salvation by faith in asceticism or voluntary torture; but He taught us a way of life, which, while saving us from the emptiness of the personal life would give us less of suffering and more of joy. Jesus told men that in practising His doctrine among unbelievers, they would be, not more unhappy, but, on the contrary, much more happy, than those who did not practise it.—Leo N. Tolstoi.

Jesus has been the one man of whom it has been possible to say to all people, of all nations, all ages and languages, "Whom having not seen ye love; in Whom, though now ye see Him not; yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory".—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Beyond doubt, Christ is the founder of the first true Church; that is, that Church, which, purified from the folly of superstition and the meanness of fanaticism, exhibits the moral kingdom of God upon earth as far as it can be done by man.—Immanuel Kant.

Nothing that is here said can apply, even with the most distant disrespect, to the real character of Jesus Christ. He was a virtuous and an amiable man. The morality that he preached and practised was of the most benevolent kind; and though similar systems of morality had been preached by Confucius and by some of the Greek philosophers many years before, by the Quakers since, and by many good men in all ages, it has not been exceeded by any.—Thomas Paine

Highest of all religious symbols are those wherein the artist or poet has risen into a prophet; and all men can recognize a present God, and worship the same. If thou ask to what length man has carried it in this manner, look on our divinist symbol, Jesus of Nazareth, and His life and His biography, and what followed therefrom. Higher has the human thought not yet reached; this Christianity and Christendom—a symbol of quite perennial, infinite character, whose significance will ever demand to be anew inquired into, and anew made manifest.—Thomas Carlyle

The question of the justice of Jesus' condemnation depends upon is the judgment which is formed of His character. If He had been only a Galilean Rabbi, the tribunal of history could not rightfully reverse that of Caiaphas. In the mausoleum of the noble dead, there is no place to erect, by the side of Confucius of China, Buddha of India, and Socrates of Greece, a statue to the memory of Jesus of Nazareth. He is either the Son of God, or He was a false prophet; He was either more than a philosopher, or less than a true man.—Lyman Abbott.

Jesus Christ belonged to the true race of prophets. He saw with open eye the mystery of the soul. Drawn by its severe harmony, ravished with its beauty, he lived in it, and had His being there. Alone in all history, He estimated the greatness of man. One man was true to what is in you and me. He saw that God incarnates Himself in man, and evermore goes forth anew to take possession of His World.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Everything in Christ astonishes me. His spirit overawes me, and his will confounds me. Between Him and whoever else in the world, there is no possible term of comparison. His ideas and His sentiments, the truths which He announces, his manner of convincing, are not explained either by human organization or by the nature of things.—Napoleon Bonaparte.

If we attempt to discover what it is in the personal character of Jesus Christ, as shown in His life, that thus attracts such permanent admiration, it is not difficult to do so. In an age when the ideal of religious life was realized in the Baptist's withdrawing from men, and burying himself in the ascetic solitudes of the desert, Christ came, bringing religion into the hearts and homes of every-day life of men. For the mortifications of the hermit, he substituted the labors of active benevolence; for the fears and gloom which shrank from men, he brought the light of a cheerful piety, which made every act of daily life religious. He found the domain of religion fenced off as something distinct from common duties; and He threw down the wall of separation, and consecrated the whole sweep of existence.—Cunningham Geikie.

It appears, as respects the person of our Lord, that its ordinary exhibition to ordinary hearers and spectators was that of a man engaged in the best and holiest and tenderest ministries, among all the saddest of human miseries and trials; of one teaching in word, too, the best and holiest and tenderest lessons, and claiming, unequivocally and without appeal, a paramount authority for what He said and did, but beyond this asserting respecting Himself nothing, and leaving Himself to be freely judged by the character of His Words and deeds. . . . . Through the fair gloss of His manhood, we perceive the rich bloom of His divinity. If He is not now without an assailant, at least He is without a rival. If He be not the Sun of Righteousness, the Friend that gives His life for His friends and that sticketh closer than a brother, the unfailing Consoler, the constant Guide, the everlasting Priest and King, at least, as all must confess, there is no other to come into His room.—William E. Gladstone.

THE BEGINNING

THE INVASION OF PEACE

The Story of the West

BY ISABEL C. ARMSTRONG.

(Written Specially for this Edition.)

OF no where is it more true than of the Prairie Provinces of Canada, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, that the old order is passing away and all things are yielding to the new. Manitoba is a staid, settled, for the most part thickly populated farming country. Groves or "bluffs" of trees, Manitoba maple, cotton-wood and oak, that in many cases have grown from seed protect the comfortable rural homes from fierce winter winds or the too penetrating rays of the summer sun. The rural telephone has robbed the life of the farmer's wife of the peril of monotony and loneliness. The farmer feels a glow of pride in seeing his broad wheat fields where a dozen or more of his own sleek, well-fed horses are attached to his reapers, in seeing his own outfit threshing the golden grain. A steam plow turns over the furrows of rich dark earth and when a break-down occurs he doesn't wait to hitch up a horse. He cranks up his auto, jumps in and has made the return trip to town for necessary supplies or repairs in less time that it would have taken to prepare for such a journey in the good old days.

Progress in its march has covered Saskatchewan and even in far west Alberta, the seeker for novelty is prone to sigh, "I have come too late." And the "too late" has come about all within the past few years.

The day of the big ranch is rapidly passing away and so well known a Canadian writer as Agnes Deans Cameron is responsible for the statement that scarcely half a hundred of these are left in sunny Alberta. Passing with the big ranch is the picturesque cow-boy, the hero of every boy's romance.

"The Soul of Saskatchewan is a grain of wheat" sings Cy Warman, and he might have added, "The Soul of Alberta, also"—could he have made it rhyme.

Gradually even the private ranches of some thousand acres are being pushed back to the beautiful, grassy, foot-hills which kneel before the Rockies.

But even here is felt the unromantic invasion of an advanced civilization. A trustworthy Chinaman relieves the mistress of onerous domestic duties and leaves her ample time to telephone her orders to town over the provincial rural phone, to chat with neighbors by the same convenient method or to entertain the frequent guests who chug-chug up to her door, leaving an odor of gasoline in their wake. Others arrive in smart pony traps and carriages while not a few come mounted.

True, the first year the homesteader still builds his dwelling of sod, and this frequently is made to suffice not only for himself but also for whatever live stock he is fortunate enough to possess. His shack is his ark where he and the members of his family occupy the room at one end and the members of his domestic menagerie the room at the other. If he hasn't a family, he isn't always so fastidious.

But the homesteader is not long content with his sod house if he be a worker,—and the West is no place for the shirker. The soil will yield not only a living but a competency to all who put intelligence and energy into the tilling. In a few years at most, the cabin gives place to a prosperous frame dwelling, with substantial stables to house the increasing stock. The trees which have been planted to beautify and give shade, like everything else, are yielding their best for this gracious soil.

As more and more of the land comes under cultivation, the danger of early frost killing the crops decreases. It is a well-known fact that cultivated land holds the warmth from the sun's rays much longer than uncultivated. Men of optimism, but at the same time experience and good sound judgment, state that the day is not far distant when the menace of frost will cease to alarm the farmer of the Middle West.

In recent years, the ample rain-fall has insured against drought and further insurance is being given to settlers in the irrigation ditches under construction in districts where moisture during former seasons has been insufficient.

It is characteristic of the West not to wait for improvements, but to go ahead and make them. "Make the improvements" and the population will follow is the slogan of towns large and small. The tiny elevator hamlet of yesterday is the hustling town of to-day because it believes in itself and succeeds in inspiring others with this belief. It erects substantial public buildings, lays fine pavements and sidewalks and corners a water supply not for a Yesterday or To-day, but for a big To-morrow.

Last summer a visitor in a small Alberta town was delighted to receive an invitation to an evening party at a private ranch a few miles distant.

"I'm going to see some REAL West at last," she gloated.

"Better wear your best bib and tucker," warned the host, who laughed at her enthusiasm.

At seven-thirty the spirited team of bays and a smart double seated wagonette were waiting at the door. The wife of the host came down the stairs, a becoming cloak of latest cut only half concealing a dainty frock that had just arrived from Toronto. But clothes were soon forgotten as the road was taken along the river, overhung by willows, straight towards the foot-hills, behind which loomed the mountains bathed in the glory of the setting sun. As the golden light deepened into crimson then faded to gray, the horses were turned and the trail followed across the open, free prairies. Night was descending as a pause was made at a gate at the end of a long avenue of trees. Lights glowed in welcome from every window of the house at the other end.

Through a garden which could only be guessed at by the fragrant odors, and across a lawn the guests were led by one son of the household while another led the horses to the barn.

Within was no sound of revelry, no rustic badinage, no "loud laugh that speaks the vacant mind," but rather a highly cultured mirth. The hostess, a very grand lady, indeed, in spite of twenty years on a ranch, far from cities, and not too easy years at that, in the beginning at least, wore an evening gown of irreproachable texture and style.

A telephone in the hall, mission furniture in the living room, a piano, pianola, books and magazines greeted the eyes of the visitor from the east, who despaired on the spot of ever getting to the West of Dreams.

Though the West is a hustling, bustling, commercial country, the western people are genuine good sports, and wholesome amateur sports like everything else flourish there, baseball, foot-ball, tennis, cricket and particularly lacrosse and polo. And the bridge fiend, too, is found in that free West land, and the devotee of the afternoon tea. An eastern city is only becoming aware of the fact that a western suburban town composed of a water tank, two grain elevators and a straggling main street has borrowed its manners and customs when the western hamlet turns round and teaches the eastern city some new antics. This, in brief, is the story of the West.

How to Keep Christmas

BUT there is a better thing than the observance of Christmas Day, and that is, keeping Christmas.

Are you willing to forget what you have done for other people, and to remember what other people have done for you; to ignore what the world owes you, and to think what you owe the world; to put your rights in the background, and your duties in the middle distance, and your chances to do a little more than your duty in the foreground; to see that your fellow men are just as real as you are, and try to look behind their faces to the hearts, hungry for joy; to own that probably the only good reason for your existence is not what you are going to get out of life, but what are you going to give to life; to close your book of complaints against the management of the universe, and look around you for a place where you can sow a few seeds of happiness—are you willing to do these things even for a day? Then you can keep Christmas.

Are you willing to stoop down and consider the needs of little children; to remember the weakness and loneliness of people who are growing old; to stop asking how much your friends love you, and ask yourself whether you love them enough; to bear in mind the things that other people have to bear on their hearts; to try to understand what those who live in the same house with you really want, without waiting for them to tell you; to trim your lamp so that it will give more light and less smoke, and to carry it in front so that your shadow will fall behind you; to make a grave for your ugly thoughts, and a garden for your kindly feelings, with the gate open—are you willing to do these things even for a day? Then you can keep Christmas.

Are you willing to believe that love is the strongest thing in the world—stronger than hate, stronger than evil, stronger than death—and that the blessed life which began in Bethlehem nineteen hundred years ago is the image and brightness of the Eternal Love? Then you can keep Christmas.

And if you keep it for a day, why not always? But you can never keep it alone.—Van Dyke.

Not in success and noise and triumph does the soul grow; when the body rejoices, when the mind is prodigal of seed, the spirit sits within in a darkened chamber, like a folded chrysalis in a faint dream. But when triumphs have no savor, when the cheek grows pale, and the eye darkens, then the dark chrysalis opens, and the rainbow wings begin to spread and grow, uncrumpling to the sun of paradise.

The Living Art

THERE is a fine art which is much neglected among us, and that is the art of living together, not so much the art of the wife living with her husband, or a husband with his wife, but the art of being a smooth-running wheel in the great machinery of the world—the art of not squeaking, or slipping a cog, or stripping the gearing, or otherwise disturbing the harmony of the huge engine of human life.

Nor is it odd that this art is neglected, when you come to think of it, for most people are ignorant of the existence of such a craft, and if informed of it declare it of no importance. But this is not so, for the man who studies into its necessities discovers that it covers the whole ground of domestic science. The man who is clever enough to understand that unless he makes a good citizen he cannot expect good government, will also be shrewd enough to see that unless he makes a good son he cannot expect harmony in his father's house.

And if these two important facts are comprehended, he will not need to be told that to make a good husband will ensure the happiness of one woman, and to be a good father will round out his share of the responsibility in the balance of the universe. He has earned his right to live, move, and have his being together with his fellow-beings, for he has successfully learned the difficult art of living together.—Anonymous.

No man is made only for himself and his own private affairs, but to serve, profit and benefit others.

A Christmas Prayer

COME, O Thou Prince of Peace, and dwell within us this holy Christmastide. Enter the busy marts, the crowded ways, the quiet homes and humble abodes of men, and touch every human heart that all may know Thy great love, and in its fellowship and peace bear good-will and charity to all mankind. Show unto all the precious hope that dawned on the first Christmas Day, and help each to accept the gift of eternal life through Thee. Look in mercy upon the needy ones of earth, and free every soul from the bondage of sin and the darkness of doubt. Grant hope and cheer and joy to all on this blessed Christmas Day, and let happiness reign everywhere among men because of the Babe cradled in the manger at Bethlehem. Bless us in our giving and receiving. Give us thankful hearts in accepting the perfect gift, and let the star of peace arise in every darkened soul and all hearts give back the glad refrain of the angel song, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace and goodwill among men."

SHE WAS DRIVEN THROUGH COLD SUFFERING FROM SCARLET FEVER

Inquest into Death of Ida May Hazzard Has Commenced at Whitby and Adjourned Until December 28.

ANOTHER CASE OF FEVER

Whitby, Dec. 10.The Coroner's inquiry into the death of Ida May Hazzard, the young girl who died on November 12th, from scarlet fever two days after being driven eight miles through the cold, was resumed here this afternoon, and again adjourned till December 28. Dr. Ralph Brodie, Mr. Chas. Brodie, V.S., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilson of Claremont, wer examined. Dr. Brodie said he had been called to see the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, whose illness he diagnosed as scarlet fever, and had the house placarded. He denied knowing anything of Miss Hazzard coming there till she had gone home.

Mr. Chas. Brodie, a member of the Board of Health, was consulted as to Miss Hazzard going home. Thinking she had only been there a short time he consented to disinfect her clothes.

The Wilsons professed that they did not know it was unsafe to the girl or the public for her to go home. The evidence of the Wilsons shows that Dr. Brodie knew that Miss Hazzard was there, but there is no evidence what he knew of her intention to go home. Mrs. Wilson testified that the girl had complained of a headache and wanted to go home. Having consulted Dr. Brodie, and he saying that if her clothing wer fumigated she might go, seems to have contented the Wilsons. Another case of fever has developed in the Hazzard home; hence none of the family could be called.

CYRENE PRECEPTORY.

Knights Templar Made Pilgrimage to Peterborough.

Cyrene Peceptory of the Toronto Knights Templar under the command of Right Eminent Sir John Dunlop presiding preceptor made a pilgrimage to Peterborough last night for more preceptory They were about forty in number and made the trip in a special car, returning this morning. They were dressed in full Templar regalia and marched from the C. P. R. station to the Masonic Hall and made a very imposing appearance by their military dress and bearing. Right Eminent Sir Knight Will A. Eyrie, Deputy Grand Master of Knights Templars of Canada exemplified the Templar degree. The occasion was one of unusual brilliancy and a large number of the local Masons were present. Following the work of the preceptory a sumptuous banquet was served, after which a toast list was honoured. The event was an unusually important one, the visitors being men of prominence.

ASK WM. MADILL

Parisian Sage, the Hair Grower, is Now Sold in Canada on Money Back Plan.

It's a mighty good thing for the women of Canada that Parisian Sage can now be obtained in every town of consequence.

No preparation for the hair has done so much to stop falling hair and eradicate dandruff and make women's hair beautiful as Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is the only certain destroyer of the dandruff microbe which is the cause of 97 per cent. of hair troubles.

These pernicious, persistent and destructive little devils thrive on the ordinary hair tonics.

Parisian Sage is such an extraordinary and quick acting rejuvenator that Wm. Madill, who is the agent in Peterborough guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It is a magnificent dressing for women who desire luxuriant, lustrous hair that compels admiration.

And a large bottle of Parisian Sage costs only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's, and all over Canada.

FIGHTING FOR DEAD MAN'S ISLAND

Vancouver, Dec. 10.—The contest between the city of Vancouver on the one hand, and Theodore Ludgate and the Vancouver Lumber Company on the other, for possession of Deadman's Island has reached the courts. The city was arraigned in the Supreme Court this morning as defendant in the suit brought by the Vancouver Lumber Company, who seek to recover possession under the Ludgate lease of 1899 from the Dominion Government.

The city has contended since the gaining of the Ludgate lease that Deadman's Island forms a part of Stanley Park and was included in the Dominion order in Council making over the park to the city and asks that the Ludgate lease be set aside. Twice Ludgate has attempted to take possession, and each time the city drove his men off.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WM. HAMILTON COMPANY TO-DAY

Held This Afternoon—Reports Received Were Most Encouraging to Directors and Shareholders.

YEAR SATISFACTORY

The first annual meeting of the Shareholders of The William Hamilton Company, Limited, was held at the Company's Office, this Saturday afternoon.

The report of the Directors to the Shareholders of the Company showed that the past year's business has been exceedingly satisfactory. A dividend has been paid on the Preferred Stock, and a substantial balance carried to the credit of Profit and Loss account.

After the difficulties that this Company experienced, it is satisfactory to the citizens of Peterborough to see the prosperity that it is now enjoying. From 1906 to September 1908, for almost two years this large and useful property had great difficulty in securing a purchaser with capital sufficient to carry on the business. Finally, it was taken hold of by the present Company and they have successfully placed it in a position, by which, it is not only profitable but is likely and shows signs of being greatly enlarged.

The legislation obtained by the City Council with a view to helping, did not satisfy the Directors and the Company never availed itself of the city's offer.

At one time, the machinery was sold to A. R. Williams & Company, Toronto, and the shops were being dismantled when this company took possession of it. The Company was then re-organised by Mr. Collier and other members of the Board, Messrs. Andrew MacFarland, J C. Smith, Geo. H. Gladman, David Spence, R. C. Cameron and L. Potvin and on the 1st of November, 1908, business was resumed.

It is gratifying to know that through the energy and atio-to-a-tiveness of a few of our citizens, The William Hamilton Company has been restored to its old time prestige, and Peterborough, appreciates the many great advantages derived therefrom.

The City Council will doubtless lend all assistance to this, and all Peterborough industries that it can be expected to do. Additional capital is being obtained and when this is accomplished the Company will give employment to from 80 to 100 additional men.

The Company is to be congratulated upon its splendid showing for its first year's operation.

ONCE MORE—SHOP EARLY.

There is a one line sermon at the head of this page that every person in Peterborough should read and observe and that is in regard to early shopping. There is nothing new that can be said on the subject. The fact simply remains that the man or woman who select their gifts early has the best choice of articles to pick from, is sure of the undivided attention of the clerk and earns the heartfelt gratitude of the merchant and his employees. There is no reason why people should wait until Christmas eve to make their purchase. Getting buy early next week.

The Peterborough Light and Power Franchise—Information To Help Voters To Decide

Q. What s the By-law?

A. A By-law to permit the use of streets for purposes of distributing light and power.

Q. How many years will Franchise run?

A. Thirty years.

Q. Why should it run for thirty years?

A. (1) Because bond issues are difficult of financing for a shorter period.

(2) The Company wants a settled period in order to shape their policy for future extensions, improvements, and betterments, requiring greatly increased investment.

Q. Is the Franchise exclusive?

A. No.

Q. Will any other Company be prevented from obtaining a Franchise for similar purposes, i.e., distributing light and power

A. (1) No. The granting of the same rights and privileges to any other Company rests with the people of Peterborough.

(2) Such a Franchise can be given any other Company at any time during the thirty years' period at the option of the people of Peterborough.

Q. Will electric light meter rates be increased?

A. No. That rate can never be more than stated in Franchise, i.e., 10c per 1,000 watts and 30 per cent. discount.

Q. What is the rate now?

A. 10c per 1,000 watts and 25 per cent. discount.

Q. When will these rates be readjusted?

A. Every five years.

Q. How does this Franchise affect the street lighting?

A. It does not affect it.

(2) On the expiration of present contract with the City, the Council may award the contract for another period of five years more or less to anyone whose tender they accept.

Q. Does this Franchise prevent the Municipality from doing their own street lighting, or from engaging in the business of distributing light and power?

A. No.

Q. What concessions do the Peterborough Light and Power Company offer?

A. (1) Additional 5 per cent. discount on light bills.

(2) Placing wires in business districts underground, after five years.

(3) If contract for street lighting is not renewed by the City, the Company agrees to permit the use of their poles for street lighting if done by the Municipality.

(4) The Company agrees to an increased pole rental.

WERE TREED BY A BEAR

Two Hunters Surprised While Lunching by a Fire, And After a Number of Shots They Climbed Into a Tree.

HAD TAKEN EFFECT.

Lakefield, Dec. 11.—A story comes from Eagle Lake of the experience of two men who were in the bush hunting and were suddenly surprised by a big black beaf, many others of which are said to be roaming around the woods more numerous than for some years past. They had made a fire and were eating a "snatch," when they heard the crackling of trees and the movement among the smaller bushes. Almost immediately they caught sight of the bear and one of the men picking up his rifle fired at a distance of about sixty feet. The bullet struck him some where on the left front paw and only served to bring him toward the men. Several other shots were fired, all of which lodged in his body and one of them crashed through his jaw. Not wishing a hand-to-hand battle the men took to a spruce tree and swung up into the lower branches. But it was unnecessary to try to escape as the bear was totally wounded and convulsively kicking its last. A bullet just inside the left left shoulder had probably done the trick. An amusing fact was that the tree was only a sapling and could not have supported the two men had the bear used his weight against it. Bruin when weighed tipped the scales at nearly three hundred pounds.

CHRISTMAS FANCIES AT COLEMAN'S CONFECTIONERY

A Superb Display of Xmas Cake; Rich Confections and Other Dainties for the Festive Season.

Kris Kringle presents his holiday compliments to old and young and recommends them to buy their Christmas cakes, short cake, ornamental cakes, candy novelties and stocking fillers, at oColeman Bros.' Confectionery. Dainty things of every needed line in rich pastry,.. cakes and fancies are all ready to serve you in royal yuiltide style. Coleman Bros. are leading pastry cooks and are splendidly prepared to delight holiday shoppers with their own make of dainties for the Christmas table.

The monster ornamental Christmas cake on exhibition in the north window which has attracted so much attention, weighs nearly three hundred pounds. It is six stories high, artistically fescoed and ornamented with saccharine decorations in the highest skill of the confectioners' art. It is surmounted with the figure of Santa Claus and silver swans perched on each of the corners of the massive cake. Its ingredients are composed of the best mixing of Christmas cake with almonds and is covered with Fondant icing. It is proposed to cut this big cut up the week before Christmas and retail it at a special price

Colemans store is teeming with Christmas goods and delicious table luxuries. The lovely bon-bon boxes make an attractive display, and so do the pretty crackers, and cosagues for table decorations and Christmas trees. Imported chocolates and bonbons in fancy baskets, and other unique designs, make an attractive showing. Plum pudding done up to "the Queep's taste," is displayed in large quantities, besides an almost unlimited supply of fancy cakes of all sizes and shapes.

And what would clothing be without candies? What would the children say. Coleman's candy is a favourite stocking filler, and this season loads of fresh, delicious and toot hsomeconfections are laid out all ready for the crush.

SUING TO RECOVER HORSE THAT WAS SOLD AT AUCTION

THE RUSH IS NOW ON.

"The Xristmas rush in our business has commenced" said a representative of one of the local express companies to the Examiner to-day. "However most people refuse to sen dtheir gifts until the last minutes so that we are rushed far more than we should be at the last minute. Most people will bring around their parcels on Thursday before Christmas and expect them to be delivered the next day." It looks as if the people of Peterborough might do their express busy early as well as shop early early.

JUNCTION OF GRAIN ROUTE

Farmers in Vicinity of Springville Say They Have Good Reasons for Believing it Will be Near That Hamlet—Engineers Have Completed Work.

HAVE SECURED EASY GRADES

Springville, Dec. 11. — There is a feeling here that the Seaboard grain route from Victoria Harbour will meet the main line of the C. P. R. in the vicinity of this place. The engineers have recently gone over the ground during the past week, and from all reports it is believed that if the line is built the junction will be made here. One of the engineers is reported to have so expressed himself, and from the various statements the farmers are not at all pleased by the prospect as many good farms are threatened with being cut up. The line, according to the stakes that have been driven, and from the rumours from the engineers, will come through Cavan and cross into Monaghan, close to the Presbyterian Church here. If carried out according to these plans it will go right through Mr. Robert Grand's house in Cavan, through Mr. R. Dundas' barn yard and within three feet of the Presbyterian church in Springville. It crosses Mr. Thos. Hunter's property in Monaghan, and will meet the C. P. R. about three miles from Peterborough. It is not stated as a fact that these plans will be carried out but there are good reasons for believing that the rumours are more fact than fiction.

JUDGE HUYCKE

December Sessions of the High Court Open on Tuesday Next Before His Honour Judge Huycke—Only One Criminal Action.

FOUR CIVIL CASES

In the December sessions of the High Court, which open before his Honour Judge Huycke, on Tuesday next, at 1 o'clock, there are four civil cases to be heard, and so far only one criminal charge. It is understood that some of the civil actions will be settled before coming to court. The criminal charge is one of perjury preferred against a bartender of a local hotel, who was committed for trial on Monday last. He is alleged to have sworn falsely in connection with a recent liquor case.

O'Shea vs. Cottingham.

This is an action brought by Mrs. Margaret O'Shea against Samuel Cottingham, administrator of the estate of the late J. J. Cottingham, to recover one housand dollars, which the plaintiff claims she lent J. J. Cottingham, deceased, in December, 1908. The defendant claims that the one thousand dollars above mentioned, was simply the return of moneys which were at various times borrowed by the plaintiff from the late J. J. Cottingham. Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, solicitors, for the plaintiff; Bennet and Goodwill for the defendant.

Another case is that of Margaret R. McGregor, who is suing Charles and Nora McDonald for $300 damages for injuries to plaintiff's horse while pasturing on defendant's premises. Mr. E. Ruddy, K.C., for the plaintiff, and O'Connell and Gordon for the defendants.

To Recover a Horse.

This is an action brought about by James Kelly, a retired hotelkeeper of this city, against George O'Neill, John Haggart, and John Mervin, claiming the return of a horse, or its value, $275, and $300 for wrongful detention. The plaintiff alleges that in December, 1908, he placed with one Cavanagh, a livery stable keeper, a horse. Cavanagh afterwards sold his business to defendant Neill, who took possession, including charge of the horse. O'Neill claimed $60.25 for keeping the animal, and to satisfy the account sold it by public auction, defendant John Haggart acting as the auctioneer. The plaintiff further states that he offered defendants a sufficient sum for charges which was refused. The horse was sold to John Mervin for $160.00. the said money never having been paid over to plaintiff. The plaintiff also alleges that the horse was not sold for the best price.

In defence, Mr. O'Neill states that he had a lien on the horse, as a livery stable keeper, for charges for board and keep, the amount of which was not paid, and proceedings to enforce the lien by sale were necessary. Further, he states, there was a chattel mortgage against the horse. Defendant Mervin claims that he bought the horse through his agent, Wm. Gould, for $160.00, at public auction, it being a fair price and the highest bid. He claims the right to retain it. Bennet and Goodwill for the plaintiff; O'Connell & Gordon for the defendants, O'Neill and Haggart, and B. W. Hatton for John Mervin.

The last case is one in which Wm R. Ruse and Wm. T. Carruthers, are suing H. Mitchell for $1[illegible], the price of a horse, which the plaintiffs alleged was sold to the defendant. The defendant claims that he had the right to have the animal inspected by a competent person after the same was brought to Peterborough, and if not as represented, to return it. The defendant refused to take it after the inspection. He has a counter claim for the animal's keep and maintenance. The mare has since been sold and the proceeds paid into the court, to abide the decision of the court. Bennet and Goodwill for the plaintiffs, and R. F. McWilliams for the defendant.

TO-DAY'S PICTURES

The pictures which appear in the Examiner's illustrated edition to-day are from photographs taken by the Roy studio, and in the majority of cases their appearance in the Examiner will prove a surprise to the fond parents, who were not consulted in the matter at all. The feature proved popular last year and will no doubt be well received on this occasion. Following is a guide to the identity of the children shown:

Page 2.—"The Little Scotchman," is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cowie, 186 Antrim Street. "How Big are You" is Helen McKenzie Rose, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Rose, secretary of Richard Hall & Co. She is also shown in another pose on Page 11.

MUST PAY WAGES

Employer in Police Court For Neglecting to Pay Man all That Was Due Him

A local employer appeared before Magistrate Bumble at the police court this morning charged with neglecting to pay an employee wages due him. Mr. A. P. Poussette appeared on behalf of the defendants and Mr. E. L. Goodwiff was present in the interests of the complainant. The latter claimed that $14.55 was coming to him but after hearing the evidence, His Worship ordered that the informant be paid $12.05 within the next eight days.

CANADIAN CONTINGENTS.

It might be a matter of interest to many of the readers of the Examiner by way of refreshing their memories, to give the following information regarding the despatch of Canadian soldiers to South Africa, as given in the House of Commons, on Thursday, by Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia.

The several contingents were despatched on the following dates:

First contingent—
2nd (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, Oct. 30, '99.

Second Contingent—
Canadian Mounted Rifles, two battalions, Jan. 21, '00, Jan. 27, '00. Three batteries of Field Artillery, Feb. 21, '00.
The Strathcona Horse, March 16, '00.
Canadian Mounted Rifles, (2nd Regt.) Jan. 14, '01.
10th Canadian Field Hospital Co. Jan. 28, '01.
South African Constabulary, Mar. 28, '01.
Canadian Mounted Rifles, (3rd Regt.) May 8, '02.
Canadian Mounted Rifles (4th Regt.) May 17, '02.
Canadian Mounted Rifles (5th Regt.) May 23, '02.
Canadian Mounted Rifles (6th Regt.)

With regard to the first and second contingents, Canada equipped, transported to South Africa, and paid them up to the time of arrival in that country, the British Government paid and maintained them while in South Africa, and transpored them home.

With regard to the third, fourth, fifth and sixth contingents, the British government paid all expenses.

As regards the Strathcona Horse and the South African Constabulary, the expenses were borne in the case of the former, partly by Lord Strathcona and partly by the British Government, in the case of the latter by the government of Cape Colony.

The total amount paid by the Canadian Government was $1,972,955.20. The Government is not aware of the total amount expended by the British Government in this connection.

It will thus be seen that Canada's contribution in men was more important than the money contribution involved. This difference is emphasised when the splendid work done by the Canadian contingents in bringing matters to a crisis is taken into account. It is the spirit behind the work and the offering, as well as the way the work is done that counts. Canada's proposed contribution to the forces of Imperial defence was criticised as small and inadequate. But they may not be as small as imagined, when the naval proposals are brought down, as they will be when the matter of details is in a more advanced position. It will be found, no doubt that the Government is prepared to propose to Parliament a creditable contribution to the naval defence of the Empire.

A MODEL RAILWAY.

The Intercolonial Railway, which has so long been a national white elephant on wheels, is fast advancing to the status of a model railway. The Liberal Government improved it in a great many ways. It extended the railway to Montreal, and it brought it on one occasion, at least, to the point of earning something over expenses. The Government placed the railway under a board of management who were required to apply business principles to the management, irrespective of political considerations, which are claimed to have been in great demand—back to the road's prosperity since its construction. This the Board has done. A commission, appointed under the Lemieux Act to investigate complaints of employees, found, amongst other things, that contray to what had been charged, reduction of staff in the interests of economy had not been influenced by political considerations. Another step forward is the legislation now pending and certain to pass, giving the Government authority to lease other railways as feeders, and so place the national railway on a level with other trunk railway systems. What will appeal to many as the crowning feature of improvement in Intercolonia, prospects is a fact brought out yesterday in the House. Dr. Black, of Hunta, before the House, went into Supply, brought up the matter of the supply of drinking water for use on the trains of the railway. He said the water for drinking was obtained at Montreal, and that this water was so laden and super charged with diphtheria bacilli that passengers were stricken with the disease. The wate rwas described as so bad that, while boiling might make it harmless, as well as insipid, for drinking purposes, dishes washed in water not heated to the boiling point, left enough colon bacilli upon the dishes to poison the persons who ate food from them. Dr. Black said that while Montreal might as much of its poisonous water as it liked, that he objected to passengers on the Government railway being compelled to injure, or risk injury to, their health, and contraction of disease, by its use. The reply of Hon. Mr. Graham, Minister of Railways, was that the matter was a most important one especially as passengers on the Government railway had nothing but water to drink—they could get access to nothing to dilate the strong beverage Dr. Black had described. According to this the International dining coaches and other coaches are water waggons, and give to the railway an unique distinction in these days when the principle represented by the term water waggon has such an intense vogue.

A SPLENDID YEAR.

The annual statement of the Bank of Ottawa, which will be found in another column of the Examiner to-day, is one that reflects the greatest credit upon the management of the Bank, and at the same time brings much satisfaction to the shareholders and depositors. The report indicates an increase of over three millions in current loans and of two and one-half millions in quick assets, while the deposits have increased nearly five millions and the over-due debts have been greatly reduced. The rest account is now one hundred per cent. upon the capital, which means that the Bank of Ottawa is earning seven per cent. upon the real assessment, and this in what is generally regarded as a very slow banking year. Half a million of new stock is in the course of absorption and the Bank during the year has been extending its field of operations by establishing many new branches. The statement is in every way a most satisfactory one.

NO CAUSE FOR NAVAL SCARE.

When a few months ago the British people were sweating and shivering under the influence of the German naval nightmare, the Examiner took the view that the excitement was not warranted, that the grounds of anxiety were greatly exaggerated. This seems to have been a justifiable position. The groundlessness of the naval scare last spring is illustrated by figures furnished by the Navy League annual. This authority after asserting that between December 1909 and 1912, the British navy will be in a position of naval superiority more than sufficient to meet the requirements of the two-power standard test, that is, that Britain will have a position of superiority as against other nations unsurpassed in her history.

	Bri.	Ger.	France
Battleships 10,000 tons and over	58	28	24
Coastal vessels (old)	—	8	11
Armoured cruisers	39	10	23
Cruisers—Above 6,000 tons	21	—	3
Cruisers 6,000 to 3,000	45	26	13
Cruisers 3,000 to 1,000	25	17	10
Destroyers	140	85	72
Torpedo boats	121	42	266
Submarines	68	6	94
Totals	517	222	516

If Germany carries out the programme of construction commonly credited to her, she will have by 1912 thirteen war ships of the Dreadnought type. Great Britain at the same time will have at least twenty and some of these denominated super-Dreadnoughts will much surpass the prevailing British and also the German types. In relation to the elements superinducing scare, it is to be remembered that in case of war between Britain and Germany, the latter would have to reckon with France, the ally of Great Britain; and it is to be pointed out that if war, under these conditions, were to come tomorrow, Britain and France combined would have 82 battleships and 2 armoured cruisers as against Germany's 28 battleships and 10 cruisers; while she could bring into hostile action only 34 vessels of other classes against a total of 389 vessels of all other kinds which Britain and France combined would be able to swing into line. But to accomplish the retention of the two-power supremacy in the face of Germany's scheme of rapid construction, Great Britain has to subject her resources to a terrific strain. Here is where the help of the overseas will be welcome; and the navy of Canada, which we shall soon launch, and the naval contribution of New Zealand and Australia, will constitute no insignificant addition to the handicap under which Germany is weighted in the naval race.

A SATISFACTORY YEAR.

In another column of to-days' Examiner will be found the annual report of the Bank of Montreal and a careful inspection of the statement gives the impression that Canada's premier bank has made substantial and satisfactory progress during a year that from a banking standpoint has been considered rather unsatisfactory. Noteworthy features of the report are the fact that the total assets of the Bank of Montreal have reached the enormous figure of two hundred and twenty-one million dollars. The field covered by the Bank of Montreal is shown by the fact that it has in Canada no less than one hundred and fifty branches. Mr. R. W. Travers is the local manager of the Bank of Montreal.

THE IDEAL MINISTER.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The London Presbytery has passed a resolution recommending the removal from the Assembly blue books of the two columns containing the dates of Ministers' induction and ordination. This resulted from the proneness of church committees on the lookout for a minister to pass over those who were inducted many years ago.

This action on the part of the London Presbytery is of importance only in so far as it affects the invitation to ministers to observe the time-honoured Presbyterian usage of "preaching for a call." It is the man himself, not the insertion or omission of the year of his induction, which finally determines whether or not the call shall be extended to him.

Assuming that all ministers are possessed of the earnestness and zeal so necessary to their calling, who is the ideal minister?

Firstly, he is not the young, theological graduate, fresh from college. However promising he may appear, however brilliant may have been his academic record, he is necessarily lacking to a greater or less degree in the true pastoral spirit and the maturity of thought which are born only of years of experience.

Secondly, he is not the aged preacher. We do not for a moment mean aged in years—for scores upon scores of the world's ofremost divines have accomplished their greatest and noblest ends in the Autumn of life—but aged in ideas, ideals and modes of thought.

The conclusion is that the ideal preacher is he who combines within himself the essentials which the two preceding classes lack, mature experience on the one hand and freshness and scholarship on the other.

This is the man at whose door many unsought-for calls clamour incessantly. And he worries not a whit concerning the appearance or non-appearance of his induction year in the Assembly blue books.

A DISTINGUISHED VSITOR

Hon. Seaborn Wright will address the Citizens' public meeting at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday next, Dec. 14, at 8 o'clock. Doors open at 7.30.

Hon. Seaborn Wright is one of the ablest lawyers, most distinguished legislators and eloquent orators of Georgia and the South. He is a gentleman of independent wealth, a son of the old aristocracy and yet is most widely known as "The People's Champion" of his state, having the confidence of the masses of both white and coloured citizenry. He was the leader in the Georgia Legislature, who successfully handled the passage of the present State prohibition stature. It is expected that he will be the prohibition candidate for president of the United States in the campaign of 1912.

The meeting was arranged at first for St Paul's church, but in view of the great number anxious to hear him the opera house has been engaged.

BANQUET WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Charlotte St. Choir Gathered Around the Festive Board Last Night

The choir of the Charlotte St. Methodist church held a very enjoyable banquet in the Sunday school room last evening in which were present in addition to the members of the choir the music committee of the church was present. The affair was a most successful one and everyone present had an evening of unmitigated enjoyment. The tables were tastefully decorated in red and white and presented a very attarctive appearance.

After the appetizing repast provided had been done ample justice to a toast list interspersed with vocal numbers was given. This proved most enjoyable as the speeches were bright and interesting while the musical portion portion of the programme left nothing to be desired. Mr. Downie acted as chairman and the programme was as follows:

Toast "The King," proposed by Mr. Redyard, responded to by Mr. Collier.

Solo—"British to the Core," Mr. Downie.

Toast, "Our Country," proposed by Mr. Fleming, responded to by Mr. Cunningham.

Solo, Mr. Lee.

Toast, "Our Church," proposed by Mr. Kidd, responded to by Rev. Geo. W. Henderson.

Solo, "As long as the years roll on," M. Ecclestone.

Solo, "I know a lovely garden," Miss Jessie Lee.

Toast "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. Fred Skitch, responded to by Mr. Stan. Ecclestone.

Male Quartette Selection, Messrs. Fleming, Ecclestone, Skitch and Downie.

Toast, "The Gentlemen," proposed by Mrs. ollier, responded to by Miss Pringle.

Solo, "The Boys of the Old Brigade," Mr. Skitch.

Toast, "The Choir" proposed by Mr. H. P. Kennedy and W. G. Morrow, responded to by Miss Clarry.

Solo, "Bobolink," Miss Pringle.

Those who had the event in charge are to be congratulated upon the result of their efforts.

Do You Have

Headache

TAKE ONE OF THESE LITTLE TABLETS AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

"My first experience with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills was a sample package handed me. They relieved the pain so promptly that I have never been without them since. I have given them to many friends when they had headache and they never failed to relieve them. I have suffered with neuralgia in my head, and the first one I took relieved me. They have cured me of neuralgia. I would not be without them."

The election of officers was followed by a short but enjoyable programme, after which refreshments were served, the ladies providing cakes and the gentlemen coffee. A very enjoyable social hour was spent.

The above officers will be installed on January 24th by the Past Leader, Bro. Wm. Kempt.

MOTHERS SHOULD KNOW.

The troubles with multitudes of girls is want of proper nourishment and enough of it. Now-a-days they call this condition by the learned name of Anemia. But words change no facts. There are thousands of girls of this kind anywhere between childhood and young ladyhood. Disease finds most of its victims among them. They are too weak and frail to resist. Some of them are passing through the mysterious changes which lead up to maturity and need especial watchfulness and care. Alas, how many break down at this critical period; the story of such losses is the saddest in the history of home. The proper treatment might have saved most of these household treasures. If the mothers had only known of and given it to their daughters they would have grown to be strong and healthy women. It is palatable as honey and contains all the curative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. Search the world over and you will find nothing to equal it. Taken before meals it improves the nutritive value of ordinary foods by making them easier to assimilate, and has carried hope and good cheer into thousands of darkened homes. Dr. Charles Curtis says: "Your preparation is a sure cure for the most violent cold, if properly taken. In treating children, it has proved in many cases under our observation a sure preventive of the progress of pulmonary affections, and has in every case of incipient consumption acted as a stay of that dreadful disease." The more it is used the less will be the ravages of disease from infancy to old age. It is both a food and a medicine,—modern, scientific and effective from the first dose. "There is no doubt about it." Sold by chemists throughout the world.—Wampe Drug Co.

REV. MR. TURNBULL TO PREACH HERE

Former Resident of City Will Speak in the Bethany Tabernacle.

The Rev. Walter Turnbull, son of Mr. J. C. Turnbull, formerly of Peterborough, who has been for a number of years engaged in Mission work in India, has been spending a few days in the city, renewing old acquaintances, and will speak in Bethany Tabernacle to-morrow evening.

On Monday evening Mr. Turnbull will address a missionary meeting in the Tabernacle, telling of the recent revival and of the conditions and needs of India at the present time.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

By F. M. D.

Christmastide.

The season of Christmas, with all its joyful anticipations, its happy reunions, and general abandonment to all that is cheering, and comfort-breathing will shortly be upon us, and there will be few amongst us who have been blessed with an extra share of the good things of life, who will not be striving to show our good will towards those who are near and dear to us. Amongst these are of course to be numbered our friends, those who have stood by us through storm and stress, and with whom we have been wont to hold pleasant comunion through many years. This is as it should be, but there is a duty as well as pleasure incumbent on us at this season. A duty, indeed, that to all who have the welfare of their fellow beings at heart, should rank as a pleasure, and that is to remember those who, by misfortune, or perhaps, through their own fault, and themselves unprovided with the means for making Christmas happy for themselves, their wives and families. It is one of the saddest sights in life to see men and women and little children going unprovided with even the commonest necessaries of existence at any season of the year, but there seems to be an added poignancy when such state of affairs makes itself apparent at Christmas. Only those who have made it their business to visit the homes of the poor know what deep-seated misery poverty has produced in some homes. Peterborough is perhaps enviably placed in regard to the amount of destitution within its borders, but even in this city there are some few homes where the light of a kindly word or a friendly act seldom comes to relieve the gloom produced by lack of proper means of subsistence. There is no better way of spending Christmas happily than by doing what little we can towards cheering such homes. It is so easily done. Clothing that we have no further use for as being "out of fashion," boots, caps, donations of money or of food are little enough to give towards making our brothers and sisters in misery happy, and we can rest assured that even by doing one little act of kindness to some unfortunate we shall gain a greater zest for the celebration of the season in our own homes.

Think of the Poor.

Frosts have descended on lake and on river,
Snowstorms have whitened the forest and plain,
Keen winds are making us tremble and shiver—
Think of the sorrow, then think of the pain—
Think of the want and the hunger that linger,
Clamouring loud at pale Poverty's door,
Grisly Starvation's ironical finger
Points ever mockingly,—think of the poor.
Christmastide comes with its joy and its cheeriness,
Friendliness, welcome, and pleasure to you,
Yet many hearts there are fainting for weariness,
Where woes are plentiful, pleasures are few;
List to the weeping of children, the wailings
Of womanhood, maidenhood, meagrely clad,
Oh, can we wonder that they have their failings?
Are we so pure, say, or are they so bad?
Rouse we then, rouse ye, for many wants linger,
Clamouring loud at pale Poverty's door—
Grisly Starvation's ironical finger
Points ever mockingly,—think of the poor.

William Watson.

Many, doubtless, have been interested in the statement made by William Watson, in regard to his poem entitled "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue."

For some occult reason eminent poets and actors and actresses seem to be regarded by society at large as entitled to greater consideration than is meted out to any persons in any other sphere of endeavour. Their peccadilloes are laughed at, and their greater sins quietly glossed over.

Those of us who are old enough to remember the advent of William Watson in the ranks of our modern poets will remember the sad incident that resulted from his finding himself suddenly elevated to a high pedestal in the Temple of Fame. People said at the time that this was due to his overweening vanity. That passion seems now to have found a fitting yoke-mate in a footed contempt for the ordinary amenities of social life. Anything more dastardly than his attack on a lady, who, from his own showing, seems to have treated him with distinguished courtesy, cannot well be conceived.

As a poet, William Watson may be a great man, even if his quatrain on Campbell-Bannerman doesn't show it, but he has shown us, unmistakably, that the two titles "poet" and "gentleman" are not necessarily synonymous terms.

"This was an honest man, who spoke the truth.
The hated truth, whether men heard or no;
He stood for Honour, Justice, Courage, Truth;
He is gone—and they, too, go."

The above lines are the ones alluded to in the foregoing paragraphs. The veriest tyro in the art of composition could point to two glaring solecisms in this mighty effort. It speaks volumes for Miss Asquith's kindliness of spirit that she was willing to have them indited in an album containing autograph writings of Gladstone, Meredith and other famous persons.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

Health is a duty.
Health is an adornment.

I don't believe any one, if he stops to think, will deny either of those facts. And yet, how many people are really ashamed when they fail in that duty or lack that adornment?

"I give myself but five hours' sleep a night," I heard a man say the other day.

If he breaks down he will doubtless be very resentful and unhappy, but I doubt if he will be what he really ought to be—ashamed.

"Oh, yes, I have some glasses, and the doctor says I ought to wear them all the time, but I don't like the looks of them and I seldom wear them except at home," declared a girl I knew, apparently rather glorying in that childish vanity.

If her eyes give out, since she depends upon them for her livelihood, she will undoubtedly be heartbroken, but I doubt if she will remember to be ashamed.

In the earlier part of the nineteenth century it was considered highly attractive for a woman to be rather delicate, and almost vulgar for her to be thoroughly robust and healthy.

I have heard people say how glad they are that we have gotten rid of that idea, but I don't think we have altogether.

Look at the girls in your acquaintance who are considered pretty girls. Look at the pictures of pretty girls in the magazines and newspapers.

Health is by no means always an element of their beauty. But I think it should be.

I think we should as soon thing of calling a girl beautiful who is not healthy as a house or a temple architecturally beautiful when it is not built on a good foundation.

I realize that we cannot all make ourselves entirely healthy, but we can all do a good deal towards it, and we can learn to be proud of possessing health and ashamed rather than sorry when we do not possess it.

When people are ashamed to be sick—
When none will think of calling a girl pretty unless she is healthy—
When we shall hide the fact that some one of the family has been ill with almost as much shame as we would if he went to jail—
When ill health shall be regarded as far more of a disgrace than poverty—
Then the perfectly healthy man or woman will be the rule rather than the exception.

THE MAN IN THE ORCHESTRA

By Cello.

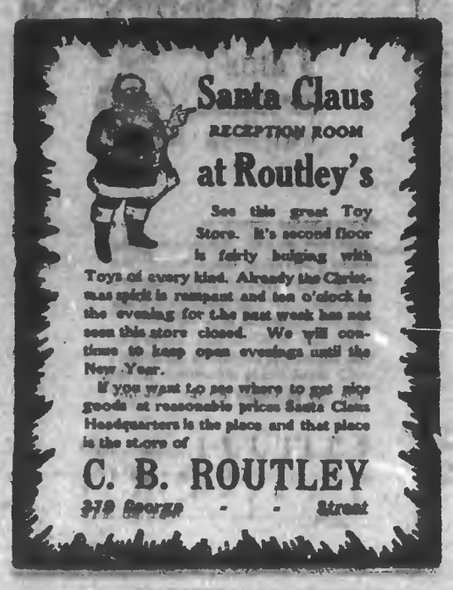
The average theatregoer does not appreciate the difficulties the man in the Grand orchestra has to handle when the score of a musical comedy is presented to him by the director of the company. After the warning flash he looks to the men on either side and as a sort of command, says "All Ready" and with a nod of the head breaks into the overture. Shortly after the curtain ascends and the game is on. The chorus finishes its opening ensemble, the plot, if such it may be called, begins to unravel and before the strains of the first chorus have dissolved in the lofty drop gallery the cue of the first solo is given. The young prince in disguise enamoured of the old violin maker's daughter, sighs as she scorns his avowals of deep and undying devotion, leaving him alone on the stage as he says "My love's to-night in old Granada." Follows the brief introduction to this big hit of the sentimental tinge. An encore is demanded and the baritone is assisted by a male sextette and with a fine setting another encore is demanded And so it goes. The music is all new to the orchestra. True, they have had a glance over it before the audience began to arrive, but it was only to secure the director's instructions as to how certain parts should be played. In many cases it is his manuscript and would be unintelligible to any but experienced men. Only those who have this music in front of them can realize how the sheets are scrawled with notes and it is a wonder that the musician can read them at first sight. When this is considered, along with the fact that the reader must pick up the notes just as the chorus or soloist sings them, it can be easily seen that the musician's task is no easy one.

The result is that while the audience is enjoying the production the orchestra is bravely struggling through the hieroglyphics hastily penned by some erratic musical director. The ability of the musicians of the house will be appreciated the more when these facts are taken into consideration and when it is known that the men handle the music without a mistake.

It will be a source of pleasure to the patrons of the Grand Opera House to know that the managers and casts of the different attractions that come to Peterborough invariably mention the beauty and cleanliness of the local theatre. It is looked upon as one of the neatest and best kept houses in the province. The decorations have received marked commendation from the visiting companies and the dressing rooms and the general manner in which the stage is maintained. It is needless to say that this is an encouragement to Messrs. Turner and Sons.

For those who follows the theatrical news and particularly the rivalry between the Shubert and syndicate interests their representative weekly papers furnish interesting reading. The Morning Telegraph is considered the mouthpiece of the Klaw and Erlanger, who are known as the syndicate or trust and the New York Review supports Shuberts. The war, as it may be called, is not confined to any one city, but like the seven years campaign, is being carried on wherever these managements have houses in the same city. In Canada the keenest rivalry is probably in Montreal, where, according to unbiassed opinions the Shuberts are getting a little the best of the argument.

An American paper recently announced the movement to give the standard operas to smaller cities. A company under New York management will tour the leading cities in Canada and it is quite possible that Peterborough will be on the itinerary.



WORKS OF ART IN CARD FORM

Raphael Tuck & Company's Christmas Cards Attract a Lot of Attention.

There is nothing that comes so near to solving the problem of what to give for Christmas in many cases as do attractive Christmas cards. There are very many cases in which a Christmas card exactly fits the situation as an indication to your friends that you have not forgotten them in the festive season. Just now of course the book stores in Peterborough are filled with many varieties of Christmas Cards and chief among them is to be found the work of the well known firm of Raphael Tuck and Company, whose cards are looked forward to every year with interest. Their work is most artistic and original and they contrive to produce every year an endless assortment of cards in all styles and prices, some of the most beautiful cards that they have ever turned out and the very many people who have admired their production in the past know just how much strength there is in that statement. They were truly works of art and as there is a great variety of these cards every purchaser should be able to find something to their liking amid the Tuck and Company offerings. The sale of which this year promises to surpass all the records of the past.

RECEIVED $245

Total Receipts From Salvation Army Re-opening—Net Receipts About $230.

There will be special services at the Salvation Army Temple. Lt. Col. Turner from Territorial Headquarters, Toronto and Major Creightoll will come down from Toronto this evening and will hold a special service at eight o'clock and will also conduct the services to-morrow. It is expected that large crowds will attend the meetings. The receipts from the re-opening services have been practically all totalled and show the amount of $245. One hundred and forty-five dollars were received from the collections last Saturday night and on Sunday. The banquet and concert on Monday night cted another hundred dollars. The officers of the local corps desire to convey their gratitude to all those who assisted in making the opening and dedication services the success they were.

LAUGHING, LAZY FAT FOLKS MADE SLIM WITHOUT DRUGS

During the cold weather fat people stay at home and do not care much about removing fat. They eat heartily and dress warmly. This time of year is the one above all others in which flesh should be removed. The winter has a peculiar action on the blood. We all know how our skin contains pimples and boils break out in the spring owing to the stagnation and sluggishness of the winter blood supply. In the fat this condition is appalling. If you will go to your nearest druggist and buy a case of Marmola tablets you will stop making fat at once, and you may eat when and you will and the fat will leave you at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day and more than that you will not be left with large, flabby rolls of skin and deep wrinkles.

These tablets are made after the famous Marmola Prescriptions and were so made to supply a great demand for a handy fat reducer that every one could carry in a purse or vest pocket so that after any meal they could be taken and evil consequences from such a meal thus avoided. If you can not secure Marmola tablets from your druggist or should you so prefer send 75 cents, the price of a large case, to The Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., and they will send Marmola Tablets to you in a plain sealed package postage prepaid.

PHOTOS WERE HUNG

Mr. N. A. Howard Moore's Entries at Winnipeg Camera Club's Exhibit.

Mr. N. A. Howard Moore has just returned to him five photographs, all of which were hung in the Winnipeg Camera Club's recent exhibition. A large number of entries were received and it speaks well for Mr. Moore's work that his efforts should have been so honoured. His subjects were (1) A Sprinter, (2) The Lone Fisherman, (3) The Old Beach Tree, Jackson's Park, (4) Meade's Creek, (5) Interior of the Church at St. Anne de Beaupre, Que. No awards were given to any of the entries and at the exhibitions this year there will be no prizes offered. During the last week in April a Camera exhibition will be held in Peterborough concerning which details will be announced later.

ELECTED THEIR OFFICERS

At a largely attended meeting of Warsaw L.O.L., No. 457 held Monday evening at their hall, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. M.—W. A. Parker.
D. M.—W. J. Kirk.
R. S.—R. Campbell.
F. S.—W. Lockington.
Chaplain—J. Briggs.

BANK OF OTTAWA.

THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING

The Thirty-fifth Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Bank of Ottawa was held on Wednesday, the 8th day of December, 1909, the President, Mr. David Maclaren, in the chair.

Report of the Directors

The Directors beg to submit to the Shareholders the Thirty-fifth Annual Report, showing the statement of Profit and Loss for the year, and the Balance Sheet to 30th ultimo:

Balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account on 30th November, 1908, was	$ 465,901.23
Net Profits for the year ended 30th November, 1909, after deducting expenses of management, and making necessary provision for interest due to depositors, unearned interest on current loans paid for all bad and doubtful debts, and contingencies	421,955.48
	$887,856.71

Appropriated as follows:—

Dividend No. 70, 2½ per cent., paid 1st March, 1909	$75,000.00
Dividend No. 71, 2½ per cent., paid 1st June, 1909	75,000.00
Dividend No. 72, 2½ per cent., paid 1st September, 1909	75,000.00
Dividend No. 73, 2½ per cent., paid 1st December, 1909	75,000.00
Applied in reduction of Bank Premises and Furniture	47,351.77
Transferred to Officers' Pension Fund	19,000.00
	$371,128.98
Balance carried forward at credit of Profit and Loss Account	$516,719.43

Branches of the Bank have been opened since the last Annual Meeting, at Cochrane, Ont.; Fort William, Ont.; Edmonton, Alta.; Swift Current, Sask.; Vancouver, B.C.; Queen Street (Chaudiere), Ottawa, and Carter Street, Ottawa, and sub-offices at Casselman, Ont., and Mountain, Ont., while it has been deemed advisable to close the sub-offices at Jasper, Ont., and at the south end of Peterborough City, Ont.

The unsettled financial conditions alluded to last year were followed by a very large falling off in the volume of business and employment elsewhere of money, with a corresponding lowering of rates. During the last three or four months conditions have changed materially and there is every hope now of an increased business being done during the coming year.

A building for the use of the Bank is nearly completed at Cochrane, and premises have also been acquired at Vancouver; Spring; Cartier Street, Ottawa; Pembroke, and Broadview Avenue and Pape Avenue in Toronto, necessitating a very considerable outlay and a corresponding increase in the Bank Premises Account.

Acting under the authority given at the Annual Meeting in 1907, the Directors issued on 1st October last 5,000 shares of new stock at a premium of 10 per cent.

The usual inspections of the Head Office and Branches have been made during the year.

The Directors have pleasure in testifying to the satisfactory manner in which the duties of the staff have been performed.

DAVID MACLAREN,
President.

The scrutineers reported the election of the following Directors: Henry N. Bate, Hon. George Bryson, Henry K. Egan, John B. Fraser, George Hay, David Maclaren, Denzil Murphy, George H. Perley, M.P., and Edgar C. Whitney.

At a Meeting of the Directors held subsequently, Mr. David Maclaren was re-elected President, and the Hon. George Bryson Vice-President for the ensuing year.

UNCLE WALT—THE POET PHILOSOPHER

THE KIND WORD

The kindly world's as cheap as dirt, so give a kindly word to-day, and it may heal some grievous hurt, and cheer some pilgrim on his way. There is no profit in a frown; it never eased a load of care; its memory may travel down some other's heart and anchor there. The kindly word you pass along, the pleasant smile that you bestow, may fill some darkened life with song, and make some weary bosom glow. You may forget that word and smile, but some one treasures them, be sure; you'll hear about them in a while, for through the ages they'll endure. It may be in a million years when you, from whom the kind words flow, are roaming o'er the shining spheres, and sowing stardust as you go; some other Shape will hail you there, and cry across the fleecy floor: "You saved me from the Black Despair, when we were on that lower shore! Your kindness brought me to these heights, where I have sought you far and wide; through all my days, and all my nights, I prayed for you until I died!"

MR. H. P. KENNEDY, PROMINENT LIVE STOCK DEALER IN TORONTO

Reference in Special Number of Toronto World to Local Man Who is a Conspicuous Figure on Queen City Markets—Is a Heavy Dealer.

GROWTH OF HIS BUSINESS

It would be out of place to mention anything in relation to Toronto live stock market and not instance H. P. Kennedy, who has offices at Peterborough, and is one of the most prominent features in the dealings at the live stock exchanges at this centre. Mr. Kennedy, though still one of the youngest men in the business, has been engaged in this industry for upwards of twenty years and has made a remarkable record by his assiduity and careful attention to business during that period.

Mr. Kennedy is one of the familiar characters on the two local live stock markets and is recognized as one of the most astute traders in this department. For the past 15 years he has identified himself more closely with the hog industry than with anything else, and by his close attention to statistics and the fact that he has kept his hand on the pulse of the market, he is accounted one of the ablest forecasters of the market price in the business.

His success is primarily attributable mostly to the care and study which he has given to the question of supply and demand. Not content with taking the Canadian figures, he keeps a record of foreign operations in the hog industry and by his astute diagnosis has constituted himself one of the recognized authorities in the matter of hog values.

During periods of plentiful supply of hogs Mr. Kennedy was a shipper of from three to four thousand and during those of scarcity these shipments were reduced to about 2,000 hogs per week. Mr. Kennedy has acquired and retains the absolute confidence of those for whom he deals and if there is one thing more than another which he should be proud of, it is the acknowledgment given by his clients that he is a man who will carry out his contracts regardless of any fluctuations which might occur in the makret.

During the last two years Mr. Kennedy has had an office at the western cattle market, and has ranked since that time as one of the heaviest individual dealers on that exchange. His total shipments during that period of all classes of live stock average from twenty-five to forty cars weekly.

Mr. Kennedy is accorded the merit of having drawn the large hog trade to the Union Stock Yards previous to the present ownership, and he is still operating on this as well as the western yards.

In addition to carrying on a large buying and selling hog business at the Toronto markets, Mr. Kennedy conducts a commission trade at Peterborough in the wholesale meat business and has representatives through all the districts in Ontario between Peterborough and Toronto. While not catering as a regular commission house, this firm have numerous clients who ship stock to them for disposal and this is a growing branch of the industry conducted by the firm.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy's office is at room 17, western cattle market. He has also a branch at the Union yards, and is assisted by an able and competent staff, of which Messrs. Arthur Quinn and Fred O'Boyle are prominent members, both of these having been drovers and acquainted with the districts north and east of Toronto, the assurance is given to clients that they may safely confide shipments to the care of this firm. Miss Peters, the bookkeeper for Mr. Kennedy at the Toronto office, is considered to be one of the ablest and most careful accountants in the Toronto market, and formerly was employed and gained her experience with the firm of Mabee & Wilson.

ORANGEMEN OF THE DISTRICT HAVE BEEN BUSY THIS WEEK

Most of the Local and District Lodges Have Elected Their Officers for the Ensuing Year.

ALL ARE FLOURISHING

The lodges of the Loyal Orange Association for the city and district, have been busy the last ten days, electing officers and receiving reports from their several officers. These reports show a general increase in membership all along the line. Some of the lodges in this vicinity are now able, through having a handsome surplus on hand, to pay off the mortgages on their halls. Co. Sanderson L. O. L. No. 321, have liquidated the mortgage, and hopes to have a celebration shortly to burn their mortgage. The interest shown in the order has wonderfully increased, if the well-attended meetings are any evidence, and these, so the reports say, have been much better in the past year.

In the City District a Social Club and a Fife and Drum Band have been organized, and bids fair to be an unqualified success.

One pleasing feature of the annual meeting of L. O. L. No. 50, was the presentation of a large group photo of the charter members of the Lodge by Lt.-Col. Miller, on behalf of one of the Lodge members. It was the work of Mr. N. A. Howard Moore. In nearly all the lodges refreshments were served. At 50's meeting, the boys served up oysters in first class style.

THIS ATHLETE OF FIFTY-TWO YEARS

Says He Owes His Wonderful Energy to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Was Tortured With Rheumatism and a Cripple Till the Great Kidney Remedy Cured Him.

Six Nations, Ont., Dec. 10.—(Special.—Fifty-two years of age but still young enough to captain the lacrosse team, John Silversmith of this place can truly be looked on as a wonderful athlete. One would naturally think he was all his life a healthy man. But it was far otherwise, and he unhesitatingly states that his wonderful energy and vitality are due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I suffered from Rheumatism for over seven years," Mr. Silversmith says in telling his story, "and it finally made a complete cripple of me. My back was bent nearly double, and when I tried to walk I had to use crutches. Latterly I could not get around at all and I suffered excruciating pain.

"Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me relief; sixteen boxes cured me completely."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cur Rheumatism because Rheumatism is caused by disordered Kidneys and Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure disordered Kidneys.

Ireland's Great Apostle Of Temperance, Rev. Fr. Matthew

Interesting Address on His Life and Works by Rev. Father Meagher of the Cathedral Staff at Meeting of Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S. Last Evening.

GOOD MUSICAL PROGRAMME

"Two suns," we are told, "do not shine in the one firmament," yet the same period of Irish history beheld side by side with Daniel O'Connell, at the zenith of his fame, his great country-man and contemporary, Father Matthew, the Apostle of Temperance.

In widely different characters, however, these two men won eminence and praise. The one commanded the allegiance of a party in the state; the other received the homage of all. There is scarcely a country in the civilized world where the memory of Father Matthew is not revered. Wherever good men are labouring for the good of humanity, the story of his career is an incentive to brave endeavour, and how far his work has perished with or survived him is a question which excites solicitude.

In Father Matthew's time, as now, there was but one stain on the fair name of Ireland. We were a grand old people, noble chivalrous, open-hearted, pure as the snow, faithful to principle, loving our mother-land as only an Irish heart can love, clinging to Calvary and the Cross. But alas! there was one blot upon this beautiful picture the great artist of nations has painted. There was one weak point—we had one fault—we were a drunken people. We were a by-word among the nations; Irishmen and drunkards were synonomous terms. Father Matthew saw this, and his great heart was grieved for the Irish priest ever loves his country only a little less than his God. He determined to do everything to wipe off the foul stain, to redeem his country from this reproach. How well he succeeded this little sketch will show. I feel that I owe you no apology for taking for my subject the life and work of Father Matthew for I am addressing an Irish audience, I presume, and Father Matthew was an Irishman. I, myself, have a special reason to be proud of Father Matthew, for he was a Tipperary man, having been born in Thomastown Castle, about five miles west of the "Cashel of the Kings," on the tenth of October, 1790. Father Matthew had eight brothers and three sisters, and of all these he was his mother's favourite child. But if he was tied to his mother's apron strings, he only used his influence with her to coax for materials of which to prepare feasts for his brothers and sisters. It was his delight to see them devour these delicacies. He liked these very much, but it gave him greater pleasure to see the others enjoying them. I mention all this to let you know what kind of a child Father Matthew was, it is an old saying that "The child is father to the man," and never was this truer than in the case of Father Matthew. This kindness and generosity shown in the little household of Bathcloven, his later home, reveals to a great exetent the secret of Father Matthew's extraordinary influence in after life, which he owed more to his kindly nature than to intellectual superiority. A desire to afford pleasure to others was the great characteristic of his childhood as it was the passion of his manhood.

One day the mother, looking at her nine boys, as they sat at dinner, said, "I have nine boys and not one of them is to be a priest." The boys looked at George, for he was the oldest, but George only looked at his plate. The little Theobald jumped up, went across to his mother, and putting his arm around her neck, said to her: "Don't be uneasy, mother, I'll be a priest." And so the call came to Father Matthew. The Lady Elizabeth, daughter of the Earl of Llordaff, had learned to love the little Theobald when a child at Thomastown Castle, and this affection only grew with the advancing years. When he was 12 years old, she resolved to send him, at her own expense, to a school in Kilkenny. We are told he was not a particularly brilliant student, but he kept plodding away and succeeded, after four or five years, in passing into Maynooth College, but he didn't stay long there. There is a rule in most ecclesiastical colleges that one student must not enter another student's room. But the old habit was too much for Father Matthew, and so one day he invited four or five others to his room, to share with him a little feast. But, alas, for their enjoyment of the good things; the authorities heard of it with the result that poor Theobald had to leave College. One might be disposed to think that this severance of his connection with Maynooth was specially intended by Providence, for had he been ordained as a secular priest in Maynooth the world at large would, in all human probability, have never heard of the name of Father Matthew. When at school in Killkenny he was much impressed by the edifying lives of the Capuchin Fathers who had lived there and because they were the lowliest and least influential of the Religious Orders in Ireland at the time, he sought admission, was accepted, and on Easter Sunday, 1841, was ordained by Dr. Murray, Archbishop of Dublin.

Father Matthew's first appointment was to Kilkenny. The earnestness of his preaching and his zeal in the confessional made the little Friary famous, but Father Matthew did not remain here long. Shortly after his appointment he was changed to Cork. Cork became his adopted home. There he laboured for twenty-five years? He did what an Irish priest ever does, he lived for his people. Father Matthew had his work cut out for him from the start. The life of a priest in those days was anything but a bed of roses, but Father Matthew was no "drawing-room" soldier of the Cross. Five o'clock in the morning saw him in the confessional and there he often remained till 8 or 9. After breakfast he was back again, and some days spent as many as fifteen hours at this trying work.

Now, I shall pass on to the great work of his life, the great temperance movement, inaugurated in Cork in the Spring of 1838.

The first meeting of Father Matthew's Temperance Society was held in Father Matthew's own schoolroom. Father Matthew was in the chair. Honest Billy Martin, the Quaker, was there, and a few more enthusiasts, but despite the magic of Father Matthew's cause, the attendance was small. I will just quote one passage from the inaugural address of Father Matthew: "If only one poor soul could be released from destruction by what we are now attempting, it would be giving glory to God, and well worth all the trouble we could take. He then approached the table on which the books lay ready to receive the names of the pledged, saying in a loud voice, "Here goes in the name of God." From that moment Father Matthew became public property. In the love and reverence of the people for the character of the man was laid the foundation of his success in the Temperance cause. No other man could have done the work, he did it because he was the right man to do it. The growth of the movement was little short of miraculous. In three months the number on the roll was 25,000. In five months it was 131,000, and before the Christmas of the same year it was 156,000. The tidings of the great moral reformation worked in Cork quickly spread through the agency of the newspapers throughout Ireland and Great Britain. Father Matthew's speeches were copied in all the papers, and soon he was deluged with invitations to come and do for other places what he was doing so well for Cork. But they did not wait for Father Matthew to come to them, they came to Father Matthew. The roads leading to Cork were black with pilgrims; all eyes turned to Cove street, and the little Friary to see Father Matthew; to take the pledge from him; to be touched by him and blessed by him. This was sufficient return for the longest and most painful journey. At all hours of the day and night—even to 10 or 11 o'clock at night—batches of 10, 20 or even 30 might be seen waiting to be enrolled. Some would be sober and penitent, others with a decided odour stronger than tea.

Limerick was the first field of his missionary labours. He came in the first week of December, 1839. Father Matthew preached there four days, and when he left Limerick he had added 150,000 disciples to the temperance fold. From Limerick he went to Waterford. Here the same scenes of enthusiasm took place, and 80,000 took the pledge. His temperance society had now grown to enormous dimensions and with the growth of the society the expenditure also increased. To meet this expenditure Father Matthew decided to issue cards and medals to the members which were sold at a profit. It was afterwards said that Father Matthew must have made well by these cards and medals, but not one in twenty whose names were on the register ever bought them and so far from making a profit by them, we shall see that Father Matthew went daily deeper and deeper into debt, in order to keep the good work going on. And this continued financial strain continued even until his death.

One would naturally imagine that the saloon-keeper of Ireland would hate Father Matthew, as the devil hates holy-water, and yet we find that they were among his warmest friends. Many of them came forward and took the pledge, and their general feeling towards Father Matthew was well-voiced by George Roe, the Dublin distiller: "No man has done me more injury than you, Father Matthew, but I forget all in the great good you have done my country." Everywhere thousands were added to the great army of the pledged. At one of these meetings a new recruit said to him, "Ah! Father, if you only knew what I am, 'tian't after blessing me you'd be!" And what are you then? Father, I am an Orangeman. God bless you, my dear, I don't care if you're a Lemonman," good humouredly replied Father, Matthew.

There was another great Irishman alive at this time, a man who needs no introduction to an Irish audience—Daniel O'Connell. On Easter Monday, 1842, Father Matthew held a great Temperance demonstration in Cork. Ten thousand people marched in the procession. Father Matthew rode in the Lord Mayor's carriage, and on his right sat the Liberator. At the corner of Lancaster Quay, O'Connell dismounted and, before the assembled multitude, knelt down to receive Father Matthew's blessing. Having, as he said, hoisted the Temperance banner in almost every parish in Ireland, he determined like the Apostles of old, to extend his mission across the seas. Day by day the expenditure was increasing and day by day Father Matthew went deeper and deeper into debt. Money was necessary to keep the work going and money he had none. And to add to his anxiety his enemies began to circulate the calumny that he was enriching himself and his family by the sale of Temperance medals. So many millions had taken the pledge, they said, and that meant a nice sum of money for Father Matthew. And all that time Father Matthew was plunging deeper and deeper into debt, not one in a hundred ever gave him anything for their medals. At last things became so bad that he was arrested in Dublin whilst administering the pledge. Then popular enthusiasm reached its highest pitch. From all parts of Ireland and Great Britain, from peer and peasant, from Protestant and Catholic, from Orangeman and Nationalist, subscriptions poured in upon him. Father Matthew's embarrassments were thus set at rest for a time, but from this we may date the decline of his wonderful crusade. Unwilling to run the risk of renewed debt, he determined to curtail the expenses of the temperance bands, halls and other means of attracting the people to sobriety, and before long the terrible famine of '46 laid Ireland waste, and doing his best to save the starving people, Father Matthew had little time or energy to promote the temperance propaganda. The blight of the famine was upon Ireland, and upon his work, and Father Matthew never was the same again. In 1849, though suffering from a stroke of paralysis, he set out on a visit to America, and in spite of his shattered health he toiled in America, as he had toiled at home, and with a like result. He administered the pledge to a half million of people, the Senate gave him a place within, the President entertained him at a banquet, where he met the foremost men of the country. And then he turned his face to Ireland—to die. He awaited the coming like a man who has done his life work and who pined for the rest. And it came to him on the 8th of December, 1856, in the 66th year of his age, and the 42nd of his ministry, and 50,000 people marched in his funeral procession through the streets of Cork.

"Father Matthew" is but a name—but it is a name to conjure with in Ireland. They have built him a monument in Patrick street, in Cork, and in O'Connell street, in Dublin, but dearer far to him than marble and bronze is the knowledge that the cause for which he lived and laboured and died, is steadily making towards the goal for which he worked—a sober Ireland.

IRELAND'S GREAT APOSTLE

And now, one last word. Was Father Matthew's great work after all, a failure. It would seem at first sight as if it were so for the people in Ireland to-day are trying to do the work he devoted his life to. If Father Matthew's great work in Ireland made Ireland sober, how is it we have a Temperance question at all to-day? B Temperance question at all to-day? Father Matthew did not fail, and his performance of his work consists chiefly in this that he educated the public mind on the question. Before his time drunkenness was something to boast of and be proud of. Father Matthew changed all that. He put the drunkard in his proper place, and that is with the toad, the reptile and the swine. He proved to the people that drink was not necessary for them, that in fact it was nothing but an insidious poison and the cause of nearly all the misery and crime of the country. There are hundreds of old men in Ireland who took the pledge from Father Matthew and hold it still. There are cities and towns in which the flag has never been hauled down, and where its adherents are as numerous as ever. To the movement of Father Matthew is owing, moreover, that public opinion in favour of temperance effort, that parliamentary vote in favour of temperance legislation which Ireland has so notably and so steadily exhibited. The pure-souled and great-hearted Father Matthew has not lived and laboured in vain.

The above is a synopsis of one of the most entertaining and instructive lectures ever enjoyed by an appreciative audience at the Ladies' Literary of St. Peter's T. A. B., held last evening. Rev. Father Meagher of the Cathedral staff, was the speaker of the evening, and being but lately of the same land, as the hero of temperance, was able to speak with almost the accuracy of an actual spectator of the various scenes and phases depicted.

Apart from the lecture the evening's programme was as follows:

Instrumental duet — The Misses Doris.

Vocal solo—"Believe Me"—Mr. H. Quinlan.

Quartette—Misses G. Sullivan, C. Delaire, K. Derocher, M. Hurley, G. Rudkins, E. McCabe.

Vocal solo—"A Rose of Old Devery" Mr. J. Mercier.

Recitation—Miss Derocher.

Tableau—Harp of Tara.

The next paper will be read on January 7th. The subject will be "Opportunity." The essayist will be Miss [illegible] Tangney.

A NEW CROUP IS DREADED

If there is any warning say Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and prevent the terrible struggle of the little one for breath. If you know nothing of it till the struggle comes, cause the child to vomit and then use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine frequently in small doses to prevent repeated attacks. This great medicine is wonderfully effective in curing croup and bronchitis.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. PAUL'S W. F. M. S. HELD

Addresses Were Given by Miss Herdman, of India, and the President, Miss Dickson.

SATISFACTORY REPORTS

A large gathering of women attended the 33rd Annual Meeting of St. Paul's Foreign Missionary Society yesterday afternoon.

After the opening exercises Miss Dickan, the President, gave a splendid address, taking as her theme, "The Royal Commission," and basing her remarks on the verse "As Thou hast sent me into the world even so have I have also sent them into the world."

Miss Herdman of India also addressed the meeting on the village work around Mhow, where she and Miss Weir have been labouring. Miss Herdman's address was most interesting, and gave the women a very vivid description of their work from day to day as carried on in the market places, or on the way from village to village. Miss Herdman wore the native costume and hay many souveniers from India and also sang some of their hymns.

The Fraser Mission Band submitted an encouraging report for the year, showing an average attendance of fourteen and a balance in the Bank of $106.87.

The Faithful Workers Mission Band also reported a successful year, with an average attendance of nineteen, and a balance in the Bank of $96.26.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

In presenting the 33rd Annual Report of our Society, we are grateful to our heavenly Father for His Guidance and blessing throughout the year.

Meetings have been held regularly every month with the exception of August, the average attendance being 57.

The January meeting, as usual was especially devoted to prayer. This year the study of the Nearer and Farther East was found most interesting, two ladies having charge of the meeting each month. A general willingness to prepare papers or take part in the programmes is becoming more evident every year.

At our May meeting Mrs. Roger gave a most interesting and helpful report of the Annual meeting in Ottawa and at our June meeting Mrs. Shook fully reported the Presbyterial meeting at Port Hope.

Our society sent a bale of Clothing valued at $75.29 to the Abbot di Birtle, which contained an outfit for a girl of seven supplied for the Boarding School as well as quilts and garments for the old and feeble on the reserve. The Thank Offering meeting in October was largely attended and our Thank Offering of $468.58 again exceeds former years.

We are pleased to note that more of the envelopes were used for this meeting and this no doubt accounts for the increase in our collection.

We regret the removal from Peterborough of some of our members and we are sorry that more of the new members are not coming forward to take their places.

We have again to record the death of two of our members Mrs. Alexander Dawson who passed to her eternal home on September 1st, and on October 25th, Mrs. John Haslitt fell asleep. Although not often present at our meetings both these ladies manifested their interest by being member of our Auxiliary. One of the last things Mrs. Haslitt did was to make a comforter for the bale of clothing sent to the Indians.

We would like to urge the members, who are not subscribers for Foreign Missionary Tidings, to subscribe for it, as it is filled with most interesting news, and a great stimilus to the work of the Society.

"The Interior," as usual was sent by our Society to the Missionaries in India, where it is much appreciated.

Withthankfulness for many blessings received during the past year, let us press on being assured, that He who has blessed us will bless us still if we are faithful in His work.

M. H. MacLean, Secretary.

GAVE A CLASS NIGHT

Y. M. C. A. Ladies Basketball Matches and Drills Last Night at Y. M. C. A.

The intermediate and senior gymnasium classes of the Y.M.C.A. gave a class night at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last evening, about one hundred and fifty being in attendance. Two basketball matches were played. The Maples defeated the Beavers by a score of 26-8 and the Reds won from the Whites by 12-5. The teams were composed of the following young ladies:

Maples — Misses Kathleen Moore, (capt.) C. Legrandre, I. Nesbitt, D. Hill, M. Harstone, and M. Hewson.

Beavers—Misses A. Eastwood (capt.) L. Simpson, G. Patterson, Gladys Fife, H. Kendry and G. Kirn.

Whites—Misses G. Duncan (capt), M. Stevenson, H. Metherell, E. Lastar, M. Kennedy, G. Hooper, M. Gladman G. Yelland and N. Jerrad.

Reds—Misses A. Lundy (capt.), S. Webb, H. McDonald, L. Scott, G. Rountree, B. Gladman, V. Armstrong and L. Noble.

Miss Coventry acted as referee.

A number of fancy drills were given by the intermediate and senior classes, including a march and hoop drill by the intermediates and a wand drill and club swinging by the seniors. The seniors taking part were: Misses Alice and May Nesbitt, Hudson, Bower, D. Wood, Elliott, Moss, Kelly, M. and M. Curtis, F. Reid and M. Florance.

Regulates Kidneys And Ends Backache

Makes Your Out-of-Order Kidneys Act Fine and Bladder Misery Vanish.

No man or woman here whose kidneys are out of order, or who suffers from backache or bladder misery, can afford to leave Pape's Diuretic unfed.

After taking several doses, all pains in the back, aches or joints, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, dizziness, tired or worn-out feeling, and other symptoms of clogged, sluggish kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, discoloured water and all bladder misery ends.

The moment you suspect the slightest kidney or bladder disorder, or feel rheumatism pains, don't continue to be miserable or worried, but get a fifty cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic from your druggist and start taking as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which is so harmless or will effect so thorough and prompt a cure.

This unusual preparation goes direct to the cause of trouble, distributing its cleansing, healing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected and completes the cure before you realize it.

A few days' treatment of Pape's Diuretic makes clean, healthy, active kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and you feel fine.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store—anywhere in the world.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

BOTH RUNNERS ARE IN THE BEST OF SHAPE FOR THE RACE

Sherring and Longboat are Here for Their Contest To-night at Brock Street Rink and Both Expect to Win.

WILL BE BIG CROWD

Tom Longboat arrived in the city last night accompanied by his manager, Sol. Mints, ready for his ten mile race in the Brock Street rink to-night against Billy Sherring, the famous little Hamilton Marathoner. Sherring got in this morning looking fit and well and both men express themselves as being in the best of condition and keen for the race. Longboat certainly looks as if he has been taking care of himself and if appearances go for anything, should give a satisfactory account of himself to-night. Asked about the race the Indian and his manager would say nothing more than that Sherring was a hard proposition and that he had rounded into the best of shape. Tom has a wholesome respect for the same Sherring and knows that he has a race on his hands when he has to hold him for ten miles to-night. When they met before at five miles Sherring was not in the best of condition but conditions are differen tnow and he will be in form to stand ten fast miles without turning a hair. The race starts at 9.30 o'clock sharp. The band will be in attendance and those who come early will be able to enjoy the the last roller skating of the season as the rink will be flooded for ice skating on Monday. In fact there would have been ice there now had it not been for to-night's race.

runner, to run him a series of two match races at 12 and 15 miles in the Province last evening, John D. Marsh, the holder of the Canadian Marathon record, rose up in indignation and assailed the sporting editor's sanctum

"Just tell Shrubb for me that I will run him any time or place," said Marsh, "and if Shrubb cares to make the distance 20 miles I will raise the wager to $1,000 a side. Shrubb probably forgets that he has an uncompleted contract with me. We signed up to run two races at 12 and 15 miles. As everybody knows, Shrubb quit in the first race at 12 miles, and the second event at 15 miles did not take place. Now that his bad leg has come around again, it is up to him to come here and finish the contract. However, he seems to fancy that 12-mile route. That is his best distance, while I am better at fifteen miles. Now, if Shrubb will agree to the two races at 12 and 15 miles and will guarantee to finish in both events, I will post the $500 to race him. He must agree, however, to let the money for the two races stand, and if he does not finish in either he will forfeit his share to charity. That is my ultimatum."

WILL RUN LONGBOAT.

Shrubb said last night in the Star office that he would not run any more 20-mile races "for fun."

"I owe Tom Longboat a 20-mile race, and will give it to him," he said. "Tom comes out of his distance to meet me, and I'm going to give him another 20-mile race, but I won't run anyone else for gate receipts only. I don't mind running a 20-mile race or so, but there must be a big side-bet in it, because of the chance I am taking on my bad leg."

Fred Meadows is persistently pursuing Shrubb for a 10 or 12-mile race in Toronto. He'll get it, too, if terms and conditions can be satisfactorily arranged.—Toronto Star.

THE OTTAWA HOCKEY CLUB TO SPEND $15,000 THIS SEASON

Biggest Expenditure in the History of the Stanley Cup Holders Caused by the Raid Made by Renfrew.

SALARIES ON THE JUMP

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—The Ottawa Hockey Club, it develops, has, in holding the Stanley Cup players together, for another season, prepared for an outlay in salaries of nearly $15,000.

Ten years ago, when hockey was supposed to be strictly amateur, the Ottawa Club felt proud if it paid about $1,000 per year to all the players. The men, five years since, were satisfied to get two hundred each for the season. Then when Ottawa won the Stanley Cup from the Montreal Club in 1903, and brought it to Ottawa, the men received $300 per season.

Gradually the figures kept creeping up, and two years ago the players, Alf. Smith, "Rat" Westwick, Percy Lesueur, and Harry Smith, included, were signed for $500 each.

Now, the average puck-chaser won't think of signing for that amount. Salaries are on the jump everywhere, and unless the patronage is larger than ever, at least a few of the Eastern Canada Clubs will be in the hole at the close of the season.

The Ottawas are sure of getting sufficient money to defray all their expenses, as interest in the game here is intense, and the sale of season tickets, which opens Monday, will probably see all the available reserved seats bought up. In addition, the Ottawa Club will get seventy, instead of fifty per cent. from the Arena this season, big returns thus being assured.

An idea of how determined is the Ottawa Club to hold the Cup may be gleaned from the fact that Bruce Stuart was set up in the boot and shoe business on Bank street. Stuart is to receive about $1,500 for the season, and will captain the team. Marty Walsh is to get $1,500, and Taylor the same. Kerr and Lake are each down for $1,200, and Bruce Ridpath has closed for the league games for $1,000. Ken Mallen and Hambly Shore, who are to act as utility men, will each receive $800.

Splendid Array Of Gifts At Peterboro' Hardware Co. Store

Christmas Shopping Made Easy by an Abundance of Appropriate Articles to Select From at Easy Prices — A Few Suggestions From Their Show Cases.

TO CLEAR ENTIRE STOCK

Christmas shopping is really an easy matter if some definite system is followed by the purchaser. It is the aim of all the merchants of the present day to simplify gift hunting as much as possible and the desired result has been obtained most satisfactorily by the Peterborough Hardware Co., who have an array of appropriate goods that are not only guaranteed to please those for whom they are intended, but they are also in reach of every person's means. Their stock is complete even in detail and the articles which have particular gift value will please the most fastidious.

For the boy who is always remembered by his parents and the older members of the family, a splendid line of hockey skates will be found on the shelves. In this regard there is no present that will please the boy better than a Stevens rifle. It is a gift he will always appreciate and which he can use at all seasons of the year. For the "young man" a Gillette safety razor will meet his approval and the new pocket edition will be one of the most popular gifts of the present Christmas season. If he is of the hunting turn of mind or in any case a Thermos bottle will be a most acceptable remembrance and one which he will treasure when his outing days come around. All sizes of these bottles are found in the Peterborough Hardware Company's stock.

Household Gifts.

If there is one particular class of christmas gifts on which this store commends itself, it is for those intended for the household. Gifts to mother are found in abundance and there are so many beautiful things to please her that it is almost a problem to select the best. The Peterborough Hardware Co. are sole agents for Roger Bros' famous "1847" Silverware. This line is too numerous to mention suffice to call attention to a few special gifts that are guaranteed to please. Chafing dishes, brass kettles with spirit lamps, dainty cocoa sets, tea services, casseroles, fern dishes, silver forks, spoons, etc., are among the dainty articles on display.

Coffee Percolator.

The Universal coffee percolator in practically all sizes is a new invention and a useful one. Instead of the present method of boiling the coffee, the interior of this new coffee pot is so arranged that the coffee is held in the top of the vessel and as the water in the bottom begins to boil it is forced up through a tube and percolates through the coffee down into the pot again. This process excels all others because the percolating is practically completed and all the wholesome, aromatic and invigorating essence of the coffee is extracted before the water boils. The value of the percolator will be appreciated every morning in the year because of the fine flavour, the result of the percolating process. A Bissell carpet sweeper is considered appropriate as a gift. There is a beautiful line of mahogany cabinets of silver, ranging in price from $15 to $50, which will make a splendid present. One of these cabinets will be appropriate for the average home and will meet the approval of the most fastidious. These are a few of the many articles which will be found as useful as they are ornate. The staff of the Peterborough Hardware Co. will be only too pleased to assist in the selecting of Christmas gifts.

THE PROFESSIONAL RUNNING GAME

SELLEN AND HOLMER.

Percy Sellen will run Hans Holmer 15 miles at St. John, N.B., Monday night, and Shrubb will run the winner. The St. John people yesterday forwarded Sellen $100 expense money, and Percy has gone eastward. What shape Sellen is in is problematical. When he ran Meadows and Simpson he was away below form, and if he has been training since, it has been on the quiet. When he is right, Sellen can beat Holmer. He led him at 12 miles in the Hamilton Herald road race in 1908, and was only 30 yards back at 15 miles. If Sellen is not right on edge Holmer will get him, for the boy from down by the sea is in grand fettle just now and good enough to bet on even against Peerless Alfred. — Toronto Star.

At the Roy Studio.

"It's difficult, these rush days, to follow that good old rule which, I dare say, you have heard: 'Expose for the shadows and develop for the high lights,'" said Mr. R. M. Roy, during a hurried visit to the Roy Studio this week.

"Suppose so; anybody can make a negative of a sort, but to get the results you are aiming at means time, patience, judgment."

But before we could finish, another sitter was announced, and the confab was cut short.

Every minute of the day and every worker in Roy's studio are doing stunts these days that have never been known before. The demand for Roy's photographs this season seems to be greatly on the increase, and many more people are solving the gift problem in this laudable way. Only two weeks from to-day, and there are hundreds of the newest and daintiest of negatives, finishes, and mountings to be done before the Roy Studio can catch up.

RUPTURE

Some Good News for the Ruptured of Our Country.

I wish to add something more to-day to the news I have recently published to the coming to Peterborough of Mr. A. Claverie, the distinguished French specialist, whose methods and apparatus have been adopted all over the world, and specially in Canada with the greatest enthusiasm by patients and doctors.

It is not my intention to enter into very long explanations, because such are better given in person to those who are interested and because Mr. A. Claverie will be entirely at the disposal of the ruptured who shall go and see him, he will give them free and willingly all advice and information they shall require.

I shall only say that results are way beyond expectations.

Under the pressure of the apparatus carefully calculated for every case, the rupture is pressed back in its normal place and does not protrude out any more.

The apparatus is warranted to maintain any rupture whatever its size. Moreover, it never displaces itself owing to its suppleness which is extremely delicate and which makes it easy to wear night or day even by the most sensitive persons.

So, it is not surprising to hear that the method and the apparatus of Mr. A.Claverie have been adopted so far by nearly 1,000,000, (one million) sufferers all over the world, and that the most flattering testimonials of gratitude are sent in numbers to he eminent specialist.

No doubt that the unfortunate sufferes from rupture from all our district will go in haste to try these apparatus, which have brought health and life to so many afflicted.

DR. NAMY.

Mr. Andrew Claverie will be in Peterborough on Wednesday, the 15th and on Thursday the 16th of December.

He will receive at the Oriental Hotel from 9 a.m., to 3 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

All advice given free. Absolute secrecy. Special attention for ladies.

AN UP TO DATE SANTA CLAUS

By SUSAN BROWN ROBBINS.

PAUL FLETCHER was in the drawing room waiting for Lida to come. Lida lived with her brother, and every time Fletcher called to see her either the brother's wife or his children were in the room, so there was never a chance to say anything to her alone.

At last, however, his opportunity had come. It was the day before Christmas, and Mrs. Safford and the children had gone to her mother's for several days.

Now, with Lida left at home with the two servants and her brother not coming till evening, Fletcher could say to her those things he had been longing to say, but which he could not bring himself to write in a letter nor to declare before the assembled family.

At length, after what seemed a very long waiting, some one was coming. He stood up and looked eagerly toward the doorway. The portiere was thrust aside, and in walked Teddy—Teddy, who, in Fletcher's opinion, was the worst pill in the whole box as far as staying power and keen observation were concerned.

"Hello, Teddy," he said, not very cordially. "I thought you had gone to spend Christmas with your grandma."

"I didn't go," said Teddy.

"Do you expect a visit from Santa Claus tonight?"

"Oh, I s'pose so," wearily. "I'd just like to see him, though!" His manner grew more animated.

"Why, what would you do?"

"I'd tell him what I think of him."

"And what is that?"

"Oh, that I think he's a fraud! Pretending he comes in a sleigh when the ground has been bare for a month! And reindeers too! Who does he think is going to believe that? Why doesn't he come on a bicycle?"

"His fur overcoat would be rather in the way," said Fletcher gravely. "And he's pretty old, too, and maybe does not know how to ride, and, besides, how would he bring the presents?"

SANTA CLAUS STOOD BEFORE HIM.

"What's the use of presents, anyway? I never have anything that's any good."

"I think you have the blues today," said Fletcher, and then he did not speak again, though Teddy tried to draw him out.

He seemed to be in a brown study, and nothing roused him till Lida came in, and even then he did not say much and stayed only a short time.

It was in the evening that a card was brought to Teddy. On it was written "Santa Claus." Teddy's eyes sparkled. "Tell him to come in," he said grandly.

A moment later Santa Claus stood before him, a tall, fur clad figure with flowing hair and beard. Teddy shook hands and introduced the guest to his aunt.

"Did you find it good sleighing?" Teddy asked. "And how are the reindeers?"

"I did not come on runners, young man," said Santa Claus. "Perhaps you did not know that there is no snow on the ground."

"Bicycle?" asked Teddy.

"No; I came in a motor carriage."

"A motor carriage!" cried Teddy incredulously. Then he ran to the window and looked out. "It is, Aunt Lida," he said excitedly, coming back. "You can see it just as plain out under the electric light."

"I did not bring you any presents," said Santa Claus, "as I heard you did not care for them, but I would like to take you for a little ride, if your aunt will go too. I came early," glancing at the clock, "so that I can get back and attend to the boys and girls who like to have presents."

"Of course we will go," said Teddy promptly. "I have never been in a motor carriage."

In a few moments the three were on their way, well protected from the cold, bracing air by an abundance of furs and wraps. There was no moon, but after the lighted streets of the town were past the stars shone down on them brightly.

Teddy was wild with delight, and his tongue ran on rapidly. At length there were occasional pauses, then longer ones interrupted by disjointed remarks. Finally there was total silence. Fletcher bent over so that he could see the child's face; then he looked at Lida and smiled.

They went on for a little in silence. Fletcher was trying to compose his speech.

"I don't know how to say it," he burst out desperately at length. "I keep forgetting how I look, and if I say it the way I want to it will be perfectly ridiculous. And yet I must say it, for I may never have another chance."

She was looking at him, her startled eyes dark and luminous in the starlight.

"Perhaps you do not need to say it," she said gently.

"Do you mean that you understand without my telling you?" he asked eagerly.

"Yes," she answered very low.

When they reached the house Fletcher took Teddy in his arms and carried him in. He laid him gently on the couch in the hall and turned away, thinking the child still slept.

"I can stop only a moment," Fletcher said. "Is it late?"

At that instant Teddy sat bolt upright, staring about him wildly. He caught sight of his father in an adjoining room.

"Oh, papa!" he cried, his voice ringing out clear and shrill. "Oh, papa, Santa Claus is kissing Aunt Lida!"—Boston Herald.

THAT CHRISTMAS PIE.

Confession of the Sinner Who Doctored the Mincemeat.

It had been our family custom to put brandy in all the mince pies and to put in at Christmas time a sufficient amount to enable the partakers thereof to detect that there was really something in it. It often went so far as to deserve the remark of my grandfather that we put mince pie in our brandy. With this as the family precedent, imagine the consternation when it was learned that Rev. Jeremiah Scroggins, our new minister and an avowed teetotaler, had accepted mother's invitation to Christmas dinner. A vote was taken at the family table (we were a democratic household), and it was decided that out of respect to our guest the brandy would be omitted from the big mince pie.

Now, each of us in his heart of hearts felt that the pie would be improved if just a wee bit of brandy were added. So I, for one, resolved to do the deed. Accordingly I sought out the big stone crock in which reposed the mincemeat and poured in what I thought was a moderate quantity of brandy.

It's wonderful how true is the adage about great minds running in similar channels, for every other member of the family, including my father, surreptitiously did the same thing. Later we figured that the mincemeat must have been treated to nigh unto a quart. Mother reserved her brandy until Christmas day, when, before the pie was baked, she added a generous amount of the strong stuff.

With hearts as high as the flaky pie crust itself we all watched mother carve that pie and serve it.

The Rev. Jeremiah Scroggins, because of an expressed fondness for pie, was given a big portion.

No sooner had we tasted of the fine dish than we discovered that that pie was nothing short of a small sized distillery. It was brandied as no other pie had been since the birth of time. You can imagine the cold chills which went round that festal board as we watched the Rev. Jeremiah begin to eat. I believe I actually shivered as the first forkful went mouthward.

The first mouthful was followed by a second and the second by a third. Finally he had finished the whole portion, and he settled back in his chair. We saw he was a bit embarrassed and expected a real old fashioned temperance lecture right then and there.

The Rev. Jeremiah Scroggins cleared his throat, and, turning to mother, said: "Ah—er—my good sister, permit me to compliment you upon the excellence of this pie. It has a most delicious flavor. I confess I never tasted anything like it. Would you think me overbold if I asked for another piece?"—New York Mail and Express.

THE IRON REINDEER

I'M up to date, and, be it said,
I certainly this year
Shall break and burn the ancient sled
And cook the ancient deer.
Those things are out of date for me;
They're now a shattered dream.
Oh, I'm as happy as can be
About my brand new scheme.

FULL soon across the boundless plain,
Beneath the Christmas stars,
I'm going to travel on my train
Made up of baggage cars,
And they'll be simply stuffed with toys
And other precious things
For little girls and little boys
For whom I spread my wings.

OH, yes, in jigtime, down the track
I'll gayly glide along,
From home across the land and back
To fill all hearts with song.
And to my agent at each town
I'll toss a bundle great
Each artless child with joy to crown
And make its heart elate.

I'LL run along on schedule time,
Through wind swept drifts of snow.
My bell shall be the Christmas chime
That sets all hearts aglow.
And I shall call, and not in vain,
While stockingward I head
My mile a minute flying train,
"The Christmas Limited."

THE train's made up. Already I
Am getting up the steam,
While piling in the cars sky high
The gifts of which you dream.
With joy I stand upon my head
And shout both far and near,
"Goodby unto the ancient sled—
All hail the iron deer!"
—R. K. Munkittrick in Success.

Appetizing bird's nest truffles and banana fricassee.

"Let me see," she murmured softly; "father 'll get his string of beads,
Blue and yellow. I am certain they're the very kind he needs.
For his old ones looked quite shocking, though he never seemed to care,
And his new set's quite the swellest thing a gentleman can wear.

"And for mamma there's the nose ring that I bought on Thursday week,
With the handsome whalebone stickpin for insertion in the cheek.
And little brother's boomerang! He'll be immensely pleased,
That or a bamboo jumping jack are the things for which he's teased.

"And as for me, I only hope they've got the things I need—
Just one or two nice costumes made of genuine coral bead,
A toe ring would be lovely, and a piece of copper wire
To wear around the instep make up all that I desire.

"Except, of course, some other things that every girl receives,
Such as various kinds of dresses made of nicely ripened leaves.
For surely," said the maiden as she smiled a scornful smile,
"I'm not like those American girls who always think of style."

PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, ECZEMA, SALT RHEUM

These disfiguring skin diseases are caused by impure blood, which becomes disordered through Imperfect Digestion, Torpid Liver, or Inactive Kidneys. The pores of the skin close up, poisonous accumulations which should be eliminated are retained, and weaken and putrify the blood. Ferrozone has a specific action on blood impurities and drives them quickly from the system. It stimulates the Kidneys and Liver to healthy action, neutralizes Uric acid, keeps the pores of the skin open, and destroys germs. Ferrozone is a specific for every form of skin disease, and is used with astonishing success the world over. It acts directly on the blood, freeing it of the foul matter that breaks out in such painful and distressing blemishes. There are no unpleasant after-effects from Ferrozone, which does not depress the heart, and is free from Mercury, Potash, and harmful drugs. By using Ferrozone you have the BEST treatment for Skin Diseases and Blood Disorders. No doctor can prescribe anything better, probably nothing so good. Price 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold everywhere by druggists.

"For five years my face was disfigured by raw, bleeding eruptions, that resisted all treatment. Three Kingston doctors did their best for me, but failed. I used Ferrozone and was perfectly cured."

FERROZONE CURES

Christmas in the Colonies.

'Twas the merry Christmas season, and the palms swung in the breeze
Of the lovely hot December in an island over seas,
And a meditative maiden of the kind called Philippine
Sat and gazed, with pensive visage, on the sultry winter scene.

Well she knew that on the morrow all her folks would celebrate,
Place a palm tree in the parlor, hang their anklets o'er the grate,
On the heaped up Christmas table, groaning with its load, there'd be

OUR CHRISTMAS ON THE PLAINS

I NEVER shall forget our Christmas dinner in a construction camp in the year 1900, said a former Coloradoan. We were building a reservoir out on the plains about ten miles east of Pueblo. We had 150 men on the job, all white men.

We had a poor cook on the job and couldn't seem to find any other. As a result there had been men leaving every day and constant grumbling all the fall, and it came to a head Christmas day.

It was a beautiful, bright Colorado Christmas. The men were to work in the morning, have a turkey dinner at noon and lay off in the afternoon. The old man had bought three pounds of turkey per man—450 pounds. The birds had come out the day before.

About ten minutes after noon I heard a kind of an angry roar outside. I never heard anything like it before, and it made me jump. It meant trouble of some kind. I hurried out and saw a surging mob at the door of the cook tent. The men were all shaking their fists in the air and yelling with one steady, hoarse, prolonged yell. I went around behind the tent and slipped in. There stood the cook raging, fighting drunk, brandishing a meat ax and emitting a steady stream of profanity. In front of him surged the mob, just out of reach of the meat ax, crazy mad. I didn't blame them. They had come off work with their mouths all made up for turkey, and not a table was set, not a spark of fire in the stove and 450 pounds of turkey scattered over the section of alkali plain which formed the floor.

The battle was short. The men ran in behind the cook, tripped him and the minute he was down had a rope around him.

"Hang him, hang him!" they roared and started off with him to the meat pole.

In all my life I never was so scared as I was that day. I didn't care in the least whether the man was hanged, drowned or died in his bed. Yet civilization rose up in me, and I knew I had to save him. I ran like a deer to get around the crowd and reach the meat pole first, and all the while I ran I was cursing the cook. When they got to the meat pole they found me on a box facing them with a gun.

BRANDISHING A MEAT AX.

"What do you want?" they roared.

"Get quiet," said I.

Those in front called out, "Shut up!" When they were still I said: "Boys, I'm sorry this thing has happened. It's my fault for not watching this fool closer. But we can wash those turkeys and have a good dinner yet if some of you'll turn in and help me. They aren't hurt any. As for this scum of a cook, I don't care any more about him than you do. But I'm in charge here and I can't let him be hanged. You can go ahead and hang him if you want to, but you'll have to kill me first. Now go ahead."

I waited, but no one stirred. There were plenty of guns in the crowd, but no one was ready to undertake the job of killing me. I gave them only a minute to think. Then I said to the man that held the rope, "Untie him." He did it. "Get out of here," I said to the cook. The fellow got up, white as death with fear.

Then I turned to the men and asked if there were any who had ever done any cooking, who would help me. Half a dozen volunteered. We washed the turkeys and put them on to boil. I never worked over anything in my life as I did that Christmas dinner. The men were still silent and sullen, and I didn't know but they'd hang me if the dinner didn't suit them. I tried desperately to remember all the cooking I'd ever seen my mother do, and thanked God when I found that one of the men could make pies and another soda biscuit. About 5 o'clock we had the best dinner the camp could turn out, boiled turkey, boiled potatoes, canned squash, canned corn, canned peaches, dried apple pie, hot biscuit and coffee.—New York Press.

A TRUE STORY OF CHRISTMAS AT SEA.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The gathering of "old salts," officially known as the Harbor club, was in session at Captain Truman's store, down by the dock. Outside the wind bowled and shrieked through the rigging of the fleet of coasting vessels warped alongside the Main street wharf, and unconsciously the men hitched their chairs closer to the fire as a fiercer blast rattled the windows. During a temporary lull in the storm Cap'n Si Tuttle broke the silence with the following narrative:

"'Twas jest sech a Christmas eve as this, along back in the eighties, when I was roundin' old Hatteras in the good ship Tirzah Ann. You recollect her, don't you? Hailed from Greenport and could smash through any gale that ever blowed.

"In course 'twas some wet on deck, and the further we pounded along the rougher it got, and finally we had to turn and run afore the wind. Never saw sech a gale to hang on! We plowed through seas you could only guess the height of. And dark! You couldn't see your hand afore your face.

"There was five of us aboard, and we was pretty well tuckered out next mornin', but daylight showed no letup, and, to make things worse, a heavy snow set in. Seemed as if it turned to ice to wunst soon as it hit the deck, and afore you could say 'Jack Robinson' the riggin' was froze solid, and a dozen men with axes couldn't have cast loose the dory.

"Along about six bells the fust mate took the wheel, and I went below to get a bracer, when there come a heavy crash, and both masts went by the board. I went up the companionway in two jumps, but afore I reached the deck the water was pourin' into the fo'castle in tons, and the ship begun to heave and wallow like a stuck pig.

"There warn't any use tryin' to launch the dory, even if we had had time, and in two shakes of a dog's tail the Tirzah Ann rose high on the top of a huge comber, quivered like a dyin' lion and then plunged head first beneath the waves with all on board."

Captain Si stopped and leisurely bit off a chunk of cut plug, when some one asked, "How did you escape?"

"We didn't," drawled the captain. "Every blamed one of us was drowned." W. F. H.

A Polish Custom.

Peasant lads in the villages of Poland have a pretty Christmas custom which affords great delight not only to themselves, but to the other villagers. This is called the procession of the star. At Christmas time the boys make a large hollow star, two or three feet between points, lighted from the interior. This is carried aloft at the end of a pole or staff. It symbolizes the star of Bethlehem. The three wise men of the East—Caspar, Melchior and Balthazar—are impersonated by boys. Others in the party bear a little puppet show cabinet, in which are performed the drama of the Nativity and other Scripture incidents appropriate to the occasion. From house to house around the village this procession trudges in the snow at night singing carols, and the villagers present the boys with small coins as Christmas gifts.

HANDS COVERED WITH ECZEMA

"For three weeks I actually had to be fed like one feeds a baby, because my hands and arms were so covered with eczema that they had to be bound up all the time."

So says Miss V. McCarthy, 75 Gore Street, Sault Ste. Marie, and adds: "From finger tips to elbows the disease spread, my finger nails came off and my flesh was one raw mass. The itching and the pain were almost excruciating. I had three months of this torture and as one time amputation was discussed.

"Zam-Buk alone saved my hands and arms. I persevered with it, and to-day I am cured completely of every trace of the dreaded eczema. I fervently hope sufferers may learn of the miracle Zam-Buk has worked in my case."

Zam-Buk is without equal for eczema, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, piles, cracked hands, cold sores, chapped places, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

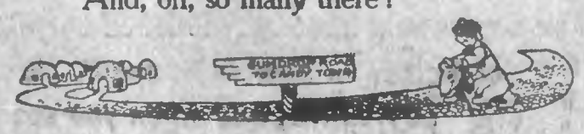
THE RIDE TO CANDY TOWN

BY ROBERT DONNELL

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

When Charley rode to Candy Town
Astride a Teddy bear,
He looked in wonder up and down
With many a hungry stare,
For all the streets were named for sweets,
And, oh, so many there!



They entered town by Gumdrop road,
Where all the candy shops
Were stuffed as full as any toad
With most delicious drops.
As Charley glanced he almost danced,
While Teddy licked his chops.

They turned a corner, when,
in view,
Before their very eyes,
Came Chocolate Bonbon avenue,
Which filled them with surprise,
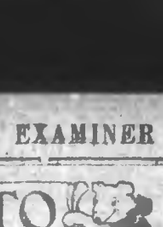
For every shop was a chocolate drop
Of most amazing size.



But on they went with even jog,
Since shops are not to eat,
And soon they passed, with eyes agog,
Through Peanut Brittle street,
And every brick was a peanut stick
And doubtless very sweet!

But Teddy trotted right ahead
Through Candy Kisses way,
Though Charley pulled his ears and said:
"Hold on a minute—stay!

Lemme get down an' eat this town.
I'll finish up today!"

That Teddy bear plugged straight along
Until he chanced to see,
Surrounded by a merry throng,
A great big Christmas tree.
"Now I can climb and have a time,"
Says Ted. "Hooray for me!"

As Teddy started climbing up
His passenger slid down
And struck the bedroom floor kerplup,
And in his nightie gown!
Now, wasn't that a sorry bat
To get in Candy Town?

But, after all, the town was there.
When Charley oped his eyes,
High up the tree was Teddy bear,
Of real riding size,
And candy sweets from all the streets—
A Christmas paradise!

CHRISTMAS AND THE WHITE GOOSE

By ELLA M. PLATT.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

THE little boy and the little girl sat at the breakfast table eating oatmeal and milk.

Their papa said to their mamma: "A Christmas goose is the best thing there is. This year we must have a Christmas goose."

The little girl looked up at the little boy and smiled, and the little boy smiled back.

After breakfast the little girl and the little boy put on their caps and coats and mittens and started off for the barnyard.

PUTTING THE WREATH ON THE GOOSE.

They met a big, old, fat duck.

"Are you the Christmas goose?" asked the little girl.

The big, old, fat duck shook her head.

They met a big, old, fat hen.

"Are you the Christmas goose?" asked the little boy.

But the big, old, fat hen shook her head.

They met a big, old, fat guinea hen.

"Are you the Christmas goose?" asked the little girl.

The big, old, fat guinea hen shook her head.

They met a big, old, fat white goose.

"Are you the Christmas goose?" asked the little girl.

And the big, old, fat white goose nodded her head and fluffed her feathers and stepped proudly with her flat, yellow, webbed feet.

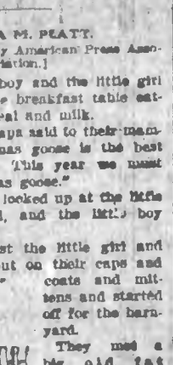
"Oh, goody!" shouted the little boy. "We've found our Christmas goose already."

"Oh, oh, oh! I know something," said the little girl, and she ran to the house just as fast as she could go. And when she came back she had a lovely little holly wreath tied with beautiful long red and green ribbons.

They put the wreath over the head of the Christmas goose, and each held one of the ribbons. The Christmas goose waddled along proudly.

The guinea hens piped, the ducks quacked and the hens cackled when they saw this fine sight.

The little boy and the little girl led and drove the ground Christmas goose called the barnyard to the green grass where all the little Christmas trees grow.



"HAVE A RIDDEN, CHRISTMAS GOOSE."

"We must have a Christmas tree for our Christmas goose," said the little girl.

"Yes, yes, Christmas goose," said the little boy, "you wait right here for us. Don't you muss your holly wreath, and don't you muss your ribbons."

The proud Christmas goose waddled gently to show how careful she would be. The little boy and the little girl ran away fast to get the things for the Christmas tree.

The little girl brought back some ears of red and yellow corn and a bunch of wheat and barley heads and a pocketful of oats.

The little boy brought back two cabbages and a yellow pumpkin and some grain. The Christmas goose became so excited when she saw these things that she waddled too fast.

"Wait a minute, Christmas goose," cried the little boy, and he placed his things on the ground near the tree.

"It isn't quite time, Christmas goose," cried the little girl, and she fastened her things on the tree.

"Now, Christmas goose," said the little girl, "we will go and invite all your friends to come and see our beautiful tree."

"COME, SEE OUR CHRISTMAS TREE!"

So the little girl picked up her ribbon, and the little boy picked up his ribbon, and they led and drove the Christmas goose back to the barnyard. But it was hard work, for the Christmas goose wanted to turn her head all the time to look at the Christmas tree. At the barnyard all the chickens and all the ducks and all the guinea hens stood still to admire the fine Christmas goose in her holly wreath and ribbons.

"Oh, chickens!" said the little boy.

"Oh, ducks!" said the little girl.

"Oh, guinea hens!" said the little boy.

"Come, see our Christmas tree!" said the little girl.

The chickens clucked, and the ducks quacked, and the guinea hens piped, and they all spread themselves out in a long row and ran around and around and around after the little girl and the little boy driving their Christmas goose.

The little boy and the little girl scattered corn and wheat and oats all over the ground around their Christmas tree. The chickens and the ducks and the guinea hens ate and ate and ate. The Christmas goose ate, too, but she ate very proudly and raised her head every few minutes to shake her holly wreath.

Papa and mamma came out to see them.

"Heigh-ho! What's this?" said papa.

"Mercy! What's all this?" said mamma.

"This is the Christmas goose!" shouted the little boy.

"And the Christmas goose's Christmas tree!" said the little girl.

"And the Christmas goose's friends!" said the little boy.

"Yes, and it is quite true, papa," said the little girl. "A Christmas goose is the best thing there is! Why, a Christmas goose is just lots of fun!"

"Yes, mamma," said the little boy, "a Christmas goose is the best fun of all."

Christmas With Stevenson.

Passengers aboard the steamship Lubeck unexpectedly spent Christmas at sea in the year 1890, but the fact that Robert Louis Stevenson, the famous story writer, was among them made that a most memorable holiday. The Lubeck was en route from Australia to Samoa. She broke a shaft and limped along several days under sail. "Mr. Stevenson," says the captain in relating the incident, "cheered everybody up by telling funny stories that were better, coming offhand from his lips, than most literary men could write if they worked over them for weeks. He knew, too, that it was only a question of a short time before he would die of consumption and that he could never again go home for more than a brief visit. It was simply wonderful what a difference that one man made among the passengers, and I guess almost all of us would gladly spend the time to take port under sail, with machinery disabled, if we could have a Stevenson aboard."

Had a Bad Cough For a Number of Years.

Was Afraid of Consumption.

Mrs. A. E. Brown, Ottawa, Ont., writes "I have had a very bad cough every winter for a number of years which I was afraid would turn into consumption. I tried a great many remedies but only received temporary relief until I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking two bottles my cough was cured. I am never without a bottle of Norway Pine Syrup."

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately or serious results may follow.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It strikes at the foundation of all throat and lung complaints, relieving or curing all Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Asthma, Sore Throat, etc., and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it.

Don't be imposed upon but insist on getting "Dr. Wood's."

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Why, Madam, Should You Buy Dirt at Flour Prices

We're all getting terribly squeamish these days.

Our great grandads cheerfully admitted that they had to eat a peck of dirt before they died.

They only objected when they got too much of the peck at one time.

Much of it, though unbeknown to the dear old fellows, came out of their flour barrels paid for at full flour prices.

So watch your flour barrel, Mistress Housewife.

Get what you pay for—flour that's pure, sure.

Suppose you went out into the wheatfield bringing back a bushel, and you had to crush it into flour yourself.

As is done even now by the women in Palestine.

You'd first sift it, of course, until it was all wheat.

Then, after a liberal application of elbow grease, you'd start the pounding exercise.

But what about the dirt and wheat fuzz, what about the wheat hairs and "whiskers" adhering to the kernels like a long-lost brother?

* * * *

We don't stop at mere "scientific" Mistress Housewife.

In the FIVE ROSES Appleton mills out west, we have specialists doing nothing day and night but rub the scrub, scrape and scalp the hard wheat kernels.

Till the well-filled, wholesome, polished berries glisten in a glowing golden transparency.

It's the modern "Song on the Scrub" to the humming accompaniment of tumbling rolls.

What would be the use of our flown-to-the-minute milling plant, Madam, if we had to grind dirty wheat?

Trying to improve the quality and color of FIVE ROSES after slightly the wheat-cleaning would be like trying to improve the pie after it is baked!

As perfect as money married to science can invent, is the wheat-preparing department at Keewatin.

* * * *

Because FIVE ROSES is all flour, it saves you a peck of trouble by side-stepping a peck of dirt.

The careful housewife using FIVE ROSES never knows what specks, pepper-like, muddy or grayish dots means—and never will know.

Never discouraged by sticky, putty-like doughs, discolored batter, uncertain and unappetizing bread consequences.

If you want your grocer, Mistress Housewife, just say: "Give me the purest, healthiest flour you know."

If you don't, say: "Give me FIVE ROSES."

CHRISTMAS IN FICTION.

By GEORGE H. PICARD

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

IRVING.

NOT until the first half of the last century was well spent did the species of literature which has come to be known as Christmas fiction effect a permanent lodgment in the hearts of English speaking mankind. The ancient parable plays and the rhymed holiday legends of the middle ages are still in use on the continent, but the more secular minded English had only the rude Yuletide jingles and the quaint carols of beef eating antiquity.

Contrary to the prevailing notion, the inventor of the tale with a distinctively Christmas flavor was an American. It is likely that it would occur to few Americans and to no Englishman to dissent if it were asserted in their presence that Charles Dickens originated the Christmas story. His name is so inseparably connected with so much of the holiday literature enshrined in the popular heart that it is small wonder the mention of Christmas suggests him. The credit of the "literary find," however, must be given to another, a man who was at the end of his thirties when Dickens was born, who had been at Malta when Nelson's fleet sailed away to Trafalgar, who had visited Sir Walter at Abbotsford and had captivated him and who was afterward secretary to the United States legation in England. That, of course, means Washington Irving.

Irving's first book, "The Sketch-Book of Geoffrey Crayon, Gent.," had pleased everybody, so much so, indeed, that it was republished by John Murray in London and translated into several continental languages. Both the publishers and the public were urging him to do something equally meritorious. Nobody realized more keenly than did the author of the exquisite work the difficulty of producing its mate, and he was not a man to be driven into mediocrity. Three years later he published "Bracebridge Hall," and the chapter of that masterpiece of literary workmanship entitled "Christmas at Bracebridge Hall" was the pioneer holiday tale of English literature and has furnished a model for subsequent fictionists which has seldom been equaled and never excelled. Its easy grace and felicity of expression were a revelation to everybody in those days, and the wonder and the charm are potent still.

William Makepeace Thackeray, master of a realism that is the wonder and the despair of those who have followed him, needed no model and chose none. His "Mrs. Perkins' Ball" resembles nothing ever conceived in the mind of any other man. The public was pleased with it, but never so much as was Thackeray himself. Most amazing of all, the author of the tale professed to believe that it was "Mrs. Perkins' Ball" that had made his reputation—that, too, in the face of the fact that "Vanity Fair" had just been published. This perversion of Thackeray in regard to the literary value of his wares and his lack of faith in his masterpiece—he had so little confidence in the success of "Vanity Fair" that after it appeared he applied for a small government position—are proof sufficient that the man who creates a masterpiece may have a dim conception of artistic values.

HAWTHORNE.

All the makers of great fiction are more or less under the spell of their immediate surroundings, but few have made it more apparent than Charles Dickens. Those who knew the circumstances saw plainly that he had put himself and his sad childhood into many of his pathetic short stories. This is especially true of "The Ghost of Master B.'s Room," which is an account of things which happened to him in his troubled boyhood. As a child he was a firm believer in ghosts, and it is probable that he never entirely abandoned his faith in spectral appearances. Many of his tales are peopled with disembodied spirits, and they are like the ghosts of no other writer. They are the spooks that appeal to one and make one believe in their genuineness. They are frequently more real than the living characters who consort with them. Although they are dead, they conduct themselves like living entities.

THACKERAY.

Dickens' Christmas ghosts are unique in the realm of literature. Of all the silent shapes that have been summoned from the upper and nether worlds to lend enchantment to the Christmas tale his alone have become acclimated. There is never anything repulsive about them. They are the most companionable spooks ever invented. They are seldom sepulchral, but are frequently cheerful. They are not the haunting, sleep killing and never to be exorcised phantoms of the fairy tales, but actual personalities, freed from all mortal restrictions in regard to locomotion that come to us when we bid them and vanish politely when we are weary of their presence.

Bret Harte never made a secret of his admiration for the creator of Little Nell and Tom Pinch. Like Paul at the feet of Gamaliel, he was content to receive his lesson from the man he acknowledged to be his master. Not until after Dickens had finished his work did the young literary light who stood revealed in the far western firmament learn that his model had seen that exquisite elegy "Dickens In Camp" and had been heard to express his admiration of it in the most generous terms. The dying novelist declared that the work of the new American writer contained such subtle strokes of workmanship as no other writer in the language had yet exhibited. And then he asked, with a humorous gleam in his weary eyes, "Don't you think that his manner is very like my own?"

Like Dickens, Harte had a genuine fondness for the doings of Yuletide. One who knew him best says that up to the last day of his life "he thought much of the Christmas season and to the last kept up the fond and foolish custom of sending generous presents to his friends." Better appreciated in England than in his native country, Harte spent the later years of his life abroad, but his stories were to the last distinctively American. In that admirable performance entitled "How Santa Claus Came to Simpson's Bar" there is no flavor of the old world Christmas, and Johnny, clothed in the stars and stripes, is a young American of the most unmistakable sort.

Two of the most strikingly dissimilar Christmas stories ever written are Hawthorne's "Christmas Banquet" and Miss Mitford's "Christmas Party." There is little of Christmas in Hawthorne's gruesome tale. The joyous festival is only a literary makeshift around which is woven a weird psychological study that drives all remembrance of the blessed season from the mind. Its ghosts are not the sociable and easily banished spooks of Dickens. They are formless and creepy and all pervading. They are the fearsome specters that rise in the frigid vapors of German mysticism, and they are made icier still with a strong admixture of New England transcendentalism. It is a masterpiece in conception and in treatment—no question at all about that—but it does not make the Yule log glow more brightly or lend a better flavor to the steaming bowl.

DICKENS.

Mary Russell Mitford does not deal in ghosts. All of her Christmas characters are flesh and blood people, and they are not of the sort that "will not stay dead when they die." Her "Christmas Party" is as dainty in its workmanship as anything which ever came from her careful pen, and that is saying much. It is as restful and nonsuggestive as a pastoral, and its influence is as soothing as the delicate savor which escapes when the cover of a potpourri jar is lifted or the drawer of an old time cabinet is opened—the faint, pervasive odor of crushed rose leaves and dried lavender.

Could Not Sleep.

DOCTOR SAID HEART AND NERVES WERE RESPONSIBLE.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed.

Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted and causes nightmare, bad dreams, starting in the sleep, twitching of the muscles, restlessness, etc.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all people troubled in this way. They have a soothing and calming effect on the nervous system.

Mrs. Calvin Stark, Rossmore, Ont., writes:—"About two years ago I began to be troubled with a smothering sensation at night when I would lie down. I got so bad I could not sleep in the dark and would have to sit up and rub my limbs, they would become so numb. My doctor said my heart and nerves were responsible. I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised and got a box to try them. I took three boxes and can now lie down and sleep without the light burning and can rest well. I can recommend them highly to all nervous and run down women."

Price, 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SOME EARNEST HOLIDAY DON'TS

DON'T think that you are too poor to keep Christmas. You can't be so poor as all that.

Don't spend so much on Christmas that you can't get even with the butcher and grocer until March.

Don't give presents that are a pleasure for ten minutes and a burden and a worry for ten years.

Don't, young women, buy neckties for your men folk; don't encourage them in being bigger guys than necessary.

Don't give a drum to the children of your enemy who works nights. A watchman's rattle is just as good, and it is cheaper.

Don't give your wife something she doesn't care for just because you want it yourself. This "don't" works the other way just as well.

Don't forget that a basket of fruit or a box of flowers is just as nice a present in many cases as something that will last a good deal longer.

Don't try to find the price marks on the gifts you receive. If the gifts are worth having they mean something above dollars and cents.

Don't forget the Bob Cratchits and the Tiny Tims—that is, unless you are unregenerate Old Scrooge, in which case forgetfulness can be explained.

Don't put off everything to the last, because you had better for the joy of your friends give nothing than wear yourself out and be as cross as two sticks when the blessed day comes.

Don't waste any of your pity on the long haired youths who lie at the bottom of the heap in football scrimmages. You will need all your pity for yourself in the rush at the holiday counter.

Don't check off each gift you receive against each present that you gave and calculate whether you made or lost. Christmas is not the time to be any smaller or meaner than you can help.

Don't oppress children who are satiated to sadness with toys already by giving them more. There are other ways of making them happy, or if there are not it is because they are spoiled with many pleasures and are the most pitiful beings alive. In that case let them try doing something for poor children, who are blessed in powers of enjoyment, and see if the capacity won't prove catching.

Don't neglect, if you are a woman, to lay in a stock of some simple things like handkerchiefs and sachet bags for unexpected emergencies if you like to meet various people with a reasonable token.

Don't set your own happiness up as the chief thing to be looked out for at Christmas time. Try to make other people happy and forget yourself, then you will be surprised to see how really happy you are.

Don't give a book to a man with a big library or a picture to the man who makes a specialty of the fine arts unless you know pretty well what he wants. Ten to one he'd rather do the buying of such things for himself.

Don't write your name or anybody else's on cards if you send them. No one can keep a lot of such truck, and it is often highly convenient just to send them on their travels to carry Christmas greeting to other people. And why not?—Buffalo Express.

ANAEMIA

Pale Cheeks, Bad Color

Chlorosis or anaemia is simply thinness of blood.

If confined too much indoors, anaemia develops, because the lungs are insufficiently supplied with oxygen, and the blood is consequently ill-nourished and half-starved.

But there is a cure.

Dr. Hamilton has solved the problem in his famous pills of Mandrake and Butternut, as a blood enricher their equal is not known.

All the functions upon which life depends are helped by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Richness and purity are instilled with wonderful promptness into the vital fluid. Healthy color supplants that pallid, ashen face. Better appetite, strong digestion, and dreamless sleep are sure to follow, because of the increased blood supply furnished by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills

Make Rosy Cheeks

Better act at once! Your case is more curable now than later on. Dr. Hamilton personally guarantees his pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Their merit is unquestioned. Thousands of anaemics they have cured and kept well.

They will do just the same for you. Try Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1.00, and refuse any substitutes.

Hawaiian Christmas.

Birds are singing everywhere,
Happy, merry Christmas!
Flowers are showing beauties rare,
Merry, happy Christmas!
Here in ocean girdled home,
Here in pleasant tropic zone,
'Neath a glorious summer sun
Cometh merry Christmas.

Day which giveth joy to all,
Happy, merry Christmas!
Poor and rich and great or small
Merry, happy Christmas!
Day when angel voices call
Praise to him, the Lord of all,
And peace, good will, to mankind fall
On every merry Christmas.

Santa Claus comes here alway
Every merry Christmas,
Sans the reindeer, sans the sleigh
Of the lang syne Christmas.
Here is neither frost nor snow,
Here but pleasant trade winds blow,
Here is paradise below
And a merry Christmas.

Hawaii's homes send forth today
"A merry, happy Christmas!"
To the loved ones far away,
"A happy, merry Christmas!"
May the God child's natal day
Be a happy one I say,
From sorrow free and every way
A merry, mer Christmas!

Only Medicine That Did Any Good

After Suffering Tortures For Years, This Lady Found Happy Relief In "Fruit-a-tives".

Frankville, Ont., June 11th, 1908.

"I have received most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for years from headaches and pain in the back, and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches.

MRS. FRANK EATON

I take "Fruit-a-tives" occasionally still, but I am quite cured of a trouble that was said to be incurable. I give this testimony voluntarily, in order that others who suffer as I suffered may try this wonderful medicine and be cured."

(Signed) MRS. FRANK EATON.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial box, 25c —or sent post-paid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

NEW BRUNSWICK'S VARSITY.

Mount Allison Is Steadily Growing In Position.

The University of Mount Allison at Sackville, New Brunswick, dates from the year 1862, when, in accordance with an Act of the Legislature of New Brunswick, passed in 1858, a collegiate organization was effected, and the work of instruction was commenced. The internal administration of the university has been carried on upon strictly non-sectarian principles, and members of all denominations are found among the students. The ownership of the institution, however, is vested in the Methodist Church of Canada. The General Conference appoints a large number of the board of regents, to which, and to the senate, the government of the university belongs.

The total number of regular and special students, according to the last calendar, is about 175. There are ten resident professors and one lecturer, and the full arts course is four years. In connection with the university are two schools, one for boys and one for girls. The latter is one of the finest of its kind in the Dominion, with an attendance of about 150 and a staff of twenty-five teachers. A new brick building is shortly to be erected to accommodate the increasing attendance. The success of the school is largely due to the personality of the principal, Rev. Dr. Byron Borden, a member of the well-known Nova Scotia family which has given two leading statesmen to the Dominion. The university buildings generally are of a superior type, and are mostly constructed of the fine freestone which abounds in the neighborhood. The art building, a very handsome structure, contains a collection of paintings, mostly loaned by the Provincial Government, valued at $80,000. The school of domestic science is admirably equipped and most efficiently conducted, furnishing one of the most important specialties of the work of the ladies' school.

Since its foundation, forty years ago, the college has had three presidents, the present incumbent being Dr. David Allison, who has held office for nearly thirty years. The most hurried or casual visitor cannot fail to be impressed by the fact that a splendid work is being carried on in all branches of this institution on thoroughly progressive and modern lines. A large increase of students at the university is reported this year.

Sackville is a town of about 2,000 people, seven miles distant from the thriving manufacturing town of Amherst. For miles on all sides stretch the celebrated Tantramar marshes about which Charles G. D. Roberts and other Canadian authors of Maritime birth have written so much. The country is populous and prosperous, evidences of which are to be seen on every hand. The district is in a sense classic ground, having been the scene of the last struggle of the French for possession of the western portion of Acadia. Within a few miles of Sackville is the site of Fort Beausejour, "renowned in song and story," and Roberts and his cousin, Bliss Carman, have found the region rich in inspiration.

Canada's Minerals.

The richest deposits of asbestos and nickel in the world, so far discovered, are here in Canada; 90 per cent. of the world's total output of asbestos and 67 per cent. of the nickel is mined in Canada. The product in 1906 of nickel alone was $8,948,834, also 85 per cent. of all the corundum used and mica enough to supply the universe, while the coal areas of Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia are estimated at 100,000 square miles, and the standing timber in various sections of the Dominion total up to 1,500,000 square miles. Nor has anything been yet said of the mines of gold and silver, the mines of petroleum in Western Ontario, or the copper mines of Lake Superior.

A POWERFUL AND EFFECTIVE CURE

For Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Asthma.

Soothing Balsams Are Carried to the Sore, Congested Membranes — Cure Quickly and Completely.

Diseases of the breathing organs are, as you know, excited by germs so minute that only the microscope can reveal them; they are lodged in the tissues, develop there, and cause all the trouble. That is how consumption starts.

If the cause of the disease can be carried by air, why not the remedy? This conclusion lies at the root of the Catarrhozone treatment. The instrument through which you breathe fragrant, healing Catarrhozone splits up into minute particles this invaluable healing and curative agent, thereby enabling the air to carry it to the remotest ramifications of the breathing organs, and diffuses itself over their entire surfaces.

CATARRHOZONE ALWAYS CURES.

It would be absolutely impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without carrying this liquid to the remotest parts of the breathing apparatus. Upon healthy tissue it has no action, but upon diseased tissue and upon the micro-organisms which infect diseased tissues its action is so wonderfully curative that the disease is completely abolished. Then the tissue heals.

EARLY TREATMENT IS WISE.

Catarrhozone is an ideal remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. If you have catarrh, or bronchitis, or asthma, all are equally curable by Catarrhozone. These diseases are all modifications of an inflammatory condition of the lining membranes of the throat and nasal passages. Under these conditions we call it catarrh. When it extends to the bronchial tubes, we call it bronchitis. The condition is the same, the causes which produce the diseases are identical, and the remedy, Catarrhozone, acts equally promptly and efficiently upon the different forms of this disease. Your case is curable. Get Catarrhozone to-day; two months' treatment (guaranteed) price $1; small size 50c. Sold by all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

LANDMARKS OF SANDWICH.

Many Evidences of Jesuit Pioneers Still Stand.

During the recent old boys' reunion in Windsor, Walkerville and Sandwich a beautiful and suggestive pageant was enacted depicting the landing of the Jesuit Fathers Richardie and Potiers, who came in early days to establish a mission to the Huron Indians in Sandwich. The day was brilliant with sunshine, and the broad sweep of the Detroit River reflected the gladness of the blue sky and rippled in response to the summer breeze. The grassy bank and rolling meadow between the Catholic Church and the river were overrun with a company of 5,000 people, and the medley of summer attire and the variegated parasols made a scene of unusual animation. The chatter of the crowd was at last hushed and their patience rewarded by the arrival of a fleet of canoes, from which landed a company of priests in long black soutanes and broad-brimmed hats. They were set in relief by two score Indians dressed in all the crude brilliancy they so much admire. Great, strapping fellows they were, painted and decked with feathers, beads, fringed leggings, moccasins and all that go to make up the striking costume of the redman. After scouting to see that the way was safe they fell into a procession and followed the solemn tread of the priests, who, book in hand, chanted the hymn "Vexilla Regis." They proceeded to a grassy knoll in what was the old Huron burying-ground and there planted a huge black cross inscribed with the dates 1723 and 1909.

The interesting roles of the missionaries were taken with simple dignity by Fr. Cote, parish priest of Sandwich, and Fr. Aboulin, for years in charge of the Sandwich flock, now pastor of old St. Anne's, Detroit.

This was the very spot where nearly 200 years ago the Jesuits set themselves the task of founding a church in the wild, beautiful wilderness, "Where trees," as Cadillac said, "of prodigious size grew. Trunks straight as arrows, without knots and almost without branches, save at their very tops, growing with the lustiness of centuries upon them."

In 1721 Charlevois said: "The shores on the south side of the strait are bluffs of clay from 15 to 20 feet high, commencing opposite the foot of an island (Belle Isle) where stands an Ottawa village and continuing with unbroken front for four miles, then sinking gradually to the water's edge and ending in a crescent-shaped bay, with beautifully gravelled shores."

There the Jesuits pulled up their canoes and built the first house in Sandwich by other than savage hands. The clear surface of the river could be seen for miles from this point, while crowning the bluffs on the opposite side of the river stood the prominent bastions of Fort Pontchartrain, then swarming with French soldiers, commanded by the ambitious Cadillac, founder of Detroit.

And what is left to remind us of these bygone exploits? There is an old avenue of maple trees, familiarly called the "priests' walk," which runs from a handsome modern L'Assomption church to the river, and was formerly terminated by a huge wooden gate, which, however, has sunken into picturesque decay. To the right of this walk is an old gnarled orchard in the midst of which stands the "Presbytery," latterly called the "Old Convent," for in the early 'seventies it sheltered a company of nuns. This is the original building erected by the Jesuits. It has been patched and added to and finally moved to another part of the orchard, but still the old, old house stands, with its French roof, blind gables and wide stone chimney whitened by countless rains and dashings of sleet and snow. It has a frontage of thirty feet and was built two stories high, with an attic. The roof rose in the old French style and was pierced with dormer windows. It was constructed of square pine timbers and had a foundation of solid stone.

Just Fish.

Commissioner George M. Bowers of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries said recently in Washington of the black bass that he is sending to South Africa at the request of Col. Roosevelt.

"These fish will do well, but no miracles are to be expected of them. Many persons seem to think that our bureau is as miraculous in all its works as—well, as the Canadian salmon.

"Two Canadians were boasting.

"'Where I came from,' said the first, 'we have a salmon river that rises in some boiling springs. As the salmon climbs up the river they gradually get acclimated to the heat of the river and don't mind it. In fact, when we fish in the highest reaches of the stream we catch our salmon ready boiled.'

"'I don't doubt that,' said the second Canadian, calmly. 'Down my way there's a curious salmon river, too. It rises in some tin mines. As the fish work up they meet the suspended ore in gradually increasing quantities. They get quite mineralised if they keep on up-stream, so that if we fish at the head of the river we catch the salmon ready tinned, and all we have to do is to pack and ship them to market.'"

Ontario Fruit In London.

Ontario people would glow with pride could they see the magnificent peaches displayed in some of the great stores in London, Eng., above which appear a legend telling that these are grown in the open in Ontario, and are the first peaches to be brought from Ontario to England. The Emigration Office and the C.P.R. office also display Ontario peaches, which are the wonder and admiration of all who see them. In the Army and Navy Stores the other day the manager was kept busy answering enquiries from curious customers, who expressed much interest in the fact that this beautiful fruit was grown out of doors in Canada. The peaches are sold for sixpence each, after passing through several hands from the time they are taken from the trees until they reach the London dinner-tables.

Other Joys.

Farewell, blackberry dumplings!
The peach pie's getting thin.
But cheer up there, my brother.
The buckwheat's coming in.

DR. RIVENBURGH.

Dear Sir,—Just a line to let you know what a great benefit I have derived from your excellent course. I may say that a person in conversation with me now would never imagine that I ever stuttered, and I owe my present condition wholly to your instructions. I sincerely believe that any person, no matter how badly afflicted, may be cured in a very short time if they will but follow your instructions, and I will certainly recommend you to any stammerer that I may come in contact with.

THE BREEDING BUREAU.

Canada's Experiment Station Acquires Some New Blood.

The National Bureau of Breeding is after fifteen more stallions, and will get them before the end of the year. Three of these will be placed in the Province of Quebec, bringing the total up to ten, five will be sent to Saskatchewan, five to New Brunswick, and two to Manitoba. The work of placing additional stallions will be continued during the winter, and the bureau expects to be in good shape when the breeding season opens in the spring.

The thoroughbred stallion, Call Boy, by Plaudit, the American champion sire out of the world famous mare Imp. by Wagner, has been placed with Dr. Amedie Marien, who has a fine two hundred acre farm at Riviere des Prairies. Call Boy will be mated with cold-blooded mares of Laval and adjoining counties. Call Boy is one of the best horses in the bureau.

It is expected that the arrival of Gen. French in Canada will be an additional stimulus to the bureau work, for he is one of the greatest cavalry experts in the British army, and more than that he knows the troubles encountered in securing remounts during the Boer war. The bureau plan will appeal strongly to such a man as it has already appealed to the War Office experts who have looked into the work.

Major Samuel Harris, who left Monteal for England recently, is of the opinion that the War Office will ask the British Government to place some of the Canadian Bureau stallions on the King's premium list, which will mean an annual grant to the bureau. This would accelerate the work of placing thoroughbred stallions, and is necessary for only a very small part of the demand has been supplied. Major Harris thinks that Alberta will lead all the other provinces, with the possible exception of Quebec, in the rearing of the new utility type. He points out that a ranchman can raise a horse and keep him until three years old in Alberta at a cost of not more than $20, which, of course, is much better than can be done in this part of Canada. While in England he will see the Duke of Newcastle and others with a view of getting young English stallions by donation for the Canadian Bureau. These horses may be secured as yearlings, for at that age they are more easily obtained and Canadian farmers and breeders will be glad to get them and keep them until old enough for service.

The stallions placed in the West are in great demand and all of them are already booked to the limit for 1910. One man in Alberta has written to the bureau asking for permission to brand his stallion.

"He is so well thought of around here," says he, "that I am afraid some one will steal him."

Although not two years old the Canadian Bureau is now fifth on the world's list, and will be third by the end of next year. France leads with a superb bureau of 234 stallions, and Austria-Hungary is second. Germany is third, with 101 stallions. Russia fourth, and Canada fifth. Egypt, Italy, Spain, Turkey, Mexico, the United States, Great Britain and Japan have been passed by the Canadian Bureau.

An Old Indian Drum.

The Sioux Indians of Manitoba and the West formerly had a conjurer's drum, which they called wakanchanghagba. It was used on religious and ceremonial occasions, had two heads, frequently decorated with crude pictures of animals, and was beaten with great vigor for the purpose of appeasing the wrath of their offended deities or of contributing to the recovery of the sick.

Game Getting Scarce.

Ottawa hunters who have recently returned from the north, say that game is so scarce that it will be necessary for the Governments of both Ontario and Quebec to adopt more stringent game laws.

It is proposed to petition the Governments of both provinces to prohibit the sale of venison and the hunting of deer with dogs.

FRUIT CULTURE IN B.C.

What Will Be Huge Industry Is Just In Its Infancy Now.

Fruit culture in British Columbia is fast becoming the most important industry in the Pacific province. Apples, peaches, pears, cherries, plums and every other variety of fruit are cultivated with the most astounding results. Lord Aberdeen purchased the Coldstream Ranch at Vernon, some years ago and is now developing its fruit resources as a large part of the operations of his holdings. His Lordship's twenty-acre patch produced $10,000 worth of Northern Spies last year. Other equally good results are reported in other districts of the province. One cherry tree at Penticton produced eight hundred pounds of fruit, and another at Agassis one thousand pounds. What would be the result of an acre of as many such trees as the soil is capable of feeding, can be imagined and calculated.

In Okanagan instances are reported of profits of from $500 to $600 per acre. At Kelowna, nine tons of pears and ten tons of prunes per acre are said not to be uncommon. Four acres of strawberries near Victoria returned the owner of the land $2,588 net. Another owner reported 12,556 pounds of berries on one and a half acres, which sold for over $1,200.

Nectarines, apricots, figs, almonds and several other of the less hardy fruits and nuts, have been tried with success. It is contended by those with experience that any fruit or vegetable which can be grown three hundred miles south of the International boundary line, can be produced in British Columbia.

This fruit industry can hardly be said to have commenced in British Columbia. It has just passed that point in the State of Washington where there are now over 100,000 acres planted out against barely 7,000 acres in 1901.

Should Be Linked Up.

That Newfoundland should be incorporated with the Dominion as one of the provinces of Canada was the theme of a splendid address given by Hon. A. B. Morine, former Finance Minister and Minister of Fisheries of that colony, before the Canadian Club of Winnipeg recently.

One of the chief reasons for this amalgamation was that of defence. An enemy controlling Newfoundland would also control all the shipping trade of the Dominion. The Government sitting at Ottawa in time of war would realize fully the desirability of control. There was also the great question of trade relations with the United States. Proposals for reciprocal trade had been made on several occasions and these proposals had failed chiefly for the reason that there were two men dealing with the United States, the representative of Canada and the representative of Newfoundland, when there ought to have been but one. There was also the question of immigration to be considered. Canada was spending millions in order to add to her population. In the ancient colony, there were 250,000 of the best people that the world contained. Why should Canada not make some effort to secure these people for the Dominion?

The speaker gave information with reference to the country in which he has spent 24 years. It had been discovered 123 years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. Progress in the country had been slow in earlier years owing to the fact that it had been regarded as a colony which was to be used wholly for the benefit of the Mother Country.

Proposals for union with Canada had been defeated in the past for various reasons, but if the matter was now advocated, it was probable that in a few years, the men advocating it would be in control.

Mails at Gowganda.

The amount of mail handled at the postoffices at Elk City and Gowganda would surprise anyone who is not aware that these places are the centres to which men scattered over many miles of territory come for news from the loved ones at home.

For several weeks past the mails for Gowganda have been delivered to Long Pointe Lake, 12 miles east of Gowganda. From this point men pack the mail sacks on their backs over the road cut, which is now being stumped and prepared for the graders. Four big sacks of mail were brought in the other morning. As no second-class matter is being packed through this means that the sacks were filled to the top with letters. There must have been thousands of them, and the postal staff were engaged for hours in sorting them. This was no easy task as the postoffice is located in a little building scarcely larger than a packing case.

THE CHEERFUL WAX CANDLE.

By ALICE LE BARON.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

ONCE upon a time two little candles lay side by side in a big box. Both were pure white.

Said one: "I wonder what will become of us. Do you think we could be meant for a Christmas tree?" For you must know that to be put on a Christmas tree is the best possible thing that can happen to a candle.

"Of course not," said the other, who was cross. "If we are meant for a Christmas tree it will be for some shabby little children—see if it isn't."

"If we are," said the first, "I'll shine my very brightest, for the eyes of even poor children with only few pleasures in prospect are enough to rival little candles on Christmas eve."

"If we are," grumbled the second, "I am not sure that I will allow myself to be lighted at all."

Christmas eve drew nearer and nearer. Sure enough, the two little candles, with many others of blue and pink and yellow and red, were bought for a Christmas tree.

On the day before Christmas, while it still was daylight, some young girls came to arrange the presents and make the tree ready for the evening.

"Oh, what a lot of pretty little candles!" said one of them. "They are such lovely colors—all except those two white ones. We will put those out of sight, because the red and pink ones are prettier."

"Didn't I tell you what would happen?" said the cross little candle in a whisper.

"Yes, but wait," replied the other. "Just shine your brightest all the time."

"I won't," snapped the cross one.

When evening came, ranged all round the tree were happy boys and girls. Soon every bough on the great tree blossomed with little lights. Some of the flames were faint, but many were bright. When the little white candles were lighted the cross one just sputtered a minute and then went out. The other shone so brightly that a gentleman standing near said:

"PUT IT ON THE VERY TIPTOP."

"Oh, what a brilliant candle! But it is almost out of sight among the green branches. We ought to put it where it can be seen better."

"Put it on the very tiptop," said a little lady.

And that is where they did put it—on the very tiptop of the tree, where it nodded and gleamed in answer to the smiling faces around it.

Christmas Superstitions.

If Christmas day on Sunday be,
A troublous winter ye shall see,
Mingled with winds strong;
Good there shall be without fable,
For the summer shall be reasonable,
With storms at times among.

Wines that year shall all be good;
The harvest shall be wet with flood,
Pestilence fall on many a country,
Ere that sickness shall have passed
And while great tempests last
Many young people dead shall be.

Princes that year with iron shall die;
There shall be changing of many lords high,
Among knights great debate.
Many tidings shall come to men;
Many wives shall be weeping then,
Both of poor and great estate.

The faith shall then be hurt truly,
For divers points of heresy
That shall then appear
Through the tempting of the fiend,
And divers matters unkind
Shall bring great danger near.

Cattle shall thrive, one and the other,
Save oxen; they shall kill each other.
And some beasts—they shall die.
Both fruit and corn will not be good,
Neither will be scarce for food,
And ships shall suffer on the sea.

From Harleian MS. in British Museum, of Fourth Century.

THE RATIONAL CHRISTMAS.

By ELLIS FRAME

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

"Let us give in reason this year," she suggested;
"Not merely for the sake of giving things.
It's the spirit, not the money invested.
Let us, therefore, turn from foolish squanderings.
Let the gifts we give be things that may be needed
Instead of trash soon to be cast aside."
"My darling, your suggestion shall be heeded,
For there is wisdom in it," he replied.

She did her shopping early, being guided
By lessons learned from much experience.
She would show her lord and master, she decided,
How excellent a thing was common sense.
For their baby boy she purchased a French corset
And an oriental rug that caught her eye.
"Though the darling longed to have a rocking horse, it Wasn't sensible," she murmured, with a sigh.

They had promised not to buy things for each other.
They would merely get a few things for the child.
She would sacrifice her sister and her mother
And it gladdened her to see the way he smiled
As he said his people, too, should be omitted.
So the wise and winsome woman, day by day,
From shop to shop, with sweet emotion, flitted,
Having dry goods bound up and sent away.

He bought a pipe and splendid smoking jacket
To give their darling glee on Christmas morn.
With these the child could make no such a racket
As might have been produced with drum and horn.
He also got the works, unexpurgated,
Of old Boccaccio and Rabelais,
So that their little one might be elated
And long have glad remembrance of the day.

On Christmas when their presents were displayed
They sat upon the sofa side by side,
And while their child looked up at them, dismayed,
He had a culprit's manner, and she cried.

LOOKING OUT FOR SANTY.

By GERALD PRIME.

My mamma, when we build our house,
Wants plenty closets in it.
She says she'll tell the architeck
That's how he must begin it.

My papa says he doesn't care
A fig for big clothespresses,
But what he wants is plenty room,
And that he'll have, he guesses.

But I don't care how little 'tis,
A palace or a shanty,
I want a chimney big enough
To let in dear old Santy!

A Timely Caution.

Don't give any one brica-brac or pictures unless you are morally sure you know his taste. Presents that must be displayed are apt to be a great strain on the affections. No matter how the receiver may hate them, he must father them and decorate his rooms with them or insult the giver. Now, a book, for instance, even if the receiver doesn't like it and doesn't want it, can be tucked away among other books and forgotten, and in this case we can struggle with as at least the we can snatch it.

For the Inspector.

Don't let your little ones into the secret that Santa Claus is an imposture, but them figure out for themselves how a fat man with a long neck can get into the parlor grate through the chimney of a modern house heated by steam. Imagination is a quality desirable to cultivate.

SANTA AND THE LITTLE MOUSE.

By FRANCIS TAYLOR.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

One Christmas eve when Santa Claus
Came to a certain house
To fill the children's stockings there
He found a little mouse.

"A merry Christmas, little friend,"
Said Santa, good and kind.
"The same to you, sir," said the mouse.
"I thought you wouldn't mind

"If I should stay awake tonight
And watch you for awhile."
"You're very welcome, little mouse,"
Said Santa, with a smile.

And then he filled the stockings up
Before the mouse could wink—
From toe to top, from top to toe,
There wasn't left a chink.

"Now, they won't hold another thing,"
Said Santa Claus, with pride.
A twinkle came in mouse's eyes,
But humbly he replied:

"It's not polite to contradict.
Your pardon I implore.
But in the fullest stocking there
I could put one thing more."

"Oh, ho," laughed Santa, "silly mouse!
Don't I know how to pack?
By filling stockings all these years
I should have learned the knack."

And then he took the stocking down
From where it hung so high
And said: "Now put in one thing more.
I give you leave to try."

The mousie chuckled to himself,
And then he softly stole
Right to the stocking's crowded toe
And gnawed a little hole.

"Now, if you please, good Santa Claus,
I've put in one thing more,
For you will own that little hole
Was not in there before."

How Santa Claus did laugh and laugh!
And then he gayly spoke,
"Well, you shall have a Christmas cheese
For that nice little joke."

Santa Claus' Revenge.

Belated comes advice tonight
That, "without proper cause,"
Two foolish boys went on a strike
Against old Santa Claus.
They sent him written word that he Must take two trips a year,
The first an early one to see
What children wanted here.
They said his work of late was bad.
They criticised his taste.
They said it made them very sad—
Those presents gone to waste!
They asked him why he thought a boy
Would want a Teddy bear.
They said it seemed he could employ
Much better judgment there.
They wrote him frankly what they thought,
A penny in each line.
They told him that they thought he ought
To get out and resign.
They covered reams of paper then
To tell him what to do—
The how, the which, the what, the when,
They carefully went through—
And then they told him what to bring
For each boy in their town,
And for themselves—"Oh, everything!"
Were last words they put down.
They thought the saint was far too old
To understand their wants,
And each one framed a list, to hold
Two presents, it would seem.
But when they woke on Xmas morn
With "What did Santa bring?"
What lots of names he had not been,
He hadn't left a thing!

THE DEAR OLD TREE.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

There's a dear old tree, an evergreen tree,
And it blossoms once a year.
'Tis loaded with fruit from top to root,
And it brings to all good cheer.

For its blossoms bright are small candles white,
And its fruit is dolls and toys,
And they all are free for both you and me
If we're good little girls and boys.

Christmas Chimes in Many Climes.

Christmas is always a season of good wishes and loving kindness.

In America almost all little children hang up their stockings on Christmas eve, to be filled by kind old Santa Claus. In Germany they make more of Christmas than we do in America. Everywhere the Christmas tree is used.

If a family is too poor to have a whole tree, a single branch only will stand in a conspicuous place, hung with the few simple gifts.

A week before Christmas St. Nicholas visits the children to find out who have been good enough to receive the gifts the Christ Child will bring them on Christmas eve.

It is a very usual thing to see on a German Christmas tree, way up in the very topmost branch, an image or doll representing the Christ Child, while below are sometimes placed other images representing angels with outspread wings.

After the tree is lighted the family gather round it and sing a Christmas hymn.

In England almost every one who can do so has a family party on Christmas eve. Young and old join in the games, many of which belong especially to Christmas time.

From the ceiling of one of the rooms a large bunch of mistletoe is hung. If any little maid is caught standing under it the one who catches her has a right to take a kiss from her rosy lips.

In Holland the little Dutch girl puts her wooden shoe in the chimney place ready for gifts, just as the little American girl hangs up her stocking.

And so in some way all over the Christian world on the eve of the twenty-fifth day of December the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ is celebrated. Everywhere the Christmas chimes are ringing out the message the angels brought to Bethlehem—"Peace on earth, good will to men."

The Barber's Joke.

Christmas morning and the barber very busy.

"I'd rather shave ten Germans than one American."

The rubicund brewer in the chair smiled broadly through the lather.

"Goot," he chuckled. "Dot vos right! But vy?"

The barber took a firmer hold upon his victim's nose as he replied:

"Ten Germans pay me a dollar and a half—one American only 15 cents."

And you could have heard the thermometer drop.

Popcorn!

"If Santa Claus has corns the same as grandpa," said a wee girl the other day, "I fink he'd be 'fraid to come down the chimney over a hot fire for fear his corns would pop."

The Christmas Manger.

In France may be almost universally seen representations of the manger in which Christ was born, with figures of Mary, Joseph and the child Jesus, and cattle feeding near by.

Character a Soul in Hair.

Much has been heard of the eyes the hands and the features as delineators of character, but very little of the hair in this connection. Though it is scarcely more than a surmise, it is said that a jealous disposition and possibly unfaithfulness are denoted by dull black hair. A person with light hair is sensitive to criticism and slights. Good judgment and common sense rest upon the head of the owner of brown hair of a deep color and fine texture. Though women with red hair have long been considered inquisitive and fractious, they also possess honesty and sincerity and are usually of bright, sunny disposition. Straight hair is said to be indicative of an obstinate, unyielding nature. It is not worth while to worry over these things about hair, since one cannot change them; but, to grow facetious for a minute, it might be well to remember these points in case you ever have to purchase a strand of two.

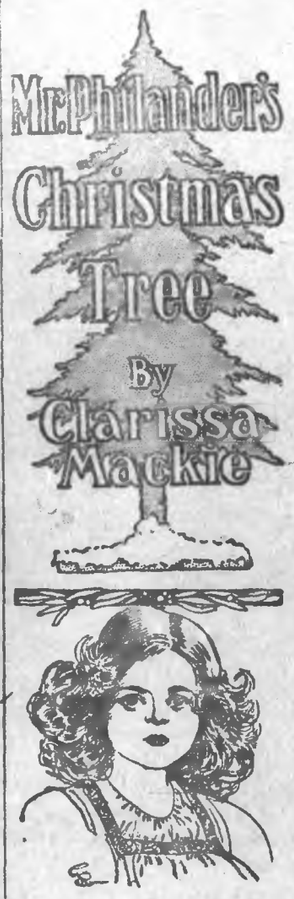
Mr. Philander's Christmas Tree

By Clarissa Mackie



BESSIE.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"WHERE is the tree?" whispered Mrs. Philander anxiously as her husband shook the snow from his coat and carefully wiped his feet on the brand new doormat.

"Couldn't get one," returned Philander moodily.

"Couldn't get one! Why not, James Philander?"

"I forgot it, Bella, until just as I got off the train, and as that was the last train from town I couldn't very well walk back and look up a tree. By that time the shops would all be closed and"—

"Walk back! Such nonsense! Of course if you haven't thought enough of the children to buy them a tree"—

"My dear," interpolated Philander desperately, "don't say another word. I'll find a tree somewhere tonight if I have to rob the church of the Sunday school tree!"

He thrust his arms into his overcoat and grasped his hat, but Mrs. Philander put out a detaining hand.

"James," she said seriously, "you cannot find a tree in Rose Heights tonight. You know there is not a shop in the Heights, and where else would you look for a tree?"

"I shall walk into the woods and dig one," returned Philander, with dignity.

"Well, you could do that, James, but it is 11 o'clock now and there is no moon. You will lose your way."

"Nonsense!" returned Mr. Philander. "I hope I know my way around Rose Heights. I saw a very handsome pine tree in that strip of woods back on the Turkey hill road. I could walk there blindfolded and lay my hand upon that tree," he asserted rashly.

"Very well," returned Mrs. Philander reluctantly. "I hate to have you go, James, but the children will be so disappointed. The presents are all ready, and I have been up in the attic and got the base for the tree and all the ornaments—in fact, everything is ready except the tree."

"The tree will soon be here," said Mr. Philander grimly as he jerked on his arctics and turned up his coat collar. "Just bring me the spade from the woodshed, please," he added.

"A spade, James! I thought they chopped trees down. The ground is frozen."

"Of course, the ax by all means," replied Philander irritably. He was vexed with himself for having forgotten to order the tree, which was one of the necessary adjuncts to the Philander Christmas. He had never forgotten it before. He meant to order it that morning and have it sent to his suburban home later in the day, but an important business matter had driven the remembrance of the festival from his mind until his wife's greeting when he opened the door recalled it to his attention.

He sallied forth, bearing the ax, and waded through the newly fallen snow to the corner of the street, where he turned toward Turkey hill road. The snow was only six inches deep, and the walking was not so bad. Gray clouds hung low, and there was a thick flurry of flakes as Philander turned the corner. When he reached the strip of woods it was snowing heavily, and he could only guess at the location of the particular pine he had in mind.

He whistled cheerily as he walked along, for his spirits were rising. He felt a warm glow stealing over his tired frame as he anticipated the delight of the three small Philanders when they beheld the selfsame tree that they had so warmly admired a short while before set up in their own parlor, ablaze with candles and rich with gifts.

Mr. Philander stopped and thrashed himself vigorously with his arms. There was a faint grayness in the air that was reflected from the fallen snow, and there was the tickling rush of flakes in his eyes. When he reached the very opening in the woods where they had admired the tree he turned around and looked carefully up and down the road. Of course he could see nothing, nor was there the faintest tinkle of bells. It was a very lonely spot.

Mr. Philander knew that the strip of woods was private property, and he also knew that he could make it all right with Lake, the owner of the woods, on the following day, as Lake lived four miles away and it was impossible to ask his permission now.

Although Mr. Philander had stated that he could put his hand on the tree in the dark, he found it rather a difficult thing to do after all. He lost himself several times in the dense thickets, and all the tree trunks seemed unfamiliar to his touch. Then, all at once, he emerged from the underbrush, and spicy boughs of pine brushed his face.

"Hit it, by Jove!" he exclaimed. He dug the snow away from the trunk and with a few lusty blows laid the tree low and dragged it trailing through the snow. He lost his bearings once or twice, and finally, at a moment when he almost despaired of reaching home that night, he found himself standing before his own gate.

He carted the tree around to the back door, and with Mrs. Philander's help it was taken into the house and set up in the parlor.

Mr. Philander thawed himself out in front of the kitchen stove and quaffed fragrant coffee that his grateful wife had prepared.

"It is a beauty, James," she said gleefully; "the finest we ever had. How delighted the children will be. I am sorry, though, you are so tired, dear."

"Oh, I'm all right now, Bella," said Philander cheerfully. "I was worried after I found that I had forgotten the tree, but I closed out that deal with Wells today, and I was busy every moment."

"How lovely that you got the contract, James!" cried his wife excitedly. "That is a fine Christmas present for you!"

"You bet your life it is," returned Philander jocosely. "Now let us get the tree ready for the kiddies. Everything handy?"

"There isn't a thing for you to do, dear, save to hang them on the tree," said his wife, leading the way to the lighted parlor, where the tree stood, its symmetrical branches glistening in the light and exuding a fresh balsamic odor.

"By Jove, it is the handsomest tree we ever had!" exclaimed Mr. Philander, surveying the shapely conifer admiringly.

They were soon at work, and presently the beautiful tree blossomed forth in glistening festoons of gold and silver tinsel. A radiant star tipped the highest point, while daintily decorated gifts burdened the branches and were heaped at the base.

It was with unusual satisfaction that the Philanders retired that night. They were loth to leave the resplendent tree, but utter weariness drove them to bed.

It was daylight when the first delighted shriek from a small Philander woke his tired parents. Mr. Philander groaned dismally. He ached from head to foot, and he was sick from lack of sleep. Mrs. Philander was equally tired; but, with the self abnegation of mothers in general and mothers in particular on Christmas morning, she got up and went downstairs to enter into the joys of the happy children.

When Mr. Philander came downstairs to breakfast the children gathered about him eagerly.

"Father," asked Jack, the eldest, "is this the very tree we saw last Sunday when we walked along Turkey hill road? Is this the very tree?"

"Who told you that, Jack?" asked Mr. Philander sharply.

"Oh, mother did. I told her I had seen it somewhere before, and she said it was that very tree."

"I fought Santa Claws bringed it!"

JACK.

wailed Bessie, drugging her new doll remorselessly by its flaxen hair.

"An' I finked it came that way, too!" protested Robin indignantly.

"It's a Santa Claus tree, babies, so don't feel bad about it. Run away and play," said Mr. Philander reassuringly. Then he turned to Jack, "Yes, it's the very same tree, my boy," he said proudly.

"It doesn't look like it, father," said Jack bluntly.

"Doesn't, eh? What's the matter with it?"

"Oh, nothing. It's fine, but it isn't the tree we saw," insisted the boy obstinately.

"Never mind, never mind," returned Mr. Philander good naturedly.

He sought his wife, who was helping Norah with the breakfast. "Our tree was a great success, my dear," he said genially.

"It is beautiful," replied Mrs. Philander happily. "The children are so delighted."

"Well, I'm glad of that. I was telling Taylor yesterday morning going down on the train that Christmas was not Christmas without a tree, and he said that it wouldn't be Christmas at their house, then, for they were not going to have one."

"How strange!" uttered Mrs. Philander. "Why not, pray?"

"Oh, I don't know. He said something about hard times. He said the good, old fashioned Christmas suited them well enough; that they would hang their stockings before the fire and all that, you know."

"Dear, dear! I think the children prefer a tree just the same," said Mrs. Philander regretfully. "Poor little Tommy Taylor! We must invite him over to see the children's tree this afternoon."

"Yes, indeed, that will be an excellent plan. Suppose we invite a few people to spend the evening and enjoy the tree with us. We can put on some small remembrances and have a jolly time," said Philander, warming up to the subject as he proceeded.

"That will be delightful," agreed Mrs. Philander. "Let us ask the Taylors."

"Sure, we'll ask them!" chuckled Philander. "I'll show Taylor the way to keep Christmas."

That afternoon Mrs. Philander busied herself in preparing for the evening's entertainment. The Taylors had accepted gladly, and so had the other invited guests, and Mr. Philander, who was the soul of hospitality, walked about and rubbed his hands with pleasant anticipation.

He made sundry trips to the cellar for apples and cider and cracked great bowls of nuts. He carried in huge arm loads of wood for the fireplace and surveyed the roaring blaze with complacent satisfaction.

It was at that moment that Jack Philander burst noisily in. "Oh, father, what do you think"— he began breathlessly.

"Well, my boy, what is it now?" asked Mr. Philander indulgently as he warmed his coattails comfortably.

"I heard Mr. Taylor telling some men that somebody chopped down the tree from his front lawn last night!"

"What tree?" asked Mr. Philander absently.

"Why, that tree—you know, the Norway pine that stood on their front lawn!"

"What a pity," exclaimed Mrs. Philander. "Mrs. Taylor told me it was the pride of her husband's heart."

"How did it happen, Jack?" asked Philander, with interest.

"Mr. Taylor said his wife heard some one chopping about half past 11 last night, but she didn't think anything of it, and this morning they found the tree was gone—only the stump left."

"That's very strange," observed Mr. Philander. "Hard luck for Taylor."

"And, father," continued Jack earnestly, "I was in the woods on Turkey hill road today and that little tree we saw last Sunday is there yet. You didn't cut it down. I knew that one wasn't it!"

Mr. Philander paled slightly.

"Why, father," pursued the terrible Jack with a directness born of sudden revelation, "this is Mr. Taylor's tree! I knew I'd seen it before!"

Mr. Philander shrank from their horrified gaze.

"The Taylors will be here in a few minutes, James," said Mrs. Philander coldly.

"My dear, I must have got turned around in the storm, but the Lord only knows how I got in Taylor's yard."

"It's on the other side of the woods, father," said Jack sympathetically, "and I guess you walked right through and into Mr. Taylor's yard."

"I must have done that," groaned Mr Philander. Then with sudden inspiration he stripped the tree of its ornaments and candles and carried it through the house into the back yard. He scratched a match, and in five minutes the Philander Christmas tree was a charred ruin.

"Too bad, old chap," said Taylor commiseratively as Philander agitatedly explained the absence of the tree. "That's one reason why I don't believe in Christmas trees. They are apt to take fire, and there you are. I am glad it happened before we arrived!"

"So am I," ejaculated Mr. Philander.

But all the little Philanders agree that it was the most beautiful Christmas tree they ever had.

WHAT A GLORIOUS TONE!

When famous pianists and great singers come to Canada, their first consideration is the choice of a piano.

When they hear the New Scale Williams, their natural exclamation is "What a glorious tone!"

As a consequence, the leading artists of the old and new world use the New Scale Williams on their Canadian tours.

The favorite of musicians is likewise the favorite in the homes. In every part of the Dominion, the New Scale Williams Piano is held in highest esteem.

If there is a new piano to be bought this season, see the New Scale Williams at The J. M. Greene Music Co., L'td., Opera House Block, Peterborough.

Humor In a Hymn Book.

Most people are aware that the new Anglican Hymn Book, the Book of Common Praise, is now coming into use, but not so many have heard of the annotated edition, compiled by Mr. James Edmund Jones, a Toronto barrister, the convener and secretary of the compilation committee. The notes appended to each hymn deal with its history, the biography of the writer, and particularly the various readings of the hymn itself. It appears that very few well-known hymns have survived in their original form. Sometimes the author himself has changed them, but more often various readings are devised by editors, both for doctrinal and literary reasons. Some of the expressions used by the older hymn writers were more forcible than beautiful. For example, in Toplady's "Rock of Ages," the line "When mine eyelids close in death," which has been tinkered a good deal by editors, appeared in the original as "When my eyestrings break in death."

The well-known hymn for Palm Sunday, "All glory, laud and honor to Thee, Redeemer, King," is from a long Latin hymn ascribed to Theodolph, Bishop of Orleans, A.D. 821. The hymn is obviously based on the story of Our Lord's entry into Jerusalem, riding upon an ass, and His reception by the children. Only the first twelve lines of the original are represented in the modern version, but up to the seventeenth century the following remarkable stanza was included:

Be Thou, O Lord, the rider,
And we the little ass,
That to God's holy city,
Together we may pass.
Fancy a congregation singing that!

Area Under Corn.

A report on corn-growing, just issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, contains an article by Prof. C. A. Zavitz of the Ontario Agricultural College, in which he points out that there are 533,433 acres devoted to corn-growing in the province. Of this acreage, more than one-half is located in the Counties of Essex, Kent, Middlesex, Elgin, Lambton and Oxford. Essex and Kent produce the greatest quantities of corn for husking and Oxford and Middlesex the greatest amount for the silo. The market value of the corn crop in Essex and Kent, according to the latest report, was $3,200,556 in 1907.

Have Notable Record.

Residents of Bowmanville feel that the "King's bounty" or some other royal recognition is due Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Dilling of that place.

Thirteen years ago, on Dec. 23, they were married, and on the King's Birthday they were blessed with their sixth child. The others are named Lloyd, Ray, Rorce, Nina and Fern. Ray was born on May 24, the late Queen's birthday, during Her Majesty's lifetime. Rorce was one of The Toronto World's Leap-year babies of 1904. Fern was born on Nov. 9 last year.

Canadian Marriage Laws.

Mrs. O. C. Edwards of Macleod, Alberta, has compiled a book showing the legal status of women in Canada. One injustice to which Mrs. Edwards calls attention is that according to the laws of Canada the father owns the child and decides as to its education, religion, domicile, etc. The consent of the father alone is required in regard to the marriage of a minor daughter. In one case in the province of Quebec, according to Mrs. Edwards, a father gave his twelve-year-old daughter as a wife to a comrade of his who was over forty.

The GAGE of BATTLE

THE DAY OF THE DUEL
(A True Story)

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

HE sat upon the headland, watching the long blue ranks of waves shoulder in from the Antarctic Sea to spray in thunder beneath him. The steady breath of the wind, pure and chill as the cheeks of the ice ranges whence it came, kept the streaming smoke of the whaler which was boiling down blubber in the little cove well to leeward. Though safe from the odorous folds of that ragged black banner he glanced uneasily from time to time toward the spot where the vessel lay concealed, as if constantly and unpleasantly reminded of its presence.

His shifting gaze gave him an appearance of alert attention, but he did not notice a figure that was slowly ascending the headland at his back. He started when the figure hailed him from the lower terrace of the rock.

"Ahoy there!" the newcomer called cheerily. "How'd you get up? Regular old bird roost, so far's I can see."

The man on the rock turned and looked down at the stranger who thus intruded upon his privacy. He saw a young fellow in rough seaman's garb, powerfully built, his face burned with exposure and his hat perched rakishly at one side of a tangled thatch of light hair. A bizarre note was added to his attire by a full, bright green silk handkerchief which he wore knotted loosely about his throat.

The man on the rock, without answering the query in words, pointed a precarious way near where the other stood. The newcomer gauged it quickly, nodded, and after a stiff pull dragged himself up to the flat summit. "A rare lookout, mate," he announced, sweeping the view with appreciative eye. "Sort of private observatory, eh?" he added, inspecting his silent companion with frank curiosity. The appearance of the man on the rock justified the scrutiny. Tall, thin and dark, he was dressed in a nondescript collection of tattered garments. In place of boots he wore woven grass sandals, and his trousers had been cut off at the knee, apparently to check progressive fraying. The abbreviation gave him a comic air of immaturity that his sullen, bearded face belied.

"How did you know I was here?" he returned, with a quick flash of suspicion. His speech was oddly precise.

"Why, if you come to that, the Maori boys down at the village said there was a white man in these parts and told me where I'd likely find him. You see, whaling for eight months kind of makes a chap sour on the crew he's with, and when we do make port, why, even a graven image is good company."

"You don't talk like a sailor," said the other, without noticing the allusion to his own distant welcome.

"Nor you like a cannibal tribesman," snapped the stranger, "and still that's the part you're cast in. However, I am a sailor, though I haven't always been a whaler. There's no mystery about me. I'm George Dibble, one time midshipman, U. S. N. now harpooner on the steamship Caesar. That's all. If you've got any questions to ask, don't." And he tilted his hat at the opposite angle and glared defiantly.

Each Was In Error.

The direct, outspoken manner of Dibble seemed to lift some shadow from the sombre face of the man on the rock. "I'd be the last one in the world to ask questions," he said, with a jerky little laugh. "I was afraid that was what you were after. Every stranger I've seen in these parts for four years has taken me for an escaped convict and had visions of a reward."

"I don't blame them," said Dibble, bluntly. "The only difference between me and the others is that I don't care a continental damn whether you're a convict or not."

"Well, I'm not," said the man on the rock.

"All right," grinned Dibble, "that lifts no burden from me. My only emotion is relief at finding you've a tongue in your head. But you'll admit that white men don't usually camp out on the southern coast of New Zealand from choice. And four years! Good Lord!"

"It's not any queerer than your being on a whaler," answered the other with a show of spirit.

Dibble frowned, then grinned again. "You touched me there, my son. We'll start even again. What do they call you around here? Man with Pants, or White Chief, or what?"

"If you want my name it's Edward Lundy. I'm a Canadian," said the man on the rock quietly.

Dibble laughed, displaying strong, sharp teeth. "For generosity in purely gratuitous information we run a close race," he said. "If I felt as you evidently do I'd take to the hills. What makes you linger?"

"Why—I suppose——" said Lundy, hesitatingly, with his jerky little laugh. "I guess I rather like some one."

"Want to talk," nodded Dibble. "Yes, I can understand that, all right enough. I feel the same way myself. Well, here we are, both satisfied. I'm on liberty to-night to see the birds and paint the town red. Can't you take me around and show me the sights?"

"Of course," said Lundy, who had thawed under the advances of his new acquaintance. "There's not much here. But have you ever eaten a Maori meal or seen poi dances?"

"Not I," said Dibble. "I've got too much respect for your friends to break in on their society without being properly introduced. I suppose it'll be all right with you to vouch for me, though, eh?"

"Oh, they're all right," laughed Lundy. "They're very friendly since here. The wild tribes are up in the mountains and back to the north. Would you like to come up to the place and take dinner with me?"

"Going to have much company?" asked Dibble, with a keen glance.

"There'll only be my wife."

"Ah," said Dibble. He paused a moment, then went on carelessly, "Well, I don't know whether my mate can get out my dress suit or not. You'll pardon me if he can't. I'll be on the beach about dark. Must be going now. Goodby, old chap." He lowered himself to the footholds in the rock and dropped easily to the lower terrace. With a parting wave he scrambled down to the ground and strode away.

His Native Wife.

Lundy was waiting on the shore of the cove at the appointed time. He led Dibble through the little settlement, where the flashing of fires through fragrant smoke betoken the preparation of the evening meal. He continued to a hut higher up the hill, in a sheltered nook, and entered. Dibble followed boldly. The dwelling was built with some pretension to comfort and boasted a rough stone fireplace. In front of this a woman was crouching.

"My wife, Too-ora," said Lundy briefly.

The woman at the hearth stood up. Dibble had been conscious of an intense curiosity to see the partner in the joys and sorrows of his strange acquaintance. But he lost it now in admiration. Straight and slender as a young tree, Too-ora turned proud, lustrous eyes upon the visitor. Her skin was a soft, warm brown, almost a copper, and Dibble thought instantly of the handsome women among the American Indians.

The straight, black hair, braided in two heavy strands, bore out the resemblance, but Too-ora was more beautiful than any Sioux or Chippewa girl he had ever seen. Her skirt of twisted grass strips served to accentuate the smooth, subtle curves of her limbs. About her shoulders she had thrown a thick, crimson fabric, that lay gracefully to her figure and left one purely moulded arm free. Dibble's blood tingled in him as he gazed upon her and it was with a distinct effort that he recovered the ease to return her murmured greeting with "Madam, I am honored in making your acquaintance."

Nor did the stiff drawing room phrase seem odd when once spoken. He could have framed no other address to such a magnificent and queenly hostess. The remark he made to himself was, "This accounts for part of the four years."

She withdrew immediately and Dibble followed her with his eyes to the last second. He turned to find Lundy watching him.

After the meal of fish and herbs Lundy led his guest to the carved council hall in the middle of the settlement and they saw the poi dance, in which the young native women participated. Dibble was the more content because Too-ora was present, and he had full opportunity to observe her. None of the others handled the twirling pois—little bags of rushes held by strings in each hand—with grace or dexterity approaching her own. Her lithe, supple body flashed in the red glare of the torches as she moved and swung to the rhythm of the chant. While yielding to the spirit of the dance with a sinuous grace that made his veins sing, she was restrained and indulged in no wild, impetuous gestures, as did her sisters. He noticed, too, that her face bore none of the disfiguring tattoo marks which marked all except the youngest girls.

On the way back to the hut Dibble noticed that Lundy had retired again to his barrier of suspicious reserve, and he divined the cause. It was not strange that a man who had a gem like Too-ora should be uneasy when any other approached her. But Dibble was not the one to play at hidden intrigue.

"Fine woman, your wife," said Dibble, avowing his admiration frankly. "I hope you don't think me a beast for staring at her that way. You've got to allow something for a man who hasn't seen land for nearly a year."

When they had settled with a bottle of Hollands by the fire Lundy warmed once more, and their session lasted far into the night. Softened by the liquor and the unwonted excitement of company the host became confidential. He came at length to the story of Too-ora, telling it with mingled diffidence and pride.

NEITHER SHOWING A TRACE OF FEAR.

"You've noticed that she's different," he said. "She came from one of the wild tribes far back to the north. I went there under safe conduct from the chiefs, bartering muskets and cloth for carved work and native weapons. She was the daughter of Ti Whoyao, the ruler of a small but warlike nation, and when I came back she came with me. We were pursued for miles by her father and by her promised husband, Karatoa, but escaped through the friendship of tribes nearer the coast which were then at war with Ti Whoyao.

"I have since received messages from her father saying that if I would consent to have her lips and forehead tattooed with the marks that indicate a married woman he would consider me his friend and son. As it is he does not regard her as my legitimate wife. I refused."

The Lure of the Woman.

"Naturally," cried Dibble, who had also mellowed under the Hollands. "What? Place the hideous blemish of black and blue rings and scrolls upon that precious pearl!"

"You find her beautiful, then?" asked Lundy, with a shift of his dark eyes.

"Beyond compare the most beautiful woman of a savage race I have ever seen."

Lundy seemed to dwell upon the words a moment, then he rose, a little unsteadily. "I have some business with the chief of the village," he said. "If your shore leave has not expired I should be glad to have you wait here for me."

"Thanks," laughed Dibble, reaching for the bottle. "I have all night. We leave early in the morning. I'll try to get along with this for company."

Lundy left the hut, and Dibble sat at the table with the bottle at his elbow. The fire, replenished by Lundy as he stepped out, lighted the place with a flickering, fantastic radiance. Dibble, his imagination inflamed by the events of the day, stared about the room. The ruddy gleam of the fire brought up the poi dance once more before his vision. How swift and sure and strong had been the play of that rounded form! How softly that wondrous skin had flashed under the torches! How the direct glance of those great, proud eyes had thrilled him!

There was a faint, rasping rustle of grass plaits, and he looked up to find her there.

He scrambled to his feet and bowed, offering her the other chair. "I am charmed, madam," he said. It was plain she knew no word of English, but she took the chair, smiling and nodding prettily. She had her crimson shawl about her again, and Dibble wasting about for some way of making himself agreeable and reminded of the native love for gaud and display, took from his pocket a little glass necklace which he had brought ashore. This he presented to her.

It required much gesturing to convince her that the gorgeous thing was really a gift. When she understood, with great animation she indicated that he should fasten it in place himself. He stood over her and passed the necklace about her neck. His hand touched the warm, live skin. She looked up at him confidently, a little smile on her full lips. His eyes sought hers with sudden intentness and his hand trembled against her shoulder. She did not draw back.

Then, suddenly, he did not quite know how or why, he straightened himself, gripped his will and forced away the raging impulse to crush her in his arms. Perhaps it was the simple, childlike trust she showed, perhaps a momentary qualm, perhaps a thought of Lundy—he could not tell—and while he quickly fastened the ornament and resumed his seat he went so far as to argue against it. Even according to Maori custom Lundy was not her husband. Surely one taste of those ready lips might be his and no harm done. He laughed abruptly under the whip of the struggle and poured out some Hollands into a pannikin.

"Your health, madam," he said, as she continued to nod and smile. "At last! I may propose your health. To the belle of the islands!"

As he tossed off the drink Lundy glided in at the door. Too-ora vanished at a single move of his head and he advanced to the table. There was a stranger glitter in his eyes than yet seen there and a heartier smile on his face. He poured himself a drink in his turn and his words had a ring to them as he said, "To you, Dibble. To the fortune beaten wanderer who is still a gentleman and a friend."

Dibble stared at him and as he stared his mind took another leap. Lundy had seen and heard. Lundy had watched. Lundy probably had never more than stepped outside the door. A conception of this strange

OPPOSED TO TARIFF

Labor Member of British Commons for Bristol Addresses Meeting at Melbourne, Australia, In Which He Says None of the Colonies He Has Visited Will Accept an Imperial Tariff System.

London, Dec. 13.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—According to a Melbourne cable to The Chronicle, Will Crooks, the Bristol Labor M.P., speaking of the preference question cry, said "The colonial preference question is laughed to scorn wherever I have been. When it is mentioned that the preference will raise the price of food, Canadians and New Zealanders, and so far as I have gone, Australians, have emphatically declined to accept any preferential system, having such an effect. They indignantly refuse to have anything to do with any scheme which would increase the price of food to the masses of Great Britain."

Austin Chamberlain, addressing his constituents at Birchley, made a searching criticism of Mr. Asquith's speech at Albert Hall. There was not, said Mr. Chamberlain, a word about the question which, to those scanning the Empire as a whole, loomed largest amongst all the great political issues. There was not a word about the question of imperial union or the methods by which closer intercourse and friendship could be fostered.

An alliance between ourselves and our kinsmen beyond the seas might be promoted through tariff reform. Reformers of the tariff were ready to take that step forward. They knew what the next step was and they invited the electors to march along that line with them. But the Prime Minister had not a word to say on that greatest of all Imperial questions, the one which was most vital to the future power and influence of our race.

WAS SENT UP FOR TRIAL

Victor Fowler, Charged With Having Committed Perjury in Recent Police Court, Had Preliminary Hearing on Saturday.

WAS GRANTED BAIL

Victor Fowler was committed for trial by Magistrate Dumble at the police court on Saturday afternoon. He was arraigned on a charge of having committed perjury in a case against the proprietor of the Oriental Hotel for the illicit sale of liquor. It was stated that he swore that he did not receive anything to drink from the bar on Sunday night, November 21st, whereas in truth he did. The witnesses heard on Saturday were Chief Rossel, P. C. Newhall, and P. C. Meharry.

Fowler will come up for trial before Judge Huycke, at the December sessions which open to-morrow at one o'clock.

Ship's Yawl With Nine Dead Men Adrift On Lake Erie

Some of the Men of the Ill-Fated Bessemer Frozen to Death—Eight of Them Were Sitting Upright in the Small Boat, the Other Was Frozen to the Bottom—Had Hurriedly Manned the Boat.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 13.—With flag at half-mast, the state fisheries boat, Commodore Perry, brought to this port late yesterday the dead and frozen bodies of nine men of the crew of the Bessemer & Marquette Ferry No. 2, which left Conneaut, Ohio, Tuesday morning, carrying 32 men, and which has evidently foundered in the middle of Lake Erie. The yawl was found 75 miles from this port.

Eight of the men were sitting up in the boat, their life-preservers strapped about their shoulders. The ninth man lay at the bottom of the boat, frozen to the slat flooring. The faces of the men were bloated. Their clothes were heavy with frozen water.

News of the finding of the bodies had reached the city before the Perry arrived, and thousands of persons swarmed the wharves. When the fish boat made fast, a force of men with tackle immediately set to work raising the bodies of the men to the dock, when they were conveyed to the morgue, followed by hundreds of persons.

Conneaut, Ohio, where all the dead men lived, was notified by telephone of the gruesome find, and a hundred residents of that city arrived here within two hours. They were taken directly to the morgue, where the following identifications were made:

H. Thomas, a second cook, Port Stanley, and Wm. Ray, J. W. Souers, waiters; G. R. Smith, steward; F. Steele, fireman; J. Schenck, fireman; J. Hart, oiler; — O'Hagan, Charles Allen, all of Conneaut, Ohio.

Thomas, the cook, was the only man who had worn an overcoat. The eight bodies were dressed in overalls and jumpers, indicating that the departure from the car ferry had been hurried. In the bow end of the boat was found complete clothing for one man, and it is the belief that the yawl originally contained ten men and that one becoming crazed, had discarded his clothing and jumped into the icy waters of Lake Erie.

Albert J. Weis of this city, treasurer of the Keystone Fish Co., and the Bay State Dock Works, was a passenger on the ill-fated boat.

The fate of the car ferry is thus conjectured: That the heavy sea broke the key which held the cars in place, and, weighted heavy with coal, they raced to the stern of the boat, overcoming her keel. She probably turned turtle and sank without a minute's warning.

At Conneaut, Ohio, a public funeral service in remembrance of the victims will be held. Among the dead are Capt. McLeod, with relatives at Kincardine, Ont., his former home, his brother, who was first mate, and lived at Courtwright, Ont.; Harry Thomas, and Roy Hine of Port Stanley, Ont.; John King, Aylmer, Ont., and John King, London, Ont.

Heard Distress Whistles.

Port Stanley, Dec. 13.—Several residents at Port Stanley said yesterday that about five o'clock on Wednesday morning they heard the distress whistles of a steamer now thought to have been the Bessemer, which would be from one to ten miles out in the lake.

A heavy northwest gale was blowing. It is supposed that in turning the ferry got caught in the trough of the sea, and that the cars on board broke loose.

It is said that Capt. McLeod expected some day that the Bessemer would go down. It is said that she was top-heavy. She rolled terribly in an ordinary storm.

One day last summer she came into port with quite a sea on. The Bessemer was then rolling very badly. Capt. Walter Smith of London, who knew Capt. McLeod well, spoke of this to the commander and asked what caused it.

"My load is on the hurricane deck," said Capt. McLeod, "not where it should be. That is what causes the rolling."

"If we were caught in a heavy sea and the cars shifted, a man would not have time to put on his hat until she would be on the bottom. She would go down like a shot."

Lock Works Will Increase Output And Employ More Men

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Caley, of New Britain, Con., have arrived in the city and are staying at the Oriental Hotel. Mr. Caley has been appointed works manager of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing company, and assumed his duties this morning. It is the intention of the Peterborough Company to greatly enlarge its facilities for the manufacturing of locks, and it is the intention of the board of directors to double its output. To permit of this there will be a considerable expenditure in the way of increased buildings, machinery and workmen.

Ald. Morrow Has Decided To Be A Candidate For Mayoralty

Ald. George W. Morrow announced this afternoon that he would be a candidate for the Mayoralty at the coming municipal elections. About two weeks ago a number of prominent citizens waited on him requesting that he present himself for the vacancy in the Mayor's chair. The deputation being a representative one, Ald. Morrow did not give them an answer then, but asked for time to think the matter over. The result is as stated above and he is the first candidate in the field for that position. While there have been rumours as to possible opponents none have yet announced themselves. Ald. Morrow, during the past year, has been Finance Minister, as his fellow aldermen designate the chairmanship of the Finance Committee.

Mr. Jos. Soucie Takes Charge of the One Formerly Carried on by Mr. J. R. Sherwood.

Mr. Joseph Soucie has taken over the business formerly carried on by Mr. J. R. Sherwood at the old Frost and Wood stand on Water street. The shop has beeen thoroughly renovated, the walls having been repainted and a new office has been fitted up. Mr. Soucie has a large stock, including harness, trunks, suit cases and valises sleighs and horse blankets. His stock is all new and he purchased $4,000 worth of harness at an exceptional advantage, and he is in a position to sell at exceedingly low prices.

Mr. Soucie still retains the agency for Frost & Wood implements. His many friends join in wishing him every success in his new enterprise.

AGAIN REMANDED FOR TWO DAYS

Charles Deligne, charged with the theft of an overcoat from Harold Fowler, in September last, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning. Mr. A. P. Poussette, K.C., appeared for the prisoner, and Crown Attorney E. E. Wood conducted the prosecution. Some evidence was taken but the case was enlarged for another couple of days to allow the defence to secure a witness.

ICE AT AUDITORIUM

Manager Hurtubise Makes a Bid For the City Hockey League Games.

Manager Hurtubise, of the Auditorium Roller Rink intends to have ice skating there this winter, and will make a bid for the patronage of the skating and hockey public. Mr. Hurtubise announces that he will have a big surface and seating accommodation for 800 people. He has made an offer to the City Hockey League to have that body play its matches on Auditorium ice and the City League will consider the matter at its next meeting, which will likely be held early next week.

ICE SKATING ON WEDNESDAY

Brock Street Rink Will Open for the Winter Season Then If the Weather Is Favourable.

The management of the Brock Street Rink is making arrangements for the opening of the ice skating season, and if the weather man is favourable there will be skating there on Wednesday night of this week. Had it not been for Saturday's race there would have been skating and hockey practice last week, as the weather was all that could be desired. Last year the rink was opened on December 11. To-day the floor is being covered with a water proof material, and if the weather permits will be flooded to-night or to-morrow morning. With the floor in the rink it will not take long to get ice, as it is not necessary to build it up, as has been the case in other years.

A HEAVY FINE WAS IMPOSED

Hotelkeeper Fined Two Hundred Dollars and Costs for Illicit Liquor Selling—Judgment Given This Morning.

WILL APPEAL THE CASE

For selling liquor during prohibited hours, the proprietor of the Oriental Hotel was fined two hundred dollars and costs, amounting to $204.20, by Magistrate Dumble, at the police court this morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared in the interests of the defendant, and on hearing the judgment he stated that he would appeal it.

In giving his judgment his Worship said that the evidence was very contradictory. The witnesses for the defence had denied point blank the evidence of the prosecution. "I place implicit reliance on the evidence of the prosecution," remarked the Magistrate, "and I therefore find the accused guilty."

City Clerk S. R. Armstrong gave evidence as to it being the second conviction, the first one being on the 27th of May, 1908. The above fine was then imposed.

CANADA'S STAND.

President Taft of the United States, while speaking in a generally conciliatory and moderate term of the fiscal relations between Canada and the United States remarks that the maximum schedule features of the United States tariff is a lever with which to secure, by friendly arrangement, the elimination of discriminating action on the part of other countries. President Taft may have had in his mind the Canadian pulp wood situation, which occupies so much space at times in the minds of some of our neighbours, but he will probably find that it will require a lever of more Archimedean proportions than a maximum tariff provision to lift Canada out of the position she has assumed, and will continue to occupy, in relation to keeping for Canadians the greatest possible advantage and benefit from the possession and utilization of her immense pulp wood resources. In that respect we have a "maximum" of our own, which, if rightly used, is capable of exercising no inconsiderable leverage to our advantage.

CHRISTMAS TIDE COOPERATION

There is considerable activity at present in emphasizing the evils that result from the intemperate use of strong drink, upon which there is a general agreement of opinion. In connection with this is a proposal for the adoption of measures to minimize the evil and the question of its efficacy is where the trend of opinion diverges. In so far as the means proposed, promise to reach the result aimed at they are deserving of success, whatever the outcome, the benefit, if any, is in the future. There is need for immediate action in affording relief of suffering, not only that which results from the abuse of strong drink, but from other causes. No matter what causes human suffering or deprivation, or destitution, these conditions themselves appeal to human sympathy and action. While the more favoured and more fortunate of the community are called upon to consider in a general and continuously effective way, relief of the suffering that comes with the severe weather of winter, we are all called upon to make special provision for gladdening the hearts of the destitute and badly-provided for at the season of universal good will, the Christmas season. While the King's Daughters and other organized charitable movements in connection with the churches do much, their action does not relieve the general community from responsibility. If citizens generally would constitute themselves an individual relief committee for their street or neighbourhood, and make even a little careful investigation, many cases would be revealed which, from various causes, escape the notice of the organized charities. These are all splendidly well in their way, and do a very commendable and considerable work in the relief of the distress, but admirable as is their way, gently and kindly as their ministrations are made, they bear too much the suggestion of pauperism—of charity, in the less noble sense of the word. If every citizen, able in the matter of means, does his or her duty in the individual way suggested, it will come as individual charity to the recipient of their kindness, and take on more the nature of the neighbourly acts such as citizens and neighbours in no need of assistance, are, for motives of neighbourly kindness, accustomed to exchange. If the idea were adopted, if everybody, in a position to do so, would set to work in his or her own way, guided by the simple impulses of kindness, it would make the Christmas season glad for many. For there aremany who without such action as suggested, have but a sombre look out for even a brief Christmas tide of sufficient feeding and comfort, not to speak of the luxuries which custom associates with the season. If this were done there would be, in the aggregate, such a general dissemination of Christmas gladness as the city has not known and cannot know apart from each individual doing his or her duty in this regard. It only needs a little thoughtfulness, a little self sacrifice which would be no sacrifice to the heart in tune with generous influences, and the expense which would be next to nothing if everybody possible shared in the work, would be an investment, yielding large dividends in results heightening the joy of service. Christmas is not far away and there will be none too much time for planning and doing so good a work.

WHERE RESPONSIBILITY LIES.

The unrest and periodical outbreaks in the small republics of this hemisphere lead one to the idea that there is something inherently wrong in their constitution. But this does not seem to be the fact. These republics would probably be all right—in their way—if they were left alone. There is reason to believe that most of the disturbances, revolutions and internal upheavals in these little republics are stirred up by outsiders—filibustering persons from the United States, who stir up strife, under stipulations which will yield them material advantage in the form of valuable concessions. There is not much risk of mistake in asserting that the two United States "subjects," who were shot by President Zelaya of the Nicaraguan republic, were men of this class—mere dynamitards like the men who blew up a lock on the Welland Canal, for which they are now in the penitentiary. There is little doubt, too, that they caused the dynamite explosion which resulted in great loss of property and life, and for which their death was the penalty. We find the United States proposing to wield the "big stick," to arrest President Zelaya, and presumably to summarily punish him. Yet, the Nicaran, guans, in punishing the criminals, who had committed an outrage, only showed similar resentment to that which found expression in "Remember the Maine" at the beginning of the Spanish-American war. The United States is big enough to take a big view of the situation. If it permits, or, at least, does not prevent, the scum of its citizens from infesting and invading foreign countries with which it is at peace, as was done in the time of the Fenian Raid in 1866, it should not hold the sufferers responsible and amenable to punishment. The two "American subjects" got what they probably deserved in primary, perhaps, promoting a revolution, and later committing a murderous outrage.

CANADA AS AN INVESTMENT FIELD.

Canada as an investment field is attracting increased attention. The Ottawa Free Press has received a letter from a prominent Wall Street financier, stating that he would like to become interested in promoting and financing some good water power and electric company, and asking information in this regard. Such inquiries derive their chief importance, perhaps, from the fact that they show what faith outsiders have in this country, a suggestion to Canadians to show a similar confidence. Foreign capital is welcome as an agency in the promotion of enterprises of large cost, but in a great number of cases Canadian capital is sufficient and available for local enterprises. Peterborough is interested in the acquisition of increased water power for electrical development. If we meet the success expected and possible from a definite policy of publicity; if the present access of energy and enthusiasm continue, and be translated into action we shall, before long, need increase of power if we are to have any to supply the wants of increasing manufacturers. Abundant and cheap electric power is the magnet that attracts industrial enterprise. The acquirement of power possibility either at Burleigh, where the new dam will largely increase it, or down the river or both, should not be beyond the financial resources of Peterborough. Capital devoted to such a purpose would not be a mere expenditure, but a most promising investment. It would constitute the city's stock-in-trade in the work of industrial development in Peterborough. The competition of the Trent Canal is approaching. We should be prepared to cooperate with its decided advantages in the way of transportation, this will mean, by providing the other of the two chief essentials of attractiveness to manufacturing industries seeking a home.

THE BUDGET.

Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, will on Tuesday next in the House of Commons, bring down the budget, and it seems certain that it will be one of the most noteworthy in the history of Canada. It is expected that it will not only reveal the largest volume of revenue, but the surplus will perhaps be the largest that has ever accompanied a budget presentation. This indicates that the country is commercially prosperous, which means general prosperity, for a generous customs revenue means large ability to buy on the part of the people generally. If the policy and practice of the Liberal government has not directly produced results like these, it must be admitted that they have generously contributed to it, and if the incredulous refuse to admit even this much, the fact is incontestably certain that prosperity and progress, have uniformly accompanied the administrative course of the government. The people of the country, without too closely analysing causes, will not fail to appreciate and accept the fact of this prosperity and progress and accord the government a due share of credit. The abounding revenue, directly traceable to the prosperity of the people will permit the government to continue its policy of expenditure with a view of providing the machinery of natural growth in advancing the great schemes of the enlargement, extension and improvement of transportation, in this country of widely extended space, the indispensable essential to national development. Whatever disposition may be made of the large revenue available, it is certain that it will be liberally devoted to productive purposes. Whether the proposal of enlargement and deepening of the Welland canal will receive immediate practical attention, it is a fact that the government is most kindly disposed to it. The rapid development of grain production in the west, due to rapid settlement, gives urgency to the transportation question, and the government in the immediate future as it has done in the past will do its duty by the interests concerned and by the country at large.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Have the City Council or the Board of Trade got an option yet on a candidate suitable for a publicity commissioner?

Since 1896 nine commissions have been appointed to inquire into the conditions and requirements of Canadian fisheries. The total cost has $5,534.76, a small sum considering the importance of Canadian fisheries which last year amounted in value to more than twenty-five million dollars, and the enquiries of the commissions elicited important information and suggestion which, carried out, resulted in great additional advantages and improved returns.

With a hope, no doubt, of uncovering a small scandal a question was asked in the House on Thursday, by whose authority the battery soldiers at Kingston "posed" for films for the moving picture, "The Girl Scout," exhibited at the Princess theatre, Peterborough, recently. The men voluntarily took part in the posing, and [illegible]d 75c each time they turned were paid by the Company producing the out by the [illegible] the men were paid an films. In all [illegible]en $65 and $75.

The wave of prohibition in the United States has overflowed [illegible] areas. Yet statistics show the consumption in the past ten years the consumption of liquor has increased in the United States from 17.37 per head to 23.[illegible] gallons per head. Does this prove anything? Assuming that prohibition prohibited, that is that the habit sensibly diminished the drink prevails, in the areas over which it [illegible], where it proves that in the districts must have it does not prevail there is liquor consumption, which might have been a decided increase in [illegible] not a reason to prohibition states have prohibitory instrictive if not entirely prevented from facts like influence been exerted. From eternal controversy these both sides to the arguments to may deduce their bias.

OUR POOR LITTLE TRUST.

Canadian "trusts" [illegible] are a poor imitation of the genuine article, according to United States standards. There are some who see in the formation of the Canadian Cement merger a danger that this country is coming under the sinister domination of the "trust" evil, and no end of pity is lavished on the cement consumer, who, it is feared, will be ground between the upper and nether millstone of the cement trust. But, if the evil threatens, it assumes a very mild form, comparatively, according to a dispatch from New York to the Globe, Hartford, Connecticut. This dispatch thus "pokes fun" at our little "trust":

Trust kings here have enjoyed a quiet chuckle of late over a report emanating from Canada that a cement trust is being formed across the border. The merriment is not due to pleasure over an addition to the ranks, but rather to the conviction that if the cement merger be cited as an example, our neighbours across the line do not know a trust when they see one.

Although the Canadian organisation is a $30,000,000 affair, according to reports, it fails except in size to qualify with a single characteristic of trusts as they have been developed in this country. In every detail it presents the antithesis of American trust methods, as is shown by the fact that its net earnings amount to more than six times the interest on the bond issue and to half a million dollars more than the interest on all its obligations. Furthermore, although the consumption of cement in Canada has doubled in the last four years, the price is now 10 per cent. lower than the average for the last five years. In these two essential features the Canadian combination is about as far removed from the ideas of a trust in this country as can well be imagined.

If this be a trust let Canada make the most of it, is the sentiment expressed by men who are busy with the rumoured billion dollar copper machine, the telephone and telegraph merger and other almost equally large deals. While from the Wall street point of view, Canada is hopelessly behind the times in being without a trust, she is not likely to get out of the old-fashioned class in this respect, if the so-called cement merger be taken as a sample.

It is a little humiliating to be talked about in this somewhat flippant tone of patronage. There is, however, this comfort, that those who know what a real trust is and the oppressive energy it contains, regard the Canadian cement merger as a trifling danger. We shall have to wait a little while to see whether or not the cement merger will apply the crushing capacity test to the Canadian consumer of cement.

WORK WAS APPRECIATED

Architect of Salvation Army Barracks Praises Efforts of J. J. Shadgett.

The following letter from Adjutant Stitt, the architect who had charge of the plans for the improvements to the local Salvation Army citadel, is self explanatory:

Mr. Shadgett, care of Mr. Trew, 560 Bolivar St., Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—(Re alterations) I would like to drop you this little personal note, thanking you for the care and attention you have paid to your part of the work in connection with the above.

The way in which the work has been done and the trouble you have taken I am sure have been amply repaid by the vast improvement made in the building itself.

It must be very gratifying to you, and I am sure will meet with the approval of all who see it.

Praying God to bless you abundantly.

Yours sincerely,
F. W. STITT,
Architect.

CHAPS, COLD SORES AND ROUGH RED SKIN

Zam-Buk will give you speedy relief. It works while you sleep. Apply it to the sore places just before retiring and by morning it will have done its healing work.

Cold cracks are highly dangerous as well as painful. The air is full of germs and cold cracks simply invite them to invade the system. Once having gained a lodgment they may then produce inflammation, gatherings, or even blood poisoning. Besides, there is all the pain! Zam-Buk is highly antiseptic. Kills the disease germs, stops the pain, and heals. Fifty cents per box, all Stores and Druggists, or post-free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Nothing "just as good," although imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

Blacksmithing and Woodworking Business For Sale

The undersigned offers for sale his blacksmithing and woodworking business, situated on the side line between Peterborough and Norwood at Jermyn P. O. The blacksmith shop building is two stories, 25 x 42, with cement floor and cement forge. The upper story is the full size of the blacksmith shop (25x42). Attached to the blacksmith shop is the post office building, which may be entered from the blacksmith shop. Adjoining is a first class brick dwelling, with frontage 18 and 32 feet, with kitchen. It is an L-shaped house with cement cellar. Also verandah and beautiful lawn. There is a good stable with cement floor, three stalls, with straw barn attached. The land comprises one half acre. This is one of the best blacksmith stands in the County of Peterborough. The farmers all patronize this shop. My reason for giving up business on account of having one of my legs frostured I am unable to continue the shoeing. For further particulars, write to

A Million for a New Stomach

It is said that Mr. Rockefeller, one of the world's richest men, offered one million dollars to any physician who would make his stomach strong enough to digest an ordinary meal. With all his money, this multimillionaire is compelled to live on milk and crackers.

What a warning this is to men and women who are beginning to realise that "they have a stomach"!

Slight attacks of indigestion soon develop into acute attacks. The weakened stomach quickly becomes weaker under the continued strain of digesting unsuitable food. Chronic Dyspepsia makes a strict diet imperative, and life miserable.

Yet how unnecessary all this suffering is! "Fruit-a-tives" — that splendid stomach tonic—will give you what millionaires cannot buy, a clean, sweet, healthy stomach which will be capable of digesting any reasonable meal.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from concentrated and intensified fruit juice, acts directly on the stomach, increases the flow of the digestive juices and corrects the faults of digestion.

"Fruit-a-tives" or "Fruit Liver Tablets" is not only a positive and speedy cure for all these troubles. It also acts as a general tonic, building up and strengthening the entire system. Frequently those, who have been cured of Stomach and Bowel Troubles, write to the Company, stating that they are enjoying better health than ever before.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all druggists and dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c.—or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

When you go to your friends' houses you go for the hospitality, the friendship, the conversation you find there, and not for the beefsteak or pudding or cake you will be fed, don't you?

Why, then, can't you give your friends credit for as lofty motives?

And yet, apparently few women can.

At a home where I was visiting the other day a young man happened to drop in on an errand.

He was at once invited to stay to lunch, and when he politely refused, heartily urged until he accepted.

The meal happened to be rather frugal. It was simply bread and butter and tea and fruit. But it was served with the sauce of lively conversation and hospitality, and the young man was evidently sincere when after he had go what a really jolly time he had had, he told his hostess—ne the lady of the house said to me: "Do you know why Mr. Ames enjoyed that so very much?

"Simply because he never gets anything like that at home."

"His mother never has 'company' for tea unless she has three kinds of cake and two kinds of preserves and everything to match.

"She would never dream of informally inviting us to a simple meal as I did this noon. And the boy is just starved for that kind of thing."

The other day I heard some of her neighbours trying to commiserate a young married woman whose big brother, with one or two of his college chums, sometimes descends on her quite unannounced.

"Oh, I don't mind," she said cheerfully. "You can always make things stretch over two or three more somehow or other, and I always have something we can fill up on in case of need."

"But doesn't the extra work seem awfully hard to you when you are tired?" said one of her neighbours, a typical Martha.

"Why, if I'm tired, I always let them help get the meal, or maybe do up the dishes," said the sensible matron promptly.

At Martha's home those boys, if they came unexpectedly, would have received punctilious serving and a cold welcome.

At the other home they received informality and friendliness.

And I don't think there is room for doubt which they would like the better.

You do not like to feel that you are causing anyone inconvenience, do you?

Can't you realize that it is far great people do not like to feel that they are causing you inconvenience?

Isn't you realize that it is far greater hospitality to bring tea and toast and a thorough welcome to your guest than thre kinds of cake and preserves and a worn-out body and harassed spirit?

In short, if you want to have your the home where people love to come, do as you would be done by, by trying not to make a fuss over company; to make it a rule to give what you can give freely and easily, and not to insult your friends by giving more.

Ruth Cameron

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

POOR FATHER

Children, hush! for father's resting; he is sitting, tired and sore, with his feet upon the table and his hat upon the floor. He is wearied and exhausted by the labours of the day; he has talked about the tariff since the dawn was cold and gray; he has lost eight games of checkers, for his luck to-day was mean, and that luck was still against him when he bucked the slot machine; so his nerves are under tension, and his brow is dark with care, and the burdens laid upon him seem too great for him to bear. Stop the clock, for it annoys him; throttle that canary bird; take the baby to the cellar, where its howling won't be heard; you must speak in whispers, children, for your father's tired and sore, and he seems to think the ceiling is some kind of cuspidor. Oh, he's broken down and beaten by the long and busy day; he's been sitting in the feedatore on a bale of prairie hay, telling how the hungry grafters have the country by the throat, how the tariff on dried apples robs the poor man of his coat, how this nasty polar rumpus might be settled once for all—and his feet are on the table, and his backs against the wall; let him find his home a quiet and a heart-consoling nest, for the father's worn and weary, and his spirit longs for rest.

Wallace Mason

Mr. Lastar's Explanation Of Last Monday's Letter

To the Editor of the Examiner:

On reading your Wednesday night's paper, I see that some gentleman has taken exception to some offence that they found in my last Monday's letter. So far as the abuse of the ministers of the city is concerned, let me tell you, that I am referring to only those ministers who are abusing others. I am respecting every preacher or pastor who is preaching and educating the people to peace and truth, and who are teaching the children to honour their fathers and mothers. But I have no word strong enough to condemning those people who make an effort to bring hundreds of women and children together, and tell to them one side of the story. And let me tell you, that I am not telling you a story, but I have already proof right here in town, that the seed is already ripe that has been put into their heads. Have you ever thought of it. By condemning these men who are taking a drink, although not drunkards, in the presence of their wives and children, they are disturbing the peace between man and wife, where they never took notice of it. And the children have learned to call, without shame, their fathers drunkards. Is this the way children should be taught against their fathers. How would you like for your children, whom you have raised clothed and fed, and with whom you have spent sleepless nights at their cradles when sick, to grow up, and for you to live and see that child, who should honour his father, call his father drunkard and robber. Is he a robber because he has a hotel and sells liquor. That is what I think they have been teaching all the time; instead of making happiness in the families that you are pretending to help, you are bringing more misery. How should a loving wife love her husband, when her minister tells her that the man who takes a drink is a brute and absolutely lost. It is the same way in regard to children against their parents. You are using the most strange language in the most drastic manner. Not only to the hotel men, but to every one who sympathizes with them. You are saying the men who votes for the open bar are guilty of the crimes of the drunkard. I say "no." The preacher is condemning every man who has right to live and use his franchise as he likes. And no preacher has any right to come and call our wives and children to their meetings, putting in their heads all kinds of statements, because they look to him for advice. Have at any time those gentlemen who are complaining of my abusive letters, heard those speakers at their meetings using all kinds of hard language, which is not appropriate for a place of prayer, and which is all against the hotel keeper and their supporters. Have they ever tried to 'protest against that? No. They were all clapping their hands when one or the other of the speakers would make a joke, and by this insult the hotelmen and their supporters in a way that would reach to the bottom of their hearts. Have those men any right to complain of abusive language. Surely not. And let me tell you so long as you continue such statements, I don't care who you are, you will get it back good and hard. If the papers won't accept my letters, I will find a way to let the people know. The best way could be for you to stop your hard words and you will not have any of mine.—Yours truly, B. LASTAR

P.S.—I have been informed that a committee or some man who belongs to the Moral Reform Association would like to have an interview with me. I am ready for any man or committee, and will discuss this matter, but not in private. I want it publicly; and I will not under any circumstances have any private transactions with them.

The tortures of Eczema can scarcely be described.

And words fail to express the gratitude which very many people feel toward Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment because it has cured them of this annoying ailment. The itching, stinging, burning which brings discomfort by day and makes sleep impossible by night, soon disappears when is applied. With patient treatment it is only a matter of time until the sores are healed and new, smooth, natural skin formed.

Success in the cure of this worst form of itching, skin disease has made Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment known and recognized throughout the world as the standard ointment.

It is wonderfully soothing and healing and you can depend on it absolutely to bring relief quickly from itching and irritation and to thoroughly heal the skin.

60 cts. a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

THE TRUTH ALWAYS

"When you are in doubt tell the truth." It was an experienced old diplomat who said this to a beginner in the work. It may pass in small things, but not in business. Fraud and deception are often profitable so long as concealed; yet detection is certain sooner or later; then comes the smash-up and the punishment. The best and safest way is to tell the truth all the time. Thus you make friends that stick by you, and a reputation that is always worth twenty shillings to the pound everywhere your goods are offered for sale. We are able modestly to affirm, and it is on this basis that the world wide popularity of rests. The people have discovered that this medicine is exactly what it is said to be, and that it does what we have always declared it will do. Its nature also has been frankly made known. It is palatable as honey, and contains all the curative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh Cod Livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. A combination of supreme excellence and medicinal merit. Nothing has been so successful in Anemia, Scrofula, Bronchitis, Influenza, Loss of Flesh, Wasting Diseases, Weakness and Low Nervous Tone, and complaints caused by Impure Blood. Dr. F——— of Canada, says: "I have used it in cases where cod liver oil was indicated, but could not be taken by the patient, and the results following were very gratifying." It is effective from the first dose and agrees with the most sensitive and nervous stomachs. It cannot deceive or disappoint you, and comes to the rescue of those who have received no benefit from any other treatment. "Do not accept a substitute." Sold by all chemists everywhere throughout the world.

Women

Cannot be Strong and Healthy Unless the Kidneys are Well.

Weak, lame or aching backs are the first sign of Kidney Trouble.

Under ordinary conditions they ought to be strong and ready to bear the burdens of life.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back. Backaches come from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered that they get out of order.

Weak back is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney troubles.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you in the same way as they have cured thousands of others.

Miss Alberta B. Clarke, Stoney Creek, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with kidney trouble for several years; my back was weak, I had such terrible headaches, and was so restless I could not sleep at night and tried everything without any benefit. Meantime a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got four boxes and they completely cured me. I now feel as well as I ever did and would advise everyone suffering from Kidney Disease to try them."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In ordering specify "Doan's."

LOCAL OPTION MEETING WAS LARGELY ATTENDED YESTERDAY

Mr. H. E. Irwin, K.C., of Toronto, Gave a Forcible and Eloquent Address Yesterday.

REASONS FOR LOCAL OPTION

There was a very large attendance at the usual Sunday Temperance meeting in the Grand O pera House yesterday afternoon, there being very few vacant places when the meeting was called to order, and the remarks of the speaker were followed with an earnest attention. The chief speaker of the afternoon was Mr. H. E. Irwin, K.C., of Toronto, who gave an effective logical and forcible address that seemed to carry conviction to his hearers.

Mr. Irwin said that he had no strong or bitter feeling against the men in the liquor business. His opinion was that the bar was merely incidental; that it had its origin during the past years in the provision that had been made for the travelling public. Peterborough citizens did not need them and it was the general consensus of opinion that the travellers preferred a place without the bar, and therefore they should be done away with. In answer to the question, "Why I like local option," he stated that in the first place it was the next step in the line of natural progression. First—Prohibition for the individual. Second—Prohibition for the family. Third—Prohibition for the community.

Second—That it is successful where ever an honest attempt is made to enforce it.

Third—Because it gives every man and woman a chance to put himself or herself right with conscience and God.

NECESSARY FOR THE FAMILY

If health is to be maintained there must be at hand in every household a medicine which can be positively relied upon to regulate the liver, kidneys and bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have proven their right to first place in this regard, and already hold a secure position in the great majority of homes.

ST. KITTS GETS ANOTHER FACTORY

St. Catharines, Dec. 13.—Through the enterprise of a number of citizens St. Catharines adds another manufacturing industry to its steady growing list this week. The concern is known as the St. Catharines Woollen Mills, Limited, and it has acquired the factory formerly operated by James B. Dolan, but which has stood idle for some time. Harold L. Phelps of this city, a young man who has been identified with the business and of the Thorold mill of the Penman Manufacturing Company for several years, will be manager of the mills He is also a member of the company.

LONG ILLNESS

Mr. Alfred G. Johnston, Injured When He Was 18 and Died This Morning in His 36th Year.

A sad death occurred this morning after many years' illness and suffering, when Alfred George Johnston, fifth son of Mr. James Johnston, 110 Dublin St., passed away at the family residence. Eighteen years ago he met with an accident on the C.P.R. siding which at present runs into the Quaker Oats Company mill and although at first it was not considered serious, a short time afterwards serious results were noticed. The deceased during the intervening eighteen years has borne his trial with exceptional fortitude. About a week ago he came noticeably weaker and gradually sank until the end came this morning. Everything that could be done in the way of medical assistance was tried but without avail. The deceased displayed a wonderul patience in his suffering, during what should have been the best years of his life. He is survived by his parents and the following brothers, William J., (ex-Ald), Joseph, Herbert, Ernest and one sister, Mrs. Fred O. Allison all of this city. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon from the family residence at three o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

CHRISTMAS FANCIES AT COLEMANS' CONFECTIONERY

A Superb Display of Xmas Cake, Rich Confections and Other Dainties for the Festive Season.

Kris Kringle presents his holiday compliments to old and young and recommends them to buy their Christmas cakes, short cake, ornamental cakes, candy novelties and stocking fillers, at Coleman Bros.' Confectionery. Dainty things of every needed line in rich pastry, cakes and fancies are all ready to serve you in royal yuletide style. Coleman Bros. are leading pastry cooks and are splendidly prepared to delight holiday shoppers with their own make of dainties for the Christmas table.

The monster ornamental Christmas cake on exhibition in the north window which has attracted so much attention, weighs nearly three hundred pounds. It is six stories high, artistically frescoed and ornamented with saccharine decorations in the highest skill of the confectioners' art. It is surmounted with the figure of Santa Claus and silver swans perched on each of the corners of the massive cake. Its ingredients are composed of the best mixing of Christmas cake with almonds and is covered with Fondant icing. It is proposed to cut this big cut up the week before Christmas and retail it at a special price

Coleman's store is teeming with Christmas goods and delicious table luxuries. The lovely bon-bon boxes make an attractive display, and so do the pretty crackers, and cosaques for table decorations and Christmas trees. Imported chocolates and bonbons in fancy baskets, and other unique designs, make an attractive showing. Plum pudding, done up to "the Queen's taste," is displayed in large quantities, besides an almost unlimited supply of fancy cakes of all sizes and shapes.

And what would Christmas be without candies? What would the children say. Coleman's candy is a favourite stocking filler, and this season loads of fresh, delicious and toothsome confections are laid out all ready for the crush.

SATISFACTORY CONDITION OF STOCKS MARKS CLOSE OF 1909

Review of the Situation as the Year Dissolves Into 1910---Special Report From New York on Present Conditions and Retrospect Along Some Lines.

New York, Dec. 12.—Neither the President's message nor the opening of Congress created any disturbance in the security markets. On the contrary President Taft's views were in many respects received with special satisfaction. The emphasis which he placed upon the necessity of public economy, moderation in regard to the use of maximum tariff and his rational attitude regarding railroad and corporation problems show his determination to carry out necessary reform movements with as little disturbance to business as possible. This is naturally reassuring. Congress as yet shows no signs of breaking out with antagonistic legislation, although it is quite apparent that the radicals were disappointed at the conservative tenor of President Taft's message. Politically speaking, the situation is hopeful, for while it is evident that large corporations must prepare themselves for more or less Government regulation, and enforcement of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, in its present drastic form may cause some disquiet, still the outlook in these directions is less threatening than during the sometimes unwisely aggressive policy of the previous Administration.

As the year draws to a close the stock market finds itself in a more hopeful condition. It is undeniable that a strikingly optimistic spirit prevails, based upon exceptional business activity in the United States and aided by decided improvement of industrial and political affairs abroad. The favourable conditions are many, the chief drawback being that the business of the country and values generally are already upon such a high level as to prevent the return of complete confidence. It is quite evident that the country is passing through a period of inflation, the causes of which cannot here be discussed, but which are a very positive element in the situation. The most unsatisfactory feature is that values are not upon a staple basis, having fully discounted all favourable conditions. Investors are consequently shy and discriminating. The better class of railroad securities are already upon a prohibitive level, and made more so by the firm rates demanded for money.

Our railroad situation is not without serious perplexities. Traffic is heavy and earnings show corresponding improvement, but expenses have grown seriously, and net results are very often unequal to those of two years ago. That the companies should have to face a demand for high er wages at this time is unfortunate, for they have scarcely more than recovered from the effects of the panic. Wages were not reduced at that period and labour suffered little from that disaster. It is true that the cost of living has risen. So, too, have wages; and many of the railroads, if obliged to concede to latest demands, will have no other alternative than advancing the rates and compelling shippers to pay the bills. The latter will as usual pass on the increase in expenses to the consumer. For reasons such as these railroad stocks and bonds have been comparatively neglected by both investors and speculators, and the large owners of these properties are still finding it difficult to distribute their surplus holdings. Attention is consequently being turned to the better class of industrials, especially preferred issues which have not been advanced to such an extent as railroad issues and which are benefitting by trade activity quite as much as the railroads. Hitherto this section of the market has generally been upon a lower plane than the railroads; but as many of the concerns become seasoned and prove their steady earning capacity the effect is to raise the standing of such issues, especially while the railroad section stands so much in danger of reaction.

January disbursements will probably show a larger increase than usual, and it remains to be seen whether the usual rise at this season based upon investment purchases will take place in January or not. It is well known that several important new capital issues have been delayed owing to the unfavourable conditions just referred to, and an unusual number of offerings will probably be soon forthcoming. The far this year it is estimated that new security issues will aggregate over a billion and a half dollars. A portion of these issues were utilized for refunding purposes, and did not represent new capital; but the actual issues were very heavy considering the absorbing power of the market. It should be noted that recent authorizations have been exceptionally large, suggesting that considerable applications for new capital are in prospect. Owing to this custom of securing authorization to issue bonds or stock in advance of actual requirements, the actual output of new securities is not always easy to ascertain. It is known, however, that some of or large industrial concerns have recently quietly sold considerable amounts of bonds previously authorized. Another feature worth noting is the large amount of new capital going into irrigation schemes, although this form of investment is more popular in the West than here.

The local money market continues firm, and bank reserves are low. Within a month, however, funds will be returning more freely from the West. The bank surplus should soon rise, and somewhat easier rates of money will then be probable. The European monetary situation is improving both in Paris and London, where the tone in financial circles is decidedly more cheerful. The tendency in money there is towards further ease, which should make it less necessary for Europe to settle its balances in South America and Canada by shipping gold from New York. Our foreign trade has not yet settled back into normal conditions. Imports continue heavy, and exports though increasing, are relatively light. This is readily explained by trade activity and high prices over here, which naturally stimulates imports and discourages exports.

There is nothing in the general situation to warrant further pessimism. On the contrary the outlook for the coming year upon the whole is a distinctly cheerful one. There are perplexities to be faced and the stock market is too high to warrant any special enthusiasm upon the long side. Idle funds, however, are accumulating and must seek employment. We suggest the use of much discrimination in making purchases, calling attention to the fact that the better class of preferred industrials are likely to come into greater favour, owing to the high level of railroad shares, and the difficulty of finding desirable bonds at reasonable prices.

ing been found drunk on Saturday He pleaded guilty and was fined two dollars, to be paid forthwith or 30 days in gaol. His Worship first made it ten days, but the Crown Attorney, who was present, suggested that he might be kept there over Christmas, in order that he might have a good dinner. His Worship thereupon changed it to thirty days. Cleary hadn't the money, so he had to go up on the hill.

Was Discharged.

Rosy Roche, who was remanded for a week on a charge of wandering the public streets without being able to give a satisfactory account of herself, appeared before the Magistrate this morning. His Worship told her that as there was a large number of persons interested in her case, who were anxious to help her, he intended to discharge her. He hoped she would stay off the streets and conduct herself as a woman should.

Wanted Her Wages.

Elizabeth Chase sued a proprietor of a local hotel for $12.86, wages she had earned as cook in his house. After hearing the woman's statement, he ordered that the defendant pay the above sum and $2.60 costs.

REVISION OF THE BANK ACT

External Examination.

In connection with the approaching revision of the Bank Act, the important question of the necessity for external examination of banks is discussed in a pamphlet issued by H. C. McLeod, General Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia. This is a subject which well merits the careful study of those who are interested in the stability of our banking system, either as shareholders, depositors or borrowers. Copies of the pamphlet will be supplied free by any of the branches of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

DEEP SEATED COUGH

CURED IN 5 HOURS.

New Home-Made Syrup

(Cut this out)

From Boston Press.

Progress in medicinal compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours by the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and thoroughly as to be almost magical. What heretofore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and toned up. Give children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

DANIEL RYAN IN "THE FOX."

Daniel Ryan, the well known actor gave a fresh demonstration of his versatility on Saturday when he appeared in three tabloid plays that gave him a splendid opportunity for clever acting. The programme consisted of three short offerings, Sidney Gundy's "Is Marriage a Failure?" "The Fox" and a two act play "Sweethearts."

Mr. Ryan and his company were perhaps best in "The Fox," which is a virile true to life play of French Canadian life in which Mr. Ryan was most happily cast as Joe Laplante, an old habitant. Short as it was, the playlet had many opportunities for sterling dramatic work and Mr. Ryan made the most of these openings with the assistance of Mr. E. B. Denpree and Miss Harriet Duke, both of whom were excellent. The other sketches were well staged and most favourably received and the audience seemed to enjoy the innovation of seeing three plays in one night. If one could judge by the applause, which punctuated the performance at frequent intervals. The next attraction at the Grand is the hit-crowned musical comedy, "The Time, the Place and the Girl," which will be seen here on Tuesday, December 21st.

CHORUS GIRL WEDS AN INDIAN PRINCE AND GETS $100,000

London, Dec. 11.—The heroine of the latest stage romance is Miss Dolly Parnell, who played in "My Darling" at the Hicks Theatre. She was married quietly in London last week to Prince Nasir Ali Khan, the son of one of Ipdia's most powerful native rulers.

The ceremony was performed at the Marylebone Registry Office.

Prince Nasir Ali Khan, who is twenty-six years of age, has presented his bride with $100,000 worth of jewels as a wedding gift.

Miss Parnell who is about the same age as the bridegroom, was a chorus girl in "My Darling" when it was produced at the Hicks Theatre (now the Globe) in 1907.

Mr. Seymour Hicks, who produced "My Darling," said last night that he remembered Miss Parnell as a beautiful dark girl with a fine soprano voice.

"I intended endeavouring to engage her for my forthcoming production," added Mr. Hicks, "but I received a letter to-day telling me that she had been married."

"She was somewhat reserved," said a girl who appeared with Miss Parnell in the chorus of "My Darling," "and always arrived at the theatre in a tiny motor car. She was very pretty."

The prince, who has resided in London for eight years, was educated at Oxford.

PASSED AWAY VERY SUDDENLY

Death of Mr. Jas. H. Stewart of Smith on Saturday Evening—Was in Town During the Day.

Death came suddenly on Saturday evening for Mr. James Henry Stewart of Smith. The deceased had been unwell for some time and on Saturday afternoon he drove to the city and consulted a doctor, who wanted him to go at once into the hospital. Mr. Stewart was however unable to do so and drove home again. Upon arrival there he took off his shoes and sat in a chair to await supper. Just as his wife announced everything ready the deceased passed away without warning and without ever having spoken. His death was a great shock to his relatives and friends and much sympathy is expressed for his wife and family He was 44 years of age and is survived by his wife and two sons, Merton and Victor, both at home.

The late Mr. Stewart was one of Smith's best known and most highly respected residents and his death will be learned with deep regret.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at one o'clock from the family residence, lot 4, concession one, to the Emily cemetery.

WHITNEY REPLIES

Premier of Ontario Maintains That the Province Has the Same Right In the Matter of Legislation That the British Commons Has In its Affairs and Means to Cling To It as Long as He Can.

Toronto, Dec. 13.—After hearing for months in dignified silence the electric ring's attacks, in season and out of season, in the law courts and in the public press, and by innuendoes, pitchfork brigades and petitions to Parliament, to endeavor to prevent the triumphant Whitney-Beck power policy, the Government of the Province of Ontario has made its official protest to the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in a lucid, comprehensive and convincing statement, which is now in the hands of the Ottawa authorities.

The intention of the local Government to preserve, on behalf of the people of the Province of Ontario, "their inherent rights as British subjects of freedom to legislate within their jurisdiction as the Lords and Commons of Great Britain are free to legislate," is expressed in no uncertain terms.

The crux of the question is expressed in a quotation from the judgment of the judicial committee of the Privy Council in the case of Rodge v. the Queen, in which is asserted that the British North America Act, in creating the Legislature "conferred powers in any sense to be exercised by delegation," and that the Legislature, within its limits of subjects and area, has the same authority as the Imperial or Dominion Parliaments.

Quotations from Sir Oliver Mowat, Hon. Edward Blake, and particularly a long quotation from Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, in his report on the Florence Mining Co. disallowance petition, clinch the argument.

Answer is given to the contention that the Power Commission Amendment Act of 1909 makes no provision for the payment of easements. "If there is any doubt as to this," it declares, "it can be made clear by the Legislature at its next session by a declaratory act."

Statements as to the alleged adverse effect of the power projects on provincial credit are refuted in pithy newspaper interviews with Byron E. Walker, William Mackenzie and E. B. Osler, M.P.

It is pointed out that no objections were raised by the Electoral Development Power Co. until after it had failed, through its tender not being the lowest, to secure the contract from the power commission.

It is made clear that the contracts with the municipalities must go back to the ratepayers for confirmation, and the petition of twelve municipalities praying that the misunderstanding of the courts in this regard be corrected, in consequence of which the amending act was passed, is quoted.

A strong point is made in the statement, that during the current session of the Imperial Parliament there are no less than 34 instances of constructive substantiative legislation in which no appeal is allowed to the courts on matters affecting the rights of property.

Six Prize Essayists.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Some months ago the executive council of the Strathcona trust for the encouragement of physical and military training in the public schools offered prizes for the six best essays on "The best method of introducing and developing a general system of physical and military training in the public schools throughout the Dominion upon the principles set forth in the rules of the Strathcona Trust."

The prize winners are as follows:

First, $250—George H. Huggins, principal Richmond School, Halifax.

Second, $150—Miss Lillian L. M. Davey, 39 Sussex avenue, Toronto.

Third, $100—Lieut. C. K. Flint, teacher of physical culture, Edmonton Public School.

Fourth, $75—J. H. Putnam, English master, Ottawa Normal School.

Fifth, $50—John J. McCarthy, McLean, Sask.

Sixth, $25—S. A. Morton, principal Halifax Academy.

No Fees, No Prisoner.

After La Grippe

"I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of friends have since realized the same benefits."

MRS. ALVIN H. LOCKS,
Seabrook, N. H.

The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition that invites more serious troubles, such as pneumonia, etc.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore nerve strength.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle does not benefit your druggist will return your money.

LAST BOAT ON LAKES.

Northern Navigation Co.'s Huronic Makes Last Trip of Season.

Port Arthur, Ont., Dec. 13.—A solitary boat in the storm-tossed surface of Lake Superior, plowing her way through waves that are being dashed over her by the 50-mile an hour gale, and each leaving a new coating of ice, is the sturdy Huronic of the Northern Navigation Co.

With Captain A. L. Campbell, one of the youngest of the lake captains in command, the Huronic pulled out for the Soo before midnight, to be inside the extended insurance term, and with the mercury hovering around the zero mark, headed into a strong northeastern gale. She is the last boat of the year on Lake Superior. All others—at least Canadian-owned—are safe in the harbors.

Last arrivals at this port were the Beaverton and Wahcondah, which came in Saturday night looking like miniature ice barges, everything covered with ice but the smoke stacks. They had been several days out from the Soo, most of the time in shelter at White Fish, and making the run across the lake experienced the extreme rough seas and cold weather. The Ames and Kenora came across here Saturday after their arrival at Fort William from the east with package freights so that there are now five Canadian freighters at the docks, all of which will, contrary to custom, spend the winter here as it is now too late to make return trips.

At the Canadian Northern coal docks, with coal, are the Hemert, Hawgood, Zimmerman and Squire, all United States owned, and they will also remain here over winter.

Most of the boats in harbor will take on grain for storage.

Mond, the Chemist, Is Dead.

London, Eng., Dec. 13.—Dr. Ludwig Mond, the noted chemist, is dead. He was born at Cassel, Germany, in 1839.

Dr. Mond was educated in Germany and Italy, but after he had attained some note as a scientist, he became a British subject by naturalization. He was successful as a chemist both from a scientific and financial standpoint, and patented hundreds of his discoveries.

The most important of his discoveries was a process for making gas which reduced the cost several cents a thousand feet. He devised a gas engine which produced more power from a given amount of care than any steam engine ever perfected.

He came to England in 1862 and was engaged in the Leblanc soda industry. There he introduced his process for recovering sulphur from alkali waste. In 1873 he, in company with J. T. Brunner engaged in the manufacture of ammonia soda by the Solvay process, which he greatly improved. These works at Winnington, Norwich, Cheshire, form the largest alkali establishment in the world.

Dr. Mond founded and endowed the Davy-Faraday research laboratory of the Royal Institution in 1896.

Port Hope, Dec. 13.—Port Hope has secured from the County Council the long-sought-for agricultural class under the Provincial Government. Cobourg put up a hard fight.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

The grand jury at Toledo, Ohio, has indicted sixteen Sicilians for alleged Black Hand conspiracy to extort money.

Four hundred men of the Q.O.R. with bands will be taken to Aldershot (Eng.) military camp this summer by Col. Pellatt.

Judge Metcalfe of Winnipeg has ruled that municipal councils have the right to sanction the submission of local option bylaws.

A torpedo with a macrophone attachment, that causes it to be directed by sound waves, is being experimented with by the British Admiralty.

Caught fast in a flood of tar at a Pittsburg roofing plant, four men had to await a fearful death by burning, when the pitch was ignited at a furnace.

Half a dozen persons bitten by a suspected mad dog at Galt will leave to-day for treatment at the Pasteur Institute, New York. It will cost the town $1,500.

It is announced that Gen. A. W. Greeley, some time ago, resigned from the Explorers' Club, of which Commander Peary is president, because of his belief in Dr. Cook.

Street railway employes at Port Arthur are asking the city for an increase in pay from 23 to 25 cents an hour for first-year men, and from 25 to 30 cents for second-year men.

Walter Ross is under arrest at New Liskeard charged with having shot and killed Percy Parkinson in a dispute over the boundary line of a mining claim. Ross says Parkinson threatened him with an axe.

Goldwin Smith Replies.

Kingston, Dec. 13.—Prof. Goldwin Smith has replied to the speech of Justice Riddell before the Canadian Club in New York last week, in which it was said that annexation sentiment is dead and that there was only one man in Canada in favor of it, the reference clearly being Prof. Smith. In a letter from Toronto to The Daily Standard of this city, Dr. Smith says:

"Sir,—It seems that I have been reported as advocating 'annexation.' Let me assure you that I have studiously avoided the use of a term which implies submission on the part of Canada to the part of the United States. That which, I think, seems the dictate of nature, and likely as such to come to pass is the voluntary union of the two great English-speaking communities on this continent for their mutual benefit and security. Social fusion seems to be already pretty complete.—Goldwin Smith."

Shipbuilding Is Costly.

Halifax, Dec. 13.—According to the calculations of an expert sent out by Harland & Wolfe, the world-famous shipbuilders of Belfast, Ireland, to investigate the conditions governing and inducements for the erection of a Canadian plant, the cost of constructing iron or steel steamships in Canada is forty-six per cent. greater than in Great Britain.

The difference in the cost of construction of steel ships in Canada and Great Britain is in the matter of labor—skilled and unskilled—alone.

If these figures are correct, the building of a Canadian navy in Canada will cost half as much again is the estimates in the hands of the Government call for.

Wife Ready to Go to Jail.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 13.—Several days ago a warrant was issued for Julius Gutske, a German resident of this city, charging him with not sending a daughter to school. He was summoned to appear before a justice but instead of doing this he sent his wife, with a message that she would take any punishment imposed on him.

After asking a few questions Judge Benedict learned that Gutske had 11 children to support and was getting only $30 per month. The wife planned to assist him by enabling him to continue his work.

Attacked By Dog.

New York, Dec. 13.—When Mrs. Emma Schuermann returned to her flat in Harlem yesterday, she found her pet bull terrier covered with blood and crouched whining under a table.

Passing to an adjoining room she was horrified to find her brother, Carl Lilupert, a clerk, 43 years old, stretched out dead on the floor, the face horribly mutilated by the dog's teeth. It is believed that Bimperi, who was subject to apoplexy, fell unconscious and was attacked by the animal.

Suicides In Cell.

Owen Sound, Dec. 13.—Fred Miller of Owen Sound, who jumped his bail here, where he was charged with assault, and was arrested at Shelburne, committed suicide in the cells there. He was found dead with an empty bottle, that had contained carbolic acid, beside him.

Greek Met Greek.

Brantford, Dec. 13.—Charles Fengres, a Greek, is arrested charged with threatening to shoot his brother, engaged in business here. Fengres is said to have shot a brother in Greece. A loaded revolver was found hidden above his boot.

Leopold Takes a Relapse.

Brussels, Dec. 13.—King Leopold who has been seriously ill for the past fortnight, but who was believed to be convalescent, suffered a sudden relapse yesterday, and his condition is considered grave.

G.T.R. Firemen Killed.

Bradford, Dec. 13.—Nason Drury of Allandale, a G.T.R. fireman, was struck and killed by a passenger train here Friday night. He had got off his engine to cross the track.

Died In Church.

Windsor, Dec. 13.—Meredith Cann, aged 70, died while kneeling at prayer meeting in Central Methodist Church Wednesday night.

THE LATEST NEWS OF SPORT — TOLD IN BRIEF FORM

LONGBOAT BEAT SHERRING IN A SPRINTING FINISH

Indian Won From His White Rival in a Tightly Contested Race in Brock Street Rink on Saturday Night---Pair Stayed Together Until Three Laps From the Finish.

Tom Longboat, the bronzed Mercury as he was christened on the day of his greatest triumph, the Boston marathon, demonstrated to the satisfaction of some 800 Peterborough people at the Brock St. rink on Saturday night that still has a large amount of speed concealed in his lanky frame, by winning a clean cut victory over little Billy Sherring, of Hamilton, the hero of the Athens Marathon in their ten mile matched race. The Onandaga won by a quarter of a lap after a sprinting finish for the last three laps, in which he shot away from the Hamilton boy in a furious spurt that showed just how much he had in reserve. Sherring, who had stuck to him like a leech all through the piece tried gamely to hold him in the final sprint, but he had not enough on tap when the end came and he had to let the famous Tom breeze home in advance. It was a good race and a fine finish and both boys were heartily applauded when the distance was negotiated, while they did not lack for supporters during the contest.

A splendid crowd turned out for the event. Longboat, although regarded by many as a fallen idol, seems to still have considerable power as a magnet, while local people were anxious to see Sherring in action. The Hamilton Marathoner was always a favourite here, although nothing was known of him personally, and naturally when it was announced that he was to appear against Longboat, many people made up their minds to see him and they were not disappointed in the showing he made.

Longboat had the race at his mercy all the way, although Sherring demonstrated to the crowd the reason for his victory at Athens by showing himself a clean gaited, plucky runner. He did not seem to be in as good shape as Longboat, however, and during the last few miles there was a pound in his gait that told that the pace was having its effect upon him. The crowd, therefore, was not surprised when Longboat outsprinted him in the final stages and won out.

The race started shortly after 9.30 o'clock. Sherring was the first to appear and was greeted with cheers and shouts of "Oh you Athens", etc. Longboat accompanied by his manager, Sol Mintz, of Hamilton, followed a moment after and the Indian got a big reception, to which he responded with his characteristic smile. The runners were introduced to the crowd by Announcer Jack Seymour and at once were started by C. C. Graham.

They started at a fast clip with Sherring in taking the lead, but almost at once Longboat moved up beside and the two men ran like a team. They hung together that way all along the route. Occasionally Longboat would go out in front and take the pace for a lap or two, only to fall back alongside Sherring or behind him. Sherring in this way, did most of the pacing and was in front at the end of nearly every mile for over half the race. In the seventh mile Longboat cut out with a sprint for a lap, but Sherring responded with a spurt that pulled him back to the Indian's heels again. Longboat's long lope carried him over the crowd fast, but there was speed too in the way in which Sherring's legs twinkled over the floor. In the eighth mile it was seen, however, that the Hamilton boy was tiring a little. He still held Longboat, but his gait was not so steady or as light as he had been in the early stages. Longboat was leading at the beginning of the ninth mile, with Sherring at his heels, and for the first ten laps they remained that way. With three laps to go, however, Longboat let loose with a sprint that brought the crowd to its feet, and Sherring hooked on. He held the Indian for the greater part of two laps, but then slipped back, while Longboat when the scorers announced one lap to go, threw back his head and sprinted the last circuit like a hundreds' man. Sherring could not hold on at that speed and was beaten a quarter of a lap, although he too finished with a sprint.

The track was evidently a good deal short of the ten miles, for although the runners undoubtedly made good time they were not moving as fast as the following times for each mile would show had the distance been accurate.

First mile—5.07.
Second mile—10.10.
Third mile—15.14 1-5.
Fourth mile—21 secs.
Fifth mile—26.30.
Sixth mile—31.31.
Seventh mile—36.45.
Eight mile—41.67.
Ninth mile—47.27.
Tenth mile—52.58.

The officials were: Starter, C. C. Graham. Timers—A. C. Yokome and Jack Seymour. Judges—Harry Burridge and Jerry Edmunds. Scorer, F. D. Craig.

In the three mile roller skating race which followed, M. Kenneally easily defeated a field of five skaters.

READ THE EXAMINER'S ADS. BEFORE BEFORE DOING CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

The people nowadays who wait until the last moment to secure their Christmas gifts, and who then rush around the stores on Christmas eve in a state of mind that approaches frenzied despair, to emerge tired and cross with an assortment of hurriedly chosen and often unsuitable articles that they hesitate, yet have to, send to their friends are the people who do not carefully read the advertisements in the daily papers. To the people of Peterborough the advertising columns of the Examiner furnish the best possible connection between the buyer and the seller. Just now they contain hundreds of seasonable suggestions from Peterborough's best stores, and a careful reading of the Examiner advertisements can not help but solve the difficult problem—"What to give?" Study the advertisements, make up your mind what you are going to buy, and then do your shopping early. Don't wait until the latter end of next week for what you can with greater convenience to yourself, as well as the merchant, and clerk buy tomorrow or the next day. Read The Examiner and buy early.

LOCAL REAL ESTATE TRANSFER

It is understood that Mr. R. A. Morrow has sold his property at the corner of Hunter and George Sts. to Mr. Vincent Eastwood, manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank. The price paid is, it is understood, in the neighbourhood of $55,000. The block comprises the store occupied by Mr. J. D. Tully, as a drug store, the Bank of Ottawa building, the store of Primeau Bros. and Minicola Bros.' fruit store.

No. 8 COMPANY NOTICE.

A meeting of the No. 8 Company, 57th Regiment, will be held in the Company's Armoury Drill Hall on Wednesday, December 15th, at 8 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of organizing for the winter sports. All members are requested to bring with them any helmets, tunics, belts and side-arms which they may have in their possession

A. W. MacPherson, Captain. 2d-138

EXAMINER'S CHRISTMAS EXTRA WAS IN GREAT DEMAND

The Examiner's special Christmas and shopping edition on Saturday proved to be very much in demand, so that the entire edition of four thousand copies was exhausted before eight o'clock on Saturday evening, or within three hours of the time the press started turning them out. Judging by the demand there was for the papers in mailing tubes a large number of Peterborough people must have sent them to friends outside of the city, as the supply of such papers was not nearly equal to the demand. Many have been the compliments that have been paid the Examiner on the excellence of the edition, both from a literary and from an advertising view point. The merchants of Peterborough indicated in no uncertain way their faith in the value of the Examiner as an advertising medium by contracting for extra space and special advertisements in the Christmas extra, and the result was that the Saturday Examiner was a complete guide to the Peterborough stores, with hundreds of helpful suggestions as to Christmas gifts, which will no doubt be followed by the thousands of Examiner readers. Thus the edition will fill its mission by helping both the seller and the buyer, which was the object aimed at.

TO HAVE A BEAUTIFUL SKIN

About one sixth of all the waste matter discharged from the human body passes through the pores of the skin. If the skin is to be kept beautiful the pores must be kept in healthful condition by bathing and by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment which overcomes all chafing and irritation of the skin and cures pimples, eruptions and the many forms of eczema.

Sentenced to Hang.

Yorkton, Sask., Dec. 13.—Sanford Hainer, a homesteader, who last July ambushed and shot his neighbor, A. D. Fraser of Margo, was found guilty Saturday and sentenced to hang on Feb. 17 by Judge Johnstone.

The evidence indicated that while the prisoner is peculiar, he was well aware of the serious nature of the crime. The judge did not use the traditional black cap.

Schwab Gives to the Poor.

New York, Dec. 13.—Charles M. Schwab, the steel millionaire, has given 100 acres of shore park on Staten Island to an organization of nuns here to be used "for the benefit of the poor children of New York." The property, which is equipped with waterworks, sewerage system, macadam roads, and the necessary buildings, is valued at about $300,000.

Nine Workmen Suffocated.

Naples, Dec. 13.—Nine workmen were suffocated to death while working in a compressed air compartment in the harbor here yesterday. Three others were rescued.

$600,000 Fire.

Racine, Wis., Dec. 13.—Fire yesterday destroyed the plant of the Racine Manufacturing Co., entailing $600,000 damage, partly covered by insurance.

Carpet Weavers Strike.

Guelph, Dec. 13.—Twenty-eight employes in the Brussells' weaving department of the Guelph carpet mills struck Saturday because the company refused to pay a man for two hours work at "overtime" rate.

Tory Candidate Mobbed.

London, Dec. 13.—The feature of the Conservative meetings during the past week has been the number of peers who have come forward to support the candidates, and the storm of interruptions and generally good natured chaff to which they have been subjected.

But a more serious incident occurred at Rhos Denbigh Saturday evening, when the audience broke up a Conservative meeting, chased the candidate out of the building and kicked the Conservative agent unconscious.

Austin Chamberlain, the ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, up to the present, has been the only Conservative leader actively in the field. Saturday night he met with stormy interruptions again from his constituents in a suburb of Birmingham.

Joseph Chamberlain has issued a manifesto in Manchester and Salford, declaring that tariff reform must be adopted in order to compete with foreign countries.

Suicides on Nearing Home.

London, Ont., Dec. 13.—Just back to his home city, after three years in the west, Daniel Campbell, aged 30, lost his life in the Thames near Adelaide street bridge, Saturday afternoon. His outer clothing was found on the river bank, his watch on the ice and all the indications point to suicide while delirious.

Campbell had been ill for some time.

High Constable Hughes and other county constables recovered the body with grappling irons at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Campbell has relatives in this city and was on his way from the depot, after returning from British Columbia.

Refuse substitutes.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

A BIT OF ADVICE

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. The kidneys are calling for help. Slight symptoms of kidney troubles are but forerunners of more serious complaints. They should be given attention before it is too late.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Peterborough residents desire more convincing proof than the statement of a Peterborough citizen. Mrs. W. Huycke, of 311 Louis St., Peterborough, Ont., says: "Mr. Huycke frequently suffered with backache. At times the pains in the small of the back would become so severe that he was unable to straighten himself up without much suffering. He could not stoop or lift anything of consequence and his general health had been run down for some time. He had tried a number of different remedies but didn't find relief until on advice of a friend, he procured Booth's Kidney Pills at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy and commenced treatment. He soon found relief. The pains left his back and he strengthened. He has had no return of the trouble since and speaks very highly of Booth's Kidney Pills." Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. Booth Co. L'td., Fort Erie, Ont.. Sole Canadian Agents.

WERE ENTERTAINED

The members of the Home Department of the George St. Methodist Sunday School were entertained last Friday night in the Sunday School room by the President of the Department. Mr. T. W. Robinson and the visiting committee. A very enjoyable evening was spent and there was a most representative attendance. Mr. Robinson occupied the chair. There was an enjoyable programme and afterwards refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour spent. Following was the programme:

Chairman's address.
Solo—Isabella Baird.
Recitation—Mr. Nugent.
Speech—Rev. Mr. Pearson.
Duet—Misses Carlisle and Allison.
Instrumental—Mrs. Cruickshanks.
Recitation—Miss Greta Lebar.

Speech—Mrs. S. R. Armstrong.

MAY JOIN PRINCE ALBERT CLUB

Mr. Walter Miller, formerly of the Peterborough and Brantford hockey teams, is at present receiving inducements to appear with Prince Albert. Dr. Lionel King is trying to secure him for the team that will represent that town. Walter has also several other tempting offers, but has not yet decided what he will do this winter.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK HEAD ACHE

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

HEAD ACHE

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

SAVINGS

The wisdom of saving money must be apparent to every thoughtful person.

A little money saved enables one to take advantage of opportunities for making more money; to buy a lot; to make the first payment on a house; to start in business.

These and other opportunities are ever before the person with capital.

Saving small sums is the creation of capital.

GAS, INDIGESTION AND HEARTBURN GO

Makes Your Out-of-Order Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your Stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomachs should take a little Diapepsin occasionally and there will be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach, or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Sick Stomach, and besides what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50 cent. case of Pape's Diapepsin now and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

NEW CORNER GROCERY IN MECHANICS BLOCK

Will be Opened To-morrow in the VanEvery Building, Rubidge and Dalhousie Street.

A new, bright, and attractive grocery store will be opened to-morrow by Mr. Robt. Morrison, in the Mechanics' Block, corner of Rubidge and Dalhousie streets. These premises are splendidly adapted for a grocery business, being fitted up in modern style and in a convenient manner for displaying a general stock of fancy table supplies. Mr. Morrison has been to the wholesale market and bought a large assortment of teas, groceries, coffees, fruits, peels, spices, cereals, canned goods, butter eggs, cheese and everything usually kept in a first-class general grocery store. Householders in this section of the city will be glad to find such a large and select new stock of groceries and provisions within easy access of their homes, and will doubtless find it especially convenient for their Christmas shopping.

Cook in Sanatorium.

Boston, Dec. 13.—According to The Journal, Dr. Cook, Arctic explorer, is the sole patient of the Pine Tree Sanatorium at Wells, Maine. He daily receives many letters and telegrams, but so well guarded is he from everyone, and so secluded is he and determined not to be seen, that when two telegrams from New York arrived to be delivered to him personally and personally receipted, he refused to allow the bearer to take them up to his quarters on the second floor or to come down and get them.

Buried in a Soap Box.

Port Hope, Dec. 13.—An arrest may follow the burial of an infant daughter born to Florence Paden, aged 20 years, the daughter of James Paden, Sullivan street. The young woman was unmarried.

The infant was born on the 6th inst. and the birth registered by Dr. A. G. Aldrich. Tuesday, the mother says, the baby died from convulsions, when the grandmother placed the remains in a small soap box and a boarder, Albert Ginsburg, aged 23 years old, took the box and buried the body in a yard to the rear of Blacklack's grocery. Ginsburg denies being the father of the child.

No death certificate was asked for, and upon the autopsy to-day will depend much in regard to the actual cause of death.

Recently there occurred the death and proper burial of an infant child, only five days' old, of Mrs. James Paden, mother of Florence, in contrast to the alleged ignorance of the burial law displayed by Florence Paden and young Ginsburg.

Executed Twenty-Six Adana Butchers.

Boils and Pimples.

Whenever your complexion is unnatural, your skin in an unhealthy condition, your face covered with blotches and pimples, when boils and festering sores abound then your blood is bad. You can best cleanse it with that purely vegetable compound, Burdock Blood Bitters, which safely and promptly renovates the blood and invigorates the entire system.

Boils Cured.

Mr. C. A. Mussen, Bawlf, Alta., writes: "I recommend Burdock Blood Bitters as being the best blood purifier there is. About three years ago I was greatly troubled with boils and our druggist advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters and after taking two bottles I have not had a boil or even a pimple."

Pimples Cured.

Mr. J. Morehouse, Zealand Station, N.B., writes: "My face and neck were covered with pimples, and I tried all kinds of remedies, but they did me no good. I went to many doctors, but they could not cure me. I then tried Burdock Blood Bitters and I must say it is a wonderful remedy for the cure of pimples."

Finding of Commission Which Investigated Charges of Civic Corruption is Made Public—Declares That a Quarter of the City's Income Went Annually Into Hands of Looters—Ward System Bad.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Judge Cannon, who held the recent investigation into the civic administration of Montreal, during which some sensational charges against aldermen and civic employes were investigated, submitted his finding yesterday.

The report is a severe condemnation of a number of prominent civic administrators and includes direct charges of misuse of civic funds against some aldermen, Ald. Proulx being especially prominent. The judge turns down the application of the lawyers who took part in the investigation to have the city pay their fees. The conclusions are:

The administration of the city since 1902 has been saturated with corruption arising from patronage.

The majority of the aldermen administer affairs in such a manner as to favor the particular interests of their relatives and friends, to whom they distribute contracts and positions to the detriment of the general interest of the city and the taxpayers.

The City Council is to-day composed of groups and cliques struggling among themselves with such fierceness that they necessarily lose all sight of the higher interests of the community.

"As a result of such an administration," says the report, "the five-million-dollar revenue of the city of Montreal was spent as follows:

"Twenty-five per cent. in grafting and malversations of all kinds, and of the balance the larger part was used in works the permanence of which was ephemeral."

The division of the city into wards had a bad effect. Aldermen should be elected by the whole electorate to prevent ward politics.

The commissioner was pleased with the vote for the reduction of aldermen and the board of control, which he strongly supports.

The civil and criminal actions which might arise out of the evidence given must be taken by the council chosen at the forthcoming elections which will have to adopt the line of conduct to be followed.

As regards Chief of Police Campeau, the commissioner declares that he was a most willing tool in the hands of certain aldermen. This conduct of the chief, rendered possible the excesses and irregularities against which the presence of an inflexible officer would have prevailed. No evidence, however, was adduced to show that he was dishonest.

Justice Cannon's conclusions regarding the police department are: "In a general fashion it is necessary to conclude that all those who took part in the discontinuance of the 56 prosecutions for infraction of the license law were acting contrary to law, and committed so many cases of abuse and irregularity.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The special committee appointed to consider Mr. Verville's bill for an eight-hour day on all public works, met yesterday morning. It was decided to give everyone interested in the measure an opportunity of being heard. Copies of the bill are to be forwarded to manufacturers and others concerned.

Contracting Company Dissolved.

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—The big contracting firm of Kelly Bros., who have several branches in the west, was ordered dissolved yesterday as a climax of a lengthy litigation. A receiver will be appointed.

The Shadow Of Death

Aged Monarch Lies Dying In Castle From Which He Has Dismissed His Servants and Sold His Furniture—Doctors Say He Cannot Recover — One of His Banished Daughters Wishes to Return.

Brussels, Dec. 14.—Leopold II., King of the Belgians, to-day is making a desperate fight with death, and the odds are strongly against the aged monarch. As a last resort the surgeon's knife will be tried to-day. If the operation is successful, King Leopold may live. If it fails, the end is inevitable. All that will depend upon the King's strength and vitality, which are fast ebbing.

Rheumatism has already conquered the aged and wasted frame. Dropsy has developed and an obstruction of the intestines, which must be removed, has greatly aggravated the seriousness of his condition.

The general opinion is that the King will not survive the operation. Indeed, he may die at any moment. The monarch himself is rather optimistic and yesterday exclaimed to his physician, "Operate, and the sooner the better." But he added with a wan, wistful smile, "Perhaps, doctors, the long, long journey is at hand."

King Leopold is still as lucid of intellect as ever. This masterful mind, which conceived and carried out the gigantic Congo project and roused the whole world into bitter indictment and discussion, calmly directed what seems to be the final chapter in his spectacular career.

The picture was pathetic enough. Separated from his two oldest daughters by a tragic skein of events, with scandals of his own personal life whispered by every tongue, Leopold lay last night "in the Halms," a little pavilion of six rooms, close to the great empty Lacken Castle, surrounded by his faithful daughter, Princess Clementine, Crown Prince Albert and the royal household.

Princess Louise, whose creditors tried to prevent her from receiving her inheritance of the Queen's jewels, has offered a dramatic touch to the present situation by sending from Hungary an insistent appeal to her father to receive her, and it was rumored last night that the King had consented to see his banished daughter. Nothing has yet been heard from Princess Stephanie.

A Money Transfer Pact.

London, Dec. 14.—The British Postoffice Department announces that it has concluded a money transfer agreement with the Western Union Telegraph Co., through which that company will be permitted to make cable transfers of money between its offices in the United States and points in Great Britain and Ireland, where the orders will be cashed through the postal department.

The arrangement has the sanction of the British treasury, and will become operative on Jan. 1 next.

Bride-to-Be Thrice Bereft by Death.

Utica, N.Y., Dec. 14.—Herman Spencer, a farmer, 36 years old, was burned to death near Guilford, N.Y., in a fire that destroyed his barn Sunday morning. Spencer was to have been married next Wednesday.

Five years ago, the lady whom Mr. Spencer was about to marry, was planning for her wedding when her lover was killed by the cars. Two years ago, she was again about to wed, when her affianced husband was taken suddenly ill and died in a few hours.

Not the Naked Truth.

Washington, Dec. 14.—"As nature made them. Photos of ten beautiful forms. Sent sealed. Twenty-five cents." Because he put this ad. in the papers and sent to those who responded photographs of "ten beautiful forms" of trees, as nature made them, the Postoffice Department has barred Harry B. Wessing of Keokuk, Iowa, from further use of the mails.

Horse Thief Pleads Guilty.

Brockville, Dec. 14.—William McMillan, the Mechanicsville man arrested three weeks ago on a charge of stealing a horse, and who chose a trial by jury, requested yesterday to be brought before Judge McDonald. He pleaded guilty, and sentence was deferred.

$10 Fine For Asking For Drink.

Kingston, Dec. 14.—Robert L. Ferguson admitted asking for a drink in the Grand Opera House Hotel when on the "prohibited list," and was fined $10 and costs or twenty days.

Nelson The Best Port

Deputy Minister of Railways as Result of Inquiry Into Prospects For a Line to the Sea, Finds Port Nelson Much Better Than Fort Churchill — Road Would Cost Over Eight Million Dollars.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—"There is no room for doubt that Nelson is the much better harbor," says M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways, in a report on the Hudson Bay Railway project, which was tabled in the Commons yesterday. The two lines considered were to Fort Churchill and Port Nelson, from the Pas Mission. Comparing Port Nelson route with the other, he says:

"The line is also shorter by 67 miles, the country through which it runs better, and the possibility of local business altogether better than the Churchill route. There is also a probability that a fair proportion of the route is available for settlement, whereas on the Churchill route, there is no such probability beyond Split Lake, where the lines separate.

"The sea route will pass to the north of Ireland and the distance from Liverpool to Port Nelson is 3,200 miles, against 3,000 from Montreal to Liverpool.

"For all practical purposes the City of Winnipeg is as close to Fort William as the Pas is to Hudson Bay at Port Nelson, hence they may be compared as radiating points.

"Practically the whole of the Province of Manitoba and about 11,000 square miles of the southeasterly corner of Saskatchewan, is tributary to Winnipeg; the whole of the remaining area of Saskatchewan and Alberta belonging to the Pas. Other sources of traffic possible to the line besides grain, are: the exportation of cattle, the usual package freight to and from Europe, and possibility of developing a reasonably large import coal trade.

"It is apparent that under any circumstances grain may be placed at the Hudson Bay op board ship as cheaply as at Fort William, hence the saving possible in 5 cents per bushel, assuming that insurance and freight rates are equal at Montreal and Port Nelson."

He estimates the complete cost of the railway to Port Nelson at $8,961,800 with 80-pound rails.

E. N. Lewis (West Huron) introduced two bills, one increasing the penalties for assaults against the person, and for homicide by hunters who mistake human beings for deer; and the other the Daylight Saving Bill, which was favorably reported on by a special committee last session, proposing to make the day during the summer months begin one hour earlier.

Lloyd Harris introduced a bill to amend the criminal code, making it a specific offence for anyone to use an automobile without the owner's consent.

H. H. Miller introduced a bill to amend the Interest Act. It seeks to give a person who has given a mortgage power to pay off a mortgage on a month's notice or payment of one month's interest. Mr. Miller's first bill dealing with this matter has been withdrawn. It was retroactive. This is not.

Mr. Edwards introduced a bill to amend the Canada Shipping Act, to do away with discrimination against Ontario vessel owners, who have to pay pilotage and wharfage dues which the owners of vessels in other provinces do not.

Dr. Sproule asked if the Government had anything definite to announce regarding legislation against combines, forecasted in the speech from the throne. The Premier said it was still under consideration.

The bill respecting the Ottawa Northern & Western Railway Co., the bill to incorporate the Pine Pass Railway Co., and the bill respecting the Phoenix Assurance Co., were given third readings.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed Major Currie that no representations had been made to the Imperial Government to have the terms of the Bush-Bagot convention modified.

Dr. Chisholm learned that some consideration had been given to the advisability of constructing airships in connection with military defence, and that the Government has decided to be guided by the action of the Imperial authorities. Sir Frederick Borden added that the Government did not consider that the time had arrived to spend money, but was quite willing to provide facilities for experimenting.

Mr. Boyer was informed by Mr. Fisher that the decennial census will not be taken till June, 1911.

Col. Worthington learned that $142,000 had been spent to date by the militia department for topographical work. Seventeen thousand square miles have been completely surveyed and mapped.

F. D. Monk was told that the grant of land to the Peace River Land Developing & Colonization Co. had been cancelled because the company failed to fulfill the terms of its agreement. It was not intended to give the land as a grant to another company.

A return tabled in Parliament yesterday by Hon. G. P. Graham, at the request of Mr. Crocket, gives the correspondence arising out of a complaint that sub-contractors on the N.T.R. in New Brunswick had been unable to pay for supplies bought from merchants and farmers.

The original contract for the section was given to the G.T.P. It sublet to the Toronto Construction Co., which in turn sublet to others. Mr. Crocket

Train Wrecks Wagon; One Dies.

Port Colborne, Dec. 14.—George Dayboll, a farmer residing in Wainfleet Township was driving his four sons to school yesterday morning when the rig was struck by a G.T.R. freight train at a crossing five miles west of here.

One boy, Joseph, aged 8, was instantly killed, and Alonzo, aged 10, was seriously injured.

Dayboll received only slight injuries, and the other boys escaped without a scratch.

The horse was killed and the wagon completely demolished.

The horse became unmanageable while being driven across the track.

38 Lives Lost With Ferry.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 14—It became known yesterday that 38 persons instead of 32 left Conneaut, Ohio, last Wednesday morning on board the car ferry, Marquette and Bessemer No. 2, which was lost in the storm.

Lake men say that if the present south wind continues for a few hours, all of the bodies of the men missing will be washed to the Canadian shore. Preparations will be made to have the Canadian beach patrolled.

Jail a Vags' Club.

Brantford, Dec. 14.—In sentencing William Truckle, vagrant, who had repeatedly appeared asking for six months, Magistrate Livingston said he would send Truckle to the Central Prison, where he would have to work and not to the county jail, where it was said the chief occupation among the prisoners was card playing and chewing tobacco.

Efficient Fire Ranging.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—Damage from forest fires along the right of way of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from Edmonton west to Tete Jaune Cache during October (the last month of the dangerous season), was practically nil, the effect of the efficient work of the staff of forest fire rangers.

GOD'S WORK AND OURS

PASTOR RUSSELL SPEAKS ON MEANS TO SALVATION.

Text, "Work Out Your Own Salvation With Fear and Trembling, For It Is God Which Worketh In You Both to Will and to Do of His Good Pleasure" (Philippians ii, 13)—Joint-Heirs With Christ.

Sunday, Dec. 12.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached today from the following text to a packed house:

"Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure" (Philippians ii, 13).

The proper relationship between faith and works and between God's work and ours are matters apparently not clearly understood by the majority of Christian people and, of course, not at all comprehended by the worldly. It is not only worth while, but very important, that each Christian entering into covenant relationship with God should understand distinctly his own responsibilities, the assistance which God is willing to grant him through the merit of Christ, and what is required of him individually in the matter of good works. A great stake, a great prize is involved. Carelessness or ignorance might jeopardize this prize — might lose us a place amongst "the very elect," who shall be joint-heirs with their Redeemer in his Millennial Kingdom soon to be inaugurated for the blessing of the whole world.

Mark well that we purposely avoid the error which so long had beclouded our spiritual vision. Note that we do not say that a failure to be amongst "the elect" would signify to be with damned millions in eternal torture. No such unreasonable proposition is represented in God's Word. The question of this Gospel Age is to gain or not to gain eternal life and glory and honor as members of the Body of Christ. In a word, not pleasure or misery, but life or death, is the alternative.

Who are addressed by the Apostle in the words of our text? He is not addressing the wilfully or ignorantly wicked—the world. He is addressing those who had been such, but who repented, reformed, turned to God and saw a great light. They have seen themselves to be sinners under just condemnation of the Creator, and have seen also that Jesus, the Sent of God, has provided reconciliation with the Father through his blood — his sacrifice. More than this they have by faith accepted this proffered grace of God, and through a full consecration of their all, made acceptable through their Advocate, they have been received of the Father as his spirit-begotten children. They have been advised that as children they are "heirs of God, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ" their Lord, their Head, their Redeemer, in the glorious Millennial Kingdom which the Father has foretold shall be his for the blessing of all the families of the earth. But all these blessings they have received through faith and not actually. They must wait for the actualities until they and all of their brethren of the same class, "called of God in the one hope of their calling," shall have been tried, tested, perfected, in character, in heart, "Copies of God's dear Son."

Our text declares that we should work out our own salvation, because it is God that worketh in us. This puts God's work first and ours subsequently. Let us therefore consider the matter in this order. How, in what sense, does God work in his people—not in the world; not in the repentant sinner; not in the merely justified; but in those who have passed those stages of approach to God and, by the begetting of his holy Spirit, have entered his family as children, as sons? "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God" (I. John iii, 1). "And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans viii, 17). How does God work in such as have thus become his children—his sons?

We reply that he works in them through his spirit—the spirit of the Truth; the spirit of holiness; the spirit of consecration; the spirit of sonship. That is to say, a certain holy power or influence operates in and about the spirit-begotten children of God in harmony with this relationship. It has to do with all of their experiences in life — home, family, business, joys, sufferings, pleasures, sorrows.

But God's special way of dealing with his spirit-begotten children is through their intellects—communicating with them through the holy Scriptures. As the Apostle says, "God who spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son" (Hebrews i, 1). The twelve apostles whom the Father specially gave to him, he particularly accepted as his representatives, his mouth-pieces, the channels through whom would come to the family of God the instructions necessary for their development in holiness—the instructions necessary for their attainment of the hope of their calling—glory, honor and immortality in joint-heirship with Jesus their Redeemer as the spiritual Seed of Abraham for the blessing of the world (Galatians iii, 29).

Our Lord Jesus refers to this work of God in his people through his Word, saying, "Sanctify them through thy Truth. Thy Word is Truth" (John xvii, 17). St. Paul refers to the Scriptures as the power of God, saying, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (II. Timothy iii, 16, 17).

We have seen that God does a work in his consecrated people, using his providences in connection with the experiences of life, and that he specially uses his Word for their instruction in righteousness. We are to remember incidentally that our Lord Jesus who redeemed us and reconciled us by his blood is still our Advocate with the Father and our Instructor as the Father's representative; that through him we may be all taught of God—in the School of Christ. Next we should note the Divine method in this work of grace being carried on in our hearts from the time we fully submitted them in full consecration, in faith. Our text declares that God's work in us is divided into two parts—to will and to do. Let us examine first how God works in us to will.

The will is the real person or ego. The body is merely responsible as the agent or servant of the will. With the world the will and the body are usually at one — sympathetically cooperative. But in those begotten of God's Spirit as his children matters are different. Their wills by consecration are developed along lines quite antagonistic to the natural preferences of their flesh, so that the Apostle wrote, "With the mind I myself serve (or desire to serve) the Law of God, but with the flesh I serve (or desire to serve) the law of sin" (Romans vii, 25). Hence every spirit-begotten person has a warfare between his new mind, with its holy aspirations and desires and its opponent flesh with its animal propensities, some good and some bad. Hence the Apostle exhorts all these New Creatures to "war a good warfare" against their own flesh and to bring it into subjection to the New Mind and to the Divine Law. He urges that we "Bring every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ" (II. Corinthians x, 5). This, of course, would mean absolute perfection, so far as the New Creature would be concerned and a complete deadness so far as the flesh is concerned. With every thought captivated to the Lord the individual would never in any sense commit sin other than the sin of ignorance or imperfection.

God works in the minds of his people not along the lines of enslavement of the mind after the manner of Satan and those who are subject to his delusions—by hypnotism, etc. God's operation is the very reverse of this. He enlightens the mind to do his work. He displays to our minds gradually light and Truth, purity and goodness in their true colors, in contrast with sin, ignorance and defilement. And in the same words he sets before us the great prize of glory, honor and immortality and joint-heirship with our Redeemer in his Kingdom. The power of these hopes working in a consecrated mind is wonderful. It can make the naturally weak strong, the naturally timid bold as a lion.

This operation upon the mind is a gradual one from the time of our begetting of the holy Spirit until our change—not all at once, but gradually little by little, the Lord displays to us one feature after another of his wonderful Plan of salvation. Step by step he shows to the appreciative and obedient heart the riches of his grace, his loving kindness, his tender mercy, the boundlessness of his love and the ultimate outworking of his Divine powers for the blessing of all of his creatures who will accept his favors on his own terms. All the while he leaves us free agents to will in harmony with his proposition or to reject it. He will coerce no one. Our Lord Jesus expressed the Father's sentiment in this matter, saying, "The Father seeketh such to worship him as worship him in spirit and in truth" (John iv, 23).

Endeavor to do right naturally follows right willing. But this does not signify that God completes a work upon our wills first and then begins a fresh work upon us, stimulating us to do right to the best of our ability. On the contrary, as through his providence and Word God exercised an influence upon our wills through the knowledge of his Truth, little by little each new point of Truth was expected to be acknowledged by efforts on our part to do God's will to the extent that the new will was able to control the imperfect body. We may safely conclude that each step in right-willing must be followed by a step in right-doing before another item of grace and Truth would be granted as a basis for additional willing and then additional doing. Thus, as we walk by first putting one foot forward and then the other repeatedly, so the New Creature walks or progresses by first willing and next doing the Lord's good pleasure to the extent of his ability.

As surely as the right-willing is the result of Divine operation in the revealing of Truth, so also is the right-doing. Of the Divine influence in our hearts working in us both to will and to do God's good pleasure, St. Peter gives us a word right to the point, saying, "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the Divine nature" (II. Peter i, 4).

We have heard many improper prayers presented at the Throne of Grace by well-intentioned but misinformed children of God. Many Christians request God to do for them that which he tells them they must do for themselves. The one who asks amiss sometimes leaves the Throne of Grace confident that God will do for him what God has never promised to do for anybody, but has told us each must do for himself. Many pray, "Abandon us not in temptation, but deliver us from the Evil One" and then walk straight into temptation, wholly neglecting the directions of God's Word. Indeed, many so neglect the study of that Word that they are not aware what are its teachings, its counsels—respecting Satan and the temptations from the world, the flesh and the devil, to which all must be more or less exposed for their testing and character development.

Some pray to God to save them by his Divine power and expect him to work miraculously in them, while they are giving the best of their time and talent and influence to business or to pleasure or to self-gratification. Such need to learn the meaning of our text, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." They need to learn the meaning of the Apostle's words, "Keep yourselves in the love of God." God absolutely refuses to deal with us as machines. More than this, he refuses to coerce, to push, to pull, to drive, those whom he is now calling to sonship and joint-heirship with Christ in his Kingdom.

During the Millennium the world will receive all sorts of pulling, pushing, driving, "stripes," for their correction in righteousness, — to make them all eventually see, to ultimately force all to take their stand for right or for wrong, intelligently. But now it is different. God is "calling," "drawing" and accepting through faith in Christ as "members" of the Body of Christ, only such as can be moved to energy and devotion by the enlightenment of their minds through the Truth. None others are wanted for this "elect" class.

Those who rightly understand our text could never have so misunderstood the Saviour's words to the dying thief, "Thou shalt be with me in Paradise," as to suppose that he meant that the penitent thief would be a member of the "elect" Church, his joint-heir in the Kingdom. Indeed not! That thief had not worked out any salvation! He will indeed be in Paradise eventually. Paradise will be restored and the whole earth become as the Garden of Eden under the Millennial reign of Christ and his "members," the Church. But he was not "begotten of the holy Spirit." He was not "transformed by the renewing of his mind," that he might prove the good, acceptable and perfect will of God. He never added to his faith fortitude; and to fortitude knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness love, as the Word assures us all must do who would make their calling and election sure (II. Peter i, 10, 11). We will not, however, discuss the thief further, as we did so on a previous occasion and that sermon is in print. I will be pleased to mail it free on post card request.

The spirit-begotten children of God must work out their salvation as New Creatures in Christ by growth in grace. And growth in grace means growth in knowledge — not general knowledge, but the special knowledge provided by the Lord in his Word. It is in full accord with what we everywhere observe of the wide-spread ignorance of the Word of God, even amongst Christians, that the Scriptures declare, "My people perish for lack of knowledge" (Hosea iv, 6).

Development in heart, in character, is necessary to fit us for the future service as "members" of The Christ, associated in his glorious Kingdom work. Our call is to be kings and priests that we may serve the world of mankind. To prepare us for that service is the object of our present call and the trials of faith and patience, that by all these, character-likeness of Christ might be developed in us. If we do these things we shall never fail and an entrance will be granted us into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour. If we do these things heartily they will prove that we are copies of the Lord Jesus and it is the Divine predestination that only such as are copies of God's dear Son shall be his joint-heirs in the Kingdom (Romans viii, 17).

SEND A TEXT FOR A SERMON.

To Pastor Russell, Brooklyn Tabernacle, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Pastor Russell will be glad to have a post card from such of our readers as are interested in his weekly discourses and have received some blessing from them. Suggest topics for next year's sermons, and mention this Journal.

Pastor Russell has laid in a supply of little booklets containing the beautiful poem, "The Sweet Brier Rose." He proposes sending one of these as his response to the first thirty of our renders heard from. To the sender of the first card received and to the senders of the three most interesting cards, he will instead mail a beautiful celluloid book-mark, heart-shaped, bearing two texts of Scripture, and a photogravure picture of the Saviour, copied from an Emerald intaglio found in the Vatican Library and supposed to have been executed in the fourth century.

A Varied Climate.

The time has passed for speaking of the climate of Canada as a whole. And it is well that it is so, because it is so varied that it can be properly described only in sections. This is a big country, and its climate is framed accordingly. There is a variety for every section and a choice for every inhabitant. One is reminded of this when glancing over the reports of the Government experimental farms, which are scattered across the Dominion from Nappan, N.S., to Agassiz, B.C.

Take the report from the latter, for instance. Here is a page or two devoted to an account of the experiments carried on in growing nuts, and the first variety treated of is the English walnut. This delicious nut is associated in one's mind with those parts of England where the climate is the mildest, and with sunny Spain and Southern France. And yet in British Columbia, English walnut trees have been planted. They are doing well, and are already producing nuts. Very successful experiments have been made with the Japanese walnut, a strong grower with luxuriant foliage. They produce abundant crops of nuts, very sweet and richly flavored. This tree, it is predicted, will become popular among the farmers of the province. Pecan trees are growing well, but have not yet borne. Filberts have made a splendid growth, "but it is almost impossible to get ripened nuts, owing to the blue jays, which come in flocks and carry off the fruit."

Increased efficiency in the Grand Trunk system will be looked for with the utmost confidence, and the management will find out that it enjoys in larger measure the interest and sympathy of the whole Dominion.—Toronto Globe.

RHEUMATISM Strikes the Heart and then Kills

Causes: A run down condition of the system, poisoned blood, and Uric Acid. The joints become clogged with irritating secretions and grow stiff. Every movement tortures and racks the sufferer. Cure is not possible until the blood is purified. The most potent blood purifier is Ferrozone. It is a perfect solvent for Uric Acid and an antidote for all other poisons liable to cause inflammation or Rheumatic Pains. But Ferrozone doesn't stop here. It provides the enfeebled sufferer with an abundant supply of pure, invigorating blood. This quickly results in more strength with which to fight the disease, starts a rebuilding of the system, ends in a permanent cure. Mr. Thos. Egan, of 92 Pearl Street, New York, suffered so intensely from Rheumatism that his friends believed he could not recover. "The Rheumatism," writes Mr. Egan, "crippled me for four years. It seemed to run to the joints, which swelled and caused dreadful pain. I wasn't able to walk and my strength rapidly decreased. My heart became so weak I had to be bolstered up in bed. I was at my wits' end when I heard of the wonderful cures of Ferrozone. Twelve boxes cured and I am now strong and perfectly well." There is no better remedy. ● Severe tests have proved it superlative to all others. ● If you want the BEST and most scientific treatment for Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, or Sciatica, use Ferrozone. No case too chronic. Price 50 cents per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all druggists.

HOW DOES SHE DO IT?

Where Does Mrs. Pankhurst Get Her Power Over Women.

Contrary to popular opinion Mrs. Emmeline Goulden Pankhurst, world famous suffragette, is not in any way spectacular; in fact, the casual observer would say that her personality is not in the least striking.

There are in England to-day thousands and thousands of women who are ready to go to prison, starve, and some even say to lay down their lives at her mere nod; but armies must be fed and equipped and causes must be advertised, and traveling orators need railroad tickets. Mrs. Pankhurst is a thorough believer in the importation of foreign capital. Of course she isn't going to beg us to give her our surplus wealth, but she has hit upon a good way of annexing it—the lecture path.

Don't imagine that Mrs. Pankhurst is a militant, ranting person who, to put it plainly, loves a scrap. Not in the least. In appearance and manner she is a gentle Englishwoman of the upper middle class, with wavy brown hair slightly streaked with gray, somewhat tired looking blue gray eyes, a modified Roman nose, a slightly drooping mouth which seems to have been pressed into firmer lines than nature intended for it, and a chin inclined to squareness. Of medium height, she possesses no superfluous flesh, but has too large a frame to be called slender. Her manner is dignified, quiet and unemotional, and you look in vain at first for the magnetism and the force which her admirers attribute to her. To a woman who watched her recently as she sat on the platform in Albert Hall, London, listening to a dozen released suffragette prisoners tell how they had tried to starve themselves in jail it seemed difficult to account for the power which enables her to issue commands to women all over England and Scotland with perfect confidence that they will be obeyed without question.

To those who marvel at the little Englishwoman's influence over a gathering of her own followers, her ability to get and keep the attention of thousands who are not her followers at the outdoor mass meetings seems little short of miraculous. Whenever and wherever she speaks many persons who cannot possibly get within range of her voice get as near as they can push and crane their necks in the hope of at least catching a glimpse of her.

From 1,500 to 2,000 women regularly attend the weekly at homes of the union at Queen's Hall, and the thousands of mass meetings which have been held all over Great Britain during the last three years have exceeded in size and enthusiasm any political demonstration seen in England in many years.

Mrs. Pankhurst was born in Manchester, Eng., on the anniversary of the storming of the Bastile, and was brought up in the atmosphere of intense radicalism. She was educated in Paris, where she absorbed more "republicanism" from the daughter of Henri Rochefort. In 1879 she met and married Dr. Pankhurst, who had helped John Stuart Mill to draw up the first woman suffrage bill, and shortly after was placed on the executive committee of the then only existing woman's suffrage society and later on the woman's committee for pushing the married woman's property bill, which subsequently became a law.

Sound Advice.

"Don't be content to drive a donkey-cart. Drive a coach and four." Such was the advice which Dr. Paton, the well-known educationist of Nottingham, once gave to Rev. C. Silvester Horne, whose name is connected with those of Dr. Clifford and Dr. Robertson Nicoll in the suggested formation of a Nonconformist Emergency League to fight the Lords, should they throw out the budget. Mr. Horne has always borne the advice in mind. "It has helped me immeasurably," he once said, "in overcoming difficulties." Mr. Horne, while urging the young men of to-day to be more service-minded, advocates genuine physical development and culture. But he is not in favor of a sport which engrosses one's attention to the detriment of the serious duties of life.

Mr. Haldane's Walk to Brighton.

Though Mr. Haldane is not addicted to any of the usual forms of recreation—even golf has failed to claim him—he believes that he has the right to boast of being the only member of the House of Commons who has accomplished the walk from London to Brighton. This he achieved in quite recent years, and he declares himself, in spite of his arduous public duties, still able and ready to do his fifty miles with—or against—anyone.

Had Heart Trouble.

Nerves Were All Unstrung.

Wherever there is any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will soon produce a healthy, strong system.

Can Do Has Own Work Now.

Mrs. M. McGann, Deseronto Junction, N.B., writes:—"I wish to tell you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. Three years ago I was so run down I could not do my own work. I went to a doctor, and he told me I had heart trouble and that my nerves were all unstrung. I took his medicine, as he ordered me to do, but it did me no good. I then started to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and had only taken one box before I started to feel better, so I continued their use until I had taken several boxes, and I am now strong and well, and able to do my own work. When I commenced taking your pills I weighed 125 pounds, and now weigh 165 and have given birth to a lovely young daughter, which was a happy thing in the family. When I commenced taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I could not go upstairs without resting before I got to the top. I can now go up without any trouble."

Dropped the Subject.

"Five thousand dollars for a dog!" he exclaimed as he looked up from his newspaper. "Do you believe any one ever paid any such price, Maria?"

"I'm sure I don't know, James," she returned without stopping her needlework even for a moment. "Does the paper say that much was paid?"

"Yes. There's an article on valuable dogs, and it speaks of one that was sold for $5,000. I don't believe it."

"It may be true, James," she said quietly. "Some of these well bred animals bring fancy prices, and there's no particular reason why the paper should lie about it."

"I know that, Maria. But just think of it—just try to grasp the magnitude of that sum in your weak feminine mind! You don't seem to realize it. Five thousand dollars for a dog! Why, hang it, Maria, that's more than I'm worth!"

"I know it, James, but some are worth more than others."

She went calmly on with her sewing, while he fumed and sputtered for a moment and then dropped the subject, especially the weak feminine mind part of it.

Cosmic Dust.

A particle of dust one-hundred thousandth of an inch in diameter is held in its place in space by the force of gravitation, but a particle smaller than this is pushed outward into space by the weight of the sun's light, because as the particle becomes smaller its surface, which is subject to pressure, becomes greater in proportion to its weight.

The sun's corona, the zodiacal light, the aurora borealis and the comet's tail are all composed of these infinitely minute particles, in some cases white hot and in others merely illuminated by the sun, which are being constantly driven away from the sun by the pressure of its light.

In the case of the aurora borealis there is a movement of the light both away from and toward the sun. This is explained by the theory that the weight of the sun's light presses the particles outward into space for a certain distance and that then a certain number of them cohere together until they have sufficient weight to be attracted toward the sun once more by the force of gravitation.

Rarely Disturbed.

Two spiders who dwelt in different parts of a church chanced to meet together in the aisle one day when out for a constitutional.

"How are you getting on?" said spider No. 1 to spider No. 2.

"Oh, moderately!" was the reply. "I don't feel very comfortable on Sundays. I live in the pulpit under the cushion, and on that day the parson comes and bangs the book and sends his fists on the side, and I have to keep very close or else some day I think he'll hit me. He bangs with such a force that I know he'll squash me to a jelly."

"Oh, you come and live with me!" said his companion. "I'm never troubled. I'm always comfortable and never disturbed from one year's end to the other."

"Indeed!" said the other spider. "And where do you live?"

"Oh, I live in the pooptox!" was the reply.—Pearson's Weekly.

Antiquity of Fishing.

Probably no branch of industry can lay claim to greater antiquity than that of fishing. Its origin would seem to be coeval with the earliest efforts of human ingenuity, for the oldest monuments of antiquity show the fisherman in full possession of the implements of his calling, and even those tribes of savages which have learned neither to kindly flocks nor to till the fields are skilled in the fabrication of the hook, the fish spear and the net. The earliest civilization of the eastern Mediterranean was begun with fishing. Sidon, which means "fishery," was originally a fishing village, and its enterprising inhabitants devoted their attention mainly to the collection of a certain kind of mollusks, from which they prepared the famous tyrian purple, prized more highly for the richness and variety of its hues than any other dye known to the ancients.

He Saw Double.

Mr. Lushleigh came up the stairway with his shoes in his hand and his hat hanging precariously upon one ear, singing, "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" with wondrous disregard for pronunciation and melody. Mrs. Lushleigh met him with a cold stare and exclaimed:

"Well, to see you in such a condition! William Henry Lushleigh, I am beside myself with indignation!"

"Thash ri'," agreed Mr. Lushleigh, moodily watching the bureau as it waltzed about him, "thash ri'—you're beshide y'shelf. I c'n see you right shere beshide y'shelf. Glad you tol' me. Was beginnin' to think I'sh a bigamisht."

HAS 15,000 GARDENS.

R. S. Dunlop Grows Flowers From Ocean to Ocean.

Every one who travels across Canada by the C.P.R. in the summer time is struck by the remarkable floral display at practically every station along the line. The traveler says to himself: "This must be the result of a big general scheme planned and constantly nursed along by somebody. It isn't by chance that all the station agents of the C.P.R. have become enthusiastic gardeners, making their premises blossom and glow with color and beauty, instead of leaving them as less unsightly and dirty than ordinary backyards. Some one has done something very unusual in bringing about this almost uniform beautification of station grounds along the whole length of a vast transcontinental railroad."

The traveler is right. Nothing of the kind ever transpires without a plan, and every good plan has behind it a directing mind. But the traveler perhaps never learns who is the directing mind in this notable instance. Mr. R. S. Dunlop of Montreal is the man. He is the chief of the C.P.R. floral department. Time was when most of the station premises of this road were scarcely different in appearance from those of any jerk-water line. In the largest cities, towns, and junctions the railway gardens were improved by the cultivation of good turf, and flower beds were planted too. But they had no distinction. They were rather scraggy, and exhibited no particular taste. The grounds of the small stations were mostly eye-sores. Many of them were piled up with cinders and muck and the overflow of the freight sheds—old boxes and barrels and all sorts of rubbish. And those that were tidy were nothing more; they were not beautiful. Then along came Mr. Dunlop with an idea. He had dreams of a chain of well-kept flower gardens right across the country. He told the authorities at headquarters what he wanted to do—encourage the employes of the road to make every stopping-point of a C.P.R. train a beauty spot. The authorities told him to go ahead. But any good plan is difficult of achievement. Mr. Dunlop had his troubles at first, for it required patience and tact and much work to develop 1,500 gardeners and gardens. But there are to-day just that number of gardens on the C.P.R. between St. John, N.B., and Vancouver, B.C.

Thirteen years ago Mr. Dunlop began sending out to the station agents and section foremen of the road, free of charge, seeds in the spring and bulbs in the fall, all selected with the utmost care, and accompanied by instructions for their culture. This was the start of the scheme, which is now carried out in a way that fulfils, perhaps exceeds, his expectations. Last spring he distributed over 1,500 packages of seeds. Recently he distributed half a million bulbs. The agents and foremen and their families are now most enthusiastic gardeners. They vie with one another in having beautiful gardens and indoor floral decorations for the buildings in their charge; and in so doing not only give pleasure to the traveling public but to themselves.

Why Cook Didn't Come.

The American newspapers have been recently making investigations into the financial gains that have fallen to Dr. Frederick Cook through his assertion that he discovered the North Pole, and it has been shown that by getting into the lecture field quickly he has been able to mint the suspicions which have been cast upon his narrative into gold. According to all accounts his present fee is $300 a night for public appearance and he appears to be finding local managers willing to take the risk of getting out with a profit even with such a guarantee to face. But he appears to have come down in his figures even at that.

When the controversy was a nine days' wonder a Toronto sporting editor who has had some experience in handling Marathon runners and wrestlers with profit thought there might be money in bringing Cook to Toronto.

He wired Dr. Cook for his terms and the latter's manager replied, offering to give one lecture for the sum of $4,000 in cold cash. The sporting editor went as high as $3,500, estimating that that was the highest sum that could be paid, and even at that the chances of loss were considerable. Dr. Cook, however, declared that the lowest offer he would entertain was $3,500. For this reason Toronto has so far been deprived of his presence, and it is probable that the sporting editor and his friends who were willing to take a chance in bringing him are money in pocket.

The Aurora Borealis.

Whatever may be the cause of the aurora borealis, its height does not appear to be limited by the atmosphere. The rays sometimes touch the earth in Scandinavia, coming between the observer and elevated places, but Flogel years ago obtained data showing that a large aurora seen in northern Germany must have had a height of sixty miles and that the rays often rise to 450 miles, their points glowing with red light.

EARNED HIS BOARD.

Sir Thomas Lipton's Experience as a Hotel Runner.

"During the early part of my business career," said Sir Thomas Lipton in the London Strand Magazine, "I became imbued with the idea that it was possible to prosper quickly in America, and at the age of sixteen I left home and started for the United States. I had not dared tell my father and mother, so they only knew of the great step I had taken when I had gone. Had it not been for the kindness of my fellow passengers my journey would have been very miserable, and once or twice, I confess, I lost heart.

"I had no money nor any one to go to when I arrived in New York, and before we landed I cudgeled my brains as to what I was to do. As the steamer drew alongside the pier I took up my few belongings and rushed away to the nearest hotel before any one else had left the vessel.

"As it seemed a clean, well kept place I asked to see the proprietor and told him that I could get him forty patrons, provided he would board and lodge me for a month. To this he consented. I made my way back instantly to the boat and was just in time to catch my fellow passengers and persuade them to go to this hotel, where I assured them they would get excellent accommodation. And they did."

LONG LIVED OLIVE TREES.

Groves That Have Been Productive For Many Centuries.

The longevity of olive trees is extraordinary. In Syria have been found some remarkably ancient olive trees whose ages are established beyond question. A trust deed exists which relates to an orchard covering 490 trees near Tripoli, Syria, the trust deed having been issued in the year 1410.

Though the trees look aged, they still bear fruit of fine quality in abundance and are likely to maintain their productiveness for many hundreds of years. An olive grove near Beirut is admitted to be the third largest olive farm in the world. Syrian fruit farmers are extending olive culture with much zeal and effect.

Under European systems of culture the Syrians make the olive tree bear each season, while in the old days one crop in three years was thought to be all that the trees could produce. The low cropping capacity of the trees was due to the native method of thrashing the fruits from the branches with sticks, which seriously injured them.

The methods of grinding the olive for oil and picking the fruit are peculiar. Neither the grinders nor pickers receive wages, but are paid on percentage. The pickers receive 5 per cent of the actual fruit picked, and the grinders get 10 per cent of the fruit ground.—Dundee Advertiser.

How Whitman Helped Childs.

The poet Walt Whitman was, as is well known, dependent during most of his life upon the kindness of his friends and admirers for support. A few years before his death one of these friends called upon him in his little house in Camden.

"Well, Walt," he said, "how goes it this winter? Any subscription needed for Christmas?"

"No," said Whitman; "no. I'm at work now. I'm in the employ of George Childs. He pays me $50 a month."

"You at work! May I ask what is your occupation?"

"Why, I ride in the street cars. I fall into talk with the drivers and conductors and find out which of them have no overcoats and guess at their size and notify Childs, and then he sends the overcoats. It's not hard work," said the poet thoughtfully. "And then, you know, it helps Childs along."

Dangerous Insects.

The trolley car stopped in the middle of a stretch of country road. Both motorman and conductor tried in vain to find out what the trouble was. At last they gave it up, and the conductor started down the track to the nearest telephone.

"What do you suppose is the trouble?" inquired a passenger of his seat mate.

"Why, I don't know much about electricity," said the other, "but I should say it was the ohms. You see, they get into the wires every little while and make an awful fuss there. Technically, I believe, it is called resistance, but all it amounts to is stoppage—like sole in water pipe, you know. I never saw an ohm myself. They're microscopic, you know."

The Joy That Killed.

A senator was praising the humor of a certain congressman.

"His humor, however," he concluded, "is rather grim. I told him the other day about a mutual acquaintance who had died, a man he had never liked.

"'And his wife is dead, too,' I said. 'He himself died on Monday; his wife died two days later. The papers didn't say what killed her.'

"'She was tickled to death, I guess,' said the congressman grimly."

The Man of the Hour.

WORLD'S BANKNOTES.

Shape, Size and Color of Paper Money of the Nations.

The only paper money that is accepted practically all over the globe is not "money" at all, but the notes of the Bank of England. These notes are simply printed in black ink on Irish linen water lined paper, plain white, with ragged edges. The reason that a badly soiled or worn Bank of England note is rarely seen is that notes which in any way find their way back to the bank are immediately canceled and new ones are issued. The notes of the Banque de France are made of white water lined paper printed in black and white, with numerous mythological and allegorical pictures. They are in denominations of from 25 francs to 1,000 francs.

Bank of England notes are of a somewhat unhandy size—5 by 8 inches. South American currency resembles the bills of the United States, except that cinnamon brown and slate blue are the prevailing colors. German currency is printed in green and black, the notes being in denominations of from 5 to 1,000 marks. The 1,000 mark bills are printed on silk fiber paper.

It takes an expert or a native to distinguish a Chinese bill from a laundry ticket if the bill is of low denomination or a firecracker label if for a large amount, the print being in red on white or yellow on red, with much gilt and gorgeous devices. Italian notes are all sizes, shapes and colors. The smallest bills, 5 and 10 lire, are printed on white paper in pink, blue and carmine inks.

The most striking paper currency in the world is the 100 ruble note of Russia, which is barred from top to bottom with all the colors of the rainbow blended as when a sun ray passes through a prism. In the center in bold relief is a finely executed vignette in black. The remainder of the engraving on the note is in dark and light brown ink.

The American practice of scattering strands of silk through the paper fiber as a protection against counterfeiting is unique.

POLAR PHENOMENA.

The Mirage and the Mock Sun of the Arctic Regions.

In the spring of 1900 I changed over to the steamer Corwin and sailed for the Arctic ocean to establish a trading station somewhere on the northern shores of Alaska. Although we went on a purely commercial venture, there was a good deal of talk about the pole during the seven months we spent in the almost continuous sunlight.

Dr. Cook relates instances of seeing mirages above the ice fields—mountains passing in solemn review and sometimes inverted and standing on their peaks—but he goes on to say that there were no forms of life. Mirage is a common sight even in lower latitudes than those mentioned by Dr. Cook. I have seen the spires and domes of well defined buildings, whole cities, in fact, appear above the horizon, sometimes lingering for several minutes, or, again, with their towers reaching up higher and higher, attenuating apparently to a mere thread. The "mock sun" is a common phenomenon in the Bering sea. On the evening of June 2, 1900, perhaps 100 miles south of St. Lawrence island, about 9:30 o'clock and past sunset, the sun was visible as though half an hour high, but appearing as a much flattened oval. Then another sun more nearly round emerged from the horizon beneath the "goose egg," rising quite rapidly until it blended with the descending orb. Thereupon, instead of settling below the horizon, the light was quickly dissipated in the air. This phenomenon was probably due to the unequal density of several superimposed strata of air producing refraction of the sun's rays from below the horizon.—Captain Edwin Coffin of Ziegler Polar Expedition in National Magazine.

A Bushel of Cents.

It beats all what odd questions reach some of the departments of government in Washington. Not long ago the treasury received a letter from a man who had made a bet asking "How many cents are there in a bushel?" The answer was not easy to offer. If the man had asked about pounds he might have received a definite answer. As it was, he got in reply a guess from a clerk that "roughly there is something like $330, or 32,000 pennies."

Off to New York For Treatment.

Galt, Dec. 14.—The following, having been bitten by a dog last week, left yesterday for treatment in the Pasteur Institute, New York: Charles McKeown, son of Wallace McKeown; J. Hindman, son of Wm. Hindman; Bert St. Clair, David Smith, Annie Duncan, daughter of Peter Duncan; Archie Pittigrew, John Graham and Andrew Wright.

If Britain Adopts Tariff.

Liverpool, Dec. 14.—The Steamship Owners' Association has passed a resolution affirming that it is imperative in the event of Great Britain adopting a universal customs tariff to provide accommodation at Liverpool for handling goods free of customs control, as is done at the free ports of Germany, notably at Hamburg.

Arrested for Breach of Burial Laws.

Port Hope, Dec. 14.—Fred Ginsburg, who buried the infant daughter of Miss Florence Padden last Wednesday, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of burying a body without due death certificate and burial permit. The baby's body was interred in a backyard, enclosed in a soap box.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Pat Sheedy, once notorious as the prince of New York gamblers, is dead in that city.

The Kinrade family will remove from Hamilton and join Montrose and Mrs. Wright at Calgary.

Gen. Estrada, leader of the Nicaraguan revolutionists, has notified the U. S. that Dr. Nadrig will not be acceptable as a president.

D. W. Campbell of the Elder-Dempster Line, received a cable yesterday announcing the death of the head of that company, Sir Alfred Jones.

The whereabouts of the steamer Jesse Spalding, owned by Prindeville & Sons of Chicago, which is nearly a week overdue at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., are unknown.

The sixteen-year-old son of John Trimble and thirteen-year-old Irene McManus, daughter of I.C.R. Freight Agent McManus of Hampton, N.B., were drowned while skating on the lakeside yesterday afternoon.

John Hannon, a cigarmaker, 24 years of age, 265 York street, Hamilton, committed suicide Sunday by cutting his throat with a razor. His body was not found until yesterday morning. Intimates of the house say he had been on a spree.

Mrs. Allison whose letters figured so prominently in Sir Frederick Borden's recent suit, has been discharged from the employ of the Government. She has been working as a charwoman in the east block, and had been on the Government pay list for 12 years.

Speaking at the launching of the steamship Prince Rupert at Wallsend, (Eng.), F. B. Girdlestone, general manager of the Bristol dock committee, said he hoped that they would shortly have the co-operation of the Great Western Railway of England and the G.T.R. in Canada for the provision of a service of high speed passenger steamers.

Close Local Option Fights.

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—Municipal elections held yesterday throughout Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The following mayors are reported elected: Prince Albert, Sask., Andrew Holmes; Regina, Mayor E. H. Williams (acc.); Davidson, John Williams (acc.); Rosthern, D. S. MacGregor; Swift Current, A. W. Snider; Wapella, A. T. Morrison; Saskatoon, Dr. Hopkins; Whitewood, R. S. Park (acc.); Qu'appelle, J. P. Beauchamp; Weyburn, Dr. E. H. Smith; Caron, Dr. Elgin A. Gray; Moosejaw, E. G. Mathews; Houghton, David Donnelly; Milestone, J. E. Mackenzie.

At Wolseley, local option was defeated by nine majority; at Yellow Grass, local option carried by one majority; and at Moosomin, local option carried by five majority.

B. C. Conservatives Back Borden.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—R. L. Borden has received a telegram embodying the following resolution, passed by the British Columbia Conservative Association, at its convention at Kamloops, on Saturday: "This convention expresses its utmost confidence in R. L. Borden, our leader, in the Dominion Parliament, and pledges him its continued support. This convention favors any legislation having for its object the strengthening of the ties which bind the Mother Country and the colonies together, and believes that determined efforts should be taken to give large and practical aid to Imperial defence."

Mail Clerk Pleads Guilty.

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—In the Police Court yesterday H. V. Rowe, mail clerk, accused of robbing the mails at Leary's siding, Nov. 1, pleaded guilty and will be sentenced Saturday. He confessed that $1,000 in Bank of Montreal bills, the last of the missing money, was hidden in his homestead.

William Catchpole, who deserted his wife at Ipswich, Eng., some years ago, and going to Winnipeg, married a Galician, was sentenced for bigamy to three years.

Strict Newspaper Copyright.

St. Petersburg, Saturday, Nov. 27.—A bill has been introduced in the Upper House of Parliament, establishing an absolute copyright on news despatches and correspondence in the periodical press for eighteen hours after publication. The bill, the aim of which is the protection of newspaper correspondents, will, if enacted, prevent morning papers reprinting the despatches of afternoon papers and vice versa.

Suffragette Manifesto to Asquith.

London, Dec. 14.—A committee of suffragettes yesterday sent a manifesto to Premier Asquith that his offer to submit to the next Parliament an equal rights bill was wholly unsatisfactory owing to the fact that the Liberals had given this same promise at the last election and had repudiated it.

18 Blocks Burned in Santiago.

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 14.—A disastrous fire occurred Sunday night in the city of Valdivia.

Eighteen blocks of buildings were destroyed, and thousands rendered homeless.

The loss is estimated at about 7,000,000 pesos ($2,500,000).

Masher Gets a Jolt.

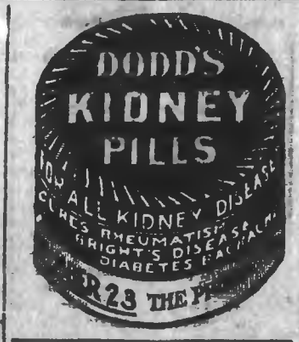
London, Ont., Dec. 14.—Bert Jackson, went into a local store when no one was in but Miss Edna Hall, and proceeded to make himself too attentive. Miss Hall procured a club and drove him out of the store, and in the Police Court yesterday morning he was fined $10.

Imitating Canadian Club.

London, Dec. 14.—The council of the Royal Colonial Institute has decided to give luncheons on the lines of the Canadian Clubs. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who arrived yesterday, will probably be the principal speaker at the inaugural luncheon.

160 Carloads of Grain Burned.

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 14.—Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the warehouse of the Corno mills. About 160 carloads of grain were burned, the loss being over $100,000.



FORCED HER TO MARRY.

Southern States Belle Says Chauffeur Intimidated Her.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 14.—Two minutes after Mrs. Silvy Speer Thomas, the daughter of W. A. Speer, well known in financial circles, was granted a divorce from her father's chauffeur, Russell J. Thomas, in the Superior Court yesterday, a marriage license was issued to Marshall S. McKenzie and Miss Silvy Speer.

The divorce was secured on allegations that she was forced to marry the chauffeur because of his alleged threats of violence against her father unless she consented to elope with him.

The elopement of beautiful Silvy Speer with her father's handsome young chauffeur fourteen months ago was the sensation of three states.

After being married in Atlanta they left for Charlotte, N.C., where they were arrested as they registered at a prominent hotel. Mrs. Speer brought the bride back to Atlanta, but the young husband made so much trouble that the mother took her daughter to New York. Here the bride was kept hidden to evade a writ of habeas corpus sought by the husband. Finally they sailed for Europe.

Thomas asserted that if he could see his bride alone she would declare that she preferred him to her parents. This her parents refused to allow. They charged that she was drugged by Thomas the day of the wedding, and while in this condition was forced under threats to consent to a marriage.

$300,000 Jewel Robbery in New York.

New York, Dec. 14.—Diamonds and other jewelry valued at $300,000 were stolen from the apartments of Mrs. John William Jenkins, on the eighth floor of the Lorraine, Fifth avenue and 45th street, on Saturday afternoon.

Since Mrs. Jenkins and her husband went to live at the Lorraine July 1, her diamonds have been regarded as the most valuable collection of gems owned in the hotel. Except a diamond bracelet and two diamond rings, all of the fine jewels, including a brooch, which had been added to the collection by Mrs. Jenkins a few hours before the robbery, are missing.

The jewels were stolen from apartments between 3 and 5.30 p.m. Mrs. Jenkins was absent from the hotel between those hours and her companion, Miss Russell, also was away from the apartment part of the time.

One of the diamond necklaces that were stolen contains 18 large perfectly matched diamonds. It was this necklace in which Mrs. Jenkins took most pride.

Simonski Committed.

Toronto, Dec. 14—Charged with robbing the Bank of Nova Scotia at Rainy River, Ont., of $9,052, assisted by four accomplices, Andreas, Slanler, Maclaw and Winicki, Victor Simonski, a Pole, from whom a confession was extracted by a Polish detective in Buffalo, was committed for trial in the Police Court yesterday morning. The confession was secured from Simonski while serving a term at Buffalo as a vagrant.

In his confession he told how the five went to Rainy River, and at Winicki's suggestion, went in and robbed the bank. He declared that he took his share to his home in St. Paul, where, in his absence, it was stolen by Slander, who fled to St. Louis, Mo. There, when pursued by the police, he shot himself and one of the officers.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., is defending Simonski, who will be tried at the next Assizes.

Found Shot In the Woods.

Portage la Prairie, Dec. 14.—Mystery surrounds the death of Angus MacDonald, found shot in the woods north of Teulon on Wednesday. The body was brought here Saturday by Messrs Tooth and McKinnon, the latter an uncle.

On Wednesday Tooth and MacDonald started out, the former going north and the latter west. Tooth returned home that night, but MacDonald, failing to show up, a search party was organized. They found him clutching a rifle in his right hand, a shot having gone in at the left ear and the whole head being shattered. Tooth's theory is that MacDonlad shot himself while insane, but this is physically impossible. Dr. Keele opened an inquest last night.

Two Hunters Killed.

Belleville, Dec. 14.—Mistaken for a deer, Wm. Dean, a farmer of Faraday Township, was shot and instantly killed. The shooting took place in the woods and was done by Lige Donnelly of Rose Island. The deceased was an only son and the sole support of an aged father, who with three sisters, two married and one single, survive.

Roy Bollard of Chandos, while out hunting, fell on his gun, which was discharged. The charge entered his left side, killing him.

Either Way.

"Happiness merely consists of getting the things we want," remarked the wise guy.

"Or of not getting the things we don't want," supplemented the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 13.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, receipts of live stock for last week were 3025 cattle, 1475 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs, 375 calves; supply this morning, 1500 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs, 225 calves. Prices for good to choice cattle advanced ¼c to ½c per pound since this day week on account of limited supply and higher prices in country. There was no change in lower grades, prices being firm with ample offerings. A few small lots of extra choice Ontario stall-fed steers and heifers were on sale for the Christmas market. A pair of steers sold at 6¾c per pound and a pair of heifers, weight 2050 pounds, at 6½c per lb. Owing to more seasonable winter weather, the near approach of the holiday season, and the impression that values for beef are tending higher, there was a good demand from butchers and an active trade was done. Choice steers sold at 5½c to 5¾c; good, at 5c to 5¼c; fair, at 4¼c to 4¾c; medium, at 3¾c to 4c, and common, at 3c to 3½c per pound. The demand from packers for canners was fair, but supplies not so large as a week ago, and prices were steady, at 1½c to 1¾c for cows, and at 2½c to 2¾c for bulls. Prices for lambs scored a further advance of ½c to ½c per lb., owing to somewhat limited supply. Sales were made at 6½c to 6¾c per lb. Sheep prices were firmly maintained, and demand was good at 4¼c to 4½c per lb. The market for good to choice calves is strong. Supplies were small and sales at from $3.50 to $11 each. An easier feeling prevailed in the market for hogs and prices show a decline of 10c to 15c per cwt., on account of more liberal supplies. Sales of selected lots from west of Toronto were made at $6.60 and from east of Toronto, at $6.40 to $6.50, weighed off cars. At the Canadian Pacific live stock market receipts last week were 1150 cattle for export account, and 1856 cattle, 1300 sheep and lambs, 2375 hogs and 300 calves. Offerings this morning were 800 cattle, 700 sheep and lambs, and 100 calves.

Wheat From Far North.

The Dominion Trade and Commerce Department has received from Commissioner Perry of the Northwest Mounted Police, a sample of wheat grown in 1908 at Fort Leard. Fort Leard is on the River Leard, which empties into the MacKenzie River at Fort Simpson and is situated about twenty miles north of the 60th parallel and twenty miles east of the Yukon Territory. The grain inspectors at Winnipeg give the sample the grade of No. 2 northern.

The recent price of this grade is between 94 and 95 cents.

FOUR CHARGES OF PERJURY BEING HEARD AT THE SESSIONS

December Sittings of County Court Opened This Afternoon Before Judge Hdycke—His Honour's Address to the Grand Jury.

ONE CASE SETTLED

The December Sessions of the County Court of Peterborough opened before His Honour Judge Huycke this afternoon at 1 o'clock, when there was a large representation of the bar of this city present. The members there were Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, and Messrs. D. O'Connell, E. A. Peck, J. W. Bennet, B. L. Goodwill, F. D. Kerr, R. F. McWilliams, G. W. Hatton, G. N. Gordon, and A. P. Poussette, K.C., and W. A. Henderson, of Toronto.

After the court had been formally opened the following grand jurors were sworn:

Messrs. J. J. Bennet, (foreman), D. Buchanan, F. Dunlop, G. H. Giroux, Jas. Greer, John Kerr, Oscar Matchett, W. J. Miller, Stewart Miller, Chas. McClelland, F. J. Squires, and J. W. Miller.

Address to Grand Jury.

His Honour Judge Huycke, in addressing the Grand Jury, spoke in part as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Grand Jury. You have sworn to perform duties which, although very important, are not onerous. It has been argued that a grand jury was unnecessary. However, I feel firmly convinced that it is a most desirable part in the administration of justice. Before speaking of your duties I take this occasion of referring to the deaths of two officials of this court. First, and foremost, I refer to the late Judge Weller, who, in his various capacities, commanded the greatest respect of all, and then again, to the death of the Clerk of the Court, and the Registrar, Mr. John Moloney, who endeared himself to every one with whom he came in contact. Mr. Sherry of Norwood, succeeds the late Mr. Moloney. He is a very capable gentleman, and I have no doubt but that he will fill the office with credit to himself and those who appointed him.

It will be your privilege to visit those institutions receiving public aid. The county and city is to be congratulated on the absence of crime. There are no prisoners in the gaol awaiting trial, the inmates being there for no other reason than to have a home. Where I say the county is free from serious crimes, I am minimizing the charges of perjury, which are preferred against three persons, who have been out on bail."

His Honour, concluding, explained the nature of perjury and the manner in which they should arrive at a "true bill" or "no bill" as the case might be. The jurors then retired.

O'Shea vs. Cottingham.

This action was the first to be heard. After ten jurors had been called, both parties consented to His Honour hearing it without a jury.

It is brought by Mrs. Margaret O'Shea against Samuel Cottingham, administrator of the estate of the late J. J. Cottingham, to recover one thousand dollars, which the plaintiff claims she lent J. J. Cottingham, deceased, in December, 1906. The defendant claims that the one thousand dollars above mentioned, was simply the return of moneys which were at various times borrowed by the plaintiff from the late J. J. Cottingham. Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, solicitors for the plaintiff; Bennet and Goodwill for the defendant.

The case of Margaret R. McGregor, who was suing Charles [illegible] Nora McDonald for $300 damages for injuries to plaintiff's horse while pasturing on defendant's premises, was settled $85 being awarded the plaintiff. Mr. R. Ruddy, K.C., for the plaintiff, and O'Connell and Gordon for the defendants.

THE VOICE OF THE VICTOR

Music is a language which expresses thought and emotion. Unless one knows its vocabulary and syntax he is as much at a loss to discern what the composer is driving as he would be listening to a Greek tragedy.

Music is among the things which make life worth living, just as pictures are, and noble architecture. By proper education it would be easy to teach the public to understand and enjoy good music as it is to create the taste for good books.

The Victor has made it possible for music to make a genuine appeal to a far greater audience than it could a generation ago.

The Melba records are among the gems of the Victor Red Seal list, and her presence in America has stimulated a brisk demand for these beautiful records.

Caruso's "Valse Lente," Record No. 88115, is one of the great tenor's best numbers. The words of this beautiful waltz song are Mr. Caruso's own composition.

The J. M. Green Music Co., Ltd., are sole representatives for Victor machines and records for this districts. An invitation is extended to you to hear these machines and records. 3d-139

THE EXAMINER WANT ADDS. SCORE AGAIN

Advertising is the test of enterprise."

A wel known business man made at statement a short time ago, and its truth is easily apparent. No matter where you go you find that the merchant who advertises is the merchant who has the largest and finest business place, who occupies the most prominent position in the business life of the centre in which he is located.

Peterborough is no exception to the rule. Here as everywhere the advertisers are the most successful in our business world. But newspaper advertising does not alone benefit the advertiser. If it did we would not find it conducted on such an extensive scale. Newspaper publicity is as much in the interest of the reader as of the merchant. Just look through columns of the Examiner to-day, crowded as they are with Christmas suggestions and judge for yourself who are the advertising, dependable merchants of the city.

ON A CHARGE OF PERJURY

Proprietor of the Oriental Hotel Arraigned—Alleged to Have Sworn Falsely in Recent Liquor Case in Police Court.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Charged with having committed perjury in the case against him for selling liquor after hours, by swearing that he did not give any liquor to any person on Sunday night, November 21st, G. N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental hotel, was arraigned before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared on behalf of the accused. The preliminary hearing was proceeded with and after hearing the evidence the defendant was committed for trial. He was admitted to bail.

P. C. Newhall, called, retold the story of what occurred at the Oriental Hotel on Sunday night, November 21st. At 11.55 he said, the accused left the rotunda with John Maunder and Victor Fowler. They went in the passage south of the bar. The defendant went into the bar. Fowler and Maunder stood in the doorway. The prisoner struck a match and drew two glasses of beer from the centre taps and took them to the two men standing at the door. He saw the accused use the cash register. The witness repeated his evidence in court last week as to the defendant giving Ernie Laurence a drink, and also a number of travellers who came off the midnight train.

The counsel for the defence asked that he might see the witness' note book, in which is a statement of what took place on the Sunday night. P. C. Newhall offered Mr. Gordon an opportunity to read the book but not to read it openly in the court to his stenographer. His Worship ruled that the witness was not obliged to show it.

"Did you discuss the case with McHarry?" Mr. Gordon asked.

"We discuss every case, the whole lot of us, like all police officers do," the witness answered.

"I think the evidence bears out your statement," retorted the counsel for the defence.

"Don't you discuss cases with your partner and sometimes instruct witnesses?" P. C. Newhall asked of his cross-examiner.

"You and Mr. Graham are not on very good terms?" Mr. Gordon interrogated.

"I speak to him when he speaks to me," witness answered.

"What was the trouble?"

"I guess he was mad because I reported him for selling liquor after hours."

"Did you ever say that you would put him out of business?"

"Never. I don't make threats."

Chief Rossel was next called. He swore that he was present at the trial against the accused for illicit liquor selling. He identified the depositions giving the evidence of the prisoner.

P. C. Meharry was called and his evidence was much the same as has been previously given.

A WELL KNOWN FIRE FIGHTER

Mr. Edward Al. Jones Dies in Southern Alberta This Morning While on a Visit to His Daughter—Had Been Ill for Some Time.

LIVED HERE FOR YEARS

News was received in the city today of the death in Claresholme, Southern Alberta, this morning of Mr. Edward Al. Jones, an old and highly respected resident of Peterborough, the intelligence of whose demise will be heard with genuine regret by his many friends in this city. The late Mr. Jones had lived in Peterborough for a large number of years, following the occupation of a tinsmith, and he was widely known through his connection with the volunteer fire brigade, of which he was a member for many years. He was one of the first members of that body and was considered one of the best firemen that ever helped in fighting the flames in Peterborough. Until the present paid brigade was organized a year and one half ago, Mr. Jones was a valued member of the Peterborough Fire Brigade.

The deceased had been in ill health for some time and just a week ago last Saturday left Peterborough for Claresholme, where his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Thompson, resides. It was thought that a change of climate would improve his condition of health but it failed in the object hoped for, as he took a turn for the worse immediately after his arrival, and sank rapidly until death occurred at 3.30 o'clock this morning.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. Fred J. Brown, of Peterborough, Mrs. Alfred Thompson, of Claresholme, and Mr. Harry Jones of Los Angeles.

The funeral will take place at Claresholme.

SENT ORDERS FOR MONEY

During Past Week Large Number of Money Orders Were Sent Home to Relatives in England—Had to Catch Last Mail.

A POPULAR PRACTICE

During the past few days the express companies, the post office and other houses that make a business of handling money orders have all been unusualy busy. It is surprising the number of people in this city who remit money to their relatives in the Old Country. The last mail closed in the city last night and this fact was known to practically all those who desired to send a note home. At any rate a large number of orders were sent from Peterborough and should be gratefully received by the dear ones across the Atlantic. The money order is the simplest and easiest way to send home a little remembrance, and in the most cases it may be said that they are not exactly little. The order removes the trouble of selecting some gift, wrapping it and paying the duty. It will be understood why this method is so popular.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To All Whom It May Concern

We will thank all parties that owe us to call and settle or remit at once, as all accounts must be paid before the end of this month. If any parties have accounts against us, we will thank them to present them at once for payment. Our methods are promptness in all things.

Respectfully yours,

JURY RETURNED TRUE BILLS

The grand jury returned "true bills" in the cases of Patrick Carroll, Victor Fowler and G. Martin, charged with having committed perjury.

ONLY ONE CASE OF SCARLET FEVER NOW IN THE CITY

According to Report of Dr. A. W. McPherson, M.H.O., to Board of Health at Meeting This Morning.

CONTRAST WITH SUMMER

It will be a source of satisfaction to the people of this city to learn that there is only one case of Scarlet Fever in the city at present. After the large number of cases that have received the attention of the Medical Health Officer since midsummer it is a pleasure to know that they have dwindled down to one lone case. Dr. McPherson conveyed this welcome intelligence to the Board of Health at their meeting this morning. Since he accepted the duties of M.H.O. he has had what might be called a busy time and has handled the several outbreaks in a manner which has brought about good results.

A CLEANLY AGE.

Twentieth Century Ideas Incline Toward Sanitation and Preventa Tives.

Nowadays scientists believe that in cleanliness lies the secret of prevention of diseases.

To prevent a disease, remove the cause.

Just as unclean habits breed many diseases, so careless habits will breed dandruff. Improper use of another's brushes, combs, etc., will surely cause dandruff, and, in time, will just as surely cause baldness.

It's microbe infection, nothing more nor less.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, and cause hair to grow luxuriantly. Herpicide is absolutely free from grease or other injurious substances.

WILL HAVE TWO QUALITIES OF ICE FOR DELIVERY NEXT YEAR

Dr. McPherson, Health Officer Reports That Mr. Allin Will Cut Ice From River Above Waterworks Dam for Use in Drinking Water — Dr. Young Presents Account for $400.

BOARD OF HEALTH MEETING

The regular meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning with Dr. Burnham presiding. A number of important questions were considered, among them being the matter of procuring ice that may be used for drinking purposes as differentiated from the ice that is used only for cooling. The following accounts were passed:

Adam Hall, $1.60; Wm. Gates $8.00, Jos. Thompson, $4.00; J. E. A. Fitzgerald, $17.30; W. H. Hamilton, $3.30.

An account was received from Dr. T. W. H. Young for $400, for medical attendance during the small epidemic last summer. It was moved by Messrs. Edgar and Murty that as Dr. Young had been acting Medical Health Officer during the absence of Dr. Bingham, the bill be sent on to the Council.

A letter was received from O'Connell and Gordon, asking that the bill of Mrs. Lewis LeBar for $18.00, be paid as soon as possible. It was stated that during the smallpox epidemic furniture, mattresses, etc., were destroyed, and Mrs. LeBar asked for recompense. Mr. Le Bar also asks for $6.00 for rent during the time the place was under quarantine. The City Solicitor stated that the Board could pay the former bill if it saw fit, but he did not think there was ground for claim in regard to the six dollars.

Mr. S. H. Mitchell furnished supplies to Mrs. Beauregard during the period of their quarantine, and the bill was to be paid when certified to by the Chief of Police. The total was $19.46, but the Chief had only certified to $9.60. By some slip the entire bill was paid and the City Treasurer states in a letter to the Board that when he asked Mr. Mitchell to return the part of the bill not certified to the latter stated that the amount of the bill was correct, and the city should pay all of it. No action was taken this morning.

G. Pidgeon, 578 Harvey street, who had been under quarantine, asked the city to assist him. He had been put to considerable expense which he was not in a position to pay.

Pure Ice.

Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., reported in regard to the securing of ice free from the city's contaminations. He stated that he had learned that Mr. Allin was to be the only ice dealer during the coming year, and he stated that he would sell the ice from the Little Lake for cooling purposes only, and that he would cut ice from the river above the new dam for use in drinking water. The former will be used in refrigerators and the latter can be put in drinking water. This arrangement will likely be acted upon.

A MOST REMARKABLE CASE

My face was paralyzed, I could not speak; five doctors failed to help me and I was in despair when hearing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I tried this wonderful restorative treatment and became well and strong in every way. I would not go back to my former condition for all the gold in the country," writes Mr. Wm. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont.

ADVERTISING IS TEST OF ENTERPRISE

Here are two forcible reminders that Examiner advertising brings results.

On Saturday a purse was lost on Simcoe St. It was too late to advertise the loss in Saturday's Examiner but yesterday the want columns of this paper contained a notice of the missing purse with the result that it came into the possession of the owner this morning.

On Friday of last week another lady lost her pocket book. She advertised her loss in Saturday's e of this paper and recovered her pocketbook on Saturday evening, a few hours after the Examiner was printed.

These instances are not exceptional. They happen every day and demonstrate conclusively that the Examiner is Peterborough's advertising medium.

MANY GIFTS ARE COMING

29,083 Christmas Presents and 2092 Bags of Letters are Coming Over on the Tunisian—A Santa Claus Ship.

A SIGN OF THE SEASON

Examiner Special.

Liverpool, December 14.—The Allan liner Tunisian sailed from this port for Halifax and St. John on Friday, carrying the Canadian Christmas mails. The Christmas mails this year surpass all other records. The Tunisian carries 2,092 bags of letters and 29,083 parcels, for Canadians with friends and relations in the homelands.

The Christmas mail bag is always a matter of public interest. Twenty-nine thousand and eight-three Canadian citizens to whom those parcels are addressed, are directly interested in the Tunisian's safe passage to say nothing of the other thousands to whom letters and greeting cards are coming in one or the other of those two thousand odd mail bags.

ELECTED OFFICERS

Sherwood Forest Camp W. O. W. Held Their Annual Meeting Last Night.

The annual meeting of Sherwood Forest Camp No. 59, Woodmen of the World was held last night and notwitstanding the stormy weather there was an exceptionally large turnout of the members. The business of the evening was a large initiation and the election of officers for the ensuing year. The initiation and degree work was put on in a very creditable manner, especial credit being due in one instance, that of the past counsel's charge which was performed most satisfactorily by Mrs. William Gibbs, guardian of the Ladies' Circle.

The following officers were elected:
Con. Com.—A. Graham.
Adv. Lieut.—T. Medd.
Banker—Jas. Kyle
Clerk—A. A. Haskill.
Asst. Clerk—Geo. Armstrong.
Escort—C. D. Succee.
Watchman—Jas. Vallery.
Sentry—Wm. Gibbs.
Managers—F. D. Hartman, W. J. Johnston, R. Waram.
Delegate to Head Camp—R. N. Jones.

The Camp closed in the usual way at 11 p.m.

HOLD-UP FAILED

Mr. David Doig Was Set Upon by Stranger But Easily Threw Him Off.

A story of an unsuccessful hold-up comes from the south end. A few evenings ago Mr. David Doig was on his way home from the city and was passing the Driving Park on Park St., when he was accosted by a man who apparently had been waiting for him. At first Mr. Doig thought it was some person he knew who was playing a little joke on him, but the stranger refused to speak and in the scuffle he attempted to get his hand in to Mr. Doig's pockets. His suspicions were then confirmed, and he redoubled his efforts to "put it over" his assailant. Mr. Doig was getting the better of the affair and the stranger realizing this broke away. He wore a wide muffler about the lower part of his face almost completely hiding it. Mr. Doig is at a loss to explain the reason of his attacks unless it could have been for his money. He had about $45.00 in his pocket at the time, but thinks that had the man been in any way desperate he would have used a club or something of that kind.

THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT AFTER DOGS

In view of the recent hydrophobia scare in Galt as the result of which eight persons were bitten by a dog that is supposd to have been suffering from rabies and which has cost the town $2,000 to send these persons to the Pasteur Institute, New York, the Board of Health of this city, at their regular meeting this morning passed a resolution asking the Council for 1910 to pass a by-law preventing dogs from running at large on the streets. Galt has had an experience during the past few days that is anything but enviable and in the opinion of the Board of Health the only manner in which to safeguard Peterborough against such a happening is to prevent the dogs from running at large. The matter was introduced by Mr. Jas. Edgar who referred to the expense that Galt had to bear as the result of the rampage of this canine and referred to other instances where municipalities had suffered in a similar manner. He thought it was preferable to enact a law against dogs having the unquestioned liberty of the streets. If anyone wanted to keep a dog they should have it on a chain or leash. One could not tell when Peterborough might have an experience of that kind and the best way to guard it was to rid the city of the great number of homeless, useless dogs. Those who prize a dog at present keep it at home as much as possible and these owners would not be greatly affected by the new by-law. Mr. Edgar's idea elicited considerable comment and it was finally moved by him and seconded by Mr. Jas. Murty that the new Council at its first meeting in the New year, that in view of the number of cases of hydrophobia reported in the province pass a by-law to prevent dogs running at large.

LATE DESPATCH

A despatch from Galt to-day is as follows:

Galt, Ont., Dec., 14. Ten persons yesterday were furnished with tickets for New York at the C.P.R. city office and entrained at 2.15 o'clock. The excursion is under the auspices of the Galt Board of Health and the corporation will stand the cost, a matter of probably $2,000.

It is a unique outing, one that has besides a tinge of the pleasurable, a solemn grey hue, for the objective point of the journey it the famous Pasteur Institute and eight of the party go to that famous resort to take hydrophobia anti-toxin, being the victims of the mad dog, which on Wednesday last ran through the town, attacking every living creature it met until it was finally killed.

The names of the victims are:
Andrew Wright, Metcalfe St.
Bert Sinclair, Victoria street.
Andrew Pettigrew, Bond street.
J. Graham, Oak street.
W. Smith, J. Hyndman, C. McKeown, Annie Duncan.

The first named four are adults and the latter four are youngsters. Each was bitten more or less severely.

Dr. Vardon, M.H.O., and Mrs Smith, nurse, accompany the patients, who will remain at the Institute for perhaps three weeks. The despatch of these citizens to New York was decided on at a joint meeting of the Council and the Board of Health.

There was a large crowd at the depot to bid the party good-bye and good luck.

As a result of the crusade against dogs running at large, instituted since the scare, not a canine is seen to-day on the streets. The police have orders to capture any dog seen and kill it.

The police department have employed a dog catcher, Mr. Lee, who commenced his duties Saturday morning and captured a few dogs. The animals are located in the basement of the town hall and the owners located P. C. Burtch on Saturday sent four canines to Dogland by the gun route. Several citizens who were summoned for having their dogs run at large had their pets shot, so the dog population of Galt is rapidly decreasing. The dogs must be locked up.

HARRY LAUDER AT MASSEY HALL

"Bounding Over the Bounding Main" is the name of one of Harry Lauder's many new songs, and while the popular classics which have made the name of this "Robbie Burns" of singers a household word throughout the English-speaking world will not be neglected, both in Mr. Lauder's own presentations, and in the performances of his admirable company, the program will appea fresh and novel.

Harry Lauder and his company with special orchestra will appear at Massey Hall the week of December 20th, every afternoon and evening. The cheap Christmas rates which go into force on Tuesday, December 21st, will doubtless attract large numbers from outside places.

FOREST FIRES.

That the work of forest conservation should be carried on vigorously is shown by the fact that much can be done in the way of preventing the vast destruction caused by forest fires; a destruction estimated to be considerably greater than the reduction of forest stand by legitimate lumbering operations. Information reached Ottawa on Monday that danger from forest fires along the right-of-way of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway from Edmonton west to Tete Jaune (Yellow Head) Cache during October (the last month of the dangerous season) was practically nil. This fortunate result was the effect of the efficient work of the staff of forest fire rangers, employed by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, at the head of which was Chief Ranger J. W. McLaggan, of Strathcona. The first part of the month, too, was dry and dangerous, though the latter was damp. During the whole season of 1909, indeed, no serious fires have been allowed to get away from the railway. Considering the fact that fire has been used by homesteaders, freighters, pack-trains, campers,, and many others in all sorts of places, the result is certainly matter for congratulation. In almost every case settlers, railway men and others have cheerfully given aid when called upon to help put out fires, and contractors, railwaymen, engineers, and the great majority of settlers have been found careful about using fires. One man living near Seba, Alta., who refused to give such aid was fined; this was the only case where the aid of the law had to be invoked for such a case. It is thus demonstrated that precautionary measures can be enforced under what may be considered unmpromising conditions.

THE WORLD'S WHEAT.

Broomhall's final estimate of the world's wheat crops is of especial interest to Canadians, for it places this country's wheat production in a prominent relative position. This estimate places the total crop of the world at 3,347 millions of bushels for 1909, 295 millions more than the crop of 1908, and 247 million bushels in excess of the crop of 1907. As to individual countries, the wheat production of Canada and the United States is of especial interest. Canada's wheat crop this year is placed at 136 millions of bushels, as against 124 millions in 1908. In 1909 the United States reaped 720 million bushels as against 664 millions in 1908. Comparatively considered, the Canadian wheat yield meant 21 bushels per head of our population, and that of the United States 8 bushels per head. This disparity of ratio is bound to increase as time progresses. The area at present adapted to wheat production in the United States, admits of little expansion, and that principally by artificial means. That of Canada is only in the beginning. If fewer than ten millions of acres in Canada under crop yield 136 million bushels, when five or six times that area shall have been occupied—a time not far distant at the present rate of increase—Canada will have reached the present figures of production in the United States, and will probably have surpassed them. For, while Canada is bound to have a tremendous increase, the wheat production of the United States will probably remain comparatively stationary. Her wonderful growth of production will absorb an increasingly large volume of her wheat crop, so that in time the United States will be purchaser of Canadian wheat, as it has become now to a certain extent, in order to produce the best brands of flour by employment of Canada's unsurpassed and unsurpassable hard wheat. We shall have no difficulty in disposing of our surplus wheat, great as the volume promises to be. The problem will be, not the growing of the wheat, but the means of conveying it to outside markets.

THE WAR AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS.

On Monday the week's work was well begun at Ottawa by another annual discussion of the subject of the prevention of tuberculosis. A resolution was introduced by Mr. Perley, of Argentenil and followed by earnest addresses on the subject. The discussion was quite non-partizan, both sides of the house making appealing addresses in favour of a more substantial contribution by the government to the fund for continuing the fight. Mr. Perley is vice-president of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, which is carrying on an aggressive campaign in the dissemination of information that will enlighten the public as to the gravity of the national danger arising from the prevalence and spread of tuberculosis. The Association has been assisted by a Dominion Government grant of $2,000 a year. Last year the grant was raised to $5,000, and this year the Association is urging a further increase.

The discussion brought out several points indicating the urgency in regar to larger expenditure to promote the objects aimed at. The present loss of life from consumption in Canada is placed at from 8,000 to 10,000 per year and the money loss, not speaking of the direct and reflected human suffering involved, is incalculable. The cost to the United States of every consumptive who dies is placed at $8,000 which, multiplied by the annual death list, gives a tremendous total of national loss, through waste due to preventable disease. If, for economic reasons the value of a human life to the state be placed at $1,000, taking the annual number of deaths from consumption in Canada at 10,000, we have the annual loss reach the astounding figures of ten million dollars. The resolution mentioned bases the claim to increased assistance in part upon the encouraging results "that have come from the money already spent in disseminating information regarding tuberculosis." In 1904 when the Canadian Association was formed the death rate was 23.67 per 10,000. It is now, thanks to the work of the Association and the means placed at its disposal 13.37 per 10,000. This success is dependent to some extent upon the fact that, the disease is curable if taken in time, and it also proves that the disease is not hereditary, but that children of consumptive parents are endangered by lack of proper sanitation and care, and the communication of the disease is largely to be attributed to the careless habits of those affected, in their association with others. Proper sanitary and preventive measures will strike at the root of the evil. The mover of the resolution suggested certain specific action. The grant was to be increased so as to permit of an information propaganda in the form of distribution of literature and the giving of popular lectures by experts, to arouse popular interest and intelligent popular concern, the protection of railway coaches and steamers from infection, the issue of a government magazine dealing with the subject and, in sum, doing everything that the Dominion government might undertake without encroaching upon the powers of the provincial government.

It is well to ask the Dominion government to be generous in providing assistance, but the provinces should do their share and Ontario, the richest province, should take the lead. But in the present temper of the prime minister of the prime province, not much is to be expected; that is, unless he has received enlightenment and takes on larger views that he seemed to exhibit last summer in an interview granted to a tuberculosis deputation. Sir James Whitney told them in effect that those interested in combatting tuberculosis were cranks, that if the government yielded to their whims the province would be bankrupted and that the dangers were exaggerated—that there was no more tuberculosis than there was forty years ago. It is to be hoped that these remarks were only the outcropping of a little temporary petulance and that not only Ontario, but all the other provinces will co-operate with the Dominion government and permit the little army of fighters against the ravages of tuberculosis to wage a winning fight, as with the necessary sinews of war they can do.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It will be of interest to Peterborough people to know that Dr. Wilfrid Grenfell's new Sailors' Home at St. John's, Newfoundland, is advancing rapidly to completion. Peterborough, on the occasion of Dr. Grenfell's visit, contributed a few bricks—far too few—to the new hospital.

The apple export trade of Canada to Great Britain promises greatly if shippers will refrain from giving preference to the middle of the barrel for inferior fruit, while the ends, liable to superficial inspection, are composed of first-class fruit. This season, according to the latest returns, the shipments of Canadian apples from the Port of Montreal, totalled 500,000 barrels, which is expected to reach 600,000 before the season closes. But absolute honesty in packing is essential to retaining the market in which our apples have got such a firm foothold. The Britisher must have his eatables of firm quality, and what he pays for must be true to name and grade, and up to the sample.

THE BRITISH SITUATION.

The political storm now on in Great Britain revolves around a very definite centre. At the monster meeting held in Albert Hall, London, Friday night, Premier Asquith, the head of the Liberal government, thus succinctly defined the situation:

"I tell you in the name and behalf of the Liberal party," Mr. Asquith proceeded, "we have at this moment laid upon us a single task—a task which dominates and transcends because it embraces and involves every great and beneficial social and political change upon which our hearts are set. That task is to vindicate and establish upon an unshakable foundation the principle of representative government."

People of Great Britain have as they thought long enjoyed representative government. But the Lords have shown them that they were under a delusion. The task the Liberal government have set themselves is to convert this delusion into a reality. The government is bound to remove the possibility of a renewal of the humiliations put upon them by the Lords in nullifying legislation in the interest and on behalf of the people. This is not to be done by the abolition of the House of Lords and the adoption of a single chamber, but is to be done by placing a limit in some way of some kind to the obstruction of the popular will by an irresponsible body. A national sequel to the government's policy of affirming and maintaining the integrity of the representative principle in its attitude towards Home rule in Ireland. Before he became premier last year, Mr. Asquith in a speech described "the Irish policy as the one undeniable failure of British statesmanship." He re-affirmed this on Friday night and announced the government's policy to be, while "safeguarding the supreme, indivisible authority of the imperial parliament," to set up in Ireland a system of full-sell-government as regards purely Irish affairs. And the care of the government will be that the Lords will not be in a position to repeat its treatment of Gladstone's Home Rule Bill. Where British fair play in government, matters is expected to become operation, Liberalism is the medicine to be looked to.

Sound Kidneys And No Bladder Misery

Backache and All Distress From Out-of-Order Kidneys Simply Vanishes.

The most effective and harmless way to cure backache and regulate out-of-order kidneys or end bladder trouble, is to take several doses of Pape's Diuretic.

You will distinctly feel that your kidneys and urinary organs are being cleaned, healed and vitalized, and all the miserable symptoms, such as back ache, headache, nervousness, rheumatism and darting pains, inflamed or swollen eyelids, irritability, sleeplessness, or suppressed, painful or frequent urination (especially at night) and other distress, leaving after taking the first few doses.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder, or rheumatism, begin taking this harmless preparation as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Don't be miserable or worried another moment with a lame back or clogged, inactive kidneys or bladder misery. All this goes after you start taking Pape's Diuretic, and in a few days you feel and know that your kidneys, liver, and urinary system are healthy, clean and normal, and all danger passed.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store—anywhere in the world.

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

Be kind to the stranger who comes to your door, whom trouble and danger have buffeted sore; if struggle and worry have driven him gray, don't be in a hurry to chase him away. But feed him and lend him a slice of your pile, and in the morn send him away with a smile. For life is uncertain, and nothing is sure; and Fortune is flirtin' with rich and with poor; to-day Colonel Croesus is frisky and gray, and slicker than grease is, things coming his way; the colonel, to-morrow, may be in the hole, the comrade of sorrow, with gall in his soul. And you, who are camping where luxury lies, next year may be tramping along on the ties. The tramp you are feeding (if kindly you are), next year may be speeding along in his car. Thus Fate keeps us guessing, and guessing in vain; and life is distressing—don't add to its pain; be kind and begentle to stranger and friend, and call for a mantle and harp in the end.

THE TIME, THE PLACE AND THE GIRL, NOW

Famous Howard-Hough Adams Musical Comedy Will Be at the Grand Next Tuesday.

Written primarily with a strange love story of human interest in view, "The Time, the Place and the Girl" which comes to the Grand Opera House next Tuesday, Dec. 21, proved that this, when embellished by fun, catchy songs and pretty girls in vigorous dances, is the most successful play that that prolific trio, Will M. Hough, Frank R. Adams and Joseph E. Howard have turned out. This play broke all records in Chicago, running there 463 consecutive times and has created equally notable records wherever else it has appeared.

The scenes are laid at a sanitarium in Virginia, where Johnny Hicks, a happy-go-lucky gambler and his "pal" Tom Cunningham have fled to escape arrest, as a result of a physical encounter the previous night in Boston. Before the police catch up with them, the sanitarium is placed under quarantine. Cunningham, the "pal" is in reality a rich man's son, and the first love complication begins when he becomes infatuated with Margaret Simpson, "the girl", who is at the sanitarium with her father, a farmer and her brother and a party of boarding school girls.

As soon as the quarantine is declared, the servants of the hotel and sanitarium desert and the guests are forced to look after their own wants. Cunningham because of his manner, is chosen dictator of the place and he assigns to each guest a certain task. Hicks the young gambler, with a prolific and typical vocabulary, is made head cook. Margaret Simpson who has quarrelled with Cunningham, following her rejection of his suit, is ordered to do scrubbing and when she refuses, her meals are summarily cut off. She then leads the general strike of the guests. Cunningham, however, proves an efficient strike breaker by jerking off his coat and declaring physical supremacy..

Meanwhile the main love story which has been developing—that of Hicks and the head nurse, Molly Kelly—is entirely out of the ordinary. Added to the complications in which Hicks finds himself, is an enforced treatment of the water cure, by a patient who has been sent to the sanitarium. The latter has been directed by his physician to deliver a letter of instruction to the head nurse. This letter he gives to Hicks, and, using Hick's own language, "Patsy got a free bath."

Among some of the others in quarantine are an attractive widow and her spoiled son; an Italian organ grinder falls in love with the widow, after posing as a "gentleman" and is giving heart-breaking refusal; and a coal heaver who tried to escape on account of wanting to get married next morning

Although the comedy is written to give supremacy over the music, there are 12 numbers, including, "Thursday is my Jonah Day," "The Waning Honeymoon," "Blow the Smoke Away," "I Dont Like Your Family," "Don't You Ttell," "First and Only" and "Dixie I Love You," and "Uncle Sam's Best Girl."

Troubled

Every Winter With Severe Colds.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup Cured Her

Mrs. W. J. Hammond, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I beg to say that I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my youngest girl who was troubled every winter with bronchitis and very severe colds. At night she would keep us all awake with her coughing until I tried your Syrup, which gave her instant relief. After the first bottle was finished I got more, and always kept a bottle in her room at night. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is certainly a wonderful thing in a case like the above mentioned and no one can praise it too highly. I have taken every opportunity to recommend it to all my friends and relatives."

There is nothing to equal "Dr. Wood's" for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Asthma, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Pain or Tightness in the Chest, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

It prevents Pneumonia and Consumption.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHURCHES IN THE SOUTH WARD

Roughly Estimated $155,000 Has Been Invested in Those Recently Undertaken.

Looking back over the buildings that have been erected or which were begun during the past year and are not yet completed, the south ward certainly establishes a record in the number of churches that have been undertaken and most of which have been completed. Five new churches constructed and in the course of construction represent the activity in this respect in the industrial ward. A rough estimate of the cost of these buildings places the figures at $155,000, which should be sufficient proof that the spiritual welfare of the people of Ward No. 1 is not being neglected. The figures that have been secured are as follows:

St. James Methodist church, $15,000.

Park Street Baptist Church, $15,000.

Church of the Sacred Heart, $75,000.

All Saints Church, $25,000.

Knox Church, $25,000.

Of course the two latter churches are not yet complete, but it is expected that they will be opened for divine services early next year. This is the total for the South Ward in the building of churches. In considering the entire city practically the only other sum that could be added to this total is the several thousand dollars spent in the changes to the Salvation Army Barracks.

CATARRH MUST GO

And Hawking, Spitting, Snuffles Must Go Too.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) will give the sufferer from catarrh joyful relief in five minutes.

It is such a remarkable cure, and so positive in its action, that Wm. Madill goes so far as to guarantee it to cure catarrh or money back.

A complete outfit, which consists of a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei, and a unique dropper only costs one dollar, and if an extra bottle is afterwards needed the price is only 50 cents.

Hyomei is a healing, antiseptic balsam, taken from the mighty eucalyptus trees in the health-giving forests of Australia, where diseases of the respiratory tract are unknown.

All the sufferer has to do is to inhale the antiseptic air of Hyomei over the inflamed parts where the germs are entrenched, three or four times a day.

It cures coughs, colds, asthma, hay fever and croup without stomach dosing.

MI-O-NA Cures Dyspepsia.

Your money back if it don't. Gives immediate relief from heartburn, sour stomach, stomach distress and sick headache. 50 cents a large box at —Wm. Madill's.

THE BILLBOARD

Christmas Number of Theatrical Publication is an Artistic Triumph.

The Examiner has received a copy of the Christmas edition of the Billboard, the great American theatrical paper. The holiday edition is a surprising one, surprising in its artistic excellence, in its size, in the thoroughness of its literary efforts and above all in the great mass of theatrical knowledge that the management has been able to crowd into its one hundred pages. To the professional it must be a most welcome visitor and the ordinary everyday citizen finds it a storehouse of delightful novelties. The present issue is the biggest thing the Billboard has yet attempted and the management is deserving of the greatest praise for its successful efforts.

KEPT A VICIOUS DOG

Edward Smith Must Either Kill It or Send It Away.

Edward Smith was charged with being the owner of a vicious dog. He appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. After hearing the evidence of one little boy, who was bitten by he animal, his Worship ordered the dog to be shot or sent away.

HARRY LAUDER IN TORONTO

The Great Comedian at Massey Hall Next Week—Reduced Railway Rates

The "Bobbie Burns" of singers, as the wonderful Scotch comedian, Harry Lauder, has been called, will make his only appearance in Ontario next week, beginning Monday, December 20th, at Massey Hall. There will be two performances every day, and as reduced railway rates go into effect on Tuesday, there will doubtless be a large attendance from this locality. "The Laird O' Laughter" will be assisted by a splendid all-round Vaudeville Company. He will himself present his new song sketches "I am a Bounding Bounder," in which he describes his voyage to the South Pole, with Lieut. Shackelton. Another delightful new song will be "I Loved Her Ever Since She was a Baby." Then there will be the popular classics which have made the name of Harry Lauder a household word everywhere.

Tickets can be obtained by writing the Manager Massey Music Hall.

WANTED A BUREAU

Toronto Women Asked Premier to Establish One in Great Britain.

Special to The Examiner.

Toonto, Dec. 14.—A large deputation of women, headed by many of the most prominent in Toronto Society, waited on Sir James Whitney this morning, asking that a woman be appointed and sent to Great Britain to establish a bureau for the purpose of finducing domestic servants to come to Canada. Sir James replied that arrangements had been made with the Salvation Army and similar organizations by which a bonus would be paid for all domestic servants they brough to Ontario. He could not promise the establishment of the bureau as requested.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes: "For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifing the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

THE CHRISTMAS BOX FROM HOME.

When the sidewalk's lined with cedar and the holly berries gleam,
And the merry Christmas shoppers seem to form an endless stream,
And the small boy's in his glory with his nose pressed to the pane
Of the dazzling top window where old Santa Claus doth reign,

Then it's Christmas—yes, it's Christmas—and you feel it in the air,
And you see it in the faces down along the shopping square;
And the mistletoe and cedar lead you far and far away,
And remind you of a caller that is due on Christmas Day—
A caller that will reach you no matter where you roam,
That's your good old annual visitor—the Christmas box from home!

There's a noise in the hallway and a creaking of the stair,
And up comes an expressman who looks like he'd love to swear,
His brow is almost dropping and his cheeks are fiery red,
"By jinks, it must be books, sir! It has the weight of lead!"
And you look the address over and you find it's here at last,
With half a dozen labels and a rope to hold it fast;

And it brings the breadth of country to the busy, throbbing town,
With its crowning wreath of holly and its walnuts rich and brown,
And its little jars of honey all dripping in the comb—
A storehouse full of good things is the Christmas box from home!

Oh, travel-stained and homely is the country Christmas box,
As it's pushed from post to corner by the rude expressman's knocks;
But there's something sort of homelike in the little things it holds—
The golden yellow-heart cakes baked in good old-fashioned molds.
The jars of quince and apple — and you set them on the shelf,
And a little note comes fluttering, "Ma put these up herself.

Jenny sends the citron; and wear these mittens, do,
For granny sat up late at night to knit them just for you'"
By jinks; it sort of gets you, that box of little things,
And a Merry, Merry Christmas is the message that it brings.
And no matter where you've wandered, from New York clear to Nome,
There is nothing so inviting as the Christmas box from home!

—Victor A. Hermann in Judge.

IMMENSE PROFIT MADE FROM FARM

Regina District Farmer Cleared $17,550 From Past Season's Crop Alone.

Regina, Sask., Dec., 14.—To buy a section of land, break it up, to make $17,550 out of the yield, and $10,880 out of the increase in value all within the short period of two years, was the record established by James Bradley, a well known farmer, within a few miles of Regina. The story sounds like a fairy tale, but it is true nevertheless. The figures of this year's crop prove it. Mr. Bradley bought 640 acres of land near Grand Coulee two yeras ago and immediately set to work preparing the whole section for crop, and this year had six hundred acres of wheat and forty acres of oats.

The wheat yielded 19,875 bushels, and the oats 4,750 bushels. The whole of the grain has been marketed and Mr. Bradley is now worth $17,850 from the grain alone.

He bought the land at $13 an acre, and the other day refused an offer of $35 an acre, just $17 advance from the time of his purchase. The land cost $11,320 in the first instance. Here are the figures of the case: The land cost in the first instance, 640 acres at $18.00 an acre, $11,320; wheat yielded 19,875 bushels at 84 cents per bushel, $16,695; oats yielded 4,750 bushels at 28 cents per bushel, $8,550 offered for land, 940 acres at $35 an acre, $22,440; increase in value of land $10,880, total earnings of crop, $17,550; together with increase in value of land, making a total of $28,540. It is interesting to note the figures of the yield per acre, the wheat yielded 33,12 1-2 bushels to the acre, and the oats yielded 118.7 bushels to the acre.

The figures are a fair indication of the average crop in this district.

STRANGE AS FICTION

Newspaper for Kidney and Rheumatic Sufferers.

In Germany there is a newspaper published in the interests of all rheumatic sufferers, and each week symptoms and treatments are discussed by both laity and medical men. One scientific contributor related that a formula originated especially to relieve kidney diseases, had almost phenomenal virtue, in the treatment of all forms of rheumatism.

No secret is made of this formula, which is composed of one-half ounce fluid extract Buchu, one ounce compound fluid Balmwort and two ounces compound syrup Sarsaparilla, mixed in a bottle, and to be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and one at retiring.

A local druggist expressed the opinion that every rheumatic and kidney sufferer will be grateful for this item.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

Give the average man a woman who is ignorant upon, but interested in, some subject on which he is well informed, and he is perfectly happy.

Ergo—if you want to be popular, make it a plan to be that woman.

Next to telling you about himself, there is nothing the average man likes better than imparting information on any subject whatsoever on which he is rather well informed and his interlocutor is rather ignorant.

I once met a man from a certain college who told me about a very exciting class rush which seemed to be the principal annual event of the college sports.

In the course of the three dances we had that evening he told me about everything that there was to be told in regard to that rush, and yet I have asked every man that I have since met from that college to tell me about the flag rush.

Because I am thirsting to know more about it?

By no means. I think I must have heard most of the details about it half a dozen times. I could write an encyclopedia article on the subject.

But I ask because I know that to be asked will make those youths perfectly happy and keep them so until they have unloaded all their fund of information.

One day a half dozen college girls who were taking tea at my house were jollying one of their number about a conquest she had made the night before.

The whole six had been to a party given in honour of a visiting football team and had had as partners members of the team —strangers, of course, to them.

Every one of the other five girls was prettier, and three at least were much wittier than Ann, but whereas their partners had been content to say good-bye after the evening of fun was over, Ann had made so complete a conquest of her man that he had asked her to go motoring with him the next day.

The rest of the girls were trying to make the conquering one tell the method of her conquest.

"What did you do to him, Ann?" they questioned.

"Why just talked with him, like the rest of you," said Ann.

"Well, what on earth did you talk about?" petulantly inquired the prettiest girl, pouting her wonderment at plain little Ann's success.

"Why, we talked about tuberculosis most of the time," confided Ann.

"Tuberculosis," we echoed. "Well, of all things on earth. What an extraordinary subject. And what do you think about it?"

"Nothing at all," said Ann, "but he's studying medicine and he's writing a thesis about the conditions in his city and he seemed to like to talk about it, so of course I let him."

Hence the automobile.

"If you want to win a man's interest," the hints to the lovelorn always assure you, "surprise him by knowing a great deal about the things he is interested in."

Not at all.

Surprise him by knowing nothing about the things he is interested in, but wanting to know a great deal.

He'll like that much better.

HOTEL NATIONAL RE-OPENED TO THE PUBLIC YESTERDAY

Has Been Beautifully Decorated and Presents a Very Attractive Appearance---New Grill Room to be Opened in a Few Days---An Up-to-Date Hostelry.

The Hotel National was re-opened to the public yesterday, after having been closed for the past month undergoing extensive repairs, since the fire, which visited it with such disastrous results some weeks ago. So complete a transformation has the painter and paperhanger worked upon it that it even surpasses, in attractiveness, what it was previous to the fire. It stands among the finest hotels that can be found in cities of similar size as Peterborough, and under the capable management of the proprietor, Mr. D. B. Dennison, it ought to prove exceedingly popular with the travelling public.

On entering the "National" one is immediately struck by its bright, cheerful and yet homelike appearance. Every accommodation for the comfort and convenience of the guests is supplied and almost everything that a modern and up-to-date hotel can offer is here to be found. A telephone system, with telephones in each room affording communication with the office, is being installed. The house throughout is heated with hot water, assuring the comfort of the guests during the winter months, and bathrooms with hot and cold water are also convenient to the rooms.

One of the new features of this hotel since its re-opening is the grill room, which Mr. Dennison hopes to have in readiness in the course of ten days. It will be situated to the south of the dining hall, a large room there being available, with an entrance from the rotunda. The dining and grill rooms will be run independently, each having its separate kitchen and the former will be on the American plan and the latter on the European. An up-to-date grill room will certainly be welcomed by Peterborough citizens making a most desirable place to enjoy a luncheon or an after theatre supper. It will afford accommodation for from forty to sixty persons, and when finished will be most inviting.

The newest ideas of decorating have been carried out in the papering and painting of the various rooms. The rotunda is extremely pretty. It is panelled in a mouse hade of veneer imitation, with the cornices prominent. The cosy smoking and writing rooms are also done in a mouse shade, the former in a clouded crown impression and the latter in a two-third scheme, the upper part being a beautiful floral design. The dining room is panelled in green and red with the crowning in the latter colour. The buffet is completely renovated, having been modelled after those seen in the best hotels in the larger cities. The graining throughout is in oak. The hall upstairs is done with red burlap and papered above with an oak moulding as a dividing line, in a conventional design. The woodwork is painted white. All the bedrooms have been papered and painted very attractively.

DISCOVERED AT LAST! A PREPARATION THAT WILL POSITIVELY GROW HAIR

After many years of hard study consisting of hundreds of experiments a preparation has been perfected that will not only destroy the dandruff germ, but will produce a new growth of hair. This remedy has been placed on the market for sale, and although they could command almost any price for this preparation, yet they have placed the price of this remedy, which they call Salvia, at 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, and it is sold with a guarantee to grow the hair and kill dandruff. McDermid and Jury have secured the agency for Peterborough.

MUNICIPAL BY-LAWS WILL BE DISCUSSED TO-NIGHT

There should be a large attendance at the meeting to be held in the City Council chambers to-night under the auspices of the Board of Trade, which has been called for the purpose of discussing the municipal by-laws that are to be voted upon by the local ratepayers on January 3d. All the measures will be discussed except the local option by-law. The Board has decided that it is not Board of Trade business and there will be no discussion whatever on that measure. The other by-laws will, however, be gone into thoroughly by speakers who know the subjects thoroughly and the ratepayers will therefore get a fund of information that will be useful to them on voting day. A general invitation is extended to the citizens to be present and listen to the discussion, which cannot help but prove interesting and instructive.

WELLAND'S PROGRESS

Board of Trade of That Place Has Issued an Attractive Booklet.

The Examiner has received from the Welland Board of Trade a copy of the advertising booklet entitled "Looking Wellandward," that has just been issued from the presses of the Welland Telegraph, and that is one of the neatest, most attractive and most convincing bits of municipal advertising that has reached this office in many a long day. It is original in conception, artistic in design and execution, and has an array of facts in tabloid form that is most impressive. One of the objects of the Welland Board of Trade as stated by the booklet is to loud-pedal the advantages offered by Welland, and they certainly have gone a long way in accomplishing their purpose in the publishing of the attractive pamphlet, which is commended to the attention of the local Board of Trade as the last word in municipal boosting. Louis Blake Duff, president of the O. H. A., and editor of the Welland Telegraph, is responsible for the merit of the publication and is to be congratulated upon his effort.

MEDICAL HEALTH OFFICER PAID $800 FOR SMALL POX CASES

Finance Committe Made a Settlement Yesterday — Had Asked $1000 for His Work Last Summer Against the Outbreak of Small Pox.

THE BUSINESS TRANSACTED

A meeting of the Finance Committee of the Council was held yesterday afternoon, with Ald. Morrow in the chiar.

The first matter taken up was the account of Dr. McPherson, Medical Health Officer, for looking after the smallpox patients. The committee asked the Doctor to be present, and he gave an explantion of how the account was made up. The committee though at first that it was a little high. The Doctor, however, stated that the work extended over 127 days. He treated 39 patients, and three others were left at home. The cases were scattered all over the city from east to south and north limits. Dr. Bell, Provincial Health Officer, was here and he gave certain instructions and those instructions were carried out personally by him. The doctor then explained how much work there was in connection with each case and how often he had to personally visit every patient and the other members of the household. He also assisted in the disinfection of the several schools and business college, and was busy in following up persons who were suspected of having caught the disease. In some cases he found they had smallpox.

There was not a return case from the tents and there was no connection between the cases after he took charge. He carried the work but with as little inconvenience to the patients and their families as possible. He endeavoured to be economical and yet he provided for everything.

Dr. McPherson then pointed out the extent of the work he has been called upon to do as medical health officer in the way of looking after scarlet fever, dytheria, etc.

Mayor Rush said the committee knew his opinion on the matter and there was no use saying anything further.

The members of the committee had lengthy discussion and finally it was decided to offer the Doctor $800. The chairman, Ald. W. G. Morrow, was deputed to see the Doctor. He did so and finally the Doctor consented to accept $800 in addition to his regular salary. His cheque was made out at once and the affair was settled.

The taxes on the T. A. S. rooms were as usual refunded.

On motion $25 was granted to the Muskoka Sanitarium Association.

The request for a pawnborkers license from Messrs. Tooley and Snowden was laid over until the new year. The Act provides that the municipalities have the right to grant licenses and fixed the fee at $60 per year.

The request from Rev. Father McCall for the Council to make a grant of $6 per month for the nine patients in the House of Providence who belong to the city, was received. The aldermen feel that this matter should be handled by the Charity Board. This year the Board has not enough money and will be overdrawn by $1,000.

Aldermen Bradburn and Gillespie moved that the matter be referred to the Charity Board with instuctions to look into the matter and whatever arrangements the board makes with Father McCall that the City Treasurer be authorized to pay that sum, and that in future the Charity Board handle all of these cases.

Ald. Phelan, however, objected to this and thought that this bill of Father McCall's for $640, should be paid by the Council and then let the Charity Board handle the future cases.

Ald. Bradburn's motion carried.

Sixteen Passengers Injured in a Run Off in Saskatchewan.

Special to The Examiner.

Brandon, Man., Dec. 14.—The Saskatchewan Express, No. 16, was derailed four miles east of here yesterday afternoon. Sixteen passengers being injured, none very seriously. The cars slid down a four-foot embankment and turned on their side. R. G. Holmes, of Simcoe, was the only Ontario man hurt. Most of the passengers were American settlers returning home for Christmas.

STOP IT!

You're grumbling about the scarcity of eggs and the inferior quality of butter. I have all the eggs you want, and as for butter, well, there's no better in the city. I can give you a fine butter for 25c. a lb. Phone 662, or better still, call around to the Collegiate grocery, corner of Aylmer and McDonnel and be convinced that fresh eggs and good butter is not as dear and scarce as you think. We have many other toothsome dainties for the Christmas trade. Pure hard sugar for your Christmas cake, and all goods in this store will be found to be of first class quality and at prices you can't complain of, and where you will find courteous clerks and prompt attention shown to all.

While opportune I wish to thank my many customers for steadily patronising me during the past year, and also those who have in the least given me a share of their trade. I wish each and all of you a merry and joyful Christmas and many returns from the incoming 1910.—Yours truly.

THE DEATH OF AN OLD PETERBOROUGH RESIDENT

Mr. Duncan McLeod, Formerly in Business Here, Passes Away in Montana

Word has been received of the death of Mr. Duncan McLeod in Montana, at the age of 80 years. Mr. McLeod had been for many years in business in Peterborough and at one time had directed a large business in agricultural implements. He was a pronounced Libetal in politics and engaged himself while in Peterborough actively in the interests of the Liberal party. Leaving Peterborough some years ago, he went to reside with some members of his family in that state. He was a brother of Mrs. Mrs. Chas. Perry who predeceased him about a year ago. Mr. McLeod had many friends in those days in Peterborough, many of whom have since passed away. Mr. McLeod's remains were interred in Montana.

EXPOSES GAMBLING

Henry Brolaski Declares That the Cure For the Evil Is to Prohibit the Transmission of Results Over Telegraph and Telephone Lines —Fifty Pool-rooms at Work In New York City Alone.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The fruit of 21 years' experience on the "inside" of the racetrack gambling game was offered the judiciary committee of the United States Senate yesterday by Henry Brolaski of Monrovia, on the hearing of Senator Burkett's bill, designed to prohibit the transmission of race betting odds between the states over telegraph and telephone lines.

Brolaski, gambler by profession, appeared in support of the bill, mainly because the U. S. Government recently interfered in his operation of a racetrack in Mexico, near the boundary. His track was closed and now he desires to see similar treatment of other racing men.

The hearing, held under the auspices of the international reform bureau, brought together a large number of interested auditors, who roughly estimated that there were now in the United States between 60 and 70 pool-rooms, and that 50 of these were in New York City.

He calculated that there were in operation nearly 1,500 handbooks, which business he declared operates as the initiative of the unsophisticated to gamble on the horses. He said that in New York City there were at least 160,000 handbook and pool-room players.

"The play that is handled by the handbooks and pool-rooms," said Brolaski, "is usually from a class of people that can ill afford to lose, and their bets average from 50 cents up. The man of family will take a chance and lose his rent money; the clerk will take a chance and lose his board money; the girl will take a chance, and use money that she should expend on herself. It is the greed for money, and the gambling fever that becomes inoculated in their systems and is growing, growing, all the time."

New Japanese Law.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 15.—According to advices brought by the steamer Monteagle yesterday, factory owners of Japan, who employ 742,000 hands, of whom 392,000 are women and a big percentage of children, are excited over the factory law to be brought down this session of the Diet.

The law will provide against the employment of children under 12 years, but those above 10 now employed will be permitted to continue. Workers under sixteen and females may not be worked more than twelve hours a day, and must be given two days' rest each month. In days of ten hours, an hour's rest must be given.

Protests are being made by match and glass factory owners, whose employes number the most children, the Osaka glass factories having 1,250 children under twelve among 4,115 employes.

Bank Wants Branches.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—A good deal of interest is being manifested in banking circles over a rumor to the effect that the Saise D'Economic of Quebec, an institution very similar in the scope of its action and attributes to the Montreal City and District Savings Bank, is about to apply to the Dominion Parliament for permission to open branches in different parts of the province.

As these two banks have been given charter rights which the other banks do not possess it is held that the establishing of branches should not be permitted and in fact it is stated that the Canadian Bankers' Association will oppose it.

Grand Surplus Of Over 16 Millions Announced

Hon W. S. Fielding Presents Most Gratifying Budget to the House of Commons---Revenue for Next Year Estimated at One Hundred Millions---Canada Comes to Her Own Once More Under Liberal Rule.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Hon. W. S. Fielding Minister of Finance, was in a cheerful mood yesterday when he presented his thirteenth budget in the Commons.

He said he had to record a season of prosperity, a country arisen from the temporary dark days of the financial crisis of a couple of years ago, and an overflowing treasury.

He estimated the revenue for the current year at 97 1-2 million, which, with an expenditure of $81,000,000 chargeable to income, will probably leave a surplus of 16 1-2 millions, for the fiscal year ending March 31 next.

Despite this increase in the revenue, however, there is an increase in the national debt of 17 3-4 millions. This added to the $46,000,000 added to the public debt last year means the enormous increase of indebtedness of Canada in two years of nearly $64,000,000.

The only announcement in Mr. Fielding's speech were a gold coinage and action against combines.

Dealing with the current fiscal year (1909-10) there had been a gratifying recovery of activities, abundant harvests and activity in labor, and lost ground had been recovered. The revenue up to Dec. 1, 1908, was $64,656,509, an increase over the previous corresponding period of over nine and a half millions. Assuming that the revenue for the remaining four months would be the same as last year, this would make the total year's revenue $94,634,687. But reasonably assuming some further increase, say $2,800,000, the revenue for 1909-10 would be approximately 97 1-2 millions better than the record of 1907-8. It was quite possible that they would come near the hundred million mark during the present year.

HON W. S. FIELDING.

As to expenditure, he estimated that in 1909-10 the expenditure chargeable to income would not exceed 81 million dollars, a reduction of $2,000,000.

"And so as respects the finances of this year," he said, "the dominant note of the budget must be a large increase in revenue in the first place; in the second place, a very substantial reduction in expenditure."

Turning to the year 1910-11, Mr. Fielding said that he was hopeful they would be able to repeat the policy of keeping down the public debt. He hoped they would be able to provide for ordinary expenditures out of revenue, and for that portion of the capital and special expenditure, outside of the N.T.R. For that expenditure it would not be unreasonable that they should go on the money market.

In his peroration he said: "There never was a time when there was more interest in Canada throughout the world than there is to-day, or a greater willingness on the part of capitalists to invest in Canada. This is Canada's growing time. We have had growth in population, growth in wealth, growth in national unity, growth in national status in the eyes of the world, growth in our sense of responsibility as citizens of a great empire.

Let us see to it, in the midst of our party strife, that at all times there rises above us the dominant note of a firm desire to do whatever is possible to promote the progress, prosperity and happiness of the Canadian people."

Hon. George E. Foster, the chief financial critic of the Opposition, made one of his most notable deliverances.

He condemned the Finance Minister because he charged bounties to capital account, and thereby declared a false surplus for last year, whereas there should have been a deficit of a million and a half admitted. He scornfully swept aside the claims of Mr. Fielding, that his prudence had set the country on his feet; rather was it the work of the hard-working farmers of Canada.

Mr. Foster criticized the Government for its wasteful expenditure of the resources of the country, the squandering of millions on such fearful and wonderful works as the Newmarket canal and wharves where there is no water. He rebuked Mr. Fielding for attempting to make out that the per capita customs tax was yesterday less than during the Conservative administration, when if the bounties were added, the tax would be higher.

After pointing out that a number of colonies, including Canada, had extended a preference to Great Britain, and that in the present election in the Mother Country, one political party had adopted a tariff plank with the avowed intention of reciprocating the favors received, Mr. Foster declared that these things indicated a rapidity of movement in the direction of a revised fiscal policy for the Empire, which no one would have credited a few years ago. He would seriously advise the Minister of Finance not to enter into any entangling trade alliances just now. The colonies had everything to gain and nothing to lose by a policy of mutual preference. It was an easier matter to enter into trade arrangement than to abrogate one.

No one knew better than Mr. Fielding did a couple of years ago, that a period of financial depression was at hand. He should have launched upon his program of economy at least twelve months earlier, and having failed to do this, was forced to go to the markets of the world at an inopportune time. The result was a severe blow to Canada's credit, and during the past eighteen months loans had cost more than ever before. And now the Minister instead of promising to reduce the expenditure, was predicting a revenue of over $100,000,000 in 1910, and increased appropriations.

Mr. Fielding should follow the example of the Chancellor of the Imperial Exchequer, and save something out of the fat years to reduce the public debt, which was growing fast, and would be augmented by further borrowings. During the next few years, twenty-five million dollars would have to be borrowed to meet maturing loans, not to speak of what would be required for the N.T.R. and other public works.

H. H. Miller of South Grey continued the debate and Dr. Sproule moved the adjournment. The debate will be continued on Thursday.

Two Aldermen Not Enough.

Belleville, Dec. 15.—A writ will be issued asking for an injunction against the City Council to prevent them from putting in force a bylaw making two aldermen for each ward the number to be elected under the ward system, to which system the people voted to return at the last election. Opponents of the bylaw say the number should be three and that the statute calling for two aldermen is faulty. The council has voted $95 towards the legal expenses of having the matter decided by a high court judge. It is expected that argument will be heard in Toronto on Thursday.

New Bishop of London.

Rome, Dec. 15.—Approving the recommendations of the Consistorial Congregation, as presented by the secretary, Cardinal de Lai, the Pope yesterday appointed Rev. R. M. Fallon, of the Provincial Oblates of Buffalo, to the Bishopric of London, Canada, and Rev. James O'Reilly, now rector of St. Anthony of Padua, Minneapolis, Minn., to the Bishopric of Fargo S.D.

Rev. Father Fallon was formerly superior of the University of Ottawa.

Winnipeg Elections.

Winnipeg, Dec. 15.—Mayor Sanford Evans was yesterday re-elected by an overwhelming plurality over his two opponents, while the retiring controllers and aldermen who stood for re-election, were also handsomely returned. Of the three bylaws submitted, those providing $150,000 for underground conduits for power and other wires, and $50,000 for municipal baths, carried, but one providing $50,000 for a municipal art gallery in Central Park was defeated.

THE VICIOUS PECCARY

A Fierce Creature Is the South American Wild Boar.

HE IS SMALL, BUT FEARLESS

Will Attack Man or Any Animal In Existence on the Slightest Provocation and Will Fight to the Death—A Battle With a Jaguar.

During one of his journeys into Mexico Edward W. Walton, a mining expert, had a close call from being sliced to shreds by the fierce little South American pigs known as peccaries. He told the story of his escape to a Denver Post reporter.

"I wished to secure some plumes from a number of the beautifully plumaged birds," said Mr. Walton. "I went into the jungle and came to a small opening in which there were dry leaves, probably a foot in depth, covering the ground, and hundreds of beautifully colored tropical birds in the air and in the trees. I fired at one of the birds in flight, when it seemed to me the whole area of these dead leaves arose in front of and all around me. Being a stranger, naturally I was much frightened, especially when I saw the animals which raised up the leaves apparently ready for an attack. The older animals opened and closed their mouths, showing their big, sharp tusks, formed much like a dirk knife, and some of them started toward me. Impulsively I commenced firing my gun in the air and turned around, which seemed to stop most of them momentarily, and as I had lots of cartridges I kept up the shooting, and they turned and ran away. I found afterward that I had saved my life by so doing and by not shooting any of the animals.

"These animals proved to be peccaries. They are most ferocious and will attack any animal in existence on the slightest provocation. When I got back to headquarters and told my companions my experience I was informed that had I shot one of the animals and made him squeal the whole bunch would have been on me and would have torn me to pieces quickly. They have been known to kill bears, jaguars, cattle, horses and any number of dogs. Although in the fight scores of their number might be killed, they seem to have no fear when once aroused.

"I was told the peccaries burrow under the dry leaves to protect themselves from mosquitoes and other winged pests of that hot country. My friends had many exciting experiences to tell in regard to these ferocious little animals. One of this party, while traveling with a companion in a wagon, stopped for lunch under some trees and turned their horses out to graze. While at lunch a large bunch of peccaries appeared, and they thought it would be nice to shoot among them and get one or two for meat, so they fired into them, wounding several, which commenced to squeal. Then the whole bunch made an attack. The men climbed quickly into the wagon and kept on shooting so long as the ammunition which they had in their pockets lasted. As they were opening their bags to get out more ammunition the peccaries climbed up the tongue of the wagon and jumped into it, and the men saved themselves only by jumping on to the seat and then on to limbs of the trees, the peccaries taking possession of the wagon and tearing things to pieces. They remained in possession for hours, the men watching them from safety in the trees."

The peccary, or South American wild boar, is the smallest of his species, averaging about three feet long, nor is the animal possessed of any unusual degree of strength. To make up for the natural individual deficiencies in combat with the more powerful animals of the jungle the peccaries always travel in large herds. When once attacked by a herd of peccaries the outcome is nearly always death to their enemy. The little pigs are armed with short sharp tusks, and no matter how great the slaughter of their own number during the melee the herd stay on the job until the work is finished.

Travelers in tropical and South American countries tell of fierce encounters between the peccaries and the jaguar, the monster cat which is lord of the forest. The jaguar has a fondness for a dinner of pork, but a wholesome respect for the power of a herd of wild pigs. When he wants to satisfy his cravings for a pork diet he drops from a limb of a tree on to the back of a straggler in the peccary herd. The jaguar slays his victim and then retreats hastily to his tree before the herd can get at him. When the herd grows tired of waiting for him to come down and moves along the jaguar descends and enjoys his meal at leisure. Frederick Selous in his romance of the animal world has an interesting account of a fight between a jaguar and a herd of peccaries. The peccaries had the jaguar treed on the limb of a tree from which the bark had rotted away. He was only a few feet above them and by harassing and jumping at their enemy finally succeeded in bringing the conflict to the ground. After the fight was over there were eleven killed and wounded peccaries, but the jaguar was literally torn to pieces.

Haven't You, Madam, Ever Heard of Wheat Laundries

Like any other kind, Mistress Housewife, they oft combine two processes.

"Dry-cleaning" and—let's call it—the "water cure."

Many millers, big, small, and middling (or muddling) consider wheat-washing a needless luxury and big profit eater.

Merely "dry-clean" leaving t'other kind to those few flourmen who believe with you that Cleanliness is next to Godliness.

Disregarding cost entirely, Madam, the FIVE ROSES millers use BOTH. Because—

Dry-cleaning removes weed seeds, of course, and coarse materials and some of the looser impurities.

Does its duty fairly well in a "so-so" way—good enough for the fellows who don't call their flour FIVE ROSES—who haven't got the same reputation to live up to.

Some wheat, Madam, like soiled linens, can be thoroughly cleansed only by washing and perfect rinsing in pure crystal lake water.

* * * *

Listen to the expert who said:

"A pound of mud, mire, dirt, foul, unclean, offensive substance is manufactured in every hundred pounds of flour from unwashed wheat."

Therefore, Mistress Housewife, when you buy a barrel of average poor stuff, you may also purchase almost two pounds of "farm what-do-you-call-it," for which your dealer gives you no discount even on bargain days.

Which does not add to the strength, color or flavor of the "housewife's delight" or the morning rolls.

Even after the hard wheat berries are cleansed and thoroughly dried by whizzing through a current of purified country air, they are once more scraped, and rubbed, and scrubbed.

Such is the wheat that makes FIVE ROSES, Madam, than which there is none cleaner, purer, healthier milled in Canada to-day—as you know now.

Thus is imparted to FIVE ROSES flour, a mellowness of flavor, a rich creamy bloom, a power and responsiveness which it could not otherwise possess.

* * * *

This knowledge gives you a confidence in your cooking efforts which is never deceived or at fault.

If you, Madam, are one of those particularly particular housewives nursing pure-food ideals, you surely understand the false economy of anything cheaper than FIVE ROSES.

Don't you?

A Hallowe'en Incident.

The incident about to be narrated did not happen during this year's Hallowe'en celebration by the students of Toronto, but it did happen two or three years ago, shortly after the woman's residence in the Queen's Park came into occupation. A body of light-hearted students had been out sky-larking and making the night hideous for orderly citizens, without, however, doing much damage to anything or anybody. Finally they decided to "serenade" the young lady students before they turned in, and proceeded in a body to the residence and swarmed upon its lawns, caterwauling "My Bonnie lies over the Ocean," "Good night, Ladies," and other ditties dear to the students' heart. Mingling with the crowd and unrecognized by them were two stalwart north-of-Ireland policemen in plain clothes. They were not looking for trouble but just in case any should turn up they had their batons concealed in their sleeves. Also mingling with the throng were two or three newspaper reporters who knew the "cops," but were too discreet to tip off their presence to the effervescent students. Anyway, to have done so would have spoiled the story should any turn up.

Presently the musical efforts of the throng brought forth the desired results. Several women in white night robes appeared at the windows and kissed their hands to the students and a mighty cheer went up, also many terms of endearment. Soon one of the plain clothes men sought out the reporters. He was fairly doubled up with mirth.

"Them ain't girls that are studyin' at all," he said; "them's the help."

He was the regular man on the beat, and he knew.

A Traffic Record.

The C.P.R. has been making and breaking freight traffic records steadily this season ever since the grain movement began, and a few days ago they touched a new high water mark. During the 24 hours a total of 3,369 freight cars were handled in and out through the Winnipeg terminal, not including the regular passenger traffic, which was also heavy. Had these cars been placed in one single string, they would have made a train of cars 31 miles in length.

During the day 1,613 cars were received and 1,746 were forwarded. Of the cars received 1,353 were loaded and 398 were empty.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Various Scientific Opinions as to How It Will Come.

The terrible catastrophe in Italy which caused the inhabitants of the ill fated city of Messina to believe that the end of the world had come is only a foretaste on a small scale of what many eminent scientists believe will be the end of the world. That eternal problem of how the world will end is, in the opinion of many, a matter for scientific investigation, and it is curious that the majority believe that the earth will open up and fly to pieces in the most gigantic earthquake ever known—an earthquake that will wipe all life from the globe before the actual destruction of the earth is complete.

The late Grant Allen firmly believed that the world would end by the crust of the earth eventually giving way beneath the colossal weight above it, and Abbe Dupin, one of the greatest scientists of France, believes that doomsday will begin with a war that will envelop the greatest nations in Europe, this being followed by a plague the like of which has never been known, culminating with an earthquake that will practically shake the world to pieces.

H. G. Wells, whose scientific prophecies are well known, is, however, of a different opinion. The world will end, he declares, by its becoming entirely frozen over. It is a well known fact that every year more ice accumulates around the poles. In short, many millions of tons of ice in excess of that of the year previous settle about the earth's extremities each year, and in Mr. Wells' opinion this will gradually extend until the whole world is frozen over and every living thing is thus destroyed.

Several scientists, remarks a writer in Cassel's Sunday Journal, are of opinion that we shall perish by fire and this old world of ours with us. Nikola Tesla is convinced that the atmosphere of the world being so fully charged with electricity, the result will be a gigantic explosion by spontaneous combustion, when the world will be entirely encircled with flame, which in the space of a few seconds will destroy all life.

Two of the world's greatest scientists firmly aver that the end of the world will be brought about by astronomical conditions. Take Professor Marienberg, the noted Austrian student. In his opinion the earth will fly from its orbit and come in contact with one of the other planets that may chance to be in a direct line. The earth, being comparatively small, will, of course, get the worst of it and split into fragments at the collision. But, of course, directly the earth swerved from the orbit all living things would die and such an earthquake take place as would completely put the Italian catastrophe in the shade.

Just as interesting is the prognostication of M. Camille Flammarion, one of the greatest living scientists. After many years of study he has arrived at the conclusion that the world will in the twenty-fifth century come across the path of the comet Bella, which crossed our line a few years ago. On this occasion, however, a collision will take place, and, Bella being infinitely greater than the earth, a shock may be expected which, he calculates, will be 925 times greater than the shock caused by the collision between two trains each traveling at sixty-five miles an hour.

IN THE WHEAT ELDORADO.

Englishman Tells of His Investigations In the West.

The farmers were returning from a week-end trip to Calgary, and the smoking-car of the giant Canadian Pacific train was crowded with as jolly and prosperous a set of men as one could wish to meet, writes F. A. Mackenzie in The London Daily Mail. They were farmers of the old type in a new land, none of your thin-blooded and worried-looking folk weighed down with thoughts of big rents and heavy taxes, but big, muscular, and apparently without a care in the world.

"Give me horses," said one. "I made as much out of my horses as out of my wheat this year, and I had twenty times more fun with them. Prices are going to better every year for five years to come. Let us do what we like, we cannot breed enough for all the new people coming here. I sold a nice pair to-day for $400 apiece. I could sell every beast I have on my ranch ten times over and name my own price to them."

"Wheat is good enough for me," said a second. "I have averaged thirty-five bushels an acre this season and I farm two sections (1,280 acres). I shall get over ninety cents a bushel. That is all right for land I bought five years ago for $12 an acre."

"A banker from Spokane down in my district has beaten you," said a third. "He bought two sections two years ago for $8.50 an acre. He got land cheap, I suppose, because he was a banker. He knew nothing about farming, so he had everything done by contract—breaking, plowing, fencing, seeding, and reaping. From his first season's crop he paid for the cost of his land and every expense, and had a clear profit left of $2 an acre! That is what I call a record."

An Englishman who was present ventured to ask some questions and the farmers promptly proceeded to instruct him. "Southern Alberta is God's own country," said one of them. "You need make no mistake about that. We have the climate, we have the land, and we are getting in the money. Eight years ago this was a ranching country, with numerous farms scores of square miles in extent, given up to big herds. The ranchers tried to keep the farmers back. When a man bought a half-section for wheat-growing his neighbors would visit him and tell him all the hard-luck stories they could in order to frighten and send him off. If he could not be frightened trouble began. Great herds of cattle would stampede over his land and trample the crops down. Bad fires would start mysteriously around his home, and so on.

"But the rancher had to go. Today the old-time ranches have practically disappeared, and all the good land in Southern Alberta is taken up with mixed farming. Most of it is held by Americans. I suppose that nine out of every ten of the people between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the United States border have come up from the south. They make first-rate farmers, they have money to start, they know the ways of work, and they have nothing to unlearn. And their sons are going to make good Canadian citizens. Sure!

"Two years ago you could have bought wheat land in Southern Alberta for from $8 to $12 an acre. Today you would pay $30 to $40 an acre for good land, and it is worth it. This has been an exceptional season, and large numbers of men owning a half section (320 acres) have been able to put $6,000 in the bank from the harvest. Some of the best land gives as much as sixty bushels an acre, but that is quite out of the common. The average man who looks after things ought to obtain from twenty-five to thirty bushels an acre, or if he is on irrigated land thirty-five bushels. The land costs $5 to $7 an acre to farm. The wheat realizes here about twenty cents a bushel less than Chicago prices, the twenty cents going for elevator charges, dealers, commissions, and freight. We might put eighty-five cents a bushel as about the ordinary amount received by the farmer here. Now, you can reckon yourself that twenty-five bushels at even eighty cents a bushel brings $20 an acre. Many a man to-day is making a profit of $15 and more an acre from his wheat land. A section (640 acres) is a fair size for a farm. Do you wonder that some of us are now beginning to go to California for the winter or that others are already talking of retiring?"

22 CHILDREN IN 27 YEARS

Skowhegan, Maine.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey, of Canaan, announce the birth of a daughter, their twenty second child in twenty-seven years.

Mrs. Dickey was married when fourteen years of age and Mr. Dickey was only a few years her senior.

Of the twenty-two children, not one has ever suffered from a serious illness.

Here is health and strength and bodily vigor personified. The parents are well—therefore there have been no weak, puny, peevish children.

The health of the child depends much on the health of the parents. Thus, there is the necessity of expectant mothers especially paying great attention to their general health.

During these trying times, a "Fruit-a-tives" tablet before meals and at bedtime will regulate the bowels and kidneys, keep the stomach sweet, sharpen the appetite, assist digestion, strengthen the vital organs and invigorate the entire system.

NEW BAG IDEAS

HANDKERCHIEF BAG

Cut a piece of chamois seven and one-half inches in diameter. This forms the bottom of bag. Gather on to this a piece of fancy silk one yard long and ten inches wide. Turn down two inches at top to form ruffle. Draw up with dainty shade of No. 3 ribbon. Line bottom of bag with plain silk. This makes a pretty as well as useful ornament for the dressing table.

BUTTON BAG

Take two pieces of chamois skin about nine inches long and six inches wide. Make a bag. Allow about an inch at bottom for fringe. Gilt along the edge. Cut in a fringe about an eighth of an inch apart above the stitching. Paint a row of flowers between two lines of gilt. At top of bag make a similar fringe, below cut little places so as to run ribbon through. Run baby ribbon through both ways and tie in bows, allowing enough ribbon to hang up. Across the front print the words "Button, button! Who's got the button?"

CORSET BAG

Materials required to make:—Three quarters yard fancy cretonne or chints three-quarters yard German Val. lace, 3 inch; four yards ribbon, 1 1-4 inch wide. Cut cretonne to make a bag 27 inches long, 8 1-2 inches wide. Make a heading 3 inches wide making a casing of ribbon below it for draw strings, which should measure 22 inches in length. Tie ends in small ribbon and sew lace inside heading for a pretty finish.

CROCHETED BAG

Crocheted Handkerchief Bag.—Get one spool of mercerised knitting silk or cotton. Crochet a strip nine inches long and five inches wide. Cut a piece of pasteboard five inches square and cover with silk the shade of knitting silk, sew crocheted strip around it, crochet an end around the top, run ribbon through it to draw it up, and tie in a pretty bow. It is a useful bag when travelling as the square is about the size of a handkerchief folded square, and will hold at least two dozen.

HANDY BAG

Grey velvet half yard in length and six inches wide for the bag. For bottom of bag make a needlebook three and a half inches long by two and a half wide also covered with the grey velvet. Line the bag and needlebook with blue taffeta silk, gather the bottom of the bag on the needlebook, run grey ribbon drawstrings through top of bag, and use same to tie needlebook. Two yards ribbon, one inch wide, is all that is needed. Can add to or take from the furnishings as you please, but all articles are useful in travelling or at any time. Can make the furnishings of expensive or simple material, for instance, winders, scissor, etc., of silver. Each article in bag is tied with blue baby ribbon ending in tiny bow. Articles in handy bag:—Small pair scissors, one spool black silk, one spool white thread, postage stamp box, thimble, one winder with darning cotton, one winder with wrapping cord, several sizes safety pins, tied in loops with the ribbon, two sizes buttons on cards, tied together, white and black hooks and eyes on cards. With the baby ribbon to match color of lining the effect is dainty and pleasing.

BRIDGE BAG

Take one and a half yards of figured ribbon five inches wide. Double in three bags. The two outside ones the same length for cards. The middle one a little longer for score and pencil. One and three-quarters yards of ribbon half-inch wide for drawing up bags. Run casing around middle bag, but leave heading around casing of outside bags. Whip edges of ribbon together to form bags.

SLIPPER BAG

Get a yard and one-half of some heavy colored goods, either plain blue or green. Turn up twelve inches and sew the ends shut. Then sew down three straight rows to form pockets. The slippers can be put in two of them and the other for his sox. Work the outline of a slipper on the pocket or a flower, bind in with red braid, and make three loops to hang it up by, in a handy place, where he can always find them, where it is warm and dry.

CARRIAGE BAG

Make two bags, one of two yards cream white eiderdown and one of two yards cream white outing flannel, each twenty-seven inches wide. Place the latter inside the former, seamed edges together, and face down six inches inside with dainty blue China silk. Stitch a second row one inch or more above the lower edge of facing and run one yard blue satin taffetta ribbon from each side to use as drawstrings. Place baby in bag and draw strings. Tie bow on each side. Use pretty pin to fasten fullness from the face. No coat or mittens to worry a hurried mother, and babe has all the freedom enjoyed at home.

VANITY BAG

Take a piece of substantial silk ten inches wide and five inches in depth and embellish it with ribbon embroidery in simple design. Sew the narrow ends together, and line with thin silk. Make a double hem about two-thirds of the way to the top and run through it a slender silk cord or narrow ribbon. Edge the top of bag with narrow lace. Glue the bottom of the bag in tiny plaits to the back of a two by three inch mirror, being careful not to touch mercury. After this is done, and while it is drying, cut a piece of thin pasteboard the size of mirror, pad it with a little cotton, cover with the lining silk, and glue it to back of mirror. It serves to protect the mirror and also to cover the raw seams of bag. The interior of the bag is now complete, and the only remaining touch is the edge of narrow gilt lace framing face of mirror. Place in bag a chamois skin and a tiny ivory or celluloid box of powder and your dainty Christmas gift is complete.

FOR WOMEN

JABOTS

I found numerous pieces of embroideries and laces which I used successfully in fashioning dainty little "jabots" which cannot be bought at the stores for less than 75 cents. These I shall use as Christmas gifts for those of my friends who delight in tailored waists and dainty ties.

Take piece of embroidery one or one and one-half inches wide, cut off cloth edges, and at bottom cut in point or cut around figure, leaving it flower shaped. To top edge insertion sew on lace edge, lapping lace under from top and slanting down for a couple of inches. Then about two inches from the bottom begin to full on around the bottom to opposite side and finish same as on first side. To top of jabot sew on a little pointed tab of two thicknesses sheer goods. This folds back under the stiff collar. Allover embroidery can also be used for centre, using the figure in a stripe. Insertion of lace can also be applied to the centre piece, then the lace edging.

TALCUM HOLDER

Buy a 15-cent oval can of talcum powder, cover this with half a yard of No. 60 satin ribbon, shirred on each side so that it fits the can snugly, hem at the top, and gather up closely around the brass top of the can. Buy a yard and half of baby ribbon to match in color, tie this diagonally across the can with a small bow on one shoulder of the can, then the diagonal again on opposite side making bow on other shoulder. Then on either side of can where ribbons cross in centre, tie them tightly together with tiny bow. Total expense is 38 cents, and you have a dainty and useful gift. This is especially attractive when covered in ribbon of shade to match the recipient's room.

NAIL BUFFER

A nail buffer is a pretty and inexpensive gift which is easily made. The materials needed are a pasteboard mailing tube, some sheet wadding, a piece of chamois skin, and one yard of No. 3 ribbon. Cut roll about six inches long, cover smoothly with sheet wadding, then with the chamois skin, which should be pinked on one edge and lapped over the other side. The chamois should be about two inches longer on each end than roll. Cut ribbon in two and tie around chamois at each end.

DOYLEY ROLL

To make a doyley roll, buy one yard of flowered cretonne, four and three-fourths yards of No. 7 ribbon to match predominating color in cretonne, and a heavy pasteboard roll, or a roll such as circulars are mailed in may be used. Cut the roll a little shorter than the width of cretonne, so it can be fastened over the ends. Measure cretonne one-fourth of yard from one end, and cut the end rounding from that point at the side to the middle of end. Turn the straight end of material under the width of a seam, then measure around the roll; bind the cretonne with ribbon, all but the straight end, and do not catch the ribbon on the underside when stitching the part measured for roll. Then stitch the part for roll flat, and slip in the roll; gather the edge of ribbon at end of roll and draw together in centre. Use the piece of ribbon which is left to tie around roll, fastening in middle of rounding end.

RUBBER BAG

To prevent losing rubbers at public functions, a rubber bag with name of owner to be fastened in coat lining is a practical remembrance.

COMBING JACKET

A combing jacket or kimono to slip on over the head is made of a circle of goods three and a half feet in diameter. Cut goods out at centre to easily slip over the head. Finish edges by binding or by gathered one inch ribbon. Very pretty in eiderdown, flannel, or dimity. Any child that can use a needle can easily make one for mother or sister.

To a friend, who had been a recent bride and who had had scarcely any practice in cooking, I gave a pasepartouted picture to hang above her baking table. I had ten recipes of the things we cook most frequently, such as biscuits, tea cakes, salad dressing, waffles, pie crust, etc., clearly typewritten on a sheet of paper; then I framed it with glass passepartout. These recipes were just the right amount for two persons.

Cut a piece of linen twenty inches square, upon one end stitch a row of pockets to fit your various toilet accessories, at the other end make a hem, through which a ribbon is run, which lies about the waist. In a crowded dressing-room where there is no room to place or hang a case this one will be a most convenient gift.

GLOVE MENDING SET

Cover a ring about two inches in diameter with silk ribbon—or, if you have a pretty celluloid ring from one of baby's old playthings, you need not cover, on one end fasten the braided glove mending cotton or silk, which looks like a wide ribbon of assorted colors. Let this ribbon hang down, say, about eight inches from the ring, tie a glove darner with narrow ribbon and fasten to ring, letting hang down beside glove mending thread, and on other side fastening embroidery scissors in same way. This makes a useful gift. Cost of material, embroidery scissors, 15 cents; glove darner, 5 cents; ribbon, three yards, allows for fancy loops on ring, price optional, glove mending thread, the cotton, 10 cents; the silk, 25 cents; the latter looks prettier, but the former is more practical.

COZY

Buy one-half yard of pretty cretonne, one-half yard of plain colored lining, and a roll of white cotton batting. Cut cretonne into two parts fourteen inches wide and fifteen inches long rounding off the top; cut lining exactly the same. Stitch up the cretonne and lining separately. Now fit the batting to the wrong side of the cretonne (put it on good and thick, tacking it here and there to keep it in place, then put the lining wrong side out on the batting and baste around the raw edges; then turn the lining and all seams will be on the inside. Hem the bottom neatly and place a pretty ribbon bow on top, and you will give joy and comfort to mother or friend who likes her coffee and tea hot, as this cosy covers the whole coffee pot. It is useful, simple and inexpensive.

WAIST COVERS

A handy and inexpensive present can be made from one yard silkoline, one yard square, any color. Bind edges with seam binding to match. Cut round hole in centre and bind the edges. This makes a useful cover for waists or dresses to keep them free from dust. The hole in centre is put the hook or the hanger through.

GIFTS FOR MEN

CHEST PROTECTORS

Take one yard and a quarter black satin or heavy twilled silk ten inches wide, with same amount of white satin or fancy silk to line it. Put an interlining of unbleached canton flannel; finish ends either square or slightly pointed; on one end embroider his initial on right side in a two and a half inch old English letter. By putting three one inch plaits in middle to fit neck you will have a handsome chest protector. By buying twenty inch satin you can have enough for two by cutting in half lengthwise.

RAZOR CASE

Make of oose leather, dark green or a man's college color, twelve inches by fifteen inches from top to bottom. Bind edge with white ribbon or college color. Fold lower edge up about five inches. Sew ends and divide into six or seven pockets for razor blades or razors. Fasten to the lavatory wall or if the case is to be carried in travelling bag, sew a ribbon on upper edge to tie when upper part is folded over razor blade pockets.

LAUNDRY BAGS

Large Soiled Clothes Bag.—Make the bag of pretty cretonne with a large hoop at top so that a shirt may be thrust into it easily. Hang by a strip of cretonne firmly sewed on either side of hoop.

SHIRT CASE

A useful as well as nice present for a young lady to make for a young man. A yard and a half of either white duck or linen drilling 24 or 27 inches wide; have a layer of sheet wadding; sprinkle with sachet powder, over it use a pretty silk for lining; sometimes a pretty quilted lining is used. Fold three times and make a case. Turn over one corner and embroider scallops on edge of same and the word shirts embroidered in washable gold thread.

Flowers or a pretty conventional design may be embroidered; scatter them promiscuously.

STOMACH AGONY

Abolish the Cause, and Misery and Distress of Indigestion Will Vanish.

Can indigestion be cured? Hundreds of thousands of people who suffer from belching of gas; biliousness, sour stomach, fulness, nausea, shortness of breath, bad taste in mouth, foul breath, nervousness, and other distressing symptoms, are asking themselves that question daily.

And if these same doubting dyspeptics could only read the thousands of sincere letters from people who once suffered as badly as they do now but who have been quickly and permanently cured by the use of Mi-o-na, the mighty dyspepsia remedy that cures by removing the cause, they would go to Wm. Madill's this very day and get a large box of Mi-o-na tablets, and start themselves on the right road to health at once.

The price of Mi-o-na tablets is only 50 cents, and Wm. Madill guarantees them to cure indigestion or money back.

Thin or lean or scrawney people will find Mi-o-na a maker of flesh and blood, because it causes the stomach to extract more nutritious matter from the food, which quickly enriches the blood.

MORE PLAYERS FOR RENFREW

Lester Patrick informs the Renfrew people he will probably bring two or three other good men besides his brother Frank, indicating Edmonton will not have much of a team left to send east, after the Stanley Cup if Patrick secures the fellows he is after. Hay Miller is one of the men Patrick is counted upon to bring east. He played with Edmonton in the Wanderers' series last winter and Ottawa has been trying to get in touch with him all summer. It is not probable that Whitcroft will go to Renfrew. He is a little on the old side, and could hardly step with the company he would meet in the east.

Had Weak Back.

Would Often Lie in Bed for Days Scarcely Able to Turn Herself.

Weak back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know of the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles.

They begin by helping the kidneys to flush of all the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages and carrying away the uric acid, the chief cause of rheumatism, from the blood.

Mrs. Arch. Schnare, Black Point, N.B., writes:—"For years I was troubled with weak back. Oftentimes I have lain in bed for days, being scarcely able to turn myself, and I have also been a great sufferer while trying to perform my household duties. I had doctors attending me without avail and tried liniments and plasters, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was about to give up in despair when my husband induced me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after using two boxes I am now well and able to do my work. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all that you claim for them, and I would advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In ordering specify "Doan's."

FRASERVILLE ITEMS OF INTEREST

Fraserville, Dec. 13.—Miss Nellie Weatherill, of the P. C. I., is unable to attend school this week on account of slight illness.

Mrs. J. Hutchinson was in the village Saturday night.

Mrs. Stephen Miller, of Warsaw, is the guest of Mrs. W. A. Kidd.

Mrs. Wm. Cruikshank was in the city Saturday on business.

Mr. Scullthrap, of Port Hope, was in the village last week, buying peas.

A sufficient number did not turn out to the Sunday School meeting on Tuesday, so the meeting was postponed till Tuesday, Dec. 14th.

Copies of the annual financial report of the South Monaghan Methodist church circuit, for the year ending May, 1909, were distributed to the members of the congregation on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Weatherill, also expressed his wish that the church would be free from debt before he left to commence his labours in a new field, which to our deep regret is but a few short months henceforth.

The new church sheds are nearing completion, the shingling is all that has to be done to finish the work; this has been retarded by the local snowfall.

Miss Mabel Johnston has accepted a position in Peterborough for the holidays.

It is understood that Mr. Richard Stewart, formerly of Fraserville, and who has been for the past year in the Western Provinces, has gone to Montreal to study for the ministry.

Mr. Weatherilt, of Osaca, was in the village last week.

Miss Hattie Kidd, of Warsaw, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kidd.

Mr. Graham, of East Peterborough, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewers.

Miss McNeil, of the P. C. I., spent Sunday with her parents.

Miss Walsh, of the Normal School, Peterborough, spent Sunday with her parents.

REPRESENTS THE STAR

Mr. J. T. Clark Will Report the British Election Campaign.

The Toronto Daily Star has sent Mr. Joseph T. Clark to England to represent them during the British election campaign. Mr. Clark, through his many years' connection with the Daily Star, and formerly with Saturday Night, where he wrote over the signature of "Mack," is one of the most widely known and most popular newspaper writers in Canada. Using graceful English and keen powers of observation, and possessed of an original personality which gives a distinctiveness to all he writes, Mr. Clark's daily cables and letters are sure to be eagerly read by everyone who is interested in the almost revolutionary campaign now going on in the Mother Land.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

When you look at anything for the first time—a friend's new gown, a piece of embroidery, a newly furnished room—what do you see, the generally good effect or the one flaw?

Because if you see that flaw it is time you went to a mental or maybe a moral oculist.

It is an excellent thing to be observing to a certain degree, fine to be critical to a certain extent, but when you get beyond that degree and extent it is one of the greatest misfortunes that can befall any one.

There was a girl in one of the music courses that I took at College, who was what the music professor called "tone perfect."

That means that if any one struck a note anywhere at all on the piano she could instantly tell exactly what that note was.

That is a faculty that few musical people can cultivate even by great effort. It is simply an inborn ability, and a very rare one. But the professor told the girl, instead of guarding it, to try to get rid of it.

"Because you possess the faculty you will be conscious of flaws that other people hardly notice," he said, "and you will get more discomfort than pleasure out of it in the long run."

If the gown orthe piece of embroidery that is perfect to other people shows flaws to you, you will miss the beauty that other people enjoy, because you will be looking at the flaws.

Your ability to see the flaw may show that you have great powers of discrimination, but powers that you will be happier if you get rid of, for in life as in musical performances, few things are perefect.

Have you a telephoe in your home?

If so have you also a perfectly plain and accurate telephone list of the numbers that you use the most often?

If you haven't why not make a Christmas present of such a list to the family, or to that member of it who uses the telephone the most?

Arrange it alphabetically, and make it inclusive of all the numbers that you see at all frequently, have it clearly written, typewritten, if possible, paste it on a good stiff cardboard and you will find that after they have used it a month or so your family will tell you that they enjoy it quite as much as any of the more expensive gifts they received.

• • • •

One of the latest and to me one of the most worth-while acts of the General Federation of Women's Clubs—an organization including most of the Women's Clubs in the United States—was to institute a $1,500 scholarship for a year's graduate work at Oxford or Cambridge to be awarded to an American girl.

Does your woman's club do anything like that?

Of course I don't mean anything as big as that, but does it do anything similar, such as making possible a year of college work for some bright girl in the neighbourhood, who, but for this help, might not be able to have the educational advantages she deserves.

Self-culture is a very fine thing, of course, but it is possible for people, even when they are seeking such a fine thing, to become too self-centred, and an outside interest such as this might serve to keep an organization on a higher level.

PETERBOROUGH GROUPED WITH BELLEVILLE AND TRENTON

O. H. A. Groups Were Arranged Yesterday---Peterborough Teams and Lindsay Will Fight it Out in the Junior Group---Collegiate Have Entered a Team.

Toronto, December 14.—The first meeting of the new Executive of the Ontario Hockey Association was held last night in The Telegram building. The arranging of the clubs into groups in the three series was the important business of the session, and final decision was not reached until after very long discussion. So many clubs in Toronto desired to play in the senior series that there was notice enough for their games at the Mutual Street Rink, and the local intermediates and seniors would be almost crowded out. As completed, the senior series includes eleven clubs, of which only four are out of town. Thirty-nine clubs are grouped in the intermediate series and thirty-seven in the juniors. The final grouping was as follows:

Senior Series.

Group 1.—Kingston, Frontenacs, Argonaut Rowing Club. Convener—W. M. Taylor, Toronto.

Group 2. — University of Toronto, Parkdale Canoe Club, Toronto A. A. C. Convener—Dr. S. A. Weismiller, Parkdale. Meet at Toronto.

Group 3.—St. Michael's College, Estonias, Toronto Rowing Club. Convener — Father Carr, St. Michael's. Meet at Toronto.

Group 4.—Stratford, London, Galt.

Intermediate Series.

Group 1.—Belleville, Trenton, Peterborough. — Rev. F. W. Armstrong, Trenton. Meet at Trenton.

Group 2, sec. A.—Cobourg, Whitby, Oshawa; section B., Cannington, a bye. Convener—H. E. Bradley, Oshawa. Meet at Oshawa.

Group 3.—Osgoode Hall, Toronto Canoe Club, Yale A. C., Toronto, Newmarket, St. Paul's, Toronto. Convener—J. L. Nichols, Toronto. Meet at Toronto.

Group 4.—New Hamburg, Drumbo, St. Marys. Convener—Gus Wendt, New Hamburg. Meet at Stratford.

Group 5.—Guelph O. A. C., Milton, Galt, Preston. Convener — B. F. Canniff, Galt. Meet at Galt.

Group 6—Grimsby, Welland, Port Dalhousie Maple Leafs, St. Catharines' N. S. & T. team. Convener —R. D. Brown, St. Catharines. Meet at St. Catharines

Group 7 — Paris, Ingersoll, Woodstock, Stratford, London. Convener, Kenneth Casselman, London. Meet at London.

Group 8.—Simcoe, Tillsonburg, double schedule. Convener — Frank Coates, Simcoe. Meet at Simcoe.

Group 9 — Clinton, Goderich; double schedule. Convener—. Meet at Goderich.

Group 10.—Sarnia, Petrolia, Watford, Strathroy. Convener—H. LeSueur, Sarnia. Meet at Petrolia.

Group 11.—Owen Sound, Wiarton; double schedule. Convener—G. D. Fleming, Owen Sound. Meet at Owen Sound.

Group 12.—Collingwood, Midland; double schedule. Convener — J. A. Gibb, Collingwood. Meet at Barrie.

Junior Series.

Group 1.—Frontenacs of Kingston, Belleville, Trenton Y. M. C. A., Picton. Convener—A. E. La Roche, Belleville. Meet at Belleville.

Group 2—Whitby, Oshawa, Port Hope, Port Perry. Convener—C. D. Gordon, Whitby. Meet at Oshawa.

Group 3—Peterborough, Lindsay, Peterborough Collegiate. Convener—R. M. Glover, Peterborough. Meet at Peterborough.

Group 4—Simcoes A of Toronto, Toronto Rowing Club, St. Helen A. C. Argonaut R. C. Convener—Bert Short, Toronto. Meet at Toronto.

Group 5—Upper Canada College, St. Michael's College, Toronto A. A. C., Simcoes B. Convener—Frank Dissette. Meet at Toronto.

Group 6—Preston, Berlin, Guelph, Paris. Convener—Solan Lutz, Berlin. Meet at Preston.

Group 7—Listowel, Stratford, Seaforth, London. Convener — D. A. McLachlan, Stratford. Meet at Stratford.

Group 8.—Owen Sound and Markdale; double schedule. Convener—G. D. Fleming, Owen Sound. Meet at Owen Sound.

Group 9.—Alliston, Meaford, Barrie, Newmarket, Collingwood. Convener—G. O. Cameron, Barrie. Meet at Barrie.

Group 10. — Gravenhurst, Bracebridge, Midland. Convener — D. J. Grant, Gravenhurst. Meet at Orillia.

Applications for change of residence permits for two players in Belleville and Lindsay were refused, and the tone of the Executive is evidently to discourage such expectations. Favourable action was taken in the case of several applications from players for permission to play with teams in their neighbourhoods, though the applicant was resident outside of the corporate limits of the towns or villages the clubs represented.

The sub-committee of last season—Messrs. J. Ross Robertson, Dwight J. Turner and W. A. Hewitt, were reappointed.

All schedule meetings for the groups arranged last night must be held this week so that the schedules and the referees can be reported to Secretary Hewitt not later than Friday. The seniors have till February 19 to return their group winners, but the intermediate and junior schedules must not be run later than January 31st.

REV. MR. KEITH AT HASTINGS

Preached in the Presbyterian Church Friday Last.

Examiner Special:

Hastings, Dec. 11.—The large plate glass window in Beck and McCarthy's store was badly broken during the wind storm of last week, the awning rod breaking loose and going through it.

The local merchants have begun their Christmas decorating and the windows are beginning to assume a holiday appearance.

Rev. H. J. Keith ,of Peterborough preached at the preparatory service of the Presbyterian church here on Friday afternoon. Communion service being held the following Sabbath morning.

At a recent meeting of the village council it was decided to provide mitts for the use of the members of the fire brigade.

Mr. E. J. Laing, of Norwood, was in town on Friday.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Parcell, the young man who was so unfortunate as to fall from a box car here, thereby sustaining severe and serious injuries.

Mrs. (Dr.) Nicolle has been visiting friends in Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Londerville are rejoicing over the birth of a son.

Mr. M. Geoffrey is on the sick list.

Mrs. Golden, of Tucksford, Sask., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tyler, town.

Mrs. O'Keefe, of Morden, Man., is visiting friends here.

Mr. Knight, Cobourg, has ben visiting in town, the guest of Mr. and Miss Stephen.

Mr. D. Fife and Miss Belle have been visiting friends in Otonabee.

An interesting November wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Boyce, when their eldest daughter was united in marriage to Mr. Nelson Hardy, of Percy. Only the immediate relatives were present. After the ceremony and customary congratulations the party repaired to the dining room, where a dainty luncheon was served. The gifts to the bride were numerous and costly, among them being $85 in cash. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy extend congratulations and join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life. Mr. G. Greenwood, who died so suddenly at the Union hotel, Toronto, recently was an uncle of Mrs. Wm. Tate, town.

Mr. Ed. Lynch has taken over the scales from Mr. Taylor Huycke for the remainder of the year.

Rev. A. J. H. Strike, of Campbellford, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church at both services on Sunday last. The reverend gentleman preached two eloquent sermons, which were well received by an appreciative congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Convey left on Wednesday for an extended trip in the south, in the hope of benefiting Mrs. Convey's condition, who has been in poor health for some time.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM HALL'S GLEN

Examiner Special.

Hall's Glen, Dec. 13th.—Some of the young men are making good use of the sleighing while it lasts.

Our stage driver says the weather was plenty cold enough on the start to be healthy. He often thinks of the bear and the north pole.

The storm of last week, sleet and ice, has done considerable damage in this vicinity. It is reported that orchards suffered the greatest damage. Go where you will and evidence of the havoc is easily seen.

Mr. Wm. Carveth who has engaged a number of good men for the winter has already begun operations on his limits in the east of Dummer. He is paying good wages for men accustomed to lumbering, and besides having a new foreman he expects this winter's output will far exceed all previous seasons.

Scarcity of water is being felt keenly of late in this neighbourhood. Unless things change considerably this will cause a great deal of inconvenience and extra work this winter.

We learn that a particular young man on the third line, who is old enough to draw land, has recently joined the volunteers. The militia laws and regulations must have changed recently for recruits enlisting this fall have to furnish their rifle, shot gun and ammunition, and practise on night owls, rabbits, etc., for some months previous to their enlistment.

Our worthy representative to the township Council is as regular as clock work. He is always on hand rain or shine, fearless of friend or foe. He says an old dog for a hard road every time.

Mr. Walter Carveth lately purchased another driver.

Mr. and Mrs. Batten are preparing for a week's vacation with friends in Paisley. We wish them every success and a safe journey.

A number of young men showed their colours last week. After years of toil and labour they have succeeded at last in reaching the top of the ladder. We wish them success in the new branch of nature study, and we also hope that this event will put a stop to regular long drives and late hours.

The weekly practice was held at Mr. G. Crowe's home on the 3rd line. A large number was present and all took an active part.

When children are pale, peevish and restless at night they require a dose or two of Miller's Worm Powders.—Wm. Madill, druggist.

More Than You Expect in Soap

You who are used to ordinary soaps will be surprised when you first try Taylor's Infants' Delight Soap.

No other soap compares with it for every toilet purpose—the bath, massage, shampoo, or for washing baby's rose-leaf skin.

For we make this soap of pure cocoanut oil from the isle of Ceylon, and vegetable oils from France.

We clarify and blend these oils and mill them by our own special process. Nothing is left undone to make this soap supreme.

Infants' Delight Soap

is the product of forty-four years of conscientious effort and costly experiment. Over a million Canadian families find it superior.

Its use prevents chapping, roughness and other skin complaints.

Containing a small amount of boracic acid, it combines the healing qualities of this much used antiseptic and cleanser with the stimulating and nourishing action of pure vegetable oils and essences.

It makes a rich, creamy lather, cooling and delightfully refreshing.

Prove for yourself that a cake will outlast any ordinary soap. See how delightful it is to use three times a day. Get a cake from your dealer today.

AMERICAN CRITICS FIND FAULT WITH CANUCK GAME

Cannot See That it Has Any Points That are Superior to the American Article---Would be Just as Rough if Played by Americans, They Say.

W. A. Hewitt of the Toronto Star, saw the Hamilton-Ottawa game at New York in the interest of his paper and the following extract from his comment on the game will be read with interest:

Some random criticisms and queries from the American authorities:

"Puerile and elementary."

"Team play entirely absent."

"Not the slightest knowledge of tackling."

"Punter kicks too close to the forward line."

"Those backward passes are too dangerous altogether."

"Line plunger gets no assistance from his comrades."

"Play too confused and lacking in sustained and concerted effort."

"If they played with the same dashing spirit as Americans, the game would be just as dangerous."

"Those running passes are only good for a strong team playing against a weak one."

"A long pass near his own goal line—nervy, but betrays ignorance of the rudiments of football." A well deserved rebuke of this play more than once.

"Merely have to kick it over the goal line to score a point. What a cinch for Ted Coy, the Yale wonder. He'd run up a score by himself," but yet Coy isn't in Hugh Gall's class as a punter.

"Why don't the forwards do something? What are they there for? This is a game for the backs only. Lacks the rugged qualities of our own game."

"Too much uncertainty in the play. The element of chance enters too much into the game."

"Game is not nearly so well developed as the American game—play loose and crude."

"Surely there must be a rule against that," as Kennedy and Ferguson in succession tackled a runner across the face. "They should both be put out of the game." And they should have too.

"Against all the ethics of football," when Referee McMaster blew his whistle for quarter time as Burton was speeding over the line for a touchdown. "Play should not be stopped until the ball is dead," and the writer had to admit the official had bungled.

Art Moore made some dazzling runs in the first half. He played up to his best form and his famous side-step was always in evidence. The critics gave him no credit at all for his magnificent running, but blamed the tacklers for not getting him, though no man playing football anywhere could have stopped Moore on Saturday. "Don't you teach your players to dive after the man?" was a question frequently asked, as Stronach and others fell upon the neck of the man with the ball.

MR. CAMP'S VIEWS

Walter Camp, of Yale, W. F. Garcelon of Harvard and Alonzo A. Stagg of Chicago, were the most conspicuous of the critics, and the ones to be most widely quoted. Mr. Camp, who might now easily be mistaken for George S Lyon, of Toronto, stated to The Star that since his last previous view of Canadian football at Hamilton seven years ago, the game had assumed much more definite shape and its possibilities had been exploited to a greater extent. Mr. Camp looks at everything pertaining to football from the viewpoint of a coach and naturally thought that if the Canadian game was played and perfected by American Colleges"—that's the sore point,—it might be just as dangerous as the present American game, though as played by mere Canadians it was much less dangerous. This implied, of course, lack of development by ourselves of our own game, and the writer could not resist the temptation to say that if the champion University of Toronto team had ever met Yale at either the Canadian or American game Mr. Camp would probably have reason to revise his opinion.

Mr. Camp talks in generalities usually and on abstract points regarding the game, but finally admitted that out 3-yard off-side rule, and the rule governing a free kick to a man making his mark, might benefit the American game if incorporated in the rules. Mr. Camp also thought that more punting, and the introduction of running passes would be beneficial.

THE CHICAGO VIEWPOINT

Mr. Stagg, like Mr. Camp, did not think our game was very well developed, that it was open enough, but very loose and not scientifically played. Mr. Stagg approved of the long running passes and the punting, which he thought were most desirable features if they could be worked into such a thoroughly scientific game as American football. Mr. Stagg also thought that Canadian football would be too tame to hold the favor of the American public for any length of time. He deplored the absence of off-side interference and said that it kept too many men out of the play, apparently forgetful of the fact that the forwards often join in the runs of the backs and participate in the passing game.

A HARVARD OPINION

Mr. Garcelon was much impressed with the exhibition, and saw immense possibilities for improvement in the American game. He was particularly struck with the constant open play, the frequent kicks, the runs, and the general tendency to keep the ball in view of the spectators. He thought the art of punting had been developed to a marked degree by the Canadians, and Simpson's method of kicking so close to the line of scrimmage was a revelation to him. Mr. Garcelon also liked the passing and kicking of the ball while on the run, and thought if some of the ideas were adopted it would be a great benefit to the American game.

DEVOTIONAL NIGHT AT KNOX CHURCH

Young People Listened to Good Address

Being devotional night the meeting of the Young Peoples' Society was held last night. The chair was occupied by Mr. A. C. Davenport. After the opening exercises and business, a duet, "I am happy in him," was given by Messrs. Thompson and Donaldson. Mr. J. Smith was then called upon for the address. The speaker reminded the young people that the guild had a warm place in his heart, and he was pleased to be present. The subject was on the wedding feast when our Lord turned the water into wine. Wine, it was reminded, was used in those days at the wedding festivities, as at present. The wine that Jesus made, was better than that that had been partaken of before. Mr. Smith referred also to the evil habit of cigarette smoking. Strong words of rebuke were made against the professing Christians, who indulged in these disgraceful practices, especially among the minor boys of eleven years was the habit prevalent. The speaker, also asked the opinion of those gathered. Why so many sales and such like, are taking place in the churches of to-day, for the aim of raising funds to maintain the church's expenses? It was because of the lack of liberality, in giving, by the members. He did not agree with this, it is not found in the Scriptures of such things happening. The money changers that sold doves were cast out of the temple by our Saviour. The meeting was enjoyed, and thanks were extended for the practical address. Next Monday, Dec. 20th, is Literary night. Mr. Gordon Hall is in charge.

INTEREST GROWING

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Growing interest in the subject of Forestry is reported by Mr. James Lawler, Secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, who has just reached Ottawa from a trip of several weeks' duration in Eastern Ontario, following one in the Western part of the province. He held meetings at Peterborough, Belleville, Trenton, and Kingston and Brockville, delivering a lecture on the state of Canadian forests illustrated by stereopticon views. At three of the places he was requested to deliver the lecture a second time before some other body in the place.

The lectures were under the auspices of the Board of Trade or Canadian Club, but by request he spoke before the Peterborough County Council, the Students of Albert College and the Engineering Society of Queen's University. On Wedesday, Dec 15, Mr. Lawler lectures in the Assembly Hall of Ottawa Collegiate Institute. This will be free to the public.

The executive committee of the Canadian Forestry Association will meet on Tuesday, Dec. 14 in the office of Mr. R. H. Campbell, Dominion Superintendent of Forestry, Canadian Building, Ottawa. They will arrange for the annual meeting early in 1910 and also the map of the course of the work up till that time. This year Mr. Thomas Southworth, of Toronto, is president and Senator Edwards, of Ottawa, is vice-president.

FLOOR COVERED

The work of covering the floor in the Brock St. rink was completed this morning and Caretaker Jack Thirnbeck has everything in readiness now for flooding. The water will be turned on as soon as the weather warrants the step, and it is not anticipated that there will be much delay in securing a skating surface if the expected cold snap materialises. The Peterborough hockey clubs, intermediate and junior, will start practising just as soon as the weather will permit.

TO FIGHT THE TRUST

Leaders of Organized Labor Advise Men to Strengthen the Unions Involved Preparatory to a War to the Finish — Long Hours and Low Wages Are the Chief Grievances of the Workers.

Pittsburg, Dec. 15.—War was formally declared upon the giant steel corporation by the leaders of organized labor throughout the United States and Canada at the close of a two days' conference yesterday. The decision to battle against the corporation's policy of the "open shop" was reached last night after hours of debate.

The grievances of organized labor against the steel corporation as set forth in a resolution and forwarded last night to President Taft and the United States Senate and House of Representatives. The resolution deals principally with the low wages paid the men in the employ of the steel corporation, the hours of work and the general condition of oppression under which the corporation is alleged to hold its employes. It reads in part:

"A crisis in the affairs of labor has arisen. The gigantic trust, the United States Steel Corporation, is using its great wealth and power in an effort to rob the toilers of their right of American manhood and of the opportunity to resist its further encroachments. Grown rich by the consent of the people of our country, this corporation in its mad greed for still greater riches, sweeps aside, makes and unmakes laws, and is now engaged in an effort to destroy the only factor—the organizations of its employes — standing between it and unlimited, unchecked and unbridled industrial, political, social and moral carnage."

The resolution then calls on organized labor throughout the country to organize thoroughly and completely all employes in the iron, steel and tinplate industry; suggests an assessment of ten cents per member from all union men, and recommends appointment of committees to see the President, Congress and governors, for the purpose of laying before them the "grievances from which labor suffers at the hands of the corporation."

Prosecutions In Montreal.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—The excitement over Justice Cannon's report is still at fever height. The question now discussed is, who will take the initial steps leading to the prosecution of the guilty parties? It is quite likely, however, that the matter will be left to the incoming council, and, failing the council, public-spirited citizens will step in.

Although the aldermen will say very little about their position, Ald. Proulx and others declare that they will never pay the costs levied upon them by Justice Cannon, adding that they will carry the matter to the Privy Council if necessary. It is generally believed that the Premier, Sir Lomer Gouin, will consider it to be his duty to take stern action.

Acquitted of Murder.

Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 15.—Bertha Leitzau, charged with shooting and killing S. J. Morley, a native of London, Ont., at Bloomfield Hills, a month ago, was yesterday acquitted.

She testified that she had bought a revolver contemplating suicide when she learned of Morley's intended marriage to another woman, and that she could not remember what happened after Morley had taunted her on the night of the shooting.

A crowd cheered the verdict, which the jury rendered on the ground of "sufficient cause" for the shooting.

Departmental Store Deal.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—Negotiations are admitted to have been going on for some time looking to the acquisition of the Henry Morgan & Co., Ltd., departmental store business by the Seigel-Cooper (New York and Chicago) and other American interests.

Strikers Back at Work.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 15.—Twenty-five switchmen and trainmen, who have been out on strike, returned to work yesterday. Some of them were members of the strikers' observance committee.

Dr. Herridge and Adam Shortt were appointed a committee to wait on a committee of the General Assembly regarding the securing of additional information on the question of separation from the church.

A BEASTLY LIE.

Prince Henry of Prussia Answers Blatchford's Statement.

London, Eng., Dec. 15.—A telegram appears in the London papers to-day from Prince Henry of Prussia, dealing with a series of articles written by the Socialist, Blatchford, which are being printed in London. In these articles Blatchford declares that Germany is making preparations for war on a large scale and is building a great navy, which can only be destined for use against England, and includes the statement that the officers of the German warships are in the habit of daily drinking the simple toast "Am tag"—meaning thereby a day attack on England.

Prince Henry's telegram characterizes the last statement as " a beastly lie from beginning to end," and adds: "We honor and respect our British naval brother officers, with whom we are proud of being on friendly terms."

War Secretary Haldane, addressing a political meeting at Tranent, Scotland, last night, said that he did not think Germany had the least intention of invading Great Britain. The German people, he believed, desired to live well with the British, but, he adds, "We shall keep our powder dry."

Leopold Able to Sign Bill.

Brussels, Dec. 15.—King Leopold yesterday underwent a most serious operation and astounded the surgeons by the manner in which he withstood it. He remarkable recuperative powers manifested themselves directly he regain consciousness, and the optimistic spirit which he has shown throughout the course of his illness returned to him. The operation was for relief of an obstruction of the intestine. The crisis will probably last three days.

Last night the King was strong enough to sign the new military law, just passed by the Senate, and which once threatened to overturn the Cabinet. The measure invoives the complete reversal of the system of recruiting the army. It provides for the service of one son in each family, instead of general recruitment by lot, but, more important, all are forbidden to hire substitutes. The bill fixes the peace strength at 42,000 and war strength at 200,000. King Leopold favors the law.

Ontario Welcomes Gouin Party.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—With an entire absence of ceremony and ostentation, Ontario's distinguished guest, Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec, arrived in Toronto yesterday afternoon.

When the International Limited of the G.T.R., from Montreal, drew up at the Union Station, Sir James Whitney and Hon. Dr. Beaume, representing the Ontario administration, were on the platform to greet Sir Lomer and his colleagues and to extend to them the hospitality of the province.

Accompanying the Quebec Premier were Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Minister of Public Works and Labor, in Sir Lomer's Cabinet, and John T. Finnie, M.P.P., for the St. James' division of Montreal.

In the evening a dinner was given at Government House in honor of the visitors by Lieutenant-Governor Gibson.

Fewer Officials For the Yukon.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Hon. Frank Oliver has decided to make a considerable reduction in the administration staff of the Yukon Territory. Mr. Lithgow, gold commissioner, will be transferred to Ottawa, and the services of A. J. Beaudette, mining engineer; Alfred Watson clerk of accounts; and William Noble, clerk in the gold commissioner's office, will be let go.

Must Pay For Grain Car Doors.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—By an order of the Railway Commission, issued yesterday morning, it is provided that when grain shippers provide car doors for cars in which his grain is shipped, they shall be reimbursed by the railway companies as follows: West of Fort William, one dollar for lower door; fifty cents for upper; east of Fort William, fifty cents flat."

Released From Brazilian Prison.

Moose Jaw, Sask., Dec. 15.—Word has been received from the U. S. Secretary of State, that a party of American filibusters, including Bert Kincaid of this town, who were captured among a party of revolutionists in Brazil, have been released after serving 17 months in prison.

Kincaid is a South African veteran and was formerly a mail clerk here.

Gales In Nova Scotia.

Halifax, Dec. 15.—A terrifice southwest gale is sweeping over Nova Scotia last night and traffic was practically suspended in Halifax for two or three hours last night, owing to the severity of the storm and the heavy rainfall.

A Digby special reports two fishermen lost at sea in a dory.

$14,000 FIRE IN TORONTO

Blaze at the Corner of Front and Church Street Broke Out Again After it Was Thought That It Had Been Entirely Extinguished.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE

Special to The Examiner.

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 15.—The fire in White Bros. wholesale fruit establishment at the corner of Front and Church streets last night, which was supposed to have been entirely subdued, broke out afresh five hours later, and, spreading to other buildings, did damage exceeding $100,000, making $140,000 in all. In adition to practically destroying White Bros. stock and premises, the fire wrought havoc with the premises and stock of McWilliams and Everist, fruit merchants; The Club Coffee Co., and Halliday & Co., Aniline Dyes and Chemicals. The Queen's Own Rifles Bugle Band had its mess rooms in the top storey of the White building, and, through loss of instruments and furnishings, loses $5,000.

BARNARDO GIRL ON HER WAY HERE WAS LED ASTRAY

Special to The Examiner.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—During the trial this morning before Col. Denison, in the police court, of Frank Farnum, a night watchman att he Union Station, for seduction of Amy Kingston, a friendless Barnardo girl, it was charged by P. C. Chapman, of the Morality Department, that seduction of young girls at the Union Station, by "Redcaps" was a matter of common occurrence. He said there had been three cases brought to his notice in the past couple of weeks. Crown Attorney Corley said if the Station Master did not weed out his employees, the Crown authorities would do it. Amy Kingston was on her way to Peterborough when the alleged offence took place. Farnums trial was unfinished.

CURED WHEN DOCTORS FAILED

Mr. Felix Villeneuve, Clarence Creek, Ont., writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and inflammation of the bowels and liver trouble and doctors could not help me much. Could not sleep, water contained sediment, had frequent desire to urinate and often passed blood. Had dreadful headaches, one side almost paralyzed, and was deaf in left ear for eight years. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured me and I am very grateful. I want to thank you."

ON THE BAR

P. C. Newhall Took Charge of Man Who Tried to Get at Bartender.

P. C. Newhall received a call to one of the hotels this morning and arrived just in time to intercept Michael Murphy as he was climbing over the bar to take a pass at the man who had served up the stuff that exhilarates and incites to deeds beyond the normal. The man was taken in charge by the officer and threatened to treat him to what the bartender escaped getting. It was not to be, however, for the prisoner proved rather easy and in a short time was expressing his opinions from behind a barred door.

ONE DAY'S HEAVY LIST OF CATASTROPHES RECEIVED BY WIRE

SHOOTS A GIRL.

New York, Dec. 15. — After calmly waiting for several hours in front of the home of Elisabeth Schapire, at 107 Forsythe Street, Count Hymen Klatzo, an expatriated Russian nobleman, shot and probably mortally wounded the girl early to-day, when she came home with Max Goldberg, an artist of 722 East 9th street. Then Count Klatzo shot and probably fatally wounded Goldberg. He strolled off after lighting a cigarette, but was captured, and locked up. Jealousy was the cause of the shooting, it is said.

KILLED BY ELEVATOR

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—Wm. Garnett, caretaker in J. H. Ashdown's hardware store, was instantly killed while repairing the elevator this afternoon. He was underneath it, and by accident touched the wrong lever and the elevator descended suddenly, cutting the top off his head.

H. Rooswodik, a Galician labourer, employed on the C. P. R. bridge over the Souris River at Treesbank, Man., was killed today by being crushed by a lump of earth in the excavation.

SEVEN LOSE LIVES

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 14.—Seven persons lost their lives, seven others were injured, two probably fatally, and about fifty others had narrow escapes in a fire which destroyed an old wooden tenement and lodging-house at Third and Sycamore streets early to-day.

The fire started on the second floor, following the upsetting of a lamp during a quarrel between tenants. Firemen and policemen rescued some, but others were too frightened to heed the cries of the rescuers and threw themselves from the windows. Some of these were caught in blankets, but others fell to the sidewalk.

MINERS ARE ENTOMBED

Detroit, Dec. 14.—By a cave-in at the second level of a copper mine at Negaunee to-day four miners were buried in a living tomb without any possible hope of rescue. Comrades of the entombed men are working franctically in relays, but thousands of tons of rock and earth cut the victims off from light and air. The knocking of the imprisoned men can be faintly distinguished, but as the supply of air gradually diminishes the sounds become weaker. The bodies may never be recovered.

MANY KILLED IN MINE

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 14.—News was brought by the Monteagle, which arrived to-day from Japan of a colliery tragedy at Onours colliery, Fukueka prefecture, on Nov. 24, involving the loss of 202 lives. But 43 of the miners escaped after an explosion. The mine is one of the largest in southern Japan, employing 4,755 miners, with an output of 44,000 tons monthly. The escaped miners all told of stumbling over dead bodies. The mine management gave $100 to the family of each victim, and is providing food for the bereaved.

C. P. R. SECTIONMAN RUN OVER AND KILLED BY TRAIN

Herbert Hoohey of Burketon Victim of Horrible Fatality Yesterday Morning---Was Struck by the Tweed Local and Was Instantly Killed---Did Not Hear the Whistle.

Burketon, December 14.—Mr. Herbert Hoohey, a sectionman at Burketon, met with a sad and sudden death this morning, when he was instantly killed by being struck down and run over by the Tweed local.

It appears that the accident happened about 8.45 o'clock this morning about which time the Tweed local from the east is due. Hoohey was working about the east switch in the Burketon yards, when the train came whizzing in. It is not known just how the accident happened, but it is thought that Hoohey, who had his cap pulled down tight over his ears, did not hear the train coming, or that he had heard the whistle and mis-calculated the distance, and failed to step out o f the way quickly enough.

In the meantime the whistle announced that it was drawing near the station. According to the rules the whistle must be blown when a mile away from the station, but as a general rule if section men are employed on the track the engineer does not have the whistle blown to let them know that the train is coming, because they are always supposed to be on the lookout for all trains. The sectionmen are working all along the tracks and the whistle is not blown to warn them that a train is near them.

It is altogether likely that Hoohey did not hear the whistle of the train at the mile post because the wind was blowing hard in the opposite direction.

Hoohey was well known to the railway men and was regarded as a popular employe. He was married last spring, and was about twenty-five years o fage.

The badly bruised and mutilated body was picked up and taken to the station, but life was extinct.

Fowl For Christmas Is Being Bought Early On The Market

A fairly large Wednesday market was noted this morning with considerable display of poultry the feature. It has been remarked that the citizens are buying their Christmas turkeys earlier than usual this year. It is after the general plan of buying early as it is felt that it is safer and cheaper to buy now than to wait until the day before Christmas, when the supply may be scarce and the prices high. Next Wednesday will also be a special market day and, of course Saturday of this week. The wise mistress of the household prepares for Christmas in good time and according to the grocer's boy his loads these days consist mostly of currants, raisins, peel, nuts, and other ingredients of the Christmas pudding and cake.

NO SMALL POX PATIENTS TO BE CARED FOR

Isolation Hospital That is Being Proposed Will Not be Able to Take Care of Such Cases At All.

CITY IN SAME POSITION

There seems to be a general impression in the city that the erection of an Isolation hospital will solve the problem of what is to be done with smallpox patients. The idea of the citizens generally has been that smallpox patients would be looked after in the Isolation Hospital and that in the event of an epidemic the city would not be put to any extra expense or trouble in dealing with the outbreak.

This impression is a totally erroneous one.

Smallpox patients cannot be treated in the proposed isolation hospital.

To verify this point the Examiner called up Ald. Bradburn, chairman of the Property committee of the City Council this morning.

"Is it true that if an Isolation Hospital is built in Peterborough smallpox cases will not be looked after there," asked the Examiner.

"Certainly it is true,' replied the chairman of the Property committee. "The Isolation Hospital will only look after cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria."

"Then in the event of an outbreak of smallpox the city would be in the same position as it was during the past summer?"

"Yes, in exactly the same position."

This point has not been touched upon in the discussion of the subject and will perhaps be of interest to the public.

JURY RETURNED A VERDICT OF "NOT GUILTY" IN FIRST PERJURY CASE

Case of George W. Martin Charged With Swearing Falsely Heard in December Sessions This Morning---A Second Charge Against Him for the Same Offence Before the Court This Afternoon---The Evidence.

The case of George W. Martin, charged with having committed perjury in the police court on April 30th when he swore that he was not drunk and that he had no liquor on Friday April 29th, whereas in truth it is alleged that he had liquor on that day. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution and Mr. W. A. Henderson, of Toronto, appeared for the accused and pleaded not guilty. The following jurymen were chosen, Geo. Scott (foreman), Geo. Spence, K. Burgess, S. Adams, W. Myles, J. Lancashire, Wm. Guerin, C. Graystock, Jas. Johnston, John Simpson and Geo. Hardwicke.

The case went to the jury at five minutes to one, the court then adjourning until two o'clock.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., was the first witness called. He said that he was police magistrate of the city. He remembered the prisoner Martin being before him. He recognized the depositions taken in the case. Prisoner was duly sworn. Witness read the accused's evidence as given before him, wherein he denied having been drunk on the 28th of April.

P. C. Meharry was next called. He served prisoner with a summons on the 29th of April for having been drunk on the 28th. He saw him in the Crystal and he was the worse of liquor on the night of the 28th. P.C. Meharry swore that the prisoner was charged with being drunk on the 29th and not on the 28th as the magistrate had stated. He did not know whether there was more than one information or not.

Chief Rossel called, swore that the prisoner was served with a summons the same day as he was arrested for being drunk in the Crystal. In answer to Mr. Henderson, Chief Rossel could not say whether there were two sets of depositions, that is, one being for the 28th and one for the 29th.

P. C. Meagher, called, stated that he was at the police station when P. C. Meharry brought in the prisoner on April 29th. There was no doubt in his mind, but that the accused was drunk. He remembered the prisoner calling for a drink of water and also for a doctor.

P. C. McGinty called, stated that he had been on the police force for about twenty-five years. He had seen many drunks. There were three or four kinds, he remarked. He saw Martin come in on April 29th, with P. C. Meharry. He couldn't say whether the man was drunk or not.

For the defence the prisoner was first called. On the 15th of April last he stated, he was put on the 'Indian list'. On the 29th of the same month he was in the Crystal theatre in the evening. While ther he turned sick and had to go out. Going down the street on his way home he was arrested by P. C. Meharry. He had nothing to drink on either the 28th or 29th. He couldn't get it. To Crown Attorney Wood, he stated that he was found guilty of being drunk on the 29th, but not on the 28th.

Mr. Dixon Nicholls was called. He was working in the Crystal at the time. He saw the prisoner in the back seat at the theatre. He saw the prisoner with his eyes shut. He appeared sick, but did not strike the witness as being drunk.

Mrs. Martin, wife of the accused, said that she was not responsible for having him on the "Indian list." He was subject to bilious attacks.

Mr. Henderson in addressing the jury, pointed out that there was not one witness who had come forward who had said that he could smell liquor off the prisoner. There was no evidence of boisterous or quarrelsome behaviour on that night, like what usually characterizes a drunken man. It was sworn that he was staggering, but there was sufficient proof that he was sick, which could easily have caused the staggering. The constable might have unfortunately made a mistake.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood on the other hand pointed out that if he had been sick he could have rationally explained it to the officer. The prisoners wife could attribute no other reason for his staggering.

His Honour in his charge to the jury, explained the nature of perjury, and reviewed the circumstances of this particular case.

Referring to the evidence of the policeman, His Honour said that there were remarks made as to its credibility. He believed that people owed a debt of gratitude to the policemen for the able manner in which they guarded the homes and enforced the law. His Honour impressed upon the jury the points on which they should divide the prisoner's guilt.

When the court resumed at 2 o'clock the jury returned to their places.

"Is the prisoner guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty" Foreman W. Myles replied.

His Honour then dismissed the jurors and the second charge against Martin for having sworn falsely in police court on July 9th, was commenced.

THE BOARD OF TRADE ENDORSES FRANCHISE TO POWER COMPANY

LIGHT & POWER CO. AGREEMENT

That after hearing the arguments in connection with the Light and Power Company By-law, it is the opinion of this meeting, that, as the interests of the city are safeguarded in the preparation of the bill by the Council, this Board approves of the conditions of the By-law, and recommends it to the ratepayers as a measure that should be passed.—Carried.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL BY-LAW

That the meeting approves of the b-law for building an Isolation Hospital in Peterborough.—Carried.

WARD SYSTEM BY-LAW

That in the opinion of this meeting it would not be advisable to return to the old Ward system of electing aldermen.—Carried.

These three resolutions give in tabloid form the results of the Board of Trade meeting held in the Council chamber last evening for the purpose of discussing the bylaws that are to come before the ratepayers at the municipal elections on January 3rd. There was a representative attendance present and the meeting was an enthusiastic one. President Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie was in the chair and the minutes were taken by the secretary, Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine. As will be seen the meeting unanimously approved of the by-law giving the Peterborough Light and Power Company a thirty year pole franchise. This was the most important subject to come before the meeting and it was discussed thoroughly by speakers who had studied the measure with success. The meeting was united in believing the agreement to be in the best interests of the city.

The Isolation Hospital scheme met with unqualified approval and there was not a dissenting voice against the resolution, which was carried in this connection.

The by-law proposing a return to the Ward system on the other hand met with generous opposition. In fact the members of the Board declared strongly against the measure and a resolution to that effect was carried.

The other by-law to come on January 3, the Local Option by-law, was tabooed and hence there was no discussion on this measure.

A communication was read from the Hamilton Board of Trade asking the co-operation of the local board in endorsing the resolution passed by them in regard to fighting combines. On motion of Mr. Poussette, seconded by Mr. Peck, the letter was received and tabled.

President Gillespie in opening the discussion, stated that the first by-law that was slated to be taken up was that in connection with the thirty year pole franchise to the Peterborough Light and Power Company. He called upon Mr. J. H. Larmonth, of the Peterborough Light and Power Company to explain the agreement.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth.

Mr. Larmonth stated that it was a by-law to give the Peterborough Light and Power Company right to place poles and wires on the streets for thirty years. The matter had been taken up with the Council and an agreement come to which had been embodied in the agreement. The city got several rights by the by-law which had been in dispute previous to this occasion and the franchise was not an exclusive one. It did not prevent the city from doing business with other companies or going into business on its own account.

"We believe this by-law is a good thing for the city as well as for the company," said Mr. Larmonth. Our object in asking for this franchise is to enable us to raise funds to make extensions to our business in Peter-

ARRESTED A FOURTH ONE

John Maunder of Lindsay Taken Into Custody Yesterday Afternoon on Perjury Charge in Connection With Recent Liquor Case.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

The fourth arrest made on a charge of Perjury in connection with the case against George N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel for the illicit sale of liquor took place yesterday afternoon shortly after four o'clock when Police Constables, Newhall and Meharry took into custody John Maunder of Lindsay when he was returning from the Court House. He was a witness for the defence and gave his evidence last Thursday. He came to the city yestreday to attend the December Sessions of the County Court.

At a special sitting of the police court last night at 8 o'clock, the prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate Dumble, charged with having sworn that he did not go for a walk with Geo. N. Graham on the night of Sunday, November the twenty-first, whereas in truth he did. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused but did not elect nor

After hearing the evidence of Police Constables Newnall, Meharry and Adams, His Worship committed the defendant for trial. He was admitted to bail of $500 in two sureties of $250 each.

Before the Magistrate had formally committed the prisoner, his counsel argued that he should not be sent up for trial. He had sworn that he had not gone for a walk that night but that it was the previous evening. Nearly a month had elapsed and it being a very immaterial thing, a man might easily forget it. No jury, he said would convict a man for that. The Chief was sending u pa bunch of lame cases.

The Magistrate pointed out that if the part referring to the "walk" was the only thing but his whole evidence was a complete denial of the very strong statements of the witnesses for the prosecution.

"But we all know that policeman's evidence is looked up with a certain amount of suspicion," Mr. Gordon stated.

"It is on the evidence of detectives and policemen that most convictions are made," the Magistrate replied.

"I would like to ask the learned Crown Attorney, 'how many charges of Perjury he has ever been successful in proving'"? Mr. Gordon asked.

"We're not going back. We're looking forward," the Crown Attorney answered.

"Well I am not through with the police yet. I intend taking action against them," Mr. Gordon continued.

"More blowing," broke in the Chief.

"Are you a public prosecutor?" the Crown Attorney asked the counsel for the defence.

"No, but I think there ought to be a Public prosecutor for the police," was the quick retort.

THE VOICE OF THE VICTOR

Music is a language which expresses thought and emotion. Unless one knows its vocabulary and syntax he is as much at a loss to discern what the composer is driving as he would be listening to a Greek tragedy.

Music is among the things which make life worth living, just as pictures are, and noble architecture. By proper education it would be easy to teach the public to understand and enjoy good music as it is to create the taste for good books.

The Victor has made it possible for music to make a genuine appeal to a far greater audience than it could a generation ago.

The Melba records are among the gems of the Victor Red Seal list, and her presence in America has stimulated a brisk demand for these beautiful records.

Caruso's "Valse Lente," Record No. 88115, is one of the great tenor's best numbers. The words of this beautiful waltz song are Mr. Caruso's own composition.

The J. M. Green Music Co., L'td, are sole representatives for Victor machines and records for this district. An invitation is extended to you to hear these machines and records. 3d-139

THE MAYORALTY.

The announcement that Mr. W. G. Morrow consents to being put into nomination for the Mayoralty, brings into the field a candidate who, should meet the hearty support of the electors, and make an excellent Mayor. Mr. Morrow has several points in his favour. While he is young in years, which means enterprise and energy, he has sound judgment, has had a thorough business training, is in close touch with financial affairs, and has also a considerable experience at the council board, having satisfactorily filled during his term as councillor the important position of chairman of the Finance Committee. His business training, added to this experience, equip him to make a most efficient executive officer in the matter of finances. His well known prudence and carefulness in financial matters, will make him a safe presiding officer and should insure the economical management of our financial interests, and justify a very reasonable expectation of receiving full value for any expenditure made in the interests of the city. He has good connections and is closely in touch with large influences in the work of individual development. The citizens can practically all welcome Mr. Morrow's candidature, with an excellent assurance that in choosing him as the city's chief Magistrate for 1910, the good, careful, and at the same time, progressive and satisfactory government of the city is to be expected from his term of office.

PARLIAMENTARY FRIVOLITY.

The Dominion parliament, as the representative body of 7,184,000 Canadians, controlling an annual revenue and expenditure of, respectively about one hundred million dollars, is an important, and should be, a dignified body seriously intent upon the transaction of public business in a business way. The courtesy and sense of fitness that mark civilized human intercourse, should be especially in evidence in a parliament, supposed to be composed of the select element of our public men. While the Conservative Opposition show considerable ability for criticism and oratory, the general tone and demeanour outside an exceptional half dozen, savours of, and harks back to the village or township council standard of deportment of years ago. While Opposition members are within their rights in showing disrespect to the Government side of the House, to ministers, and to Mr. Speaker, they degrade, and show disrespect to, themselves by exercising such rights. Independence is commendable as an attitude of character, but when its expression becomes tantamount to defiance of social convention, and the dignity of debate, it can claim kinship to boorishness. Flippant and frivolous rejoinder may be excusable on occasion, but studied frivolity, straining after a joke, by using the machinery and privileges of Parliament to perpetrate laborious humourisms, is getting beyond the bounds. An example came to the surface on Monday. A couple of sessions ago the Conservative Opposition could talk little but "graft," which they declared was sapping the underpinning of the state. But this session they have come to regard the matter of graft, as the electors regarded their campaign of that ilk, in the last parliament, and in the last general elections, as a joke. Mr. Glen Lyon Campbell, of Dauphin, Manitoba, is the only wild and woolly Westerner in the House, the only cowboy—at least the only member who wears a genuine cowboy hat, topping his six feet of somewhat lanky, if athletic, manhood. On Monday, Mr. Campbell, under a question of privilege, worked off his agricultural joke—truly agricultural in a double sense. He cited a newspaper which presumed to combat his (Mr. Campbell's) criticism of the Department and Minister of Agriculture, and which asserted that the Department of Agriculture had never been criticised for jobbing of any kind. Thereupon Mr. Campbell swung his lariat and lassoed his joke—"Now, I will make the charge against the Minister of Agriculture that there is no department in the Government, where, in certain seasons so much grafting exists as in his department." Mr. Campbell's back bench colleagues contributed the expected guffaw and desk-pounding, the dignity of parliamentary debate was intensified, the public interests vastly promoted, and the valuable time of the House profitably used. The average duration of a parliamentary session is about four months, and the cost on the basis of last session about $1,500,000. That is, about $375,000 per month, of 24 working days, $15,600 per day, $600 per hour, and $10 per minute; so that, Mr. Campbell's little joke, which took about ten minutes to work off cost the country a round hundred dollars, as against its possible actual value at a recklessly liberal appraisement, of thirty cents.

Prevent and Relieve Headache

"It gives me great pleasure to be able to refer to Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills as the best remedy we have yet had in our house for the prevention and cure of headache. My wife who has been a constant sufferer for a number of years with above complaint joins me in the hope that they may fall into the hands of all sufferers."

JOHN BUSH,
Watervleit, Me.

Used Them Four Years.

"Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are the best I ever tried for the relief of headache. I have used them for nearly four years and they never fail to give me relief. I have tried many other remedies, but have never found any better."

JOSEPH FRANKOWICK,
854 Trombly Av., Detroit, Mich.

There is no remedy that will more quickly relieve any form of headache than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

The best feature of this remarkable remedy is the fact that it does not derange the stomach or leave any disagreeable aftereffects.

Druggists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

Steel magnates have not necessarily steelly hearts; at least, all have not. Recently in Pittsburg a banquet was tendered to Mr. Henry Phipps, the new steel magnate. When the guest of honour learned that the dinner was to cost $100 a plate, he informed the chairman that he would prefer that his entertainment should take a less costly form ,and he would be pleased to see the difference between the costly proposal, the banquet a Lucullus, and a dinner of moderate price, go to relief of homeless, starving persons. The proposal of such a lavish devotion of money to mere vulgar display is prima facie evidence that the money of the steel people comes easily, from the public who have to contribute through the operation of the trust, its immoderate and immense profits. Luxurious display, of the kind indicated, was the beginning of the end of the collapse of the Roman empire, which fell from the might of its own rottenness. The emasculating effect of luxurious habits, like the habits themselves, spread from the few to many, who are possibly, feeble imitators, but imitators who in their degree suffer as much in the way of physical and moral deterioration as their more wealthy patterns. The incident of the refusal of the costly banquet is a tribute to the good sense, good taste and good heart of Mr. Phipps, especially in respect of his suggestion to expend the surplus in feeding the hungry and homeless, is vastly to his credit as well as courage. His natural goodness of heart may have been accentuated by the influence of the Christmas spirit which opens and expands all hearts not too deeply crusted with selfishness. In no way can we show the true spirit of the Christmas season so truly as in practising the unselfish thoughtfulness that marked the life and works of the Divine founder of Christmas. The enjoyment of the Christmas gladness and cheer that centres in or revolves around self represents mere sensuous indulgence, far removed in its animal gratification from the moral and spiritual delight which come from thought for and action for others. No man liveth unto himself.

THE LIGHT AND POWER BY-LAW

Of late Peterborough has shown unusual interest in the subject of acquirement by the city of new industrial concerns. As has been the case in the past there is a tendency to forget that we also owe something to existing enterprises which have, in many cases, become a part of our industrial equipment, by their own enterprise and without any particular material assistance, and, in, perhaps, some instances, without much moral encouragement. The tendency is to welcome new industries, with open arms, untried concerns, of possibly problematical usefulness in the promotion of the city's industrial importance.

The application of the Peterborough Light and Power Company for a renewal of franchise of thirty years' duration is one that commends itself to the approval of the people on several grounds. First, the rights of the people are generally safeguarded, and in a way to remove the usual objections to long-term civic franchises to corporations. There is no monopoly possible, and above all, nothing to prevent the city at any time adopting the policy of municipal lighting.

As to the period, its length is justified by considerations that will appeal to all those who have any knowledge or experience of the conditions necessary for providing funds for the establishment or extension of large enterprises. A company can command much more favourable and profitable terms on long date than on short date bonds as securities, because investors give preference to securities that have a long currency as obviating the necessity of re-investment with the attendant trouble and expense and the possible idleness of money in the interval. This consideration is of importance to the company concerned in the present application. With a thirty years franchise, the Light and Power Company can have a feeling of permanence and security, and can with greater confidence and heartiness provide for greater improvements and extensions that will necessarily require additional capital. The more easily this is obtained and the better the terms the better the prospects of the company for success, and the better the public will be served.

Therefore, the people in according the thirty years' franchise, will be serving their own interests in regard to effectiveness, continuity and improvement of service, and be relieved of all danger of oppressive rates which might be imposed in the case of a long term monopoly. No other company is prevented obtaining a similar franchise, and there is nothing to prevent the city doing its own electric lighting, which it would have been in a position to do if the people last January had voted for the by-law providing for the installing of the necessary preliminary work and machinery in connection with the building of the new waterworks dam, to utilise the surplus power. If, in this matter, the people should repent and wish to have the city do its own lighting, there is nothing in the Light and Power franchise by-law to prevent it; and, if the people wish, at any time during the thirty years' period to give a similar franchise to any other Company, they are at liberty to do so.

This they will not probably desire to do, for there is every likelihood that the present company will do the right thing by the city, as they will be bound in their own interest to do. There will be no increase of rates, but reduced rates offered by the Company are subject to re-adjustment every five years. They cannot be increased and they stand to be decreased. Danger of competition will insure this and more extended operations with greater profit will make a reduction of rates more easily possible and more probable.

In addition to conceding an additional five per cent. discount on light bills, the company undertakes a most important matter in the interests of the city. It undertakes, after five years, to place its wires underground in the business districts. When we consider what a nuisance, and even menace, the complicated net work of overhead wires, are, this concession becomes one of the most important conditions of the franchise. It should have a large influence upon the attitude of the ratepayers to the by-law, especially in connection with the further concession—that in the event of the city not renewing the street lighting contract with the company the use of its poles, those remaining outside the business districts for street lighting will be permitted to the city. In this connection, the willingness of the Company to pay increased pole rental is another element in its favour.

On the whole the proposals involved in the by-law seem to be distinctly in the interests of the city. Not only for the specific reasons suggested, but because it will be in the interests of the Company, and thus permit it to give a service, even more acceptable than it has done in the past. This service has been a good one in itself, and it is to be remembered, too, that we owe to the enterprise of the Company the resurrection of the street railway, whose death and burial were a deep reproach to the enterprise and progressive spirit of the city.

THE TRUTH ALWAYS

"When you are in doubt tell the truth." It was an experienced old diplomat who said this to a beginner in the work. It may pass in some things, but not in business. Fraud and deception are often profitable so long as concealed; yet detection is certain sooner or later; then comes the smash-up and the punishment. The best and safest way is to tell the truth all the time. Thus you make friends that stick by you, and a reputation that is always worth twenty shillings to the pound everywhere your goods are offered for sale. We are able modestly to affirm, that it is on this basis that the world wide popularity of rests. The people have discovered that this medicine is exactly what it is said to be, and that it does what we have always declared it will do. Its nature also has been frankly made known. It is palatable as honey, and contains all the creative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh Cod Livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. A combination of supreme excellence and medicinal merit. Nothing has been so successful in Anemia, Scrofula, Bronchitis, Influenza, Loss of Flesh, Wasting Diseases, Weakness and Low Nervous Tone, and complaints caused by Impure Blood. Dr. F——— of Canada, says: "I have used it in cases where cod liver oil was indicated, but could not be taken by the patient, and the results following were very gratifying." It is effective from the first dose and agrees with the most sensitive and nervous stomachs. It cannot deceive or disappoint you, and comes to the rescue of those who have received no benefit from any other treatment. "Do not accept a substitute." Sold by all chemists everywhere throughout the world.

UNCLE WALT---THE POET PHILOSOPHER

JAUNTING ALONG

This life is just a little jaunt across a little plain; we're reaching for the things we want, and often reach in vain. The things we want are sordid things, and made of sounding brass; we do not hear the bird that sings, nor mark the growing grass; we miss the splendour of the night, the glory of the dawn; for we are dreaming of the fight that every day brings on. The useless fight for useless dross, the war of hands and brains; and O, how heavy is our loss—how futile are ourgains! This life is but a little jaunt across a little sphere; there's nothing in the path to daunt, or bring a sigh or tear; there's nothing there to blanch the cheek, or fill the heart with care, if we would only cease to seek for trouble in its lair. If we would only look around upon the good in life! But evermore, with hawk and hound, we search the woods for strife!

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

Hard Knocks for Bar—Orillia is Better Off Under Local Option—Testimony of Leading Business Men and Others Given at a Public Meeting—Stories About Loss of Trade Denied---Business Has Improved.

(Special Despatch to the Globe.)

Orillia, Dec. 13.—In the face of a heavy rain and driving sleet, between five hundred and six hundred electors assembled in the Opera House this evening, when the first meeting in the local option campaign was held. Mr. John C. Miller occupied the chair, and more than a score of the town's prominent business and professional men and manufacturers were with him on the platform.

Mr. J. E. Dickson, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, gave it as the result of forty years' observation that the bar had no justification for its existence.

Mr. D. J. McPhee, formerly agent of the Rama Indian Reservation, and now prominent in life insurance circles, made a splendid speech in favour of local option. He gave many facts that came under his own observation, and quoted statistics from Maine, where he had recently spent two months.

Mayor Vair, of Barrie, wholesale produce merchant, dispelled the idea that trade from the neighbouring townships, which foremerly came to Orillia, was now going to Barrie.

Mr. Hunter, also of Barrie, dealer in clothing and men's furnishings, corroborated Mayor Vair's statement, and gave instances showing that on the contrary farmers addicted to drink were now coming to Orillia in order to be away from temptation.

Mr. E. Long, President of the Long Manufacturing Co., Orillia, was an ardent supporter of local option, because it kept his men sober and better able to do a day's work. The difference between the bar system and under local option was most marked.

Mr. M. B. Tudhope was opposed to local option when the vote was last taken because he did not believe the law could be enforced. It had been well enforced, as some know to their sorrow, and he was now prepared to give the measure his hearty support.

Mr. Herb. Caswell, interested in the lumber business, told of what the bar and no bar did for young men.

Mr. Manning, a commercial traveller, whose home is in Owen Sound, spoke of the conditions there, and gave instances of the increase in business as a direct result of local option.

Mr. E. B. Eaton, of J. R. Eaton & Sons, sash and door manufacturers, said his firm's trade in Orillia and surrounding country had totalled more in the last two years under no license than in the previous four years, and there had been no bad debts.

Other speakers were: Ex-Mayor C. J. Miller, Councillors Frost and Church, ex-Deputy Reeve Cramp, Mr. D. J. Gibson, Mr. M. Beard, Mr. Jas. Brignall, and Mr. W. O. Black. The meeting was orderly and enthusiastic throughout, and was a fair indication of the fact that public sentiment in Orillia is overwhelmingly in favour of local option.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM MR. LASTAR

This letter and any others that may follow, under the signature of Mr. Lastar, are indepenedent of any other party or parties, and are paid for by him for their insertion.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

In connection with the local option campaign, the Rev. Mr. Potter announced last Sunday at he meeting that they would have a speaker from Georgia to answer any questions that would be put to him. In view of this, I tried to arrange, through a responsible man with Mr. Potter so as to prevent any further mistakes, that I would be willing to pay half the expense of the Opera House, and that we should have a joint meeting and discuss on the open platform, the best way to prevent drunkenness in Peterborough. The answer was that they would not do it, and would not let me ask any questions. They then announced in their evening paper that if any one wanted to ask any questions they should bring them to some place on Simcoe street before six o'clock in the evening. Now that is the funniest way of getting out of it tha I have ever seen or heard tell of. They expect the opposition to ask any questions three hous before the speaker speaks. How could anybody know what the speaker will speak on unless he is a mind reader; and then he would at least have to see him to read his mind. And as I am no mind reader, I said I could not do it. Questions in a discussion of this kind, mostly depend on what the speaker is dealing with. But unfortunately before the meeting started, they announced that the Hon. Sec. born Wright was not there, and they would not be able to answer any questions. If you cannot stand any reasonable questions, what kind of leaders are you. Now naturally the citizens of Peterborough would know best what was for the good of Peterborough, without getting speakers from thousands of miles from here, who do not know, and some of them possibly never heard of Peterborough before, to tell you what would be good for Peterborough, and to answer any questions that might be laid before them. Now surely you are making a laughing stock out of your whole campaign. Just think of it, five men, and sometimes ten, sitting on the platform, who are certainly credited with some sense, and then could not answer a few simple questions. I guess they felt they could not answer any straight questions, and that is the way they are apartnely trying to get out of it. Surely it is time to stop that kind of business.

Now, I notice at the second meeting, that both speakers began to lose their confidence in passing local option here so they are encouraging you, and telling you, that even if you don't win this time, you will surely win in three years from now. Now let me tell you in all sincerity, and without any hard feelings against any one, that it is a pity that so much money should be spent in such a campaign; where there is no foundation. No matter how good your intentions be, you are certainly wrong in trying local option here. Why not be reasonable, and let us get together, and work together without any difference of religion, or nationality. None of the citizens like to see drunkards; nor misery through drunkenness. It should not make any difference, if it is a negro who is trying to do right, and succeeds in it for the benefit of humanity ;why should we not take the same example; especially here in the case of drunkenness in Peterborough. Why should we take example from towns where through drunkenness; they were not safe with their lives nor property. We have here an example that has been experimented with, and which has succeeded here in Peterborough, where, one noble priest, by hard work certainly succeeded in saving by peaceful means, drunkards. Men that we all know, who were on the verge of ruin and destruction and were saved and made respectable men. And men who are not only tnot taking any liquor themselves, but are not bringing any home to tempt their wives and children. (Those children for whose sake you are appealing to the people to save). Surely this is work to be considered. They have not only saved one or two men; but from a population of 4,000 where there is 1,500 men, they have been able to rbing under control and moralise 1,000 men. Why should not the other seventeen clergymen of all the other churches that we have here in the city, where each one's congregation would not average over 800 people, and out of that about 300 men, if they were to try half as hard as the former minister has done, would succeed much better by going the same way, than by trying to bring local option here, and through this means taking away honest means of making a living for about 230 persons, who are employed by them, and where there are about 230 wives and children depending indirectly on them. Now some of you are prejudiced and will say, "Oh, they are Catholics, and we do not care what they have done." Let me tell you whoever thinks this way, is wrong. We are all neighbours, and it does not matter in what way people worship their Lord, so long as they believe in the Supreme Being, they are certainly good men; and we certainly should not be prejudiced against each other on account of religion. Now I appeal to all of you, in all sincerity. Think of it, without any hard feelings, and look at both sides, and you will find it is worth considering. That it is better that we should all work together for the benefit of our city. And united we will succeed: but divided we will only bring more dissatisfaction and no benefit to any one.

Yours truly,

B. LASTAR.

P.S.—My questions last night, although they were not answered, were as follows:—

1. Will you agree with me, that by passing local option, there will still be an opening for those men who want o get liquor, and to have it in their homes, in bottles or barrels?

2. If you could find a way, that would not only prevent men from going to the bar, but also to keep them from taking it to their homes, would you do it?

3. Do you think that seventeen ministers and clergymen would not be able to do, and have the influence over the members of their congregations, that amount to about 800 each, and out of that about 300 men, what one clergyman has succeeded in doing, out of a population of 4,000, including 1,500 men in ten years. Not only to prevent men from going to the open bar, but to prevent them from taking intoxicating liqitors to their homes, and tempting their wives and children with it.

4 Do you think that at the present time under the license law, that we are in such a state that our streets are hideous and lives and property in danger, as you say it was before local option came into force in Owen Sound.

5. Are we, at the present time, under the licence law, inferior to Owen Sound, since they have local option, there? Or, are we inferior to any other town or state in the Dominion of Canada, where they have local option?

6. Do you think under the present law, that we have gone behind financially or in population, more than any other town in the Dominion of Canada, where they have local option?

I might say, that they are welcome to answer these questions at any time; through the press, or any other way they may see fit.

MARVELLOUS HEALING POWERS

The most severe test to which a healing ointment is ever put is the cure of eczema. So successful has Dr. Chase's Ointment proven in the cure of torturing itching eczema that many people refer to its effects as magical and marvellous. After the first few applications it positively stops the dreadful itching and then gradually and naturally heals up the sores.

WERE MARRIED IN CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford, Dec. 15.—The wedding took place at 12.30 o'clock to-day of Miss May Simpson, daughter of Mr. L. Simpson, of Campbellford, to Mr. Frederick C. Jewitt, of the staff of the Seymour Light and Power Company, whose home is in New Brunswick. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church at the home of the bride's father, in the presence of a large number of invited guests, including many from out of town.

Miss Grace Crooks, of Hamilton, was bridesmaid, while the groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. J. Jewitt. The wedding march was played by Miss Nellie Jeffreys, of Toronto.

The bride's gown was a handsome one of Battenburg work over satin.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewitt left on a wedding trip to Montreal.

Mr. T. H. Hooper, of Peterborough, was the caterer for the recherche wedding dejeuner that was served.

ARE YOU AILING

WEAK AND NERVOUS

To-day the common complaint with weak men and women is lack of kidney vitality. Here you have the cause of your ill-health.

Wouldn't it be wise to use a time-tested remedy like Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they cure that "ailing" feeling in one night. Next morning you feel like new—bright, fresh, and happy. Appetite improves, dull, sallow color grows ruddy and clear, proving that great good is being done by this scientific medicine.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills A Sure Cure

No Appetite—Bad Color—General Debility.

"I was run down," writes Mr. Albert E. Dixon, of Fairhaven P. O. "My color was dull, and appetite was poor, and I constantly suffered from rheumatism.

"I found it hard to sleep and felt worn out and tired all the time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills made an instant change. I grew strong, my blood was restored, rheum. then vanished. To-day I am vigorous, cheery, and healthy in every respect."

Take Dr Hamilton's Pills when you're well, when you're sick, whenever you think a purifying tonic will do you good. Sold everywhere in yellow boxes, 25c each, or five for $1.00. Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

A SPLENDID REPORT

Annual Meeting of the Westwood Cheese Factory.

The annual meeting of the patrons of Westwood cheese factory was held in the town hall, Westwood, Wednesday, Dec. 1st, 1909. There was a large attendance. The speakers present were Messrs. Gillespie, Barr and Burgess, who gave interesting addresses on taking care of milk, cool curing, cow testing, etc.

The following is a report of the business done at this factory during the season. The amount of milk delivered at the factory was 2,100,731 lbs. or a little over 700 standards from which was made 189,202 lbs. of cheese, being an average of 11.1 lbs. of milk per lb. of cheese. The amount received from sales of chese was $21,737.83, being an average of 11.49c. per lb. The interest received on this sum was $134.42 and the value of the whey at 85c. per standard was $595.20, making a total value of the business of the season $22,467.45. The total value of the milk per standard was $32.09 and the value to the patrons after paying all expenses was $26.30.

The four patrons sending the greatest amount of milk were Fred Warner, 91,796 lbs.; J. C. Brackenridge 70,141 lbs.; J. J. Breckenridge, 55,091 lbs; Lewis Beavis, 53,863 lbs, and the average for each of the 70 patrons was a little over 10 standards.

A meeting of the patrons of this factory will be held at Westwood on Saturday, at 2 p.m., Jan. 8th, 1910, for the purpose of selling the whey for next season and transacting other business unfinished at the annual meeting. J. J. Breckenridge, Sec.

MARMORA TEAM WANTS A GAME

The Secretary of the Peterborough O. H. A. club has received the following letter:

Peterborough Junior O. H. A. Club.

Gentlemen,—The Marmora Hockey boys would like to arrange home and home games with your team.

If you had an open date on Dec. 25th, we would like to go to Peterborough and have you down here on Jan. 1st.

We will go to Peterborough and give you the return game whenever you want it, and I think $25.00 is about the expenses.

If you want our team to go to Peterborough on Dec. 25th, and will give us $25.00 let me know by return mail or as soon as possible.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am

Yours very truly,
THOS. B. MOFFATT.

Marmora, Ont., Dec. 14, 1909.

P. S.—If your junior O. H. A. team would not handle the game on Dec. 25th, perhaps some other club could, so please hand to some one whom it would interest, if not you.

FOWL SUPPER A SUCCESS

Entertainment at Knox Church Last Evening Was Attended by Large Crowd.

The fowl supper and entertainment under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Knox Church last evening was a most gratifying success, being featured by a very large attendance and a programme of unusual interest and enjoyment. Supper was served by the ladies between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock, and during that period some six hundred people partook of the many good things that had been provided for the occasion. The tables were tastefully arranged, and presented a very attractive appearance.

Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox church, acted as chairman during the entertainment that followed the supper.

The Charlotte Street Orchestra was present for the first time in Knox Church and rendered some very acceptable music.

Mr. Henry Simpson of Toronto, the architect for the new Knox Church, who is an entertainer of note, was present and assisted in the programme by manifesting wonderful powers as a ventriloquist.

Rev. R. Pogue, of St. Paul's church and Rev. J. R. Webb, of the Murray Street Baptist church, entertained the audience with bright speeches.

Mr. R. J. Winch also gave an acceptable address, followed by a recitation that was well received.

Mr. Frank Clarke and Mr. John Johns, in instrumental numbers, and recitations, respectively, were valuable factors in the success of the evening.

The supply of dainties in the candy booth was practically exhausted before the entertainment drew to a close and the post cards, showing the new church, were also much in demand.

Ends Indigestion In A Few Moments

Gas, Heartburn, Headache and All Misery in Stomach Vanishes.

Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves, without the slightest fear of Indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, belching, Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches from stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead, or other disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no Indigestion or Sleepless nights or Headache or Stomach misery all the next day; and, besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Pape's Diapepsin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odours from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house.

Don't forget the Bon-bon Social at Park Street Baptist Church, Thursday Evening. A Christmas—Box of choice candies for all who come. Admission 25c. A high-class concert will be given. Chairman; Hon. J.R. Stratton, M.P. 3d-13

ADDRESSED LARGE GATHERING ON THE SUBJECT OF LOCAL OPTION

Dr. Pidgeon of New Westminster, B. C., Spoke at Opera House Last Evening---Hon. Seaborn Wright Was Unable to be Present--An Enthusiastic Meeting.

Although Honourable Seaborn Wright, Governor of the State of Georgia, who was to have lectured on "the regulation of the liquor traffic" at the Grand Opera House last evening, was unable to be present, the six hundred or more people in attendance listened to an able address on the local option question by Rev. Mr. Pidgeon, of New Westminster, B.C., and formerly pastor of a West Toronto Presbyterian church, who spoke particularly in regard to the effect of local option on that place.

Mr. Wright's absence was due to a mistake made by the field secretary, who failed to report Mr. Wright's appointments to the alliance office. "It appears that last night Governor Wright spoke at Shelburne. The chair at last night's gathering was occupied by Mr. Richard Lees, who in a few introductory remarks, explained that Mr. Wright was not present but that Dr. Pidgeon would speak to them. The usual hymns were sung in opening, the Opera House orchestra playing the accompaniments, after which prayer was said by Rev. Mr. Riddiford.

Dr. Pidgeon, in commencing stated that it was his purpose in his address to give his own testimony and experience, as to what he had seen in places where local option was in force. The local option movement here was only part of a much greater one that was on foot throughout the Anglo-Saxon world. It was a great moral quickening. The speaker referred to States where governors and judges had taken a stand against legalized vice. This and the Lords' Day Act, and the law enforcement in Canada all went to show that a new moral life had begun. State after state was falling into line and was carrying local option. Since January first, statistics showed that the saloons were being closed at the rate of forty per day. In Canada much progress was being made. Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia were nearly altogether local option and in Quebec it was in force in 664 municipalities out of 1005. In Ontario 334 of 800, supported it, and in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia the movement was gaining ground. These figures proved that public conviction was against the liquor traffic. Local option people recognized their responsibility for the things that they allowed.

Rev. Mr. Pidgeon referred to the township in Quebec where he was born and where local option was in force. A Roman Catholic priest had started the movement, and the law was now violated but little when one considered the poor means the government provided to enforce it. The by-law cut off the legal trade and the larger part of the illegal. Continuing he told of several places that had benefitted by the by-law. It was said that it injured business, but merchants who had honestly opposed it on polling day in West Toronto, stated that they never experienced before such prosperity as they had enjoyed after its adoption. When the temptation was gone the liquor traffic would go. It decreased crime and uplifted the moral tone of a place. In reference to the dodger circulated as to conditions in Owen Sound the speaker asked his hearers to hear both sides of the story before forming an opinion.

Mr. B. Lastar's entrance to the opera house just before the meeting started, was a signal for applause, and he was given a most enthusiastic reception. It was explained by the chairman that Mr. Lastar's questions would be answered on another occasion.

THE FIRST DUTY OF THE LAIRDS OF DUNOON

As everyone who has met him knows, Harry Lauder is a thrifty sort of a Scotchman. Not stingy or anything in that line, but simply shrewd, wise as to the dollars and dimes, or pounds or shillings, and never overlooking a good investment. Not long ago, as M. Lauder proudly announced to all his friends, he bought a fine old Scottish estate near Dunnoon, and thus became a real Laird after years of saving and planning. Every Scot hopes and dreams that he will some day be a Laird, and the truest proof of Lauder's Caledonian blood is shown in the eagerness with which he bought the estate, and the pride with which he assumed his new dignities.

Lauder's thrifty soul, however, was doomed to a joyous jar before he had long been a Laird of Dunoon. A day or so after he had acquired the old place, he summoned one of the tenants, a grey old cotter, and questioned him as to the lives and habits of the old Lairds.

"Ye wull ken, Sanday mon," said Harry, "that I weesh ta follow a' the auld customs o' the Lairds o' Dunoon ta gie a grand supper ta a' the lads an' lassies o' the estate. When wull it please ye ta haud the first one?"

"As ye say in America," says Harry, ruefully, "I waur the goat." The festival was duly held, and Mr. Lauder's tenantry say that the new Laird fed them well, but Harry has been careful since about inquiring as to the ancient customs.

borough. The business here has grown rapidly and we must make improvements in order to keep up with the increase. Mr. Larmonth referred the meeting to the pamphlet which the company had issued, giving in concise terms the conditions of the by-law.

The Agreement.

The summary may be given here in order to render the discussion on the by-law more intelligible to the reader. It is as follows:

Clause 1.—The Company agrees to remove, before June 1st, 1910, all surplus poles from George Street, and to rebuild the pole line on this street, so that all poles will be flush with the curb.

Clause 2.—The Company agrees to do all future work under the supervision of the City Engineer, or someone else appointed by the Council to look after the work.

Clause 3.—The Company agrees in future not to place any poles on the street without the written consent of the City Engineer.

Clause 4.—The Company agrees in future to change the location of any poles when requested to do so by the City Engineer, provided they are not asked to move more than 5 per cent. of the total number in any one year.

Clause 5.—The Company agrees to allow the City to use their poles if the City wishes to do its own street lighting after the present contract expires, and also to use the Company's poles to carry fire alarm or other such wires.

Clause 6.—The Company agrees to allow other companies the use of their poles by paying a rental, to be fixed by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

Clause 7.—The Company agrees to put their wires underground in the business section of the City after Jan. 1st, 1914, if the City Council wishes them to do so, and also as soon as the City has a population of 30,000 the Company will put their wires underground whenever ordered to do so by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

Clause 8.—The Company agrees to use only the most modern appliances and apparatus and to hold the City free from any damages caused by the fact that they have their poles and wires on the streets.

Clause 9.—The Company agrees that after its present contract with the City expires it will pay a pole rental of $1.00 each, for the first two hundred poles, and 50c. each for all poles above two hundred, but not to pay less than $400.00 a year.

Clause 10.—The Company agrees, at the end of the thirty years, to remove all its poles and wires from the streets.

Clause 11.—The Company agrees for the full term of thirty years not to charge any rent for meters, or rent for transformers for installations up to 15 h.p.

Clause 12—(a) The Company agrees, for the full term of thirty years, to allow a discount of 30 per cent., instead of 25 per cent., on all house lighting accounts, and to reduce the minimum charge to meter customers from twelve dollars to nine dollars per year.

(b) The Company agrees to allow commercial customers, who are on a flat rate, to use whatever candle power lamps they wish and to pay for the lamps in proportion to their size on a basis of $3.00 per year for a 16 c.p. lamp.

(c) The Company agrees to reserve for manufacturing purposes, 2,000 horse power above what is supplied to the Quaker Oats Company.

Clause 13.—The Company agrees to allow the rates for light and power to be adjusted every five years by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board and also agrees that the rates mentioned in the By-Law shall not be increased during the thirty years.

Clause 14.—The Company agrees that nothing in this By-Law shall interfere with any rights the City now has, or may acquire, in regard to going into the light and power business.

Clause 15.—The Company agrees that if the City should wish to purchase its business it will not ask anything for prospective profits or franchise rights.

Clause 1.—The Company agrees that the City Council shall have the option of having any matters in dispute, under this By-Law, determined by a board of arbitrators under the Arbitrators Act, instead of by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

Clause 17.—The City gives the Company the right to place its poles and wires on the streets for thirty years.

Mr. A. P. Poussette.

Mr. A. Poussette, speaking on the Light and Power by-law, said:—I cannot but think that the proposition of the Light and Power Co., is about as fair a proposition as might be received. They are asking certain rights from the city and I like the manner in which they have itemized the clauses of the by-law in their pamphlets, which are being distributed among the citizens. The company is asking no more than what should be given to any power company which is allowing the privileges they extend. They are not asking an exclusive franchise, only for the right to place necessary poles and wires on the streets and they will allow the city the use of their poles, should the municipality at any time decide to do its own street lighting. They state that they will remove the poles and wires in a certain part of the city and will place them underground. They agree to allow other companies to use their poles at a certain rental to be fixed by Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. Taking it on the whole the by-law as finally agreed to by the Council is a reasonable proposition and the ratepayers might easily approve of it. The lighting of the city and the power question are of paramount importance. It is fortunate for us to have such a corporation to serve us with light and power, and if the citizens calmly consider the matter, remembering that we have a company with unlimited capital at its back, there should be no hesitation in voting for this by-law and supporting this proposition. Some people may say that the company is not giving us all the privileges they should. I have no hesitation in saying that we are getting light as reasonable as in any place in Ontario and I think that the by-law should receive the hearty endorsation of the people.

Mr. W. H. Denham.

Mr. W. H. Denham in discussing the by-law explained to the meeting the relationship between the Peterborough Light and Power Company and the Quaker Oats Company. While it was true that the Quaker Oats Company with unlimited capital was behind the Peterborough Light and Power Co., yet it was the case that the Quaker Oats Company was a cereal company with its business growing enormously in the States and its money was needed for that development. Therefore the Quaker Oats Company expected its auxiliary business to stand on its own feet. This could not be done in the case of the Peterborough Light and Power Company unless bonds could be issued for future improvements. It would be necessary in Peterborough to develop more power in the near future which would mean a large increase in the investment. The company would have to provide for that investment independently of the Quaker Oats Company. It was therefore necessary that they should be in a position to issue bonds and they would need a thirty year franchise to get these bonds from the underwriters. It would be impossible to get these bonds with the present five year franchise. It was necessary to have a thirty years term, which is the general term for bond issues. That was the only advantage that the Light and Power Company had in the matter and that was the point in which the Quaker Oats Company was concerned.

Mr. Denham thought that everyone was satisfied that the Light and Power Company was not asking for more than they should have and a lot less than if they were a new company coming in. Every point of importance to the city was protected in the by-law. The only difficulty in voting on the by-law was that there were a certain class of people who voted against every bylaw that came along, be it good or bad. Mr. Denham urged upon those who were in favour of the by-law to endeavour to explain to that class of people the benefits to be gained in passing the measure.

Mr. Denham took up the question of light charges and stated that there were very few places in Canada that had such cheap light rate as Peterborough and in these cases there was a meter charge of 25c., which made considerable difference in the case of a working man's bill. In conclusion he urged upon the citizens present to do all in their power to pass the by-law which would be in the interests of Peterborough, as it would mean, among other things, improvements at the plant of the Quaker Oats Company here and the consequent employment of more men.

Mr. T. F. Matthews approved of the action of the Council in submitting the by-laws to the ratepayers. In this case as good arrangements as possible had been made with the existing company. He thought no better could have been received had the company just been brought here. "I intend to support this by-law," Mr. Matthews said, "because I believe that it is in the interest of the city that it should be passed."

Mr. Matthews then read a resolution expressing the opinion of the board that the measure should carry

Mr. W. S. Dodd stated that he would like to hear the aldermen present. Ald. Hicks and Duffus expressed their opinions on the by-law.

Ald. Hicks.

Ald Hicks spoke as follows:

the present five year franchise.

The Peterborough Light and Power Co. asked certain concessions from the Council when this question was first introduced. One in particular was that they should have the privilege to use the streets of the city in connection with their power for thirty years. The Council at once took up the question of the rates at which a by-law should be submitted. Summed up, it means that while the cost of lighting is not as low as we might expect, still it is as low as in the majority of places under similar conditions. The defeat of the by-law would not help the city to any extent. There was no other Company offering better inducements. We get 5 per cent. discount from our present rates, and also a guarantee that the rates will not be increased during the thirty years referred to. We have the option of applying to the Railway Board every five years for the readjustment of the rates. This safeguards the city in respect to the rates.

Regarding clause 14, which states that the Company agrees that nothing in the By-law shall interfere with any rights the city now has, or may acquire, in regard to going into the light and power business, it was thought by some that this might prevent the city from going into the power and lighting business for itself. This clause, however, provides for that. Some also thought that if the city intended to go into business for itself, they were giving away something they would have to buy back. The city was not placed in any different position than now. It is an open question whether the city has control of the streets, there appearing to be no agreement. In cases of this kind legal proceedings had proved costly. This agreement brings the Company under control and settles for all time the question of the ownership of the streets.

Ald. J. J. Duffus.

Ald. Duffus said that as one who had spent considerable time over the agreement, he knew that the city had got the best agreement possible with the Light and Power Company, although at the time of the negotiations he had endeavoured to secure a thirty-five per cent. discount for domestic purposes. Ald. Duffus was sure that if the people passed the by-law at the January elections they would be satisfied with the agreement which he reiterated, he thought the best that could be arranged and thoroughly in the interests of the city.

Some objection was made that the City could not go into the light and power business under the agreement. "Yes, it can," explained the President. It has the same power as it ever had."

"Only it cannot use our poles," remarked Mr. Larmonth.

Mayor Rush.

Mayor Rush explained that the Council had gone into the matter and he thought it was in the best interests of the city. Some of the aldermen had fought very hard in the matter against the Light and Power Company, harder, perhaps, he thought, than they should have. "It would be a great mistake if the citizens did not pass this measure," concluded the Mayor.

Mr. Matthew's motion, which was seconded by Mr. Poussette, and carried unanimously, was as follows:

"That after hearing the arguments in connection with the Light and Power Company By-law it is the opinion of this meeting, that, as the interests o fthe city are safeguarded in the preparation of the bill by the Council, this Board approves of the commends it to the ratepayers as a measure that should be passed.

The Isolation Hospital.

The by-law to provide $19,000 for the erection of an Isolation Hospital was the next measure introduced and the members of the Board had no hesitation in quickly expressing opinions favourable to the by-law.

"I believe this by-law should pass," remarked Mr. T. F. Matthews. The Council have been remiss in the past in this matter."

"It is the best thing the citizens could embark in," was Mr. D. H. Burritt's comment.

"I think it should be carried," remarked Mr. J. Coyle Brown, and moved a resolution to that effect.

"I think that it is a move in the right direction," said Mr. F. D. Kerr. It would be a good iden to have the members here give their views on the subject."

"I am heartily in favour of the by-law," said Mr. Larmonth. "I think the city has been remiss. It would not cost the city much more than it does at present."

Mr. A. Poussette thought that the city was behind the times in one or two instances. One of these was in regard to an isolation Hospital, and another was the lack of accommodation for the poor of the city. It had been commented on in the judge's charge to the Grand Jury at the December sessions yesterday, and Mr. Poussette thought that it was a crying shame that men whose only crime was poverty should be forced to go to gaol.

Mayor Rush explained that there were only two men in the gaol at the present time, of which this could be said, and they were men whose conduct had been so bad that the management of the Protestant Home, at which they had been maintained at the city's expense, refused to shelter them longer. Had they behaved themselves the city would still have been looking after them.

Mr. Brown's resolution, which was seconded by Mr. W. H. Denham, was carried unanimously.

The Ward System.

The by-law providing for the election of representatives to the Council from each ward instead of the general system, now in force, was considered last. Ald. Gillespie introduced briefly and asked for opinions in regard to it.

Mr. Robert Fair stated that if any ward felt that it was not receiving fair treatment it should nominate a representative, and elect him. The ward system of selecting led to quarrelling among the representatives of the various wards. The best results are obtained from a general election from the entire municipality. These representatives could be depended upon to do what was fair for each ward. The present way is the fairest, and the city has grown most rapidly under the system of electing from the entire city.

Mr. Fair moved a resolution to the effect that the adoption of the ward system was not in the interests of the city.

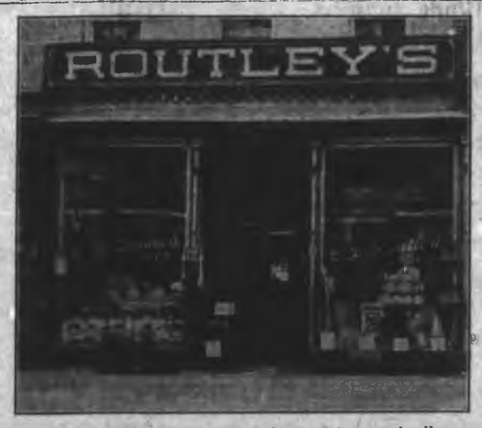
Mr. John Riddell.

In seconding the motion Mr. John Riddell expressed himself as opposed to representation, according to the ward system. In the first place, it would show a lack of stability on the city's part to go back to that which they had abandoned only a few years ago. It, is recognized throughout Ontario that the ward system is obsolete. It had cost Montreal one million dollars.

Mr. Austin was informed that it was about ten years since the city had returned from the ward system to that now in use.

Mr. Joseph Downing did not think that some of the wards not represented now were fairly dealt with, but when Mr. Gillespie asked him to specify some particular case in which a ward had not been fairly dealt with he did not do so. The motion was then voted on and not a dissenting voice was heard.

The meeting then adjourned.



ROUTLEY'S XMAS STORE TAKES THE CAKE!

A Holiday Mecca Filled With Kristmas Keepsakes for Kith and Kin.

What would Christmas be in Peterborough without Routley's? For years, it has come to be acknowledged that Routley's gets the credit for being Peterborough's greatest fancy goods and toy store, especially at Christmas season.

Really, if you want to feel the true Christmas spirit, visit Routley's Toyland—the realm of Santa Claus and Christmas playthings. Never has there been seen in this city a more interesting collection of real playthings—things on wheels, things that make music, things with which to play travel, war, or games; things that make believe keep house, and things to build up, simply to be knocked down again.

The whole store is all agog with the brilliant sights and allurements of Christmas, and the Christmas rush is fast setting in. As far as goods can do it this Christmas, should be a happy one, if Routley's is left to "deliver the goods."

Do you good to take a stroll through the store, upstairs and down. At this season, more than ever, a wholesome love for the beautiful and good enters into every man's breast; and the "Peace on earth and good will towards men" sentiment becomes more generally practised. To see the overflowing holiday stocks, elegant fancy goods in Routley's is to warm up to an admiration of the beautiful reminders of affection and esteem which will go from fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers, sweethearts, during this merry season of gift-giving.

By all means, take the children to Routley's and let them see the things that go and do stunts.

In past years, the crush at Routley's during Christmas week has been so great that it has been impossible to walk through the store. It is more than likely that this will be repeated this year, as Mr. Routley's business grows bigger every year.

Why not shop early this week and in the morning hours, if possible, and help the salespeople as well as yourselves. Read Routley's big advertisement in this issue.

Constipation.

No one need expect to be healthy if the bowels are allowed to become clogged up. A free motion of the bowels daily should be the rule with everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Costiveness or constipation clogs the bowels, chokes up the natural outlet of impure matter, and retains in the system the poisonous effete waste products of nature, causing bad blood, dyspepsia headache, biliousness, foul humors, pimples, boils, blotches, piles, etc. Burdock Blood Bitters has built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for constipation and all the diseases which arise from it.

Constipation Cured.

Mr. Burns Woodcock, Nashwaak Bridge, N.B., writes "For over two years my wife was troubled with constipation. She tried several physicians, but could get no relief, but after taking three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters she was completely cured and to-day in good health. My wife cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters."

NO INTERMEDIATE TEAM FOR LINDSAY THIS YEAR

The first meeting of the new executive of the Ontario Hockey Association was held last night at Toronto. The arranging of the clubs into groups in the three series was the important business of the session.

Applications for change of residence permits for two players in Belleville and Lindsay were refused, and the tone of the executive is evidently to discourage such expectations.

This means that Randall and Leo Cote cannot play with Lindsay this year and as a result no intermediate team was entered. Lindsay has entered a team in the junior series and are grouped with Peterborough and Peterborough Collegiate. — Lindsay Warder.

RETURN CONCERT

Welsh Choir Delighted Only a Fairly Large Audience at Conservatory Music Hall.

The Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir entertained an appreciative audience at the onservatory of Music Hall last nighmt on a return tour to the Atlantic, which they will cross in a few days to arrive home in time for Christmas after a very successful list of engagements in Canada. The attendance was not as large as the merit of the concert deserved, but this may be explained by the fact of the many other attractions last night in the city. The choir, however, won fresh laurels and what was lacking in point of numbers was more than balanced by the enthusiasm with which the various numbers were received. Reference was made to the excellence of their solo and choral work upon their former appearance at the Conservatory of Music Hall. The programme consisted of fourteen numbers and was selected in an attractive manner. Probably Miss Nanni Langden's rendering of "The Carnival by Molley, was the most charming offering of the evening. Miss Langdon is the possessor of a beautiful contralto voice and the fact that she was recalled three times is evidence of thes appreciation with which her solo was received. The choir exhibited its ensemble qualities in the Miserere from Il Trevatore with Misses Marianne Squire and Langdon taking the solo parts. The massed voices responded to the directoreas with exceptional precision and with splendid musical effect. Peterborough music lovers who were fortunate enough to hear the choir will long remember their choral work and particularly those soloists who were premieres in their respetcive classes.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor of Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—I shall be glad if you will tell me through your pages, whether a woman who has been engaged for work by the day, can claim any redress if, considering herself under no obligation to fulfil her part of the engagement, she refuses work elsewhere, and then is told in the morning she expects to go to the place of employment that she is not needed. A case of this kind has come to my knowledge more than once, and the person referred to has had to quietly bear the los sof the money she had calculated upon earning and which she badly needed. It does not seem to me it is carrying out the spirit of the Golden Rule, although it is merely an act of kindness.—Yours truly,

JUSTICE.

Dec. 15th, 1909.

Note.—It is thought that there is no redress in a case of this kind, although a sense of justice on the part of the party who engagde the woman might lead her to make some recompense to her.
